PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

(HANSARD)

SIXTH SERIES—VOLUME 263 (PART 2)

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OFFICIAL REPORT

THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTY-FIRST PARLIAMENT
OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND
FORTY-FOURTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II

SESSION 1994–95

COMPRISING PERIOD
3 July—19 July 1995

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 3 July 1995

HEALTH

Readmission Rates

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what definition of readmission is used when calculating readmission rates. [30421]

Mr. Sackville: There is no nationally agreed definition of readmission, nor is there a central mechanism available for collecting information on readmission rates in England. Work is in progress that will in time enable hospital admissions data to be linked to individual patients.

Food Poisoning

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of food poisoning were reported in each of the last 10 years in (a) York, (b) North Yorkshire, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside and (d) England. [31600]

Mr. Sackville: The information requested is published annually in series MB2 "Communicable disease statistics". The latest available publication is series MB2 no. 19, copies of which are available in the Library.

Asthma

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the annual NHS expenditure on the treatment of asthma; and what proportion of the total budget this represents. [31411]

Mr. Sackville: In 1994 the net ingredient cost of national health service prescriptions for asthma medication was £381 million, some 11 per cent. of the net ingredient cost of all prescriptions. The net ingredient cost is the basic price of a drug before discounts and the addition of dispensing costs or fees. Estimates have been made for the financial year 1989–90 of the cost of other NHS services, excluding community health services. It is estimated that the cost of services for asthma was £72 million, which was 0.6 per cent. of the total cost of these services.

Royal Hospitals NHS Trust

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many consultants were at the hospitals that make up the royal hospitals two years ago; what is the current figure; and what is the projected number after the reorganisation as a number and as a whole-time equivalent; [31355]

(2) how many orthopaedic beds were under the control of the Royal Hospital trust before and after the reorganisation; on which site they will be located; and what will be the numbers on each site. [31365]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally. The right hon. Member may wish to contact Sir Derek Boorman, chairman of the Royal Hospitals NHS trust for details.

Diabetes

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what is the average cost to her Department of providing a diabetes sufferer with a lifetime of free prescriptions; [31407]

(2) what is the total annual cost to her Department of providing free prescriptions to sufferers of diabetes; [31405]

(3) what is the average cost to her Department of prescriptions to diabetics per annum, per patient. [31404]

Mr. Sackville: The available information is shown in the table.

Drugs used in the treatment of diabetes, 1994 (provisional)

England

Ingredient cost/item
Net ingredient cost	£97.3 million
Prescription items	9.4 million
Average net ingredient cost per prescription item	£10.33

Notes:

1. Drugs as defined by the British National Formulary section 6.1
2. The information was obtained from the Prescription Cost Analysis system which is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered in England.
3. The net ingredient cost refers to the cost of the drug before discounts and does not include any dispensing costs or fees.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many diabetics there are in Britain. [31406]

Mr. Sackville: An estimated 1.2 per cent. of the British population have clinically diagnosed diabetes.

Diptheria

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action she is taking for the population of the United Kingdom in respect of the World Health Organisation guidance that the people should receive a booster vaccine against diptheria every 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [31503]

Mr. Sackville: We are not aware of any such recommendations by the World Health Organisation. WHO recommends that a primary course of three doses of diphtheria vaccine should be part of the immunisation programme and in the United Kingdom children are offered three doses of diptheria vaccine at two, three and four months of age. A reinforcing booster dose is offered as part of the pre-school booster to four-year-olds and a further low dose booster of tetanus/diphtheria vaccine is offered to teenagers.

The chief medical officer has issued advice for boosting requirements for travellers to eastern Europe.

Surgeons (St. Bartholomew's Hospital)

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the resignation of three orthopaedic consultants at St Bartholomew's hospital. [31356]

Mr. Malone: This is a matter for the Royal Hospitals National Health Service trust. The right hon. Member may wish to contact the chairman, Sir Derek Boorman, for details.

Ask-a-Nurse Service

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the ask-a-nurse service by Access Health United Kingdom; and what plans she has to finance it. [31350]

Mr. Malone: It is for health authorities, in consultation with clinicians and the public, and bearing in mind the national framework set out in the priorities and planning guidance for the national health service, to decide what treatments and services are required in order to meet local needs.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what NHS funds have been paid from the NHS to Access Health United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [31349]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

Dysentery

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of dysentery were recorded in (a) York, (b) North Yorkshire, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside and (d) England in each year since 1990. [31601]

Mr. Sackville: Information on the number of cases of dysentery are published annually in the MB2 series, "communicable disease statistics," copies of which are available in the Library.

Cosmetic Surgery

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has carried out into an assessment of nasal shape after surgery using Quicktime;what were the findings of that research; and if she will make a statement. [31502]

Mr. Sackville: The Department of Health has conducted no research into this subject.

Births

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of births outside marriage were registered by both parents living in the same address in (a) York, (b) North Yorkshire, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside and (d) England in each year since 1979. [31603]

Mr. Sackville: The available information is shown in the table.

Percentage of births outside marriage which were jointly registered by parents living at the same address

1986	50.0	51.2	47.3	47.1
1987	51.6	53.5	47.7	48.2
1988	51.5	55.4	48.6	49.9
1989	57.2	56.5	50.9	52.0
1990	56.0	58.9	52.6	53.5
1991	57.3	60.4	53.4	55.0
1992	58.3	59.8	54.6	55.9
1993	60.0	62.8	54.9	55.3

Folic Acid

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will publish the details of the campaign to be commenced in the autumn on the importance of folic acid taken before conception and then in early pregnancy. [31331]

Mr. Sackville: Plans for a public awareness campaign about folic acid and the prevention of neural tube defects are nearing completion and an announcement will be made shortly.

Mr. Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to make folic acid available free of charge as a pre-pregnancy supplement. [31333]

Mr. Sackville: None. Folic acid is already available on prescription free of charge for women who are pregnant or who are entitled to remission of prescription charges on grounds of low income.

Trauma Units

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the hospitals which have specialist trauma units. [31504]

Mr. Sackville: Trauma patients are normally taken to hospital accident and emergency departments.

In 1988 a Royal College of Surgeons report suggested that outcomes for patients with life-threatening injury might be better if they were treated in regional trauma centres.

We set up a pilot trauma centre at the North Staffordshire Hospitals National Health Service trust in 1990. The evaluation of this pilot is now complete and a report is being drafted.

Private Health Care

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the expenditure by each hospital trust in each of the past four years in purchasing health care or facilities in the private sector; and what was the total expenditure for this purpose in each year. [31839]

Mr. Sackville: The financial returns of national health service trusts provide expenditure figures on the purchase of health care from non-NHS bodies, whether in the public or private sectors. The figures for England are £12,204,000 in 1991–92, £45,436,000 in 1992–93, and £50,386,000 in 1993–94. The Government welcome cost-effective co-operation between the NHS and independent sector. This increases the range of options available to patients and health service managers and makes optimum use of available resources.

Meconium Aspiration

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths have occurred as a result of meconium aspiration in each of the past 10 years; and what action she will take to reduce the number of deaths resulting from meconium aspiration. [30890]

Mr. Sackville: Figures for stillbirths, neonatal deaths—deaths under 28 days—and postneonatal deaths—deaths between 28 days and under one year—with a cause coded to the international classification of diseases, ICD 9th revision code 770.1, massive aspiration syndrome, will be placed in the Library.

Fertility Treatment

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is her estimate to date of the number of children born as a result of fertility treatment within the national health service. [30891]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

Medical Qualifications

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the effect of the European medical directives on United Kingdom registered medical practitioners who are also United Kingdom citizens, and who obtained their primary medical qualification outside the United Kingdom. [31330]

Mr. Malone: European legislation deals only with the mutual recognition of medical qualifications issued by member states of the European Economic Area. Each member state may decide for itself whether to recognise medical qualifications gained outside the EEA. The competent authority in each member state must, in considering an application for registration from a person whose qualification has been gained outside the EEA, take account of and give appropriate weight to the fact that an applicant's primary medical qualification has been recognised by another EEA state and the knowledge, experience and qualifications gained by an applicant in an EEA state, subsequent to obtaining his primary medical qualification outside the EEA.

Young People Leaving Care

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of young people who left care in each of the past five years for which figures are available (a) went into furnished private accommodation, (b) went into furnished local authority accommodation, (c) went in to unfurnished accommodation and (d) went into temporary accommodation; and what percentage is currently homeless. [31616]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of young people leaving care receive a leaving care grant; what is the average value of the grant; and if she will give a regional breakdown of the amounts given. [31613]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

National Blood Authority

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what new posts have been designated by the National Blood Authority in preparation for possible re organisation; and if she will state the titles of the posts and the names of those provisionally appointed. [31996]

Mr. Sackville: This is a matter for the National Blood Authority.

Fostering

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish her response to the consultation about the delegation of fostering duties to profit-making organisations and the easement of respite care regulations; and if she will make a statement. [32101]

Mr. Bowis: We are considering the responses received to the consultation document.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Atmospheric Pollutants

Mr. Redmond: To ask the right hon. Member for Selby, as representing the Church Commissioners what action the Commissioners are taking to obtain Government repair grants for damage caused by atmospheric pollutants; and if he will make a statement. [31090]

Mr. Alison: None, so far as the Commissioners' own property is concerned.

Pensions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the right hon. Member for Selby, as representing the Church Commissioners (1) what plans the Commissioners have to establish two pension funds, one for the dignitaries and staff at Church House and No. 1 Millbank and another for the parish clergy; [31992]

(2) what plans the Commissioners have for a single fund into which they will pay the future contributions of dignitaries while each diocese will be asked to meet the future contributions of the parish clergy. [31993]

Mr. Alison: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer that I gave him on 14 June 1995, Official Report, column 556.

One of the proposals of the joint report on pensions by the Central Board of Finance, the Church of England Pensions Board and the Church Commissioners which will be considered by the General Synod in July, is that pensions contributions in respect of future service of the parochial clergy should be raised by dioceses—through parishes—and invested in a separate pensions fund. The Commissioners would make contributions into the same fund in respect of those dignitaries whose stipends they meet in full.

The Commissioners will be seeking the power to spend capital to discharge their existing liability for past service pensions. That power could also be used to enable the establishment of a funded scheme for the staff in their employment.

Temporary Income

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the right hon. Member for Selby, as representing the Church Commissioners (1) what was the cost of capital losses incurred to purchase £12.9 million temporary income mentioned in the 1994 annual report;

(2) what was the total temporary income generated since the Commissioners began the practice of obtaining this income; and what effect this has had on the size of the capital base of the Commissioners' assets.

Mr. Alison: Temporary income refers to the accounting policy of recording interest on gilt edged securities on a receipts basis rather than on an accruals basis. The temporary income generated up to the end of 1994 was £56.7 million. As explained in appendix 12 of the Social Security Committee's recent report, in so far as the above amounts would otherwise have been treated as capital and retained, the fact that they have been recorded as income and distributed within the Church has led to capital being reduced by the same amount.

The Commissioners have repeatedly made it clear that the current level of income distribution as a percentage of their assets remains unsustainably high, despite a reduction to 6 per cent. in 1994. The generation of temporary income is but one element of an investment strategy which is required to produce the level of income needed to meet the Commissioners' current commitments to the financial support of the ministry. The Commissioners are reducing their expenditure and re-balancing their assets at a pace which is feasible for them and manageable for the Church.

EMPLOYMENT

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what plans he has to review the provision in the proposed jobseeker's allowance that a claimant has to be available for work for 40 hours per week and still accept any job that is offered, in the light of changing trends in the number of jobs which are part-time. [31660]

Miss Widdecombe: None. People claiming jobseeker's allowance should ensure that they are open to a wide range of job opportunities. They should therefore be willing to work for a minimum of 40 hours per week, even if they would prefer to work fewer hours. Jobseekers will not, however, be subject to a sanction for refusing a job offered to them if they can show good cause for that refusal.

Young People Leaving Care

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what percentage of young people who left care in each of the past five years for which figures are available are currently (a) on YTS schemes, (b) employed and (c) unemployed. [31620]

Mr. Paice: The information requested is not available. The labour force survey and the youth cohort study both gather information on the employment status of young people, but neither asks whether respondents have been in care.

Employment Service

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what progress the Employment Service has made in meeting the targets outlined in the 1994–95 annual performance agreement; and if he will list the targets and the outcomes achieved. [32596]

Miss Widdecombe: The Employment Service has performed excellently in 1994–95, exceeding all but one of its targets. It placed 1,876,800 unemployed people into jobs, against an annual target of 1.7 million. This represents 236,900 more placings than 1993–94. Performance against all the targets for 1994–95 is set out in the following table:

Employment service performance against target
April 1994–March 1995

Annual performance targets	Target levels	Performance
1. To place 1.7 million unemployed people into work at a planned unit cost of £188, assuming 2.4 million vacancies are notified	1.7 million	1,876,800
2. 29.5 per cent. of total unemployed placings achieved to be long-term claimants.	29.5 per cent.	29.7 per cent. (556,600)
3. 26 per cent. of total unemployed placings achieved to be people in inner cities.	26 per cent.	28 per cent. (526,300)
4. 50 per cent. positive outcomes for unemployed claimants invited to a 12 month advisory interview.	50 per cent.	53 per cent.
5. 35 per cent. positive outcomes for unemployed claimants invited to a 24 month advisory interview.	35 per cent.	44 per cent.
6. 92 per cent. of clients due an advisory interview to receive one, assuming 9 million interviews are due.	92 per cent.	95 per cent.
7. 9 per cent. of initial claim enquiries not to be pursued as new claims	9 per cent.	10.3 per cent
8. 135,000 submissions to adjudication where there is an arguable case, with supporting information to show that the claimant is not available for, actively seeking or willing to accept work.	135,000	203,500

Employment service performance against target
April 1994–March 1995

Annual performance targets	Target levels	Performance
9. At a planned unit cost per claimant of £14.80 for all benefit claims:
—despatch 75 per cent. of first payments of Unemployment Benefit within 10 days of a claim	75 per cent.	65 per cent.
—97 per cent. of Unemployment Benefit payments by value to be correct.	97 per cent.	96 per cent.
10. 3.3 per cent. of total unemployed placings achieved to be people with disabilities	3.3 per cent.	3.7 per cent. (70,300)
11. 70,000 claims to be withdrawn of those suspected of obtaining benefit by deception following fraud investigation.	70,000	78,200
12. To achieve £25.1 million in efficiency savings.	£25.1 million	£29.09 million

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

High Commission, Nairobi

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will give a breakdown of the cost involved in the building of the new United Kingdom high commission office in Nairobi, Kenya. [31703]

Mr. Goodlad: The building cost to date of the new British high commission in Nairobi totals £5,640,000, comprising land cost of £65,000, consultants' fees of £1,230,000 and construction costs of £4,345,000.

Indigenous Peoples

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Her Majesty's Government's policy on the rights of indigenous peoples. [31847]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We are concerned that the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all people, including indigenous people, should be respected. We believe that indigenous people should participate fully and freely in all aspects of society, in particular in matters of concern to them. We participate in the discussion on indigenous issues within the UN.

France (Nuclear Testing)

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to make representations to the French Government about its intention to resume nuclear testing. [31777]

Mr. David Davis: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer which I gave to the hon. Member for Ynys Môn (Mr. Jones) on 28 June, Official Report, column 636.

South Pacific

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to sign the treaty of Rarotonga on a South Pacific nuclear-free zone. [31778]

Mr. David Davis: The treaty of Rarotonga is not open for signature by the United Kingdom. We have no current plans to become a party to any of the protocols to the treaty of Rarotonga.

Complaints

Ms Hodge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what policy and procedure exists for dealing with complaints against his Department by members of the public; when the policy was last updated; what time limit and target for dealing with such complaints his Department has; and what follow-up procedure exists where complainants are not satisfied with his Department's response to a complaint. [26220]

Mr. Goodlad: The FCO's diplomatic wing policy and procedure for dealing with complaints from members of the public in respect of the legalisation office, consular service and overseas trade services is as follows:

LEGALISATION OFFICE

Complaints dealt with on the spot where possible; target of three workings days where further investigation required.

Complaints procedure published with names and addresses of individuals to whom complaints should be addressed.

Complaints procedure reviewed and updated 1 February 1995.

CONSULAR SERVICE

—Overseas

Target of three working days to respond to complaints.

Each post offering consular services displays procedures for complaints and named individuals to whom complaints should be addressed.

Procedure has not been updated.

—At home

Complaints replied to within seven working days if channelled through an MP; target of twenty working days to reply if complaint made direct.

OVERSEAS TRADE SERVICES

Target of five working days for service provider to respond to complaints. Target of fifteen working days for Customer Services Manager to respond if complaint taken to that level.

Guidelines shortly to be published.

Guidelines reviewed annually but have not been updated.

Complaints on all other matters, including complaints relating to the Overseas Development Administration, sent by a Member of Parliament are dealt with within seven working days. Other written complaints are dealt with within the 20 working day deadline for letters to members of the public.

Guidance on complaints procedures advises members of the public to contact their Member of Parliament or the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration—Parliamentary Ombudsman—if they are not satisfied with the way in which their complaint has been handled.

Departmental Performance

Ms Hodge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what performance indicators and performance targets there are for measuring the performance of his Department in (a) answering letters from members of the public and (b) answering telephone calls from members of the public; how performance is monitored; and what are the latest figures for performance measured against the target set. [26236]

Mr. Goodlad: The FCO has an office-wide target of 20 working days for replying to letters from members of the public. For the diplomatic wing, performance is monitored within each department and central returns submitted. Between 1 April 1994, when the target was introduced, to 31 December 1994, 23,329 letters were received of which 98 per cent. were replied to within the target. In the Overseas Development Administration, 1,477 requests for information were received within the same period, of which 94 per cent. were replied to within the target.

The FCO has no set target for answering telephone calls from members of the public.

UN Conference on Women

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make arrangements for those representing the United Kingdom at the Beijing conference on women to receive a briefing from those non-governmental organisations and other organisations on the human rights position of women in China. [26900]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We already have close contact with human rights organisations dealing with the Peking conference on women.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Chinese authorities regarding the provision made for non-governmental organisations at the United National conference on women to be held in Beijing. [26898]

Mr. Hogg: We have been associated with European Union representations to the Chinese authorities about provision for non-governmental organisations at the world conference on women.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he had made to the United Nations regarding the practice of using geographical rotation to choose the venue for the United Nations conference on women irrespective of the human rights record of a country. [26899]

Mr. Hogg: None.

Indonesia

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent meetings have been held with the Government of Indonesia concerning human rights abuse; and if he will make a statement. [27088]

Mr. Goodlad: We continue to take every appropriate opportunity to urge the Indonesian Government to continue to improve their human rights record.

The issue was raised by my right hon. and noble Friend the Minister for Overseas Development during her recent visit to Indonesia.

Bangladesh

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Ministers from his Department have visited Bangladesh in each of the last three years. [26992]

Mr. Baldry: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs visited Bangladesh in January 1995. I visited in November 1994.

Facility Trips (Journalists)

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list facility trips abroad which have been granted to British newspaper journalists in the last two years. [25907]

Mr. Baldry: The details are as follows:

Date of visit	Destination	Number in press party (journalists)
1–4 June 1993	Romania Bulgaria Macedonia	4
6–8 September 1993	UAE Saudi Arabia	7
22–24 October 1993	Syria	6
3–7 January 1994	Lebanon Israel Occupied Territories Jordan Malta	10
19–20 January 1994	Turkey	2
4–11 April 1994	Brazil Falklands	2
22–24 May 1994	Russia Ukraine	3
11–20 September 1994	Thailand Vietnam Hong Kong Japan	2
12–14 October 1994	Kuwait Bahrain Saudi Arabia Jordan Syria Turkey	16
4 December 1994	Former Yugoslavia	11
3–9 January 1995	Bangladesh India Pakistan	1 (4 others—Lahore/ Islamabad leg only)
13–14 February 1995	Sweden	1
11–12 April 1995	Slovakia Poland	2

In all cases, journalists are charged for air and ground transportation.

Kashmir

Mr. Heppell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the burning of the Mosque and village of Charar-e-Sharief in Kashmir on Thursday 11 May. [25447]

Mr. Baldry: We deeply regret the burning of the village of Charar-e-Sharief in Kashmir and its historic shrine. We have urged all sides to exercise restraint. We shall continue to try to promote a peaceful solution in Kashmir.

ENVIRONMENT

Water Disconnections

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many households had their water supply disconnected as a result of non-payment of bills in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each since 1989. [31583]

Mr. Atkins: Information on disconnections is not available in the form requested. The Director General of Water Services publishes data on disconnections twice a year in Ofwat news releases, by water company area. Copies of Ofwat news releases are in the library.

Chlorinated Paraffins

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what consideration he has given to the environmental case for phasing out the production of chlorinated paraffins. [31875]

Mr. Atkins: The production and use of short-chain chlorinated paraffins are being examined currently by the Department of the Environment in the context of EC regulation No. 793/93 on the evaluation and control of existing substances to determine the extent to which they pose a risk to the environment. The outcome of this examination will be used to determine whether control measures may be necessary.

Single Regeneration Budget

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list for each local authority the current single regeneration budget in cash terms and per head of the pollution. [31679]

Sir Paul Beresford: Single regeneration budget resources are not allocated or recorded by references to local authority districts. Many schemes and initiatives supported by the SRB, including the challenge fund element, relate to a range of geographical and administrative areas, and funding is directed to a range of bodies such as training and enterprise councils and voluntary groups in addition to local authorities.

Education Standard Spending Assessment

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list by cash value the education standard spending assessment for 1995–96 for each of the 38 shire counties for (a) primary and (b) secondary education. [31686]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Mrs. Winteron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment by what percentage, and by what cash value, the education standard spending assessment for 1995–96 for Cheshire differs from (a) the average such education standard spending assessment and (b) the highest such education standard spending assessment, for (i) all education authorities, (ii) shire counties, (iii) north-west education authorities and (iv) London boroughs. [31687]

Mr. Jones: The 1995-96 education standard spending assessment for Cheshire is £332.027 million. The figures requested are given in the table:

	Amount £ million	Absolute difference from Cheshire £ million	Percentage difference from Cheshire Per cent.
Average English local education authority	156.184	175.843	113
Average shire county	264.864	67.163	25
Average North West local education authority	135.438	196.589	145
Average London borough	84.888	247.139	291
Highest English local education authority (Kent)	559.063	–227.036	–41
Highest shire county (Kent)	559.063	–227.036	–41
Highest North West local education authority (Lancashire)	483.978	–151.951	–31
Highest London borough (Newham)	123.810	208.217	168

The following table expresses differences from figures for Cheshire in terms of £ per head of resident population, with Cheshire's figure being £341 per head. It therefore takes account of numbers of people resident within each local education authority's area.

	Amount (£ per resident)	Absolute difference from cheshire (£ per resident)	Percentage difference from Cheshire (Per cent.)
Average for all English local education authorities	351	–10	–3
Average for shire counties	333	9	3
Average for North West	360	–18	–5

Mrs. Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will identify and quantify the factors which were taken into account when establishing Cheshire's education standard spending assessment for 1995–96 [31688]

Mr. Jones: Information on the factors which were taken into account when establishing the education standard spending assessment for 1995–96 for every English local education authority is available in the Local Government Finance Report (England) 1995–96 and "Standard Spending Assessments: Guide to Methodology 1995–96" edition, both of which are available in the Library.

Information on the amounts used in establishing the education standard spending assessment for Cheshire county council for 1995–96 was sent to Cheshire county council on 31 January.

Area Cost Adjustment

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what value of area cost adjustment is proposed for 1995–6 for (a) Bedfordshire, (b) Hertfordshire, (c) Leicestershire and (d) Cheshire; and if he will specify in each case how that figure was calculated. [31690]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Full details of the value of the area cost adjustment for all English local authorities which benefited from that adjustment are available in the Library. The information covers the years 1991–92 to 1995–96.

The methodology that is used to calculate the area cost adjustment is set out in the departmental publication, "Standard Spending Assessments: Guide to Methodology 1995–96". A copy of this publication has been placed in the Library.

Fire Safety

Lady Olga Maitland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what conclusions he has reached on the study his Department has been making of fire safety in large single storey buildings. [32591]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: In February last year, a deputation of senior fire officers and representatives of building control and the insurance industry, came to see my predecessor, the hon. Member for Banbury (Mr. Baldry), about fire safety in single storey buildings with large undivided spaces. They were concerned about the safety of firefighters, as well as people within such buildings should they catch fire, and also about the possible pollution and large financial loss that might result. Buildings of this type are found throughout the country as supermarkets, factories and warehouses.

Recognising that if these buildings are to fulfil their functions properly they should not have to be divided into small fire compartments, the deputation recommended that the guidance issued on how to comply with building regulations should be changed so that when new buildings of these types exceeding 4000 sq m were being designed and constructed, a sprinkler system should be incorporated.

Although my Department had reviewed this aspect of the guidance not long before, my predecessor asked that a further study should be made of the fire safety of this type of building taking into account recent fires. This has now been done with the assistance of the Fire Research Station of the Building Research Establishment, the Fire Advisory Panel and the Building Regulations Advisory Committee.

This work has shown that while there may be a case for accepting the deputation's proposal in some respects, it is finely balanced and more time is needed to acquire better information on certain important factors before consultation can take place on detailed technical proposals. However, the following general conclusions have been reached:

(i) a case can be made for sprinklers in new retail single storey buildings with compartments exceeding 4000 square metres, in the interests of occupant and firefighter safety; but a similar case has not been made from the available data for large compartment single storey industrial storage buildings;

(ii) the guidance on measures to restrict fire spread through voids in these sorts of building should be reconsidered, with firefighter safety in mind as well as the occupants. Similarly we should take steps to improve the design and construction of fire barriers;

(iii) automatic smoke ventilation without sprinklers in buildings with low ceilings does not appear to be beneficial to occupants threatened by very fast-growing fires;

(iv) a case can be made for there to be a minimum 4 metre ceiling height in new retail single storey buildings over 4000 square metres, as an additional measure to sprinklers;

(v) the deputation drew attention to fires in which large insulating wall and ceiling panels seem to have been a significant feature. We plan to study the fire implications of the use of these panels in buildings such as cold stores and food factories, with a view to amending guidance or sponsoring a code of practice if appropriate.

My right hon. and learned Friend the Home Secretary is considering the implications for existing occupied buildings if these proposals were to be adopted in building regulations.

In the light of the above, I have asked my officials, in liaison with other Departments and taking account of the advice of the Building Regulations Advisory Committee, to prepare a consultation document covering issues (i) and (iv) above, if possible to be issued by the end of this year.

To the extent that it is possible within that time scale the other issues will also be addressed, but items (ii) and (v) in particular are likely to require research and may take considerably more time to resolve. The consultation paper will cover revisions to the whole of the part B approved document, and will therefore incorporate other suggested changes to that part which have arisen since it was last revised in December 1991. Any relevant conclusions from the interdepartmental scrutiny of fire safety legislation and enforcement, on which a separate statement is being made, will also be incorporated.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the (a) monthly and (b) annual change in the numbers of asylum seekers accepted as homeless by local authorities under the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993. [30546]

Mr. Robert B. Jones [holding answer 26 June 1995]: The data collected from local authorities in England on the numbers of households for which they accept responsibility to secure permanent accommodation under the homelessness provisions of the Housing Act 1985 have, since the beginning of 1994, included the numbers accepted after being granted asylum. The available data are as follows:

	Acceptance of former asylum seekers	Percentage change on previous quarter
Quarter 1 1994	300	n/a
Quarter 2 1994	260	–13
Quarter 3 1994	210	–19
Quarter 4 1994	250	+19
Quarter 1 1995	250	0

Director General of Water Services

Mr. Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the salary of the water regulator for each year since the post was established; and what is the percentage change in his earnings since the post's establishment in (a) cash terms and (b) real terms. [31539]

Mr. Atkins] [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Mr. Ian Byatt was appointed as Director General of Water Services from 1 August 1989 at an initial salary of £59,800 per annum; salary increases since his appointment are listed in the following table:

Director General of Water Services

Year	Salary £	Percentage change Cash terms	Real terms
April 1990	63,390	6.00	–1.9
January 1991	64,300	1.44	–2.5
April 1991	69,120	7.50	+5.2
December 1991	70,400	1.85	–0.1
April 1992	73,216	4.00	+1.7
April 1993	75,328	2.90	+1.6
April 1994	79,396	5.40	+2.8
April 1995	81,381	2.50	–0.8

Dounreay

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what action his Department has taken to date in respect of the RM Consultants report published in 1991 in relation to the Dounreay reprocessing plant; and if he will make a statement. [31207]

Sir Hector Monro: I have been asked to reply.

RM Consultants were commissioned by the then Scottish Development Department to look at a range of engineering options for the management of radioactive wastes in the Dounreay shaft. Following the publication of that report, HM industrial pollution inspectorate required the UK Atomic Energy Authority to carry out further studies aimed at identifying a clear strategy for the long-term management of that waste. Given the novel nature of the problems that had to be addressed these studies have taken some time and the results are not yet available.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Judicial Appointments

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department on how many occasions judicial appointments have been vetoed by the Prime Minister in each of the last 10 years. [30761]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Senior judicial appointments at the level of the Court of Appeal and above in England and Wales are made by the Queen on the recommendation of the Prime Minister.

Primary Legislation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer of 15 June, Official Report, column 606, what assessment he has made of the acceptability of one third of primary legislation readily available to members of the public in its current amended form; and if he will make a statement. [31036]

Mr. John M. Taylor: I have not received any representations from members of the public relating to the availability of primary legislation in its current amended form. Work towards the implementation of the statute law database system at the Statutory Publications Office is now well advanced. This system will provide the opportunity to meet the needs of all who require improved access to primary legislation in its current amended form.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer of 15 June, Official Report, column 606, if he will set target dates for raising the proportion of primary legislation readily available to hon. Members and the general public in its current amended form above (a) 50 per cent. and (b) 75 per cent. [31035]

Mr. Taylor: No. The editorial task of applying the effects of new legislation to the database will be approached in strict chronological sequence. The target date for completion of the exercise is March 1997.

Small Claims

Mr. Peter Atkinson: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if proposals to increase the small claims limit will be subject to a full consultation process; and if he will make a statement. [30948]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Lord Woolf consulted widely in the preparation of his interim report. In view of this, the Lord Chancellor does not intend to undertake further public consultation on whether he should implement Lord Woolf's recommendation that the limit for small claims, other than those for personal injury, should be raised to £3,000. The power to make the necessary amendments rests with the county court rule committee who, as part of its consideration of the matter, consults interested parties.

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make it his policy that any increase in the small claims court limit will be in line with the rate of inflation since July 1991. [30949]

Mr. Taylor: The present limit of £1,000 does not reflect the value of many cases which would be appropriate for disposal in the small claims forum, including straightforward claims relating to home extensions and improvements, family holidays or major car repairs. In order to make this cheaper and less formal procedure available to litigants with this type of claim it would not be sufficient simply to raise the limit in line with inflation.

TREASURY

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much has Government spending changed in 1994–95 as a result of the private finance initiative; what is the estimated effect in 1995–96; how many jobs are to be created by schemes approved to date under the initiative and how many have been lost as a consequence in the public sector; and what is the forecast of transfer of employment from public to private sector over the last five years because of the initiative. [30825]

Sir George Young [holding answer 28 June 1995]: The presence of private finance and management expertise will often allow projects that would not have gone ahead under conventional procurement either to go ahead, or to go ahead earlier. However, many factors were taken into account in determining priorities for public expenditure in 1994–95 and 1995–96, and it is not possible to measure the impact of the initiative in isolation.

Records are not kept centrally of the effect of the initiative on patterns of employment, but the number of jobs transferred from public to private sector as a result of the initiative to date is small. As the initiative allows more and better projects to go ahead, it will tend to create jobs, particularly in the private sector.

Astra plc

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the responsibilities of J. W. Cassey within Her Majesty's Customs and Excise; and in what capacity he visited the headquarters of Astra plc in April 1990. [31435]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Mr. J. W. Cassey was employed in Customs and Excise between February 1972 and January 1990.

Any visit made by him to Astra plc in April 1990 would not have been on behalf of Customs and Excise.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list by convenient category the documents removed from Astra plc and its subsidiaries which are retained by his Department. [31436]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 30 June 1995]: No. It is not Customs' practice to make public details of documents taken up during the course of inquiries, other than those revealed in the course of legal proceedings, lest such details cause unfairness to individuals or prejudice current or future investigations or proceedings.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the dates and periods of service on behalf of Customs and Excise of Mr. V. W. Cassey. [30090]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Customs and Excise has no record of currently or having previously employed a Mr. V. W. Cassey.

A Mr. J. W. Cassey was employed in Customs and Excise between February 1972 and January 1990.

CS Gas

Ms Clwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what quantities of CS gas equipment are shown by Customs and Excise records to have been exported to Indonesia in each year since 1985. [31760]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Export trade relating specifically to CS gas—o–Chlorobenzylidenemalononitrile—and "CS Gas Equipment", is not identifiable within the trade statistics.

ECOFIN

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the discussions held at ECOFIN on 19 June. [31609]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave in response to a very similar question from my hon. Friend the Member for Southport (Mr. Banks) on 29 June Official Report, columns 772–73.

Inland Revenue Computer Contract

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the original estimate of the cost of the Inland Revenue's computer contract with EDS; what is the current estimate; and if he will make a statement. [31645]

Sir George Young: When the Inland Revenue signed a 10–year outsourcing contract with EDS in May 1994, its estimated value based on the work load identified in the invitation to tender was £1 billion, which represented a potential saving of £225 million over the in-house costs.

The Inland Revenue and EDS have since agreed that the costs attributable to the work and resources transferred in the first phase of the tranche, in July 1994, were greater than those in the ITT. This increase in work load, which is largely due to the transfer of planned expenditure from third party suppliers to EDS, will increase the value of the contract by £250 million over 10 years. As the adjustment is on a broadly pound–for–pound basis, it does not increase the Department's overall expenditure nor decrease the potential savings.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the implications of the current difficulties with the Inland Revenue computer project for the timetable for the introduction of self-assessment; and if he will make a statement. [31644]

Sir George Young: Self-assessment will be introduced in 1997 as originally planned. The Inland Revenue and its IT services suppliers, EDS, are fully committed to the successful delivery of self-assessment.

Departmental Computer Systems

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions there have been between his Department and the Department of Social Security over the possible merger of the Department of Social Security and Inland Revenue computer systems; and if he will make a statement. [31646]

Sir George Young: There are no plans to merge the computer services supporting the operations of the Inland Revenue and Department of Social Security and there have been no discussions on such a merger between the two Departments.

Register of Conditionally Exempted Works of Art

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the estimated total market value of the items on the register of conditionally exempted works of art. [31873]

Sir George Young: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Treasury Solicitors

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if any of the Treasury Solicitors acting or advising in the case against former directors of Astra under the Company Directors Disqualification Act had, in any capacity within legal services of Government, acted or advised in the case of R v. Henderson, Allen and Abraham. [30786]

The Attorney-General: I have been asked to reply. Mr. Leithead and Mr. Howes of the Treasury Solicitor's Department, who are acting on behalf of the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry in the case referred to, advised in the case of R v. Henderson, Allen and Abraham.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the previous posts and duties within the Government service of Sir Gerald Hooper, Mr. Leitzead and Mr. Howes of the Treasury Solicitor's Department. [30782]

The Attorney-General: I have been asked to reply. The question is understood to refer to Sir Gerald Hosker, Mr. Leithead and Mr. Howes. The information is as follows:

Sir Gerald Hosker KCB QC

1960–66: Legal assistant: conveyancing duties

1966–72: Senior legal assistant: legal advice to the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Defence

1973–87: Successively as assistant Treasury Solicitor, principal assistant Treasury Solicitor and deputy Treasury Solicitor: legal advice to Her Majesty's Treasury and associated Departments.

1984–87: Duties as deputy Treasury Solicitor

1987–92: Duties as solicitor to the Department of Trade and Industry

1992 to date: Duties as HM Procurator General, Treasury Solicitor and Queen's Proctor.

Mr. Leithead

1977 to date: Senior legal assistant and from 1982 assistant Treasury Solicitor: legal advice to and civil litigation for the Department of Trade and Industry, the Office of Fair Trading, the Export Credits Guarantee Department, the Monopolies and Mergers Commission and related bodies, and some specialist advice on litigation both civil and criminal.

Mr. Howes

1971–77: Legal assistant and from 1976 senior legal assistant: conduct of prosecutions and civil litigation on behalf of the Department of Health and Social Security

1977–79: Senior legal assistant: advice to the DHSS on employment law and industrial tribunal work

1979–81: Senior legal assistant: advice on employment law and industrial tribunal work for various Government Departments as a member of the Treasury Solicitor's Department

1981–83 Senior legal assistant: European Community litigation

1983–86: Senior legal assistant: Chancery and charity litigation, public inquiries and Lands Tribunal work

1986 to date: Senior legal assistant and from 1989 grade 6: conduct of litigation for the Office of Fair Trading and the Department of Trade and Industry

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Millennium Fund

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage (i) how many bids were made for millennium funding; and what percentage of them were successful (a) in England and (b) in London; [31999]

(2) in which parliamentary constituency each successful millennium bid is situated; and how much each successful project was awarded. [32000]

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage in what respect the university of Ulster—peaceline campus of the new millennium project did not meet the Millennium Commission criteria. [31317]

Mr. Dorrell: These are matters for the Millennium Commission. I shall reply to the hon. Members in my capacity as chairman of the commission and place copies of my replies in the Libraries of the House.

Radio Authority

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will issue guidance to the Radio Authority that efficient use of the spectrum will be assessed by reference to the potential audience reach of the services involved. [31946]

Mr. Dorrell: Section 123 of the Broadcasting Act 1990 requires that the Radio Authority's frequency planning work must be directed towards securing that the frequencies assigned to the authority are used as efficiently as is reasonably practicable. Potential audience demand is one of the factors taken into account by the Radio Authority in discharging this responsibility.

Trafalgar Square, London

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what proposals his Department has on filling the empty plinth in Trafalgar square, London; and if he will make a statement. [31498]

Mr. Sproat: I am aware that Miss Prudence Leith, OBE, chairman elect of the Royal Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce, is putting proposals together for a statue to go on the empty plinth, which she intends to submit to the Department later this year. We shall carefully consider any proposals received. Under the Public Statute Metropolis Act 1854, the Secretary of State must approve the erection of any statute in London.

Television Franchise Bids

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what representations he has received on allowing ITV companies to negotiate their franchise bids earlier than the Broadcasting Act 1990 currently allows to free money for programming; and what response he has made. [31917]

Mr. Dorrell: None.

BBC (Transmission facilities)

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what plans he has to privatise the BBC's transmission facilities. [31908]

Mr. Dorrell: We are considering the options for the future of the BBC's transmission service and will announce our decision in due course.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage (1) by how much Government spending has changed in 1994–95 as a result of the private finance initiative; what is the estimated effect in 1995–96; how many jobs are to be created by schemes approved to date under the initiative and how many have been lost as a consequence in the public sector; and what is the forecast of transfer of employment from public to private sector over the last five years because of the initiative; [30839]

(2) how many schemes and to what value have been approved in 1994–95 under the private finance initiative; what are the estimates for the current financial year; how many schemes are currently being considered and at what value; for how long have they been considered and how many have been in the assessment process for over (a) six months and (b) 12 months; and what was the average length of time taken to assess schemes so far approved. [30838]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 28 June 1995]: My Department operates mainly through its many sponsored bodies and agencies and undertakes little expenditure on its own account. Its effort is therefore largely devoted to encouraging those whom it sponsors to exploit to the full in their own capital programmes the opportunities of the private finance initiative. The cost of this effort within the Department is about £65,000 a year.

One PFI project has so far required to be approved by my Department—the move of the Royal Armouries from the Tower of London to Leeds. The proposal was submitted in May 1992 and approval was given in December 1993. The total cost of the project is £42.5 million. The public sector contribution comprises: £20 million, financed by the Historic Royal Agency from increased receipts at the Tower of London; £5 million from Leeds development corporation; and £3.5 million from Leeds city council. The effect on public sector manpower is neutral, but the project will increase opportunities for private sector employment.

No projects required departmental approval in 1994–95. A number of projects are at various stages of consideration by my Department's sponsored bodies in the current—1995–96—financial year. Of these, it is not possible to estimate the number that will require departmental approval.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Arable Area Payments Scheme

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what recent representations he has received concerning the need for greater flexibility in the arable area payments scheme; and if he will make a statement. [31940]

Mr. Jack: Representations have been received from a wide range of agricultural and environmental bodies concerning proposals issued for consultation on 11 May on exchanges of eligible and ineligible land. These are being considered and details of any arrangements for 1996 will be included in the arable area payments explanatory guide 1995–96 due to be published this summer.

Mrs. Winterton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what action his Department is taking to achieve provision for swapping of eligible and ineligible land under the terms of the arable area payments scheme; and whether those changes will be in place for 1996 integrated administration and control system claims. [31939]

Mr. Jack: A consultation document was issued on 11 May 1995 outlining in broad terms proposals for the conditions under which exchanges of eligible for ineligible land might be permitted. Representations are now being considered and I would expect shortly to take a decision on any arrangements for 1996 claims. Details of any changes will be included in the arable area payments explanatory guide for 1995–96, due to be published this summer.

Mrs. Winterton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proposals the European Commission has so far brought forward to ease the setting up of individual base areas in the context of the arable area payments scheme; and if he will summarise them; and what response he has made. [31937]

Mr. Jack: The European Commission has not put forward any proposals on this subject.

Agriculture Council

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement summarising the decisions taken by the December 1994 meeting of the Agriculture Council in relation to greater flexibility in defining land eligibility under the arable area payments scheme; and what action subsequently has been taken by his Department in relation to those decisions. [31938]

Mr. Jack: At the December 1993 Agriculture Council that agreement was reached, subject to terms to be determined, on greater flexibility on land eligibility. In August 1994, EC Commission implementing regulations were brought into force establishing eligibility for land growing certain multi-annual crops on 31 December 1991; providing for the declaration of new land as eligible following compulsory purchase; for exchanges of land under certain circumstances and for structure plans in certain other member states.

In the light of UK representations, the EC Commission subsequently recognised concerns over conflict between the terms of the Council agreement as laid down in EC Council regulations 1765/92 and the Commission implementing regulations, and indicated that it would consider corrective changes. The Commission determined finally not to take such regulatory action and restricted further amending provisions, which came into force on 22 April 1995, to detailed rules of exchanges of eligible land.

Details on the application of these changes, including any arrangements resulting from consultation on a UK plan for exchanges of eligible land, will be contained in the arable area payments explanatory guide for 1995–96 due to be published this summer.

Butter Council (Advertising)

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what action he intends to take to counter the Butter Council's use of European funds to finance advertisements against the margarine industry; and if he will make a statement. [32098]

Mr. Jack: A final decision on EC funding for the Butter Council's advertising campaign will be taken by the intervention board when the Council completes its contract later this year. The board will take account of the views which have been expressed by the Advertising Standards Authority on the advertisements. In the meantime, with the Government's support, the EC Commission has decided to prohibit negative comparative advertising in future contracts under the EC scheme for promoting the consumption of milk and milk products.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Metropolitan Police Committee

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times the Metropolitan police committee has now met; what advice it has proffered to him; and what action has been taken in response to its advice. [32002]

Mr. Maclean: The Metropolitan police committee has held five full committee meetings, various meetings of subgroups and a number of meetings with representatives of the Metropolitan police and local bodies. The committee's advice to the Secretary of State is confidential. Since 1 April 1995 the Home Secretary's actions as police authority for the Metropolitan police have been informed by the Metropolitan police committee's advice.

Elected Police Authority

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice he has received from serving police officers, including senior officers within the Metropolitan police service, regarding the establishment of an elected police authority for London. [32001]

Mr. Maclean: Any advice that Ministers may have received on this topic would be confidential.

Political Asylum

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the average time and cost to public funds of processing each application for political asylum. [31852]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: For applications for asylum received since implementation of the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993 and decided in the last six months the estimated average time to process each application is 7.8 months. The average cost of processing each application in the asylum division was £165.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have sought political asylum in the United Kingdom in each of the last three years; and how many applications have been granted. [31856]

Mr. Baker: The information requested is published in table 1.1 of Home Office statistical bulletin issue 15/95 "Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 1994", a copy of which is in the Library.

Dart Harbour and Navigation Authority

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will investigate the reasons for the time taken to consider a request by the Dart harbour and navigation authority for an amendment to its byelaws. [31855]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: My right hon. and noble Friend the Minister of State has considered the matter, which my hon. Friend raised in his letter to her of 6 June, and has today written to him.

Miss A. O. Bamgbose

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the report on Miss A. O. Bamgbose was sent by Becket house to the entry clearance officer in Lagos, Nigeria. [32210]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: On 27 March 1995.

Council Property

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what was the purpose of the meeting held on 31 October 1994 between his Department's officials from the immigration service, Ms Arnfield, Ms Hutcheson and Mr. McCormack on the one hand and Mr. Bernard Crofton and Mr. K. Ostler of Hackney's tenancy audit team on the other: [32166]

(2) what was the status of Mr. Bernard Crofton with Hackney council when he met immigration service officials on 31 October 1994; and what information on this status was available to the officials concerned. [32165]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Following the suspension of Mr. Croften from his post of director of housing at Hackney council, Mr. Ostler sought a meeting to establish that the immigration service would continue to co-operate with an investigation by Mr. Ostler's tenancy audit team into the misuse of council property, which had already led to the apprehension of a number of immigration offenders and the return of several properties to the council. The officials confirmed that they would continue to co-operate with the tenancy audit team.

Emergency Calls

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information his Department holds and at what level of detail, on the number of 999 calls received by central fire control headquarters in each authority in England and Wales. [31659]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The information requested is not held centrally.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of people from (a) Sri Lanka, (b) Pakistan, (c) India and (d) Kenya seeking asylum and being held in detention as of 19 June. [31372]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The available information is that as at 28 June 1995, 22 Sri Lankans, 22 Pakistanis, 91 Indians and six Kenyans who had sought asylum were held in detention. These include people awaiting removal following refusal of the application, as well as those whose applications were under consideration or subject to appeal.

Prison Searches

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many body and cell searches took place in Holloway prison during the week of 19 June. [31276]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Brian Landers to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 3 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about Holloway prison.

Holloway conducted 103 cell searches during the week of 19 June. They also conducted 449 strip searches, which would have occurred as part of cell searches; on reception and discharge; after visits; or as part of the mandatory drug testing programme. Prisoners would also have been subject to rub down searches routinely as they moved around the establishment.

Boot Camps

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has received from the United States on the effectiveness of boot camps. [30987]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Copies of the readily available published reports have been placed in the Library. I have also received advice from officials.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what have been the findings of his Department about boot camps. [30985]

Mr. Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend hopes to be able to make an announcement shortly.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research he has conducted as to the proportion of inmates in youth detention centres in the early 1980s who had been (a) in care and (b) were illiterate; and what are the implications of these findings for boot camps. [30986]

Mr. Forsyth: A report, "Tougher Regimes in Detention Centres", was produced in 1984. This report incorporated findings as to the proportion of inmates found to have been in care or illiterate in six detention centres during the period May 1979 to September 1980. In 1991, the national prison survey found that the proportion of young offender population who had spent time in care was very similar to that shown by the 1984 report.

A proposal to introduce a new regime for young offenders based on the more positive aspects of American boot camps is under consideration. Any new regime that is introduced will take into account current knowledge about the backgrounds and attainments of young offenders.

Recidivism

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made as to the extent to which broadening the range and scope of training for offenders reduces recidivism. [30989]

Mr. Maclean: There have been a number of studies on reconviction rates associated with different sentences, including "Explaining Reconviction Rates: a critical analysis", HORS No 136, although these studies have not specifically assessed the impact of training upon reconviction rates.

We will be evaluating the effectiveness of seven new Home Office training projects announced in May. These projects will fund seven training and enterprise councils to help offenders in the community improve their training and their job prospects. The evaluation will include a reconviction study.

Justice and Home Affairs Council

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the matters discussed and decisions taken at the EU Justice and Home Affairs Council in Luxembourg; and if he will indicate those matters where votes were taken. [31069]

Mr. Howard: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Uxbridge (Sir M. Shersby) on 22 June, at columns 405–6. The items agreed by the Justice and Home Affairs Council were adopted by unanimity, in accordance with the relevant provisions of title VI of the treaty on European Union.

Civil Servants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 2 May, Official Report, column 121, if he will provide comparable details on civil service early retirement packages on grounds of inefficiency. [29297]

Mr. Howard [holding answer 19 June 1995]: Inefficiency is a ground for dismissal. Accrued superannuation benefits, which vary for individual members of staff, would normally be preserved for payment at retiring age. Departments may, however, make an immediate lump sum payment of up to two years' salary in cases where compensation is thought to be appropriate; in the case of persons aged over 55, this may be forgone in favour of immediate payment of accrued superannuation benefits. We have no record in the Home Office, excluding agencies, of any compensation payments being made, or of the alternative immediate payment of accrued superannuation benefits, in recent years.

Special Constables

Mr. Churchill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been achieved to date in the drive to recruit 30,000 special constables by the end of 1996. [31763]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Public response to our recruitment campaign has been very encouraging. Over 38,500 members of the public responded to our advertising and have expressed an interest in joining the special constabulary. Many have gone on to make preliminary applications and these have been passed to police forces. We hope that a significant number of these applications are successful.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Internet (Government Information)

37. Sir Graham Bright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations he has received from (a) individuals and (b) organisations who access Government information via the Internet. [30157]

Mr. Horam: The majority of representations have been to CCTA, the Government centre for information systems, which manages the worldwide web server on which most Government information on the Internet is made available. There have been 3,000 responses to the comments page of the server, and more than 1,200 contributors to the collaborative open group. Formal submissions and letters have also been received about CCTA's study into the ethical issues relating to information superhighways.

39. Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations he has received from organisations requesting more Government information on the Internet. [30159]

Mr. Horam: There have been a number of suggestions made to CCTA, the Government centre for information systems, which manages the world wide web server on which most Government information on the Internet is made available. CCTA is discussing with the relevant Departments what further information can be added to the CCTA Government information service, which is expanding every week.

Science Week 1995

38. Mr. Coe: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations from broadcasters he has received following Science Week 1995. [30158]

Mr. David Hunt: I have already had meetings with John Birt and Alan Yentob, both of whom were delighted with the success of Science Week 1995. They have already promised the 1996 week their full support.

Citizens Charters

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans the Government have to involve citizens in the formulation of the citizens charter. [30150]

Mr. Horam: Consultation with people who use services is a key charter principle. Services should talk to their users to find out what they want before making decisions about standards and priorities. Service providers are actively encouraged to involve users when preparing charters and setting standards and are given guidance and help by Departments and the charters unit.

Many service providers involve users when revising national and local charters. For example, the Department of Health asked the public what standards they would want in the revised patients charter. The reduction in waiting time targets, and the inclusion of patients' rights when using NHS dentists and standards for children's services were a result of this consultation. The tenants charter published in June 1995 also benefited from user feedback.

Medical Research

Dr. Charles Goodson-Wickes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent studies he has made of the funding of medical research. [30145]

Mr. David Hunt: After careful studies I announced earlier this year an increase of 3.2 per cent. in the Medical Research Council budget to £277.8 million. The Department of Health will spend £413 million on research and research-related activity in 1995–96, an increase of 7.3 per cent.

Climate Change

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what advice he has given to the Economic and Social Research Council concerning the provision of funds for research into the economics of climate change other than those based on cost-benefit analysis. [30376]

Mr. Horam: None.

Public Administration Pay Bill

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Plymouth, Sutton (Mr. Streeter) on 26 June 1995, Official Report, column 462, what information he has on the total cost of the public administration pay bill for the years (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 corresponding to the departmental staff totals given in the letter placed in the Library; and if he will give the figure for total staff in all departments on 1 April provided in the figures for 1 April 1994 in the documents placed in the Library. [32382]

Mr. David Hunt: Information on the total pay bill for (a) 1993–94 and (b) estimated outturn for 1994–95 can be found in table 3.7 of "Public Expenditure Statistical Supplement to the Financial Statement and Budget Report 1995–96", Cm 2821, copies of which are in the Library. Figures for total staff in all home civil service Departments, excluding Northern Ireland civil service Departments, can be found in "Civil Service Staff in Post Summary at 1 April 1994" and "Civil Service Staff in Post Summary at 1 April 1995", copies of which are in the Library. Staff numbers for Northern Ireland civil service Departments for 1993–94 and estimated outturn for 1994–95 can be found in table 12.7 of "Northern Ireland Expenditure Plans and Priorities", Cm 2816, a copy of which is also in the Library. Figures for Northern Ireland civil service Departments at 1 April each year are not available.

House of Commons Disqualification Act

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people are covered by the disqualifying reasons in each of the disqualifying categories of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975; [31518]

(2) how many bodies have been (a) added to and (b) deleted from the list of disqualifying bodies under the House of Commons Disqualification Act schedule since 1979; and if he will list them;

(3) what is the total number of people currently covered by the disqualification provisions of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975; and what was the equivalent figure in 1979; [31516]

(4) what considerations as to the time which would have to be taken by other duties or offices underlay the schedule of disqualifying offices under the terms of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975; [31528]

(5) how many people are currently covered by each of the disqualifying categories of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975. [31517]

Mr. Horam: The number of persons disqualified for membership of the House of Commons under the provisions of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 is as follows:

Category	Numbers disqualified (rounded)
Employed in the Civil Service of the Crown
Home Civil Service	520,100 (at December 1994)
Northern Ireland Civil Service	21,800 (at March 1995)
Northern Ireland Court Service	680 (at December 1994)
Diplomatic Service	3,930 (at April 1995)
Forestry Commission	3,870 (at December 1994)
Royal Hospital Chelsea	200 (established)
Armed Forces of the Crown or the Ulster Defence Regiment
Armed Forces	237,000 (at June 1995)
Royal Irish Regiment[1]	5,000 (established)
Police Forces
England and Wales	126,600 (at December 1994)
Scotland	14,200 (at April 1994)
Northern Ireland	12,200 (at December 1994)
Members of Non-Commonwealth Legislatures	not estimated
Schedule 1 of the Act
Part I: Holders of Judicial Office	896 (at June 1993)
Part II: All members of certain bodies	3,503 (at June 1993)
Part III: Other disqualifying offices	81,439 (at June 1993)
Part IV: Those covered by limited disqualification	197 (at June 1993)

[1] The Ulster Defence Regiment was replaced by the Royal Irish Regiment with effect from the 1 July 1992.

The total number of persons currently disqualified under the terms of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975, excluding members of non-Commonwealth legislatures, is 1,031,615. Figures are updated when orders are made to amend schedule 1 to the Act. No order was made to amend schedule 1 in 1979; but when an order was made in 1982 the equivalent number of persons disqualified was 1,221,520.

Information is not held centrally on the number of offices that have been added to, or deleted from, schedule 1 since 1979. Many offices have been added or removed from schedule 1 by means of primary legislation, as well as by Orders in Council. The latest reprint of the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 (No. 14) lists in schedule 1 those offices the holders of which are disqualified for membership.

There are four basic criteria for disqualification under parts II and III of schedule 1 to the 1975 Act. Ministers have explained these to hon. Members over the years and hon. Members have accepted them in the course of affirmative resolution debates. These are:

(i) offices of profit in the gift of the Crown or Ministers—subject to a de minimis limit, which is currently £8,000, to prevent trivial disqualification;

(ii) certain positions of control in companies in receipt of Government grants and funds, to which Ministers usually, though not necessarily, make appointments;

(iii) offices imposing duties which with regard to time or place would prevent their holders from fulfilling Parliamentary duties satisfactorily; and

(iv) offices whose holders are required to be, or to be seen to be, politically impartial.

No central record is kept for offices disqualified under parts II and III of schedule 1 as to the disqualifying categories into which they fall.

EDUCATION

Disclosure of Information

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what plans she has to review the disclosure of information requirements on non-departmental public bodies with particular reference to the Further Education Funding Council. [30152]

Mr. Boswell: My right hon. Friend endorses the recommendations of the Committee on Standards in Public Life which propose the adoption by executive non-departmental public bodies of the 1994 "Code of Practice on Access to Government Information" together with the committee's own guidelines. The Further Education Funding Council has published for consultation a draft code on access to information which is in accordance with the committee's proposals.

Young People Leaving Care

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what percentage of young people who left care in each of the past five years for which figures are available is currently in full-time education; [31621]

(2) what percentage of young people who left care in each of the last 10 years (a) left school with no formal qualifications, (b) gained A-levels or equivalents or (c) gained vocational qualifications. [31614]

Mr. Robin Squire: This information is not collected centrally.

Nursery Education

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list by local education authority for the latest available year the percentage of four-year-olds participating in pre-school education. [31889]

Mr. Forth: The Department does not publish information about four-year-olds alone by local education authority. Information about three and four-year-olds by local education authority in January 1994 was published in statistical bulletin 2/95, a copy of which was placed in the Library.

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will make a statutory provision for all pre-school children to have access to nursery education. [3220]

Mr. Forth: The Prime Minister has made a commitment to provide, over time, a pre-school place for every four-year-old whose parents wish to take it up, with the first places becoming available during the lifetime of this Parliament. My right hon. Friend will make an announcement on how she plans to implement that commitment when the details have been finalised.

Pupil-teacher Ratios

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what information she has concerning the pupil-teacher ratio for (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in (i) Cheshire, (ii) on average nationally and (iii) on average for shire counties. [31689]

Mr. Robin Squire: Provisional pupil-teacher ratios in maintained primary and secondary schools in England in January 1995 were 22:9 and 16:5 respectively. Figures for Cheshire local education authority and the shire counties will be available in the autumn. Information requested for January 1994, the latest date for which the information requested is available, is shown in the table.

School Meals

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many and what percentage of primary school children received free school meals in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each year since 1979. [31588]

Mr. Robin Squire: The available information is shown in the table. Comparable information prior to 1989 is not available although results of earlier school meals censuses were published by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy in, for example, "School Meal Statistics at October 1988" copies of which are available in the Library. Information for York is not available.

Assisted Places

Mr. French: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list by reference to each local authority area the number of assisted places at schools within each area. [31525]

Mr. Robin Squire: The number taken up through the Government's assisted places scheme in the academic year 1994–95 at participating schools situated within each local education authority area in England is given in the following table. Many of these schools serve wide catchment areas and may offer places to pupils from outside the local authority area in which they are situated.

Grant-maintained Schools, Hampshire

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations her Department has received from local education authority schools in Hampshire regarding the impact of the expansion of, and admissions policy of, grant-maintained schools in Hampshire. [31511]

Mr. Robin Squire: During 1995 the Department has received correspondence from seven local education authority schools objecting to published statutory proposals to expand grant-maintained schools, and from one LEA school about the admission policy of a grant-maintained school.

School Buildings (Safety)

Mr. French: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what requirements are placed on school governors to ensure regular (a) structural surveys on school buildings and (b) fire safety inspections; and if she will make a statement on whether these responsibilities are being fulfilled. [31527]

Mr. Robin Squire: The Education (School Premises) Regulations 1981 lay down specific requirements governing load-bearing structure, weather protection, health and safety and fire protection.

The Education Act 1944 places a statutory duty on local education authorities and the governors of grant-maintained schools to satisfy themselves that their school buildings comply with the standards set out in the regulations.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Cycling

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the right hon. Member for Berwick upon Tweed as representing the House of Commons Commission (1) what measures the Commission proposes to take to encourage its employees to cycle to work. [30862]

(2) what proposals the Commission has to introduce interest-free loans for the purchase of bicycles to encourage staff of the House to commute to work by bicycle.

Mr. Beith: I shall arrange for the suggestion of loans to be considered, and shall write to the hon. Member. [30861]

NORTHERN IRELAND

Taxi Licences

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what account is taken in the regulations on taxi licences of the transport needs of the disabled. [31420]

Mr. Moss: Belfast public hire taxis first licensed on or after 20 December 1994 must be wheelchair accessible. All other Belfast public hire taxis will have to be wheelchair accessible by 20 December 2000. Arrangements elsewhere in Northern Ireland are currently under consideration.

Royal Ulster Constabulary

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list schools visited by RUC recruiting officers to encourage female and Catholic applicants since January 1994. [31042]

Sir John Wheeler: The Royal Ulster Constabulary is committed to equality of opportunity, and aims to attract applicants from every section of the community.

All schools are contacted by recruiting officers offering literature, careers talks and other information. The type and extent of further contact is up to each school.

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people and what promotions were made within the RUC in 1994; and how many of these were awarded to (a) women and (b) Catholics. [31041]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is as follows:

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many officers in the RUC involved in traumatic incidents are currently receiving counselling and rehabilitation. [31043]

Sir John Wheeler: In 1987 the RUC established a post-incident support system providing on-going support to officers who have been involved in a critical incident.

The precise information requested is not available, but since the introduction of this service, a total of 2,611 initial support debriefings have taken place. Since 1 September 1994 there have been 83 referrals.

NHS (Competitive Tendering Costs)

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the total competitive tendering costs for NHS support services for each year since 1990 for each health and social services board, defined so as to include market testing process costs, HPSS staff and consultants, monitoring and contract management costs, redundancy and early retirement costs, avoidable overhead costs and national insurance costs. [31080]

Mr. Moss: The total expenditure on market testing—competitive tendering—for HPSS support services is given in the table, on a financial year basis since 1990–91. The figures include the expenditure on the market testing process—HPSS staff and consultants; monitoring and contract management; and redundancy and early retirement.

There is no additional expenditure incurred with regard to "avoidable overhead costs". These relate to in-house overheads such as personnel, training, finance, supplies and payroll services which are not included in the direct costs of the in-house service. The estimated costs of these overheads are set against in-house tenders to ensure fair comparison between tenders and calculate the bottom line net savings. They are included only to the extent that they would be saved if a service is contracted out. Outside contractors include such overhead costs in their tenders.

Similarly, there was no additional expenditure incurred against notional insurance costs. The estimates of the costs of insurance are set against in-house tenders to ensure fair comparisons between tenders and the proper calculation of net savings. Outside contractors must have insurance cover and the costs of this are included in their tenders.

All national insurance costs are included in the bids submitted by tenderers, either in-house or commercial, and are therefore not appropriate to these costs.

Total market testing expenditure: HPSS support services—by board area

Board area	1990–91 £	1991–92 £	1992–93 £	1993–94 £	1994–95 £

Anti-racketeering Investigations

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were arrested in Northern Ireland in 1994 by the anti-racketeering squad; and how many have been successfully prosecuted. [31045]

Sir John Wheeler: Anti-racketeering investigations in 1994 were as follows:

	Number
Persons Arrested	41
Persons Charged	38
Persons Convicted (Including summary proceedings)	28

Note:
Figures do not necessarily relate to the same individuals.

Sheep Scab

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the recorded levels of sheep scab in each of the last five years. [31238]

Mr. Ancram: The information is as follows:

Private Training Agencies

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much public money has been spent, in the further education sector, on private training agencies in each of the past five years. [31424]

Mr. Ancram: This is a matter for the Training and Employment Agency under its chief executive, Mr. Julian Crozier. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from J. S. Crozier to Mr. Tony Worthington, dated 30 June 1995:

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked me, as Chief Executive of the Training and Employment Agency, to reply to your question.

No public money is given to private sector training agencies to provide training in the further education sector as such.

However money was paid in the last 5 years to private sector training organisations to provide training under the Youth Training Programme and under the Agency's Job Training Programme which offers training to unemployed adults. Such organisations receive from the Agency a weekly block grant paid in respect of each participant on training. They commonly buy training facilities from Further Education colleges out of the block grant. Details of these payments are not provided to the Agency and I am unable therefore to provide the information in the form requested.

However the attached table details the total monies paid over the past 5 years to private sector organisations in the delivery of the Agency's training programmes.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Youth programmes expenditure

	Youth training Paid[1] to private sector £	Adult training Fees[2] paid to training organisations £
1990–91	8,881,402	3,379,403
1991–92	10,175,432	4,500,344
1992–93	11,264,446	6,943,978
1993–94	11,742,859	9,447,598
1994–95	12,044,957	11,107,560

[1] The cost of trainee allowances are included in the expenditure and would be approximately 35 per cent. of the total costs.
[2] The amounts represent the total expenditure on adult provision. The Agency does not keep separate details for Private Sector organisations.

Neil Latimer

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress there has been in the review of the conviction of Neil Latimer; and if he will make a statement. [31953]

Sir John Wheeler: The judgment about guilt or innocence in a criminal case is entirely a matter for the courts and Ministers cannot substitute their own assessments of the evidence in a case for that of the courts.

My right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State has a statutory power to refer a case to the Court of Appeal again. There is, however, a criterion which, consistent with his predecessors, the Secretary of State would normally expect to be fulfilled before he would use this power. It is that there is some new evidence, or other consideration of substance, which has not previously been before the court and which appeared to cast doubt on the safety of the conviction.

Mr. Latimer's case has already been before the courts on three occasions. The first two were the trial of Mr. Latimer and three other UDR soldiers, Winston Allen, Noel Bell and James Hegan, and the subsequent appeal to which they had an automatic right. The third time was in 1991 when, after very careful consideration of representations made to him, and the production of new evidence, the then Secretary of State referred the cases of the soldiers back to the Court of Appeal.

In a very fully argued written judgment, delivered on 29 July 1992, the Court of Appeal unanimously quashed the convictions of Winston Allen, Noel Bell and James Hegan on the grounds that they were unsafe and unsatisfactory. The court was, however, unanimously satisfied on separate evidence, including his admitted confession statements, as to Neil Latimer's guilt, and that his convictions were safe and satisfactory.

The Secretary of State has continued to receive further representations on Mr. Latimer's behalf, all of which he gave the most careful and thorough examination. He concluded, however, that none of them was sufficient to justify him in the exercise of his statutory power to refer the case to the Court of Appeal again.

PRIME MINISTER

Housing (Young People)

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Prime Minister how many letters he has received recently expressing concern about the housing conditions of young people. [32099]

The Prime Minister: I have received a number of letters on this subject.

Brent Spar

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Prime Minister if he will place in the Library copies of the briefings he has received on the options for the final disposal of the Brent Spar platform. [31117]

The Prime Minister: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to release ministerial briefing material.

Information Technology

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister what consideration has been given to the implications of merging the Department of Social Security and Inland Revenue data; and if he will make a statement. [31729]

The Prime Minister: There are no plans to merge Department of Social Security and Inland Revenue data, but as part of the Government deregulation initiatives both the DSS and the Inland Revenue are required to review their respective information technology strategies.

Ministerial Posts and Pay

Dr. Wright: To ask the Prime Minister what have been the changes since 1979 of (a) the number of Ministers, (b) the cost of ministerial salaries and (c) the number of parliamentary private secretaries and other unpaid posts. [31514]

The Prime Minister: On the basis of the definition of Ministers within schedule 1 of the Ministerial and other Salaries Act 1975, and including the Lord Chancellor, (a) the number of Ministers on 9 May 1979 was 107 and is currently 108; (b) in cash terms, on 9 May 1979 the cost of ministerial salaries was £1,356,188 and the current cost is £3,598,084; (c) comparable information for this date is not available.

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his statement on 28 June 1995, Official Report, columns 893–909, on the outcome of the Cannes summit if all the reductions in Britain's contribution to the European development fund will be retained in the overseas development budget and used for bilateral aid to African, Caribbean and Pacific countries. [32158]

The Prime Minister: Our contribution to the eighth European development fund will be spent over some five years from the year 2000. Final years for the aid budget in these years will be determined during the annual public expenditure survey in the light of all relevant factors.

LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Mr. Hinchcliffe: To ask the Lord President of the Council, on how many occasions the provisions of section 141 of the Mental Health Act 1983 have been used. [32100]

Mr. Newton: None.

WALES

Tenby Sewage Works

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) when he decided not to call in the Dwr Cymru application for a sewage treatment plant at Tenby in Pembrokeshire; what were the reasons for his decision; and when he informed those who had requested the calling in of his decision; [31375]

(2) what representations he received requesting the calling in of the Dwr Cymru application for a sewage treatment plant at Tenby in Pembrokeshire. [31377]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Some 150 letters requesting call-in were received. Various other representations relating to the Tenby scheme, including a petition, were also submitted.

It has been the approach of the Secretary of State for Wales not to intervene in applications for discharge consent unless matters of more than local significance are raised or novel or unusual matters which have not been publicly debated in another context are involved: the requests were considered in the context of this policy and the information available, but the view was taken that such matters were not raised in this case. It was therefore decided not to intervene and those who had requested call-in were advised of this in a letter dated 31 May.

Countryside Council for Wales

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list those organisations which received (a) copies of his action plan for the Countryside Council for Wales released on 4 May, (b) copies of the accompanying press release and (c) both plan and press release. [31677]

Mr. David Hunt: Both the Council of Welsh Districts and the Assembly of Welsh Counties were sent copies of the action plan and consulted formally on the implications therein for their members. In addition, the Welsh Office sent copies of the plan, on request, to a range of individuals and organisations such as the Farmers Union of Wales, the Campaign for the Protection of Rural Wales and the Country Landowners Association. Copies of the press notice were sent routinely to the media.

Cadw

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the grants made by Cadw for (a) the maintenance, (b) the upkeep and (c) the restoration of toll houses in Wales in each year since 1990. [31113]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Since 1990, Cadw's only grant in this category was for the restoration of the toll house at Telford's Conwy suspension bridge. A grant of £34,000 was offered in 1993.

Young People Leaving Care

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of States for Wales 1) what percentage of young people who left care in Wales in each of the past five years for which figures are available went into (a) furnished private accommodation, (b) furnished local authority accommodation, (c) unfurnished accommodation and (d) temporary accommodation; and what percentage is currently homeless; [31619]

(2) what percentage of young people who left care in Wales in each of the last 10 years (a) left school with no formal qualifications, (b) gained A-levels or equivalents or (c) gained vocational qualifications; [31611]

(3) what percentage of young people leaving care in Wales receive a leaving care grant; and what is the average value of the grant, for each of the past five years for which figures are available; [31615]

(4) what percentage of young people who left care in Wales in each of the past five years for which figures are available are (a) claiming benefits, (b) on YTS schemes, (c) employed, (d) unemployed and (e) in full-time education [31617]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: This information is not available centrally.

NHS Waiting Lists

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 2 May, Official Report, column 139–40, if he will now give comparable figures for national health service waiting lists at 30 March. [32381]

Mr. David Hunt: The information relating to waiting lists at 31 March 1995 is shown in the following table:

Health Authority area[1]	Number waiting more than 6 months for out-patient appointment	Number waiting more than 18 months for in-patient or day case treatment
Clwyd	701	74
Dyfed	1,294	109
Gwent	3,021	2
Gwynedd	585	22
Mid Glamorgan	3,536	203
Powys	206	—
South Glamorgan	3,799	156

Price Inflation (NHS)

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has of input price inflation in the health service in Wales for each of the last five years. [32379]

Mr. David Hunt: Health authorities receive a cash increase each year and are set targets for the generation of efficiency saving through their contracts with service providers. Taken together, these are sufficient to offset pay and price inflation and enable growth in patient services.

Overall cash increases and efficiency targets for the last five years are as follows:

	Overall per cent. cash increase	Efficiency target per cent.
1991–92	9.8	1.1
1992-93	7.0	1.1
1993–94	2.2	2.0
1994–95	2.8	2.7
1995–96	5.6	3.0

TRANSPORT

Rail Privatisation (Consultants)

14. Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the total paid to consultants, outside individuals or organisations for services relating to rail privatisation. [30131]

Mr. Watts: Total payments made for consultancy services by the Department, the Office of Passenger Rail Franchising, and the Office of the Rail Regulator between 1991–92 and the end of May 1995 were £51.2 million.

Integrated Public Transport System

15. Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures he intends to take to ensure that the United Kingdom develops an integrated public transport system; and if he will make a statement. [30132]

Mr. Norris: The quality and quantity of public transport services in the United Kingdom has improved significantly under this Government, as a direct result of greater private sector involvement, increased competition and deregulation. We have a range of proposals to ensure that this improvement continues.

Motor Bicycle Riders (Safety)

16. Mr. Booth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representation he has received in respect of the effectiveness of current safety provision for motor bicycle riders. [30133]

Mr. Norris: My Department regularly receives correspondence and representations on various motorcycling issues, including road safety.

ScotRail

18. Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the proposed privatisation of ScotRail. [30135]

Mr. Watts: The franchising director has invited and received pre-qualifying applications from potential bidders for the ScotRail franchise and he will issue invitations to tender in due course.

Thornaby Bypass

19. Mr. Devlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice he has given Stockton borough council about the future of the Thornaby bypass. [30136]

Mr. Norris: My right hon. Friend's decision to withdraw support reflected the lack of progress with the scheme. It is open to the local authority concerned to submit a fresh bid for funding when the scheme is ready to proceed.

Road Accidents

20. Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the number of road deaths and serious injuries in 1994. [30137]

Mr. Norris: Nineteen ninety-four data were published in May. Deaths and serious injuries were respectively 35 per cent. and 38 per cent. below the baseline average for 1981–85, thus meeting the Government's target reduction of one-third by the year 2000 some six years early.

Ferry Safety

21. Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures he is promoting to improve ferry safety; and if he will make a statement. [30138]

Dr. Mawhinney: In my statement to the House on 5 April, I announced the results of UK research which suggested that the fitting of transverse bulkheads could improve ferry survivability in the event of water invading the vehicle deck. We made this research available to the International Maritime Organisation's panel of experts which was set up following the "Estonia" disaster last September.

As I made clear in my statement, the Government support the thrust of the panel's recommendations and we will press for agreement to their implementation at the International Maritime Organisation's diplomatic conference in November. If satisfactory agreement cannot be reached we shall seek to introduce the necessary standards by other means as quickly as possible.

Motorway Building (Costs)

22. Mr. William O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the cost per mile of building motorways (a) in a rural environment and (b) in an urban environment in the last five years. [30139]

Mr. Watts: The average costs of three-lane dual carriageway motorways built in the last five years in a rural environment were £9 million per mile and in an urban environment were £14 million per mile, excluding VAT at 1994 prices.

Rail Privatisation

23. Sir Fergus Montgomery: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guarantees will be available to rail users on the privatised railway which were not available on the nationalised railway. [30140]

Mr. Watts: Rail users on the privatised railway will be able to enjoy, for the first time, contractually guaranteed levels of service, guaranteed ticket retailing facilities and the regulation of key daily fares and season ticket prices. The combination of these guarantees with the flexibility for franchisees to innovate will ensure a better service for passengers.

Heavy Goods Vehicle Licences

24. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will consider changing the law so that parish councils can request notification of all heavy good vehicle operators' licence applications made in their locality. [30141]

Mr. Norris: There is no need to change the law.

Parish councils are already able to find out about applications for operator licences by subscribing to a licensing authority's fortnightly publication "Applications and Decisions". This is published by each traffic area office and gives details of all applications for operator licences made in that area.

Road Casualties

25. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what new proposals he has to reduce road casualties. [30142]

Mr. Norris: The road safety report for 1995 describes measures which have been taken or are being planned to reduce road accident casualties. Copies are in the Library.

Pollution

26. Mr. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment is made of the reduction in airborne pollution when constructing a rail link. [30143]

Mr. Norris: Under standing orders relating to private and hybrid Bills and Transport and Works Act procedures, promoters of new rail links must prepare an environmental statement. This must include an assessment of any likely significant direct or indirect effects on air quality arising from the scheme.

Rail Freight

27. Mr. Roy Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to improve the efficiency of rail freight; and what discussions he has had on the subject with the operators. [30144]

Mr. Watts: The key to improving the efficiency of rail freight is liberalisation and privatisation. We have already opened up the rail network to competition. The process of privatising British Rail's freight businesses has begun. My right hon. Friend has regular discussions with the British Railways Board and others about the performance of the freight businesses and progress towards privatisation.

A1

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what date he now expects the A1 to be dualled from Morpeth to the Scottish border. [30134]

Mr. Watts: There are three schemes in the road programme which, when complete, would provide continuous dual carriageway from Newcastle to the north of Alnwick. Future progress on schemes between Alnwick and the Scottish border will depend upon the overall availability of resources and the national priorities.

Rail Freight Companies

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what sum he has allocated for grants to rail freight companies to encourage the transfer of freight from road to rail, over the period from 1994 to 1997; and what has been the expenditure to date. [31927]

Mr. Watts: The grant provision for the period 1994–95 to 1996–97 is £43.1 million. Expenditure to date is £2.8 million.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the grants made to rail freight companies, providing services to or from Hampshire, to encourage the transfer of freight from road to rail. [31928]

Mr. Watts: No such grants have been made to rail freight companies. However two freight facilities grants have been awarded which affect Hampshire.

A £3.7 million grant to ARC Southern for rail facilities at Whatley Quarry in Somerset has allowed some 10,000 lorry journeys a year to be removed from roads in the Fareham region of Hampshire since 1988.

In 1993 a grant of £403,000 was awarded to the Esso Petroleum Company towards the cost of refurbishing a bulk bitumen storage facility in Plymouth. This has enabled the traffic to continue to be carried by rail from Fawley near Southampton, saving an estimated 2,000 annual lorry trips between Southampton and Plymouth.

Disability Discrimination Bill

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the economic impact of the Disability Discrimination Bill on the provision of rural transport services; [31681]

(2) if he will list the representations which have been made to him by the transport industry on the Disability Discrimination Bill; [31682]

(3) what assessment he has made of the impact of the Disability Discrimination Bill on the international competitiveness of the United Kingdom transport industry. [31672]

Mr. Norris: It is not our intention to impose any requirements that will jeopardise either manufacturing or operating industries in the UK.

We recognise that different solutions will be needed, for example, for different types of vehicle, or for the same type of vehicle operating under different conditions as may be the case for some rural services. Similarly, we envisage that different time scales will have to be applied. The flexibility to achieve this in regulations has been built in to the new clause which were moved in Committee in the House of Lords on 27 June.

Officials have already begun detailed discussions at industry level through the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders and the Confederation of Passenger Transport. In addition, they are visiting a number of individual manufacturers to discuss in detail how we can make accessibility requirements work effectively. Those discussions will be continuing as we work up the detail of the regulations.

Full compliance cost assessments will be produced before any regulations are made.

Trans-European Network

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was his policy at the recent meeting of the European Council of Ministers of Transport in respect of the European Parliament's proposal, amendment 59, to the Commission's proposal COM (94) 0106 to delete the proposed Birmingham northern relief road from the proposed trans-European transport network. [31746]

Mr. Watts: The UK opposed the deletion of the proposed Birmingham northern relief road from the proposed trans-European road network. This road forms part of the Ireland-UK-Benelux priority project.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was his policy at the recent meeting of the European Council of Ministers of Transport, in respect of the European Parliament's proposal, amendment 166, to the Commission's proposal COM (94) 0106 to ensure that at least 40 per cent. of EU expenditure on priority projects within the proposed trans-European transport network is spent on railways and at most 25 per cent. is spent on roads. [31747]

Mr. Watts: The UK opposed the amendment imposing a target of 40 per cent. for Community spending on rail projects and limiting the level of spending on roads to 25 per cent. of the available budget. We need flexibility to ensure Community resources are targeted at the projects which best meet the agreed criteria for TENs funding. Since eight of the 14 priority projects are rail projects, and a further two cover both road and rail, the major part of the TENs budget is, however, likely to be devoted to rail projects.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was his policy at the recent meeting of the European Council of Ministers of Transport, in respect of the European Parliament's proposal, amendment 12, to the Commission's proposal COM (94) 0106 for a strategic environmental impact assessment of the proposed trans-European transport network. [31745]

Mr. Watts: The UK and other member states rejected this specific amendment proposed by the Parliament but agreed to a new indent in article 5 on environmental implications of the network and a new recital. These changes will help to ensure that the environment is taken fully into account in the development and implementation of the network.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was his policy at the recent meeting of the European Council of Ministers of Transport, in respect of the European Parliament's proposal, amendment 8, to the Commission's proposal COM (94) 0106 for an assessment of the effects of the proposed trans-European transport network on the regions and on jobs. [31744]

Mr. Watts: The UK and other member states agreed with the Commission that this proposed European Parliament amendment was unnecessary. The aim of the network is to contribute to strengthening economic and social cohesion. Each project will have to demonstrate it is potentially economically viable taking account of socio-economic costs and benefits.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the recent discussions of the European Council of Ministers of Transport in respect of the proposed trans-European transport network. [31748]

Mr. Watts: As reported in an answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 27 June, Official Report, column 545–46, at its meeting held on 19-20 June the Council of Ministers discussed the Commission proposal for Community guidelines for the development of the trans-European transport network in the light of the European Parliament's opinion received at the end of May. In addition to the amendments suggested by the European Parliament, a number of proposed amendments put forward by member states were discussed. I was pleased that the Council was able to reach a common position on the proposal. This will now return to the European Parliament for further consideration.

Corporate Logo

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each of the executive agencies within his Department the cost of the design and production of the corporate logo. [31837]

Mr. Norris: The information is not available in the form requested.

EC Directives

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the draft EC directives currently being discussed by either the European Parliament or Commission relating to transport. [31826]

Mr. Norris: The following Commission legislative proposals are currently being discussed by either the European Parliament or the Council of Ministers:

proposal for a decision on Community guidelines for the development of the trans-European transport network; proposal for a directive on the reporting of movements of vessels carrying dangerous or polluting goods; proposal for a directive on statistical returns in respect of the carriage of goods and passengers by sea; proposal for a regulation on the implementation of the International Safety Management code for roll-on/roll-off ferries; proposal for a regulation on the free provision of services in transport by inland waterway; proposal for a directive on the liberalisation of airport ground-handling facilities; proposal for a directive on the licensing of railway undertakings; proposal for a directive on the allocation of railway infrastructure capacity and the charging of infrastructure fees; proposal for a directive on the interoperability of the high-speed rail network; proposal for a directive on the transport of dangerous goods by rail;

proposal for a directive on dangerous-goods safety advisers;

proposal for a directive on the weight and dimensions of certain motor vehicles;

proposals for directives on the standards of and fitment of seatbelts in buses and coaches; proposal for a multichapter directive on whole type approval for motorcycles; proposals for directives on frontal and side-impact standards for cars; proposal for a directive on emissions from light commercial vehicles and small diesel engines; proposal for a directive on the harmonisation of rules for the use of self-propelled machinery on public highways; proposal for a directive on recording equipment in road transport; proposal for a directive on the hiring of road-haulage vehicles without drivers; and proposal for a directive on passenger-carrying cableways.

Long-distance Coaches

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many complaints he has received about inadequate toilet facilities on long-distance coaches; and if he will make a statement. [31607]

Mr. Norris: There is no record of complaints on this matter. The provision of toilet facilities on coaches is a matter for the operators.

Mr. Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what regulations there are regarding toilet facilities and the replenishing of same on long-distance coaches travelling between the United Kingdom and other European countries; and if he will make a statement. [31598]

Mr. Norris: There are no regulations regarding this matter and I am not aware of plans to introduce any such regulations in the European Union.

Mr. Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the adequacy of provision for long-distance coaches to have their toilet facilities replenished; and if he will make a statement. [31599]

Mr. Norris: I have made no such assessment.

Motorway Signs

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the locations of signs on motorways in England indicating the proximity of a hospital. [31348]

Mr. Watts: There is none.

Departmental Grants

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31303]

Mr. Norris: The figures requested are as follows:

Year	Number of organisations receiving grants	Number of organisations with whom contracts have been entered into
	[1]£487,812	£266,424
1994–95	18	5
	[1]£540,651	£138,110

[1] Total value

Hospitality

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each of the last five years the amount spent by his Department and executive agencies on official hospitality. [31831]

Mr. Norris: The centre of the Department of Transport, now known as the central transport group, and its agencies have respectively spent the following amounts on official entertainment since 1990–91:

1991–92: £170,015

1992–93: £233,762

1993–94: £234,986

1995–96: £18,661 (Estimate to date)

Agencies

1990–91: £24,114

1991–92: £30,216

1992–93: £45,454

1993–94: £59,850

1994–95: £91,042

1995–96: £77,462 (Estimate to date)

National Parks

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the benefits and disbenefits of restricting vehicle access to the national parks. [31871]

Mr. Norris: None. Traffic management in the national parks is principally a matter for the relevant local traffic authorities.

Departmental Vehicles

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the cars (a) owned and (b) operated by his Department including the model and engine size and estimated mileage. [31828]

Mr. Norris: The information requested is as follows:

Vehicle Excise Duty

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each vehicle registration office the amount of vehicle excise duty collected and the number of cases discarded in the latest available year. [31832]

Mr. Norris: The amount of vehicle excise duty collected by each vehicle registration office is not available but the total for 1994–95 amounted to some £600 million.

In the year 1994–95 vehicle registration offices and the London enforcement office received 1.67 million excise offence reports from the police. Of these some 458,000 resulted in the payment of out-of-court settlements or successful prosecutions. Of the rest, only 77,548 were discarded unactioned, the rest receiving some investigation before being dropped. This represents some 4.6 per cent. of receipts. The numbers, office by office, are as follows:

Chiltern Line Services

Mr Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the management of the Chiltern line in respect of train services to Northolt park; and if he will make a statement. [30553]

Mr. Watts: None. I understand that Chiltern Railways has decided to reinstate the evening peak train service to Northolt park.

London Docklands

Sir Michael Neubert: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he next expects to make an official visit to London docklands to discuss further developments in respect of the road and rail infrastructure. [31141]

Dr. Mawhinney: I have no plans to do so at present. My hon. Friend the Minister for Transport in London will chair the next meeting of the docklands transport steering group in October.

Heavy Goods Vehicles

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what further measures he proposes to prevent the use of overloaded heavy goods vehicles. [30121]

Mr. Norris: The Vehicle Inspectorate expects to weigh 115,000 heavy goods vehicles in 1995–96 using the Department's national network of strategically located enforcement weighbridge sites.

Terminal 5

Dr. Goodson-Wickes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessments he has made of the transport and noise implications of a new terminal 5 at Heathrow. [30118]

Dr. Mawhinney: As I will be jointly determining the outcome of the inquiry into BAA's proposal I have not made any assessment of its aviation implications. However, I am responsible for promoting improvements to the M25 and M4 access roads. Their noise effects have been assessed and the results are contained in the environmental statement for the schemes.

Office of Passenger Rail Franchising

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans exist to undertake a census of capacity for commuter routes running to and from Newcastle and Cardiff; when such a census was conducted in previous years; if he will publish the results of the last such survey in tabular form; and if he will make a statement as to how OPRAF intends to proceed in consideration of passengers in excess of capacity targets for such routes. [31888]

Mr. Watts: British Rail's monitoring systems collect data relating to capacity for all its services as a matter of normal practice. OPRAF intends to apply load factor or seating capacity requirements on certain commuter routes. These will be specified in the passenger service requirements included in franchise agreements. No decisions have yet been made as to the specifications which will apply in respect of commuter services to and from Newcastle and Cardiff.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps OPRAF will take to prevent rail franchise holders who are operating services which were previously part of Network SouthEast from transferring a substantial number of passengers to the services of another operator in order to exceed passenger capacity targets. [31894]

Mr. Watts: The draft franchise agreement contains a provision prohibiting franchisees from avoiding their obligations with regard to the provision of adequate capacity on commuter services by taking action which might transfer a material number of passengers to another operator.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what obligations or incentives OPRAF intends to impose or provide to ensure that rail franchise holders will upgrade their rolling stock; if specific target dates will be set for (a) the provision of trains with lavatories and (b) the carriage of cycles. [31896]

Mr. Watts: The specification of replacement stock, when this becomes necessary, will be a matter for the commercial judgment of the franchisee.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what circumstances OPRAF may release rail franchise holders from minimum standards applying to stations which it operates; to what extent persistent vandalism would constitute a relevant factor; and how the costs and benefits of repairing the effects of such vandalism or of increased security to prevent its recurrence will be measured by OPRAF when considering any relaxation of standards. [31878]

Mr. Watts: Rail franchise holders will be required to meet minimum station standards, except where the franchising director considers the cost of compliance would significantly outweigh the benefit to passengers, or where he is persuaded that the standard is impractical.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what requirement OPRAF will impose on rail franchise holders operating stations or providing waiting rooms in relation to the proportion of platforms to be provided with this facility and the hours they should be open. [31880]

Mr. Watts: In general, operators will be required to provide covered waiting accommodation at each station. Adequate alternative shelter must be provided where waiting accommodation is not available or is temporarily out of use.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if OPRAF will compensate (a) franchisees and (b) passengers in the event of any adjustment in the rate of VAT on passenger rail transport before 31 March 2003; [31882]

(2) what level of benefits to railcard holders will be guaranteed in franchise agreements; [31886]

(3) if OPRAF will be permitted to suspend ticket inter-availability requirements only when his judgment is that this will lead to benefits to passengers; how such benefits will be identified; and whether forecast benefits will be published for consultation prior to a final decision. [31885]

Mr. Watts: I refer the hon. Member to the passenger rail industry overview, a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if the weighting employed by OPRAF in designing the tariff baskets of controlled fares for capping purposes will be published; and what audit arrangements will be put in place to ensure that changes to specific fares made by any franchise holder are compatible with fares capping requirements set by OPRAF for the total basket of controlled fares. [31884]

Mr. Watts: The franchising director does not propose to publish the weighting employed by OPRAF in designing tariff baskets of controlled fares for capping purposes. Franchise operators must notify the franchising director of any proposals to increase regulated fares. Fares will be monitored periodically by OPRAF to ensure compliance with fares regulation.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if rail franchise holders will be obliged to inform passengers, at each station which they operate, of timetables for all passenger trains stopping at those stations; whether they will be obliged to do so in the form of a single booklet or leaflet at staffed stations, and a single information display at all stations; and if he will define more precisely the derogation as far as practicable, employed by OPRAF, in specifying this obligation. [31887]

Mr. Watts: Franchise holders will be obliged to display at all stations the times of all trains and details of principal connections and, where stations are manned, this information will be available in written form.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what circumstances OPRAF will specify connections as part of the passenger service requirements; what definition OPRAF will employ of the rail franchise holder's own commercial interest when considering whether such a specification should be made; and what written definition or guidance on such circumstances exists in documents produced by OPRAF or in instructions from the Government to OPRAF. [31895]

Mr. Watts: Generally, OPRAF will specify a connection where it provides a socially necessary service which would not otherwise be provided for operational reasons or under the operator's general duty within the franchise agreement to provide a reasonable pattern of connections.

The Government have not given the franchising director any instructions or guidance in relation to the specification of connections. OPRAF has set out its policy approach in information to consultees in relation to passenger service requirements.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what circumstances OPRAF will be permitted to propose changes to passenger services requirements during the lifetime of a franchise; if such proposed changes (a) must be only in the direction of offering an enhanced level of service to passengers or (b) will be subject to consultation with rail users consultative committees and others and (c) can be made only with the agreement of both OPRAF and the franchise holder and how the consequential adjustments to franchise payments will be determined. [31879]

Mr. Watts: The franchising director has the right to adjust passenger service requirements during the life of a franchise, but the instructions and guidance given to him by the Secretary of State stipulate that any changes from the existing pattern of services should be made gradually. The franchising director will consult the relevant rail users consultative committees and local authorities before making significant changes to PSRs and will adjust franchise payments so that the franchise operator does not gain or lose as a result.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons he has decided that the historical performance of a train operating company should be of relevance when specifying performance targets for those companies after privatisation. [31879]

Mr. Watts: This is a matter for OPRAF. Performance benchmarks will be set in relevant franchise agreements based on actual performance in either 1993–94 or 1994–95, whichever is the more typical of an average year, or the passengers charters targets if these are higher.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if OPRAF will place any requirement on training operating companies in franchise agreements or elsewhere that trains should carry guards or other on-board staff. [31881]

Mr. Watts: OPRAF has no plans to impose any requirements additional to those needed for reasons of safety.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if rail franchise holders operating service groups with London terminuses which were previously part of Network SouthEast will be permitted to increase the number of excess passengers, as measured by the means used in compiling the annual autumn census of capacity, provided that the resulting figures do not exceed the permitted percentage in excess of capacity specified by OPRAF. [31883]

Mr. Watts: Yes.

Slots (Heathrow Airport)

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what benefits have been gained by transferring the allocation of slots at Heathrow from London to Brussels; and what has been the consequential cost to public funds. [31853]

Mr. Norris: The allocation of slots at Heathrow airport is carried out from Heathrow by Airport Coordination Ltd., an independent company owned by the UK airlines. There has been no transfer of the function to Brussels. ACL and other airport co-ordinators in the European Community operate within the terms of EC regulation 95/93 on common rules for the allocation of slots at Community airports.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to announce the result of the competition to build the channel tunnel rail link; and if he will make a statement. [31151]

Dr. Mawhinney: Four tenders were submitted on 14 March this year. The Government and their advisers have now completed their evaluation of the bids. In accordance with their recommendation, I have selected two consortia, Eurorail CTRL Ltd. and London and Continental Railways, who will be invited to go forward for further detailed negotiations.

The Government welcome and applaud the immense effort which all four bidders have put into their tenders. This is another indication of the very real commitment of the private sector to the railway industry of the future. It is already clear that bringing in the private sector is going to add value to both the CTRL project and the European passenger services business. This is another good example of the benefits flowing from the Government's private finance initiative.

The evaluation of the bids has been conducted strictly in accordance with the criteria which were set out in the competition overview document published last summer. The ranking of bids in the first stage has been based mainly on an evaluation of the level and timing of the Government contribution and the approach taken by the bidders to risk, together with a qualitative assessment of their financial proposals. The evaluation also took account of other transport benefits.

There are two very strong candidates left in the race. I am confident that at the end of the coming negotiation phase we shall be in a position to strike a deal which is good for the project and its backers, good for passengers and good for the taxpayer. We are on schedule and I hope to announce the winner of the competition before the end of the year.

Ro-ro Ferries

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will support the Japanese proposal for regional agreements within the International Maritime Organisation on ro-ro ferries; and if he will (a) support a decision on the matter at the November meetings of the IMO and (b) support a modification date for existing ferries of no more than three years from the November meetings. [31612]

Mr. Norris: The United Kingdom will pursue the application on a worldwide basis of the high standards recommended by the panel of experts for ro-ro ferries. If it is evident that this will not attract sufficient support at the IMO, the earliest application of that standard to ferries operating to and from United Kingdom ports will be vigorously pursued within a regional concept similar to that put forward by Japan.

Charter Week

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what are the main events he is proposing for Charter Week; what is the total cost to public funds; and how many (a) civil servants and (b) other public officials will be playing part. [31980]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The main transport event linked to Charter Week is the mobility roadshow, a major exhibition of vehicles and mobility equipment for elderly and disabled people which takes place from July 14–16 at the Transport Research Laboratory in Crowthorne, Berkshire.

This is a biennial event organised by the Department of Transport. There will be no additional costs or staff resources attributable to Charter Week.

Mobile Phones

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what evidence he has of the contribution that hand-held mobile phones used by motorists have made to road accidents. [31490]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 30 June 1995]: This information could not be obtained other than at disproportionate cost.

Flight Delays (Heathrow)

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the average delay time of scheduled flights to European destinations from Heathrow in March and June. [31854]

Mr. Norris: The average delay to scheduled passenger flights between Heathrow and European airports in March 1995 was four minutes.

Statistics for June 1995 will not be available for approximately eight weeks.

Marine Safety Exercises

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 23 May, Official Report, column 569, how long was the interval between (a) the general alarm signal and the abandon ship signal, (b) the abandon ship signal and the reception of all passengers aboard lifeboats or liferafts and (c) the reception of all passengers aboard lifeboats or liferafts and the reception ashore, in the ferry exercises Common Aim 3, Claymore, Goodwin, Liverpool Bay, Eddystone, Webex, Seafire, Beauforts Dyke and Sovereign. [31491]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Coastguard Agency. I have asked its chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from C. J. Harris to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 3 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question as the question deals with an operational matter, for which I have responsibility as Chief Executive.

The information requested is not recorded by the Department.

Aircraft Instruments

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures are being taken to reduce the danger of interference from passengers' electronic devices with aircraft flight instruments. [31643]

Mr. Norris: The Civil Aviation Authority has issued a notice to UK air operators directing them to ensure that the use of personal electronic equipment is prohibited during certain critical phases of flight, including take-off and landing. The notice also bans completely the use of portable telephones in aircraft. These instructions are reflected in the passenger safety briefing given before each flight and are soon to be in incorporated in passenger briefing cards.

The CAA has commissioned research into the problem of electronic interference and, based on the results of this, will determine whether more specific guidance should be issued to operators.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Advertising Costs

Mr. Allen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how he is responding to Britain's advertisers' informal complaints to his Department on the effect of the cost of air time on the competitiveness of British industry. [31916]

Mr. Eggar: The cost of air time is a matter for the commercial judgment of the organisations concerned. The subject was one of several issues raised at a recent meeting officials in my Department had with representatives from the advertising sector.

Military Exports (Singapore)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if exports of (a) cannon mounts, (b) cannon components and (c) cannon kits were licensed between 1984 and 1990 for export to Singapore without (i) being licensed under the military list of (ii) an end user statement or certificate being insisted upon. [29164]

Mr. Ian Taylor: All the goods listed in the hon. Member's question are military list items and any export licence application in respect of these items would have been considered on that basis. As my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade made clear in his statement to the House on 13 June 1995, Official Report, columns 595–97, items on the military list were on occasion exported without full supporting documentation being insisted on. However, in all cases the licence application form includes a formal statement of the end user.

An answer to this question would require the detailed examination of several hundred licence applications, which would entail seriously disproportionate cost. however, I shall bear the hon. Member's question in mind in the course of any further research into export licences granted for Singapore.

Insurance Risk Assessment

Mr. Denham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment he has made of the use of post codes by insurance companies to assess risk of exposure to (a) crime and (b) subsidence; and if he will make a statement. [31930]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Postal codes are widely used by insurance companies as a tool in assessing premiums. It is the commercial judgment of insurance companies that the premiums charged for any particular area can be expected to reflect the claims experience for that area.

Mr. Denham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what proposals he has made to regulate the use of post codes by insurance companies to assess insurance risk. [31931]

Mr. Evans: None. The Secretary of State's powers under the Insurance Companies Act 1982 are primarily concerned with the solvency of insurance companies and, except where such matters are concerned, he does not intervene in their day to day business.

Military Exports (Nigeria)

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what were the number and type of export licences issued for military equipment for use by (a) the Nigerian police force and (b) the Nigerian UN peace keeping corps for 1994 and for 1995 to date. [31779]

Mr. Ian Taylor: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to reveal details of export licences or applications for licences unless the requirements of confidentiality are outweighed by the public interest.

Insolvency Practitioners

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many insolvency examiners have been dismissed since 1990 for failing to achieve the relevant accountancy qualifications. [32609]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Four examiners have been dismissed as a result of failing to pass the required accountancy examinations during their two-year probationary period.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will set out the method by which, after a meeting of creditors has failed to appoint a trustee in bankruptcy or a liquidator of a company in liquidation the Secretary of State determines the identity of the insolvency practitioner who is to be appointed as a trustee or a liquidator under (a) section 295 or (b) 137 of the Insolvency Act 1986, with particular reference to whether the insolvency practitioner who is appointed is required to be located within the same region as the bankrupt or the company in question. [32320]

Mr. Evans: Each official receiver maintains a rota of insolvency practitioners within the locality of his office who are willing to accept appointments by the Secretary of State. The criteria for entry on to the rota are that the insolvency practitioner should have a permanently staffed office with insolvency personnel in regular attendance within the locality of, or conveniently accessible to, the local court. Generally speaking, where no trustee or liquidator is nominated at a meeting of creditors and if the official receiver considers it desirable that one be appointed, he will seek that appointment by reference to his local rota.

During 1994 a special unit was set up in Manchester, on a temporary basis, to complete the administration of cases remaining open as a result of the high level of insolvencies of earlier years. In such cases where, some time after the making of the order, there were sufficient assets to enable a distribution to creditors to be made, local practitioners were appointed to carry out that work.

Bankruptcies and Liquidations

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what future trends he expects in the number of bankruptcy orders and winding up orders over the next five years. [32589]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The Insolvency Service does not publish forecasts of insolvencies although for planning and resource allocation purposes as part of the MINIS process it bases its business plan on an expected number of cases in the following financial year. For 1995–96 the service's business plan is based on a total of 25,000 cases comprising 20,000 bankruptcies and 5,000 compulsory liquidations.

Insolvency Service

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the total annual salary costs of the staff of the Insolvency Service of grades B and above, both in absolute terms, and as a percentage of the total wage bill of the Insolvency Service. [32325]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Some £3.1 million was incurred in 1994–95 on the salary costs of Insolvency Service staff of grades B and above. This amount represents approximately 8 per cent. of the total pay costs of the Insolvency Service for 1994–95.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many man days were lost in the Insolvency Service due to sick absence for each year since 1986. [32308]

Mr. Evans: Details of the number of man-days lost to the Insolvency Service due to sick absence is available only for the years since 1991. The details are as follows:

Year	Days
1991	17,270
1992	18,168

Prior to March 1990, when the Insolvency Service became an executive agency, details of sick absences were combined with those of the Department.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the current policy of the Insolvency Service regarding the circumstances under which staff are required to transfer involuntarily between official receivers' offices. [32311]

Mr. Evans: The Insolvency Service endeavours to fill vacancies in its offices by transferring staff on a voluntary basis. If, exceptionally, mobile staff are transferred compulsorily the costs directly associated with such a transfer are paid within agreed limits.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what procedures and provisions are in place to enable staff to relocate voluntarily or involuntarily between official receivers' offices; and what changes are planned to these procedures in the event of the contracting out of some of the functions of the official receiver. [32310]

Mr. Evans: The Insolvency Service endeavours to fill vacancies in official receivers' offices on a voluntary basis. Staff may apply for transfer to another office at any time and such requests will be considered on their merits. They will normally be agreed subject to the existence of a suitable vacancy. Where a transfer is a compulsory one or where a voluntary transfer involving relocation is in the service's interest the costs directly associated with the relocation are reimbursed within agreed limits.

No changes are planned to these procedures.

Weapons Exports

Mr. Redmond: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the overseas countries in which British weaponry may be sold. [31497]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Anywhere where there is no embargo, in which respect I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Leyton (Mr. Cohen) by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on 16 January 1995, Official Report, column 283.

Decisions on export licence applications are, however, taken in light of established criteria to which we are committed, including those agreed by the European Union, Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe and the permanent five members of the United Nations Security Council.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list those countries in which an embargo on selling British weaponry has been lifted during the last 12 months. [31496]

Mr. Taylor: Haiti and Syria, with a UN call for voluntary restraint—not an arms embargo—on the supply of military equipment to Yemen also lapsing during the year.

Chemical Weapons Convention

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many responses his Department received to the consultation document "Industry and the Chemical Weapons Convention" by the close of the consultation period on 31 March; and what progress has been made in assessing the responses. [31122]

Mr. Heseltine: Over 2,500 copies of the discussion document were issued widely to industry, largely through trade organisations. We received 33 responses. Of these, 15 were from trade organisations, who were responding on behalf of their membership. The responses, overall, supported the approach my Department proposes to adopt in implementing the convention. The results of the consultation were included in a speech given to the House on 24 April, Official Report, columns 638–42, by my hon. Friend, the Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Technology.

Astra plc

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations have been made by ministers or officials of his Department to the receiver of Astra plc concerning access to and availability of documentary material returned to the company by the Ministry of Defence Police. [31433]

Mr. Jonathan Evans [holding answer 30 June 1995]: It is for the administrative receivers of Astra Holdings plc to decide what access they allow to the company's papers. Before my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade appeared before the Trade and Industry Select Committee on 28 June, officials informally raised with the receivers the question of disclosure to the Select Committee and were informed that legal advice had been sought.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list by convenient category the documents removed from Astra plc and its subsidiaries which are restrained by his Department. [31432]

Mr. Evans [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The papers of Astra Holdings plc are now held by the administrative receiver. The inspectors appointed to investigate the affairs of the company made and retained copies of documents relevant to their investigation. These principally comprise certain statutory material, financial and accounting records and information, correspondence, internal and external memoranda and reports.

Export Licence Applications

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his statement of 13 June, Official Report, column 597, what percentage of the rise in export licence applications related to (a) high-tech exports and (b) arms exports. [31434]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Export licence applications received in the years 1984 and 1987 were broken down as follows:

	1984	1987	Per cent. increase
Military	14,398	17,590	22
Industrial and nuclear	34,428	70,031	[1]103
Other	9,215	10,221	[2]11
Total	58,041	97,842	68

[1] No breakdown by 'high' and 'low' technology is available.
[2] Primarily metallic scrap and heritage items.

United Arab Emirates

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the value of United Kingdom visible and invisible trade with the United Arab Emirates. [31530]

Mr. Needham [holding answer 29 June 1995]: Information on visible trade is published in Central Statistical Office business monitor MM20, available in the Library of the House. Information on invisible trade with the United Arab Emirates is not available.

BMARC Ltd.

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will place in the Library all documents held by his Department in relation to the trading activities of BMARC Ltd. and if he will make a statement. [30232]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 26 June 1995]: No. The hon. Member has asked for a very large number of documents, which could be put together only at disproportionate cost.

There are particular issues concerning the release of documents obtained by inspectors under compulsory powers. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Wallsend (Mr. Byers) by my hon. Friend the Minister for Corporate and Consumer Affairs on 27 June 1995, Official Report, columns 570–71.

Nevertheless, I recognise the great public interest in the trading activities of BMARC and I welcome the decision of the Trade and Industry Select Committee to inquire into the affairs of BMARC. My Department will be co-operating fully with the Committee's inquiry.

Scott Inquiry

Mr. Byers: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, how many civil servants in his Department are working on matters related to the Scott inquiry, if a dedicated unit has been established; and what is the estimated cost to date of civil servants dealing with matters relating to the Scott inquiry. [28861]

Mr. Heseltine [holding answer 15 June 1995]: A Scott inquiry unit was established in DTI in December 1992. Currently the unit consists of two posts. The approximate cost of the unit to date, excluding the cost of the provision of papers, is £247,000.

Arms Export Licences

Mr. Hain: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many staff in his Department were responsible for monitoring and approving arms export licences for each year since 1979. [29334]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 19 June 1995]: The table below shows the number of staff within the Department responsible for the processing of arms export licence applications from 1989 to 1995, including, where necessary, monitoring compliance with licence conditions. The figures prior to 1989 could be made available only at disproportionate cost. Technical advice on military licensing matters is available from the DTI's sensitive technologies unit. Applications are also routinely assessed by advisers from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Ministry of Defence. Enforcement of export controls—including controls on military goods–is carried out by Her Majesty's Customs and Excise.

SCOTLAND

Privatisation

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list those parts of his Department or departmental agencies which were privatised without an in-house bid; if he will indicate the expertise which was absent in his Department or departmental agencies which prevented an in-house bid taking place; which future parts of his Department or departmental agencies he intends to privatise; and which of them do not have the necessary in-house expertise to mount an in-house bid. [29425]

Mr. Lang: It is my aim to ensure that the services undertaken by my Department and its agencies are provided and managed so as to give better service to the public in Scotland and optimum value for money to the taxpayer. That is the policy which underpins the decisions I have taken to contract out strategically certain services provided by my Department and its agencies. The broad reasons for contracting out without an in-house bid are set out in Taking Forward Continuity and Change—Cm 2748. These include, for example, when my Department judges that the private sector is better equipped to deliver a specific service, has a better understanding of market needs or a greater capacity to invest in new technology. A strategic decision to contract out might also be taken where an activity may be relatively small in size and peripheral to a department's core functions.

No parts of my Department or departmental agencies were privatised without an in-house bid. The following activities within my Department and its agencies have been strategically contracted out without an in-house bid since April 1992.

Activities Strategically Contracted Out

Marine Laboratory Estate Management

Maintenance of New National Health Service Radio Systems

Superannuation Services

Audit of NHS Boards

Animal House, Scottish Agricultural Science Agency

Facilities Management at Victoria Quay[1]

Audit of 1st Wave NHS Trusts

Audit of 2nd Wave NHS Trusts

Audit of 3rd Wave NHS Trusts

Data Preparation Services

Historic Scotland Patrolmen at Edinburgh Castle

Prison-based education, Scottish Prison Service

Scottish Office Pensions Agency Pensions Administration System

Security at Scottish Agricultural Science Agency

Publications distribution and sales

Additional typing services

Mainframe Applications Support

My Department and its agencies have not yet identified any activities for future privatisation or contracting out without an in-house bid.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many ministerial visits by Ministers of his Department were made to Scottish parliamentary constituencies since 1 May 1994.

Mr. Lang: Scottish Office Ministers have made 362 visits to Scottish parliamentary constituencies since 1 May 1994.

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many ministerial visits have been made by himself and his Ministers to the parliamentary constituencies of (a) Tayside, North, (b) Kincardine and Deeside, (c) Edinburgh, Pentlands, (d) Dumfries, (e) Aberdeen, South, (f) Stirling, (g) Ayr, (h) Galloway and Upper Nithsdale, (i) Perth and Kinross and (j) Eastwood since 1 May 1994. [29588]

Mr. Lang: The information requested is set out in the table:

Constituency	Number of visits made
(a) Tayside North	3
(b) Kincardine and Deeside	2
(c) Edinburgh, Pentlands	3
(d) Dumfries	9
(e) Aberdeen, South	6
(f) Stirling	13
(g) Ayr	7
(h) Galloway and Upper Nithsdale	15
(i) Perth and Kinross	8
(j Eastwood	1

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which parliamentary constituency in Scotland received the most ministerial visits by Ministers of his Department since 1 May 1994. [29589]

Mr. Lang: Since 1 May last year, Edinburgh, Central has received the largest number of ministerial visits by Scottish Office Ministers.

Heavy Vehicles (Bans)

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the existing powers of local authorities to ban heavy vehicles from minor roads in urban areas; and what pressure he has had for changes to the existing position. [29850]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Powers are available to local traffic authorities under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 to make or revoke traffic regulation orders preventing the use of roads by vehicular traffic of a kind or in a manner which is unsuitable having regard to the character of the road. Mandatory restrictions can cover small lengths of road or large area networks and can be based on gross vehicle weight, axle weight, length, height or width or any other readily understood characteristic of the vehicles. A local traffic authority may also include provisions for specifying through routes for heavy goods vehicles. My right hon. Friend has received no representations about changing the existing powers.

Local Government Finance

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will increase Ettrick and Lauderdale district council's non-housing revenue account consent for 1995–96. [30036]

Mr. Lang: All resources currently available for capital investment in housing in 1995–96 have been fully allocated. I will take account of the needs of Ettrick and Lauderdale district council should additional resources become available later in the year.

Locate in Scotland

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total amount of inward investment attracted to the city of Glasgow in 1994–95 by Locate in Scotland; how many jobs this created or safeguarded; and if he will make a statement. [30960]

Mr. Kynoch: During 1994–95, Locate in Scotland and the Scottish Office Industry Department helped attract to Glasgow eight inward investment projects involving planned investment of nearly £30 million and the expected creation or safeguarding of over 1,300 jobs.

Sheep Scabs

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the recorded level of sheep scab in each of the last five years. [31245]

Sir Hector Monro: The numbers of confirmed cases of sheep scab in Scotland during the period 1990 to June 1992 were as follows:

	Number
1990	4
1991	5
1992 (to 30 June)	17

Further Education

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the Government's financial plans for the further education sector over the next few years. [31318]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Information on the plans for the provision for further education colleges and agencies is given in the departmental report of March 1995, "Serving Scotland's Needs"—Cm 2814—as follows:

1995–96: £251 million

1996–97: £249 million

1997–98: £243 million

The figures for 1996–97 and 1997–98 are provisional and subject to review in the annual public expenditure surveys.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what capping measures have been imposed on certain types of courses in further education colleges; and for what reason. [31319]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Following a period of rapid expansion of higher education level courses in further education colleges, my right hon. Friend decided to consolidate the number of new full-time entrants to higher education courses in 1995–96 at the level achieved in each college during 1994–95. There are a number of specific exceptions and colleges are free to develop new programmes and to decide the number of students to recruit for particular programmes within the consolidated ceiling. No restrictions are applied to part-time higher education students or to students taking non-advanced courses.

The consolidation is required on grounds of affordability and is broadly consistent with the approach over recent years within the higher education institutions.

University of Paisley

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the academic contribution made by the university of Paisley to the social, industrial and economic life of Scotland since it earned its new status; what plans he has to ensure the security of the university in its preparation for future development; and if he will introduce further measures to develop higher education in the Paisley area. [31390]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The university of Paisley has made a great deal of progress since the Further and Higher Education (Scotland) Act 1992 introduced new arrangements for the constitution and funding of higher education institutions in Scotland.

The academic achievements and diversity and scale of provision of the university were recognised in the granting of permission to use university title in June 1992, and of powers to award its own degrees in September 1992. I also approved in July 1993 the merger with Craigie college of education, and welcomed then the commitment to develop and strengthen the vocational mission of the new university.

Evidence of the teaching quality of the university is given in the published reports of the Scottish Higher Education Funding Council's assessment of teaching quality, and the report of the Higher Education Quality Council in April this year on its audit of the university arrangements for academic quality assurance.

Allocation of funds for the teaching and research of higher education institutions is now the responsibility of the Scottish Higher Education Funding Council. Each institution has been required to submit annual strategic plans and financial forecasts, as well as strategies for estates and research, to SHEFC. It is for SHEFC to determine appropriate allocations to individual institutions in the light of the information it receives and its assessment of the needs of the sector as a whole.

Dounreay

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the recommendations of the Radioactive Waste Management Advisory Committee concerning the treatment of waste at Dounreay in accordance with modern standards, and on the history of how waste particles came to be found over a period of years on the Dounreay foreshore; and if he will make it his policy that there will be regular, independent, and public reviews of progress in the decontamination of the area affected in the vicinity of Dounreay. [29796]

Sir Hector Monro: As at present, HM industrial pollution inspectorate and HM nuclear installations inspectorate, in co-operation with the UK Atomic Energy Authority, will be working to ensure that all actions related to radioactive waste and its disposal are carried out in accordance with modern standards.

All the waste metallic particles found near Dounreay were detected as a result of regular beach monitoring carried out by the UK Atomic Energy Authority and a history of the finding of the particles is contained in the joint report by the Committee on Medical Aspects of Radiation in the Environment and the Radioactive Waste Management Advisory Committee.

The main recommendations of the Radioactive Waste Management Advisory Committee on this matter fall to be considered by the UK Atomic Energy Authority, in co-operation with the regulatory authorities. The Secretary of State will consider the question of how progress on decontamination is to be reviewed in the light of the outcome of the on-going discussions between the operators and the regulatory authorities.

Glasgow City Council Elections

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if anyone is to be prosecuted as a result of the alleged breach of electoral law relating to the submission of nominations in the Bridgeton ward of Glasgow city council for the elections held on 6 April 1995; and if he will make a statement. [32023]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Crown Counsel has instructed the procurator fiscal to take summary proceedings in Glasgow sheriff court in connection with alleged contraventions of section 65 of the Representation of the People Act 1983. One of the alleged contraventions relates to the Bridgeton ward of the city of Glasgow.

Schoolgirls (Computing Subjects)

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the secretary of State for Scotland how many girls in S5 and S6 studied computing subjects in education authority schools; and what percentage this was of the total number of S5 and S6 pupils in (a) 1989, (b) 1991 and (c) 1993; and if he will make a statement. [30860]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The number and percentage of girls studying computing subjects in S5 and S6 in education authority secondary schools in 1989, 1991 and 1993 are as follows:

Year	Number in S5/S6	Percentage of S5/S6
1989	4,933	7.8
1993	[1]5,157	7.8

[1]In the figures for 1993 information was not available for two schools.

The figures do not include pupils studying computing subjects in short courses. In addition, many pupils study computing subjects in S3 and S4. Thus, the actual figure of girls studying computing subjects in education authority schools will be significantly higher than those numbers provided.

Rural Policy

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what progress has been made in the consultation process on rural policy in Scotland; which organisations he is consulting with; and when the White Paper will be published. [31892]

Sir Hector Monro: The current consultation on rural policy in Scotland has taken three main forms.

We sought the advice of the rural focus group—made up of representatives of the Central Scotland Countryside Trust, the Convention of Scottish Local Authorities, Highlands and Islands Enterprise, Rural Forum, Scottish Agricultural college, Scottish Enterprise, Scottish Homes, Scottish Natural Heritage, Scottish Tourist Board, and chaired by the Scottish Office.

We commissioned Rural Forum Scotland to convene a series of conferences and workshops to examine specific themes of relevance to the White Paper and these were held across Scotland in May and June.

Almost 900 organisations and individuals were invited to submit ideas and comments and some have conducted their own conferences and surveys. So far, 112 responses have been received and these will be of considerable assistance in the development of the White Paper, which will be published in the autumn.

Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh

Mr. Chisholm: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the proposed allocation of risks between the national health service and the private sector for the proposed new Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh; and what are the public expenditure implications. [31994]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh trust has yet to finalise details of the specification to be issued in September to its shortlisted tenderers. Therefore, details of proposed allocation of risks will not be available until that time. However, the trust will be seeking to transfer risk in the areas such as design, planning, construction, maintenance, equipment obsolescence, residual value of assets and performance in terms of quality support services. Until final details of risk transfer are available, the effect on public expenditure cannot be estimated.

Director, Information Directorate

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the recruitment of the director of his Department's information directorate; and what was her previous employment before joining the Scottish Office. [31362]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 29 June 1995]: The director of my Department's information directorate, Ms Elizabeth Drummond, was recruited in April 1992 following an open recruitment campaign.

Ms Drummond's early career was spent with the Government Information Service. Immediately prior to joining the Scottish Office, she was employed by Westminster city council as head of public relations and publicity.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Electro-shock Weapons

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Attorney-General what action his Department has taken to follow up allegations made in January in relation to illegal and unauthorised production, export and arrangement of sale of electro-shock weapons and equipment; what legal action has been and is being undertaken in consequence of such investigations; and if he will make a statement. [32073]

The Attorney-General: The police responsible for the conduct of the investigation into possible offences arising out of allegations made January 1995 relating to electro-shock weapons have now submitted a report to the Crown Prosecution Service.

As to the matters under investigation in Scotland, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 23 May 1995 by the Under-Secretary of State for Scotland at column 576) to the hon. Member for Cynon Valley (Mrs. Clwyd). I understand that the position remains unaltered.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Attorney-General, pursuant to his answer of 22 May, Official Report, column 452, what progress is being made in the investigations into matters relating to British Aerospace and the export of electro-shock equipment. [32073]

The Attorney-General: The police have recently submitted a report to the Crown Prosecution Service which is at present being considered.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Child Benefit Claim Pack

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what channels are being used for the distribution of the leaflet "New Child Benefit Claim Paper: Can You Help"; and what factors underlay his choice of these channels. [31293]

Mr. Burt: The distribution of the child benefit claim pack is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Martyn Jones, dated 30 June 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the channels being used to distribute the Child Benefit claim pack and the factors underlying the choice of these channels.

Three main outlets are being used for the distribution of the pack. First, they are readily available to the public from local Social Security offices. Secondly, they are distributed directly to new and expectant mothers by inclusion in a complimentary baby products package, known as a Bounty Pack, which reaches 97.5 per cent. of new mothers in the UK per year. Third, they are available on request direct from the Child Benefit Centre, Washington.

The factors which underlay the choice of these channels were cost effectiveness, accessibility and the ability to contact the correct customer group.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claims for the year 1994–95 have been made in (a) South Yorkshire, (b) Humberside, (c) North Yorkshire and (d) West Yorkshire for industrial disablement benefit for emphysema and chronic bronchitis; how many have been successful; how many have been refused and what grounds; and what are the comparable figures for the previous year. [31095]

Mr. Hague: The administration of industrial injuries disablement benefit is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member with such information as is available.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Martin Redmond, dated 30 June 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about claims made for Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit in respect of chronic bronchitis and emphysema in Yorkshire and Humberside in 1994–95.

Information about the number of claims, their success rate and the number disallowed is not available in the exact format requested. This is because figures for the number of claims made since the end of the initial twelve month take-on period have been collected separately and in a slightly different format. The take-on period lasted from September 1993 to October 1994.

The available information is shown in the enclosed tables. The information in the first three columns of Table 1 was collected at Area Directorate levels. The information in the last two columns was collected at the Disability Benefit Centre (DBC) in Leeds, which covers the Yorkshire and Humberside area of the country. Leeds DBC also dealt with the claims from some customers outside these areas.

The information shown at Table 2 was collected at Area Directorate level and covers the six month period from October 1994 to March 1995. This table outlines successful claims and all three categories of disallowance; because of the 20 year rule, failure to meet the criteria for lung function loss or category 1 pneumoconiosis.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Table 1: September 1993–October 1994

			Failed (reason)
Area	Claims	Successful	20 year rule	Lung test[1]	Cat. 1 pneumoconiosis
South Yorkshire and Humberside	6,521	773	171	6,551	3,957
North and West Yorkshire	2,676	420	90

[1] These figures were collected by the Disability Benefits Centre (DBC) at Leeds. Leeds DBC also dealt with other areas so the figures do not equate exactly.

Table 2: October 1994–March 1995

			Failed (reason)
Area	Claims	Successful	20 year rule	Lung test	Cat. 1 pneumoconiosis
South Yorkshire and Humberside	214	33	9	127	95
North and West Yorkshire	121	21	9	59	23

All tables include claims received but not decided within the period.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many and what percentage of families with children age 18 years or under claimed housing benefit or its equivalent in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each since 1979. [31582]

Mr. Roger Evans: Information is not available in the form requested. Available information is set out in the table:

Notes:
1. The numbers given refer to the number of benefit units, which may be a single person with dependants or a couple with dependants.
2. The numbers have been rounded to the nearest thousand and the percentages to one decimal place.
3. Information on total families with dependants under 19 is not available regionally, therefore we are unable to provide percentages for Yorkshire and Humberside.
4. Information on the number of families with dependants aged under 19 is not available prior to 1990 for housing benefit.
5. Reliable information is not available for York or North Yorkshire.

Pensioners' Capital

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the average capital owned by individuals on retirement in the form of (a) home ownership and (b) non-pension savings. [31234]

Mr Arbuthnot: The information is not available.

Personal Pensions

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the expenditure in (a) 2010, (b) 2020 and (c) 2030 on (i) national insurance rebates paid to members of appropriate personal pension schemes and (ii) the additional national insurance rebate paid to members of appropriate personal pensions relative to that paid to members of contracted-out money purchase schemes. [31235]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The table shows estimates for the expenditure in 2010, 2020 and 2030 on the national insurance rebate payable to members of appropriate personal pension schemes using assumptions consistent with those used for the report by the Government Actuary on the "Financial Provisions of the Bill on the National Insurance Fund", Cm 2714. The rebate rates quoted in that report are provisional and will be reviewed before age related rebates come into effect in April 1997.

It is not possible to provide a valid estimate of additional expenditure on the national insurance rebates paid to members of APPS compared to what would have been paid if they had received rebates designed for members of contracted-out money purchase schemes. This is because total numbers of people with APPS would be likely to reduce significantly in those circumstances. The rebates for APPS will be set at a higher level than those for COMPS to reflect higher levels of providers' expenses and the delay in payment by the DSS of a greater part of the rebate. If the rebate for APPS failed to reflect these factors, it would not generally be worthwhile for people to take out or for providers to offer APPS.

Young People

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many young people in Wales who left school at 16 years were subsequently in receipt of (a) severe hardship payments under income support provision and (b) other Benefits Agency payments, in each of the past 10 years for which figures are available. [31610]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is not available.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what percentage of young people who left care in each of the past five years for which figures are available are currently claiming benefits. [31618]

Mr. Evans: The information is not available.

Pensioners' Incomes

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the percentage of pensioners who will have an income on retirement in (a) the most recent year, (b) 2010 and (c) 2020 which is (i) less than 25 per cent. of average earnings, (ii) less than 50 per cent. of average earnings, (iii) less than 75 per cent. of average earnings, (iv) equal to average earnings, (v) up to 25 per cent. more than average earnings, (vi) up to 50 per cent. more than average earnings and (vii) up to 75 per cent. more than average earnings. [31236]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The latest available information is for 1992 and is shown in the table. Forecasts of pensioners incomes at retirement for 2010 and 2020 are not available.

Gross income of recently retired pensioner units as a proportion of average earnings

(iv) 100 per cent. (average earnings)	n/a
(v) Up to 125 per cent.	89
(vi) Up to 150 per cent.	93
(vii) Up to 175 per cent.	95

Notes:

1. Average earnings are based on full time employees on adult rate in all industries and services for 1992.
2. Recently retired pensioner units are defined as single pensioner units and married couples where the individual or head of the household is less than five years over state pension age.
3. The proportion receiving precisely the same level of income as average earnings is not available.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the average pensioner income at retirement in (a) the most recent year, (b) 2010 and (c) 2020, expressed as a percentage of average earnings. [31237]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The latest available information is for 1992. These estimates show that recently retired pensioner units received an average gross income equivalent to 74 per cent. of average earnings. Forecasts of pensioners' incomes at retirement for 2010 and 2020 are not available.

1. Average earnings are based on full time employees on adult rate in all industries and services for 1992.

Home Responsibilities Protection

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the annual cost by the year 2030 of replacing the special arrangement known as home responsibility protection with a credit for class 1 contributions for the same qualifying group; and on what basis he estimates this cost. [31932]

Mr. Arbuthnot: It is estimated by the Government Actuary's Department that replacing the special arrangements known as home responsibilities protection with a credit for class 1 contributions for the same qualifying group would cost £150 million by the year 2030.

State Earnings-related Pension

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the annual cost by the year 2030 of calculating entitlement to benefits under the state earnings-related pension scheme if a disregard was introduced for the final five years of earnings, but only if this disregard does not diminish the SERPS payment; and on what basis he estimates this cost. [31936]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The annual cost by the year 2030 of calculating entitlement to SERPS if a disregard was introduced for the final five years of earnings; and the denominator in calculating SERPS is also reduced by 5, is estimated to be about £2 billion in 2030–31.

Notes:

1. The cost is in 1994–95 prices and is the estimated increase in Retirement Pension expenditure.

2. This estimate is consistent with the figures in the Government Actuary's Report on the Pensions Bill 1994 and in the Government Actuary's Quinquennial Review on the National Insurance Fund.

3. This assumes that the increase in SERPS entitlement would apply equally to contracted-out and not contracted-out individuals.

4. This assumes SERPS accrues up to the financial year prior to reaching age 60 at an accrual rate of 20/44 per cent. rather than at a rate of 20/49 per cent. up to the year before reaching age 65.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the annual cost by the year 2050 of calculating entitlement to benefits under the state earnings-related pensions scheme on the best 39 years of earnings; and on what basis he estimates this cost. [31935]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The estimated cost is £5 billion.

Notes:

1. The cost is in 1994–95 prices and is the estimated total increase in retirement pension expenditure.

2. This estimate assumes that the best 39 year rule would apply equally to contracted-in and contracted-out earnings.

3. This estimate is consistent with the assumptions and projections in the Government Actuary's report on the Pensions Bill 1994.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many (a) men and (b) women are in receipt of state earnings-related pension (i) who earn more than £10,000 per year, and (ii) who earn more than £20,000 per year. [32005]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information is in the table.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the annual costs of phasing in the reduction of the entitlement to the additional pension to a widow or widower over a 10-year period between 5 April 2000 and 6 April 2010 in 5 per cent. annual increments; and on what basis he estimates this cost. [31934]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information is in the table:

Year	Cost £ million
2005–08	350
2010–11	400
2015–16	300
2020–21	200

1. The cost is in 1994–95 prices and is the estimated total increase in retirement pension expenditure.

2. The estimate assumes that the increased level of additional pension would apply equally to contracted-in and contracted-out contributions.

3. This estimate is consistent with the assumptions and projections in the Government Actuary's report on the Pensions Bill 1994 and in the Government Actuary's Quinquennial Review on the National Insurance Fund.

State Retirement Pension

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the annual cost by the year 2030 of equalising the number of qualifying years for the category A pension at 39 for both women and men; and on what basis he estimates this cost. [31933]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The annual cost is estimated to be about £$\frac{1}{4}$ billion by 2030.

Notes:

1. The cost is in 1994–95 prices and is the estimated total increase in retirement pension expenditure.

2. This estimate assumes that the change would be made to male pension for awards from 2010 onwards and the female rule would remain as at present for all years.

3. The estimates are relative to the projected costs of basic pension after allowing for the changes in the Pensions Bill.

4. This estimate is consistent with the assumptions and projections in the Government Actuary's report on the Pensions Bill 1994 and in the Government Actuary's Quinquennial Review on the National Insurance Fund.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many (a) divorced and (b) widowed pensioners are receiving a full state pension based on their spouse's national insurance contribution record; and of these how many are also in receipt of (i) income support or (ii) other state benefits. [32074]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The figures for widowed and divorced pensioners are not available separately. The total number in March 1993 was 1,783.

It is not possible to identify how many of these people were receiving income support or other benefits.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for State for Social Security if he will estimate the annual income to the Exchequer of removing the lower earnings limit on employer contributions to national insurance contributions; and on what basis he estimates this sum. [31997]

Mr. Arbuthnot: If employers were to pay contributions on earnings below the lower earnings limit, the additional income would be an estimated £150 million in a full year. This figure was derived using information from the April 1993 new earnings survey, which was then adjusted to take account of the latest earnings estimates for 1995–96. The contribution rate is assumed to be 3 per cent. which is the rate currently payable by employers in respect of earnings just above the lower earnings limit.

Funeral Expenses

Mr. Gunnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what changes have been made to the social fund funeral expenses regulations following those published in Cm 2858 in May. [31710]

Mr. Roger Evans: The Social Fund Maternity and Funeral Expenses (General) Amendments Regulations (SI 1995/1229) were laid on 9 May this year and came into force on 5 June.

The funeral payment scheme covers all the reasonable costs of burial or cremation disbursements arranged by the funeral director and allows up to £500 for his services. Everyone who is entitled to help with arranging a funeral through the social fund will be able to choose either a burial or cremation in all parts of the country. So total costs paid by the taxpayer could, in the case of burials, exceed £1,000.

A copy of the regulations is available in the Library.

Married Women's Pensions

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many women are in receipt of the married woman's pension of £35.25; and what is the Government's estimate of how this figure will change over the next 10 years. [32075]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The number of women in receipt of the married woman's pension of £35.25 at 31 March 1994 is 1,905,140.

An estimate of how this figure will change over the next 10 years is not available. However, over the next 10 years the total of category BL and ABL pensioners is likely to remain approximately stable. Within this group the numbers with category ABL will rise and numbers with category BL and ABL pensions will fall.

In the longer term, due to the effects of home responsibilities protection and the abolition of the married women's reduced rate option, more women will become entitled to a category A pension at over 60 per cent. The numbers with category A pensions will rise and the numbers with category BL and ABL pensions will fall.

Note:

Category BL pension is payable to a married woman on her husband's contributions at up to 60 per cent. of the standard category A rate, provided she and her husband have both reached pension age. Category ABL pension is payable to a married woman and is a combination of category A and category BL. Where a married woman's own category A entitlement is less than 60 per cent. of the standard rate, the pension is supplemented up to that level with category BL pension based on her husband's contributions.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people in residential or nursing homes have wives living elsewhere who receive the married woman's pension of £35.25. [32076]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many women in receipt of the married woman's pension of £35.25 (a) are also in receipt of income support and other state benefits, (b) have incomes above income support levels and other state benefit levels and (c) are entitled to but are not claiming income support and other state benefits. [32077]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many women in receipt of the married woman's pension of £35.25 would still be in receipt of income support and other state benefits if the substitution rules were changed to allow women living apart from their husband because the husband has gone into nursing or residential care to claim a full state pension. [32078]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is not available.

DEFENCE

Royal Dockyards

Ms Rachel Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the redundancy and pension provisions for dockyard employees in the event of privatisation or another of the options currently under consideration. [31425]

Mr. Freeman: My right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced the Government's policy towards the future management of the royal dockyards at Devonport and Rosyth on 18 October 1993 at columns 39–41. Since then, I, my predecessor and my officials have had numerous meeting with the national officers of trade unions with members employed by the Ministry of Defence and the dockyard companies—Devonport Royal Dockyard plc and Rosyth Royal Dockyard plc—which, I should stress, have been private sector companies since 1987, to discuss the proposed privatisation of the dockyards. I have found these meetings a valuable opportunity to clarify the concerns felt by the dockyard company employees who may be affected by the proposed privatisation. At my most recent such meeting, on 20 June, I undertook to give a full and considered statement, in the light of detailed legal and other advice, of my Department's position on the issues raised with me.

My officials have also discussed these issues with the tenderers for the dockyards—Devonport Management Ltd. at Devonport and Babcock International Group plc at Rosyth—and, where appropriate, this statement takes account of my understanding of those discussions. Each tenderer, of course, remains fully responsible for any statements that it has made or may make in the future.

The Government's preferred option for the future of the dockyards is that each should be moved wholly into the private sector as a separate and independent entity, provided the terms are right and meet the needs of the taxpayer and the Royal Navy. The Government believe that this would offer the dockyards the best opportunity to become more competitive in seeking work from my Department and other customers. As elsewhere in industry, maintaining competitiveness is crucial to employment levels; it is essential to a secure long-term future for the dockyards and their employees.

My Department is now holding detailed discussions with each tenderer with a view to agreeing satisfactory sale terms. No decisions have, however, yet been taken on whether to proceed with the sale of either dockyard. As I made clear in answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Plymouth, Sutton (Mr. Streeter) on 23 November 1994 at column 146, I do not rule out other options for the future management of either dockyard; the detailed implications for dockyard company employees are, however, hypothetical in view of the Government's preferred option.

I appreciate the concerns, as expressed by the trade unions, of the dockyard company employees about the effect that the proposed sale may have on them. I understand the stance of the trade unions, but I believe that their concerns, as they have articulated them, are misplaced. They take less than full account either of the opportunities for the employees and all others concerned that would be opened up by privatisation of the existing protections available under employment law.

It is important to be clear about what is proposed. Under the proposed arrangements for the sale of each dockyard, the employer of the existing dockyard company employees would remain the same. Terms and conditions of employment for existing employees, including redundancy and pension entitlements and collective bargaining agreements, would continue unless or until specifically changed. Both tenderers are aware that contracts of employment can be varied only by means allowed for under employment law—that is to say, only, in normal circumstances, by the agreement of the parties; unilateral variation may be a breach of contract and the law prescribes remedies in such circumstances.
The law does not, however, provide for employees or trade unions to have an absolute veto over changes to terms and conditions of employment.

Each dockyard company is responsible for the terms and conditions of employment of its employees and for any changes to them, subject of course to the provisions of the term contracts, due to expire no later than April 1996, between my Department and the dockyard contractors—Devonport Management Ltd. and Babcock Rosyth Defence Ltd.—under which each dockyard is currently managed. As the trade unions have frequently referred to provisions of the term contracts, I should stress that neither term contract was intended to impede the conduct of bargaining between employer and employee, nor did either affect the legal position that contracts of employment may be terminated on notice. During the course of the term contracts, changes to terms and conditions have been negotiated between the contractors and the trade unions representing dockyard company employees. The responsibility for the management of the dockyards is now a matter for the contractors and would, after any sale, be a matter for the new owners. Although both tenderers have assured my Department that they will in all cases comply with all provisions of statute, statutory instruments, regulations and codes of practice relating in any way to employment, the provision of services or the conduct of collective bargaining, I do not intend to impose any constraints on the right of any new owners to manage the businesses as they see fit in order to secure future success—success which will be in the interest of the employees.

I understand that discussions have begun between each tenderer, the dockyard company employees and their duly authorised representatives about the tenderers' approach to employment issues which may arise after any sale. I welcome this fact. It is not the Government's intention to intervene in these discussions or to seek to determine their outcome.

I understand the trade unions to be seeking four principal guarantees:

(i) that the redundancy entitlements of Dockyard company employees should be protected in all circumstances;

(ii) that the pensions of Dockyard company employees should be protected, with no change after any sale except by agreement;

(iii) that there should be no change to terms and conditions of employment of Dockyard company employees except by negotiation and agreement; and

(iv) that there should be contractual guarantees relating to the future workload at each Dockyard.

Redundancy liabilities and entitlements

Although the term "redundancy entitlement" is widely used, it is important to be clear what is meant. The redundancy scheme at each dockyard, which is part of dockyard company employees' terms and conditions of employment, includes rules for calculating the payment that a dockyard company employee would be entitled to receive at any given point in time if made redundant in a redundancy situation as defined in the scheme. A dockyard company employee's terms and conditions therefore entitle him to receive a contingent payment on redundancy which is calculated in accordance with the rules of the scheme. As part of his terms and conditions of employment, those rules may be changed only by means allowed for under employment law or any provisions of the redundancy scheme itself. Any failure to make a redundancy payment in accordance with the redundancy scheme may be a basis for an employee to pursue a legal remedy against the employer.

Both tenderers have made clear their view that if the long-term future of each dockyard is to be secured, the issue of the redundancy entitlements of the dockyard company employees must be addressed. At the same time, both tenderers recognise the importance to the dockyard company employees of their service up to the time of any sale of the dockyards in the determination of their redundancy payments. Each tenderer has assured my Department that, in the commercial circumstances currently envisaged, which will where appropriate be the subject of negotiation between my Department and each tenderer, it does not intend to seek to impose changes in the redundancy payments due for past service under the existing redundancy scheme.

Although the Government can give no guarantees on the way in which redundancy payments are calculated, I consider, as indicated in my supplementary answer to the hon. Member for Plymouth, Devonport (Mr. Jamieson) on 6 June at column 8, that the redundancy entitlements of the existing dockyard company employees, enshrined as they are in their contracts of employment, are already properly protected in law and that the proposed privatisation would not impair this protection.

It may be helpful to set out clearly my Department's continuing policy with regard to the future recovery of redundancy costs by the dockyard operators from the Ministry of Defence. Under current arrangements and subject to certain conditions, my Department reimburses the dockyard contractors for the costs of any redundancies properly incurred. These arrangements are co-terminous with the term contracts and will therefore lapse at their expiry within the next nine months. Future provisions for any recovery of redundancy costs from my Department will be a commercial matter for negotiation between it and the tenderers. My Department's position is that the normal arrangements between it and private sector companies for recovering such costs should apply in the case of the dockyards. As it is, and will remain for some years, the major customer for each dockyard, my Department, will, recognising the particular circumstances at the dockyards, consider making a commercialy appropriate contribution to any redundancy costs at the dockyards after any sale, where these are directly attributable to special or unusual factors for which my Department is responsible, either as a direct payment to the company or through inclusion in its overheads. The detailed arrangements for any such reimbursement—not, I stress, the details of the way in which an individual's redundancy payment is calculated—are for negotiation between my Department and each tenderer as part of the overall arrangements for any sale. Any such arrangement would, as now, be a contractual matter between the company concerned and my Department alone.

In the light of the protection afforded by the law to employees' terms and conditions and of my Department's policy on cost recovery as set out above, I do not think it appropriate to consider making further provision in relation to the payment of redundancy entitlements or liabilities.

Pensions

On the subject of pensions, I have already made clear to the House in my supplementary answer to the hon. Member for Devonport on 6 June at column 8 that accrued benefits as at the point of sale will be given protection. Under the arrangements envisaged for the proposed sale, the existing pension scheme at each dockyard would continue after sale, subject to certain amendments being discussed with the tenderers and the trustees, including, in accordance with received good pensions practice, the appointment of an independent trustee. Each tenderer has indicated that it is willing to take on the current scheme, with any agreed amendments, at the point of any sale; both tenderers have indicated that they see scope for making changes to the schemes to improve the competitiveness of the business from which the employees derive their livelihoods, but each has declared that it would seek to make such changes after consultation, negotiation and agreement wherever possible.

The ways in which pension arrangements may be changed are governed by relevant legislation and the terms of the trust deed and rules applicable to each pension scheme. Looking beyond the proposed sale, the relevant points in relation to each scheme are, in broad outline, as follows:

(i) The actuary to the scheme would generally determine the overall required contribution rate and any changes to it.

(ii) changes proposed by the employer to benefits under the scheme would, as now, require the consent of the trustees, who would include member representatives and an independent trustee;

(iii) the employees' contribution rate would primarily be for the employer to determine but this, and any change, would in the normal course of events be the subject of consultation and negotiation between the employer, the employees and their duly authorised representatives, with a view to reaching agreement wherever possible.

Any employer may bring about more fundamental changes to a scheme by terminating it and replacing it by alternative arrangements; in that event, accrued benefits relating to service up to the point of termination would be provided in accordance with the trust deed and rules. The law does not normally require the consent of the trustees or the members of the scheme to such action. It may, however, be open in certain circumstances to the members of the scheme to seek legal redress against the employer.

Although the Government can give no guarantees about the provision of pension benefits of dockyard company employees relating to service after the date of any sale, I believe that the law and the trust deed and rules of each scheme provide satisfactory protection for the pensions of existing dockyard company employees. The Government therefore see no need to make further provision in this respect.

Other changes to terms and conditions

With regard to other changes to terms and conditions of employment, both tenderers know that employment law governs the ways in which these may be made and provides protection against unlawful dismissal. Changes must, wherever possible, be achieved after consultation, negotiation and agreement between the employer, the employees concerned and their duly authorised representatives where applicable; only if it proves impracticable to reach agreement may the question of unilateral change arise.

While each tenderer has made clear that it is reviewing terms and conditions of employment, both have indicated that no decisions have been taken in relation to possible changes to these. Each, moreover, has expressed its determination, where it may wish to seek changes, to continue to do so through established local procedures for dealing with such matters after consultation, negotiation and agreement wherever possible. Although the Government can provide no guarantees about the means by which such changes may be sought, we believe that employment law provides sufficient protection for dockyard company employees, in the same way as for all other comparable groups of employees, and that no further provisions would be appropriate.

Future work load

Finally, on the question of future work load, the Government's overall policy of concentrating nuclear refitting at Devonport and providing Rosyth with an allocated programme of surface refitting work was set out to the House on 24 June 1993 at columns 447–450 and there has, as I made clear in answer to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark) on 25 May 1995 at column 658, been no change to that policy. We have indicated that contractual provisions relating to the future work load at each dockyard could be a matter for negotiation with tenderers and this is a subject of discussion with them. Any contractual arrangements will need to take account of the many operational and other factors that lead to regular changes in the refit programme, and the award of individual refit contracts will continue to be subject to negotiations about price on the basis of my Department's requirements.

Information and consultation

The Government and both tenderers are aware of their obligations under the law and relevant agreements; each has stated that it intends to honour these. For its part, my Department remains committed to inform and consult, insofar as it has obligations to do so, those who are, or may be, affected by the proposed privatisation of the royal dockyards throughout the process of moving towards any sale transactions. At this stage, and until such time as any firm decision is taken to proceed with any sale, my Department's responsibilities with regard to the provision of information to, and consultation of, dockyard company employees relate only to the following matters:

(i) matters of general principle relating to the proposed sale;

(ii) the conduct of the sale process and its associated time scale; and

(iii) the general arrangements that would apply to the future management and ownership of each dockyard, insofar as only my Department can comment on these: aspects within the remit of the prospective future private sector owner are for that company.

The provision of information and consultation in relation to redundancy entitlements, pensions and other terms and conditions of employment is for the tenderer or, as appropriate, dockyard company in question.

My Department is separately obliged to consult its own employees and their representatives in respect of the implications of the proposed sale transactions and connected arrangements for Ministry of Defence staff. This process will be taken forward as and when appropriate.

In the spirit of my answer to the hon. Member for Dunfermline, West (Ms Squire) on 6 June at column 148, I and my officials are very willing to meet the trade unions as and when appropriate over the next months about matters that are the responsibility of my Department. As I have already made clear to the trade unions, my Department's commitment, within the parameters listed above, to inform and consult at the appropriate time with dockyard company employees does not extend to standing in the way of, or influencing, discussions between each tenderer, the relevant dockyard company, its employees and their duly authorised representatives, about how the tenderers might each wish to approach employment issues after any sale. The emphasis should henceforth shift to those discussions. The tenderers, employees and their trade unions should now make use of all appropriate local and other channels for the provision of information and consultation to take the process forward with a view to securing the long-term future of both dockyards and their employees.

Forces Exhibition, Aldershot

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if Nigeria has been invited to send a delegation to the Royal Navy and British Army equipment exhibition taking place in Aldershot in September. [31780]

Mr. Freeman: Nigeria has not been invited to send a delegation to the Royal Navy and British Army equipment exhibition taking place in Aldershot in September.

Attack Helicopter

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much money his Department has invested in the development and other costs of each of the three final contenders and their systems in the attack helicopter contest. [30870]

Mr. Freeman: The UK is participating with France and Germany in the development of the long range TRIGAT missile system offered with Tiger by BAe/Eurocopter: the UK's share of development costs to 31 May 1995 was £210 million, at 1995–96 prices. The UK also co-operated with France during the 1980s in the development of the RTM 322 engine which is offered as an option for the Westland Helicopters Apache; the UK's share of the development costs was about £21 million. It is likely that some other equipments offered by the attack helicopter bidders may be derived, in whole or in part, from earlier developments to which the Ministry of Defence has contributed; this is, however, unquantifiable.

Memorandum of Understanding (Britain and Indonesia)

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what were the provisions of the memorandum of understanding signed in November 1991 by the British and Indonesian Governments. [30802]

Mr. Freeman: Details of exchanges between Governments are confidential; and it has been the general policy of successive governments not to reveal them.

Al-Yamamah Programmes

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) internal and (b) external audit functions his Department exercises (i) on its own behalf and (ii) on behalf of others in respect of contracts place under the Al-Yamamah programmes. [31279]

Mr. Freeman: All my Department's accounts are subject to the normal audit arrangements, the results of which are reported as appropriate. It is not the Government's practice to comment on detailed matters concerning individual defence export sales.

International Military Services Ltd.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) income and (b) offset of costs his Department derives from the administrative expenses of International Military Services Ltd. [31280]

Mr. Freeman: None.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the businesses or subsidiaries disposed of by International Military Services Ltd. since July 1991. [31281]

Mr. Freeman: I understand that International Military Services Ltd. has not disposed of any businesses or subsidiaries since July 1991.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what basis he approved the appointment of the new chairman of International Military Services Ltd. in 1993. [31282]

Mr. Freeman: The chairman of International Military Services Ltd. is elected by the board of the company but board appointments are subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for Defence as the major shareholder.

Official Dinners

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the guests, cost and purpose of the dinners his Department or its agencies held at the Royal Hospital Chelsea in December 1993; and if he will indicate which Ministers were present. [31284]

Mr. Soames: Only one official dinner was held at the Royal Hospital Chelsea during December 1993. This was arranged for the Sultan of Brunei, who was on an official visit, at a total cost of £1,110.19. The following people attended:

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what agreement has been entered into for the export of livestock by air from the military airbase at Thurley, north of Bedford. [32030]

Mr. Soames: My Department has entered into no agreement for the export of livestock from Thurleigh airfield, nor have we been asked to enter into such an agreement.

Orders

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department continues to consider contract bids from the defence companies Borletti, Gebruder Junghans, and AS Raufoss. [31770]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 30 June 1995]: No. The position remains as stated by my predecessor on 26 November 1993 at column 239.

Public Interest Immunity Certificates

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many public interest immunity certificates he has signed in each of the last three years. [31775]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Since the answer to the hon. Member for Oldham, West (Mr. Meacher) on 10 March 1994, Official Report, column 399, I have signed two public interest immunity certificates—one for each of two potential military witnesses for the prosecution in a criminal case. Both certificates set out the national security and personal safety grounds for screening the witnesses from the public. In the event, the witnesses were not called to give evidence and the certificates were not used.

Laser Weapons

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if it is Government policy to support a protocol to ban laser weapons or blinding as a method of warfare; and if he will make a statement; [31201]

(2) what measures Her Majesty's Government are taking to persuade other countries to agree to a ban on laser weapons. [31202]

Mr. Freeman: The Government would be prepared to support the addition to the UN weaponry convention of a new protocol covering lasers, if it were to meet humanitarian concerns without restricting normal military uses of lasers. We are considering specific proposals.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the study by F. H. Cripps and A. Stimson at the Atomic Weapons Research Establishment entitled "The Distribution of Uranium 235 and Plutonium 239 around the United States Airforce base at Greenham Common". [31072]

Mr. Freeman: The report is currently being retained under section 3(4) of the Public Records Acts 1958 and 1967. It will be reviewed at regular intervals until release into the custody of the Public Record Office becomes possible.

Mr. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consultations he has had with his United States counterpart in regard to his announcement on 18 June that the United States wishes to resume nuclear tests. [31123]

Mr. Freeman: It is for the United States Government to determine what is necessary to ensure the safe stewardship of their nuclear weapons.

Mr. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the unclassified version of his departmental report evaluating the effectiveness of the Migrant Echo nuclear weapons accident exercise in April 1994; [31066]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the scenario used by the Migrant Echo nuclear weapons emergency exercise held in Suffolk in April 1994; and if he will make a statement on the exercise. [31068]

Mr. Howard: I have been asked to reply.

Exercise Migrant Echo was an exercise which was held on 14–15 April 1994, prior to Exercise Diver Mist, with the objective of testing the joint UK-US procedures for dealing with a terrorist threat to nuclear materials held on a RAF base in Suffolk.

A series of classified contingency plans exist for responding to a wide range of terrorist threats, including those which might involve the threatened or actual use of nuclear, chemical and biological materials. In the interests of national security and the protection of the public these are regularly reviewed, tested and updated in the light of changing circumstances.

Peacekeeping Medals

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, how many United Kingdom personnel have been awarded UN peacekeeping medals in each year since 1965. [31509]

Mr. Soames: Information on the number of UN peacekeeping medals awarded to United Kingdom personnel is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by whom the decision to award a UN peacekeeping medal is taken. [31510]

Mr. Soames: Within the United Nations the decision to award a UN peacekeeping medal is established by the Secretary-General. The award of the medal is authorised by the Under-Secretary-General for peacekeeping operations. In the United Kingdom, final approval for the acceptance of the medal by United Kingdom service men and women is granted by her Majesty The Queen on the advice of the chiefs of staff, the Secretary of State for Defence and the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals.

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many days service on a UN peacekeeping mission are necessary before qualifying for a United Nations peacekeeping medal (a) for each NATO country and (b) for the United Kingdom. [31506]

Mr. Soames: The qualifying period for a United Nations peacekeeping medal for service on a Nations peacekeeping mission for all NATO countries, including the United Kingdom, is 90 days' consecutive service.

Mail Deliveries

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the efficiency of mail deliveries to and from service men based at Incerlik, Turkey; [30946]

(2) What is the average time taken by mail each way between the United Kingdom and service men based at Incerlik, Turkey; and if he will take steps to improve the speed of delivery. [30947]

Mr. Soames: The average delivery time for mail between the United Kingdom and Incerlik should be seven days. Recently, however, mail has been taking longer than this and a review of mail operations has been conducted. A number of improved procedures and checks have been identified and where possible these will be implemented.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32215]

Mr. Horam: This information is not available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Planning Inspectorate

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Plymouth, Sutton (Mr. Streeter) on 26 June, Official Report, column 462, if he will make a national breakdown as between the Department of the Environment and the Welsh Office of the staff employed in the planning inspectorate, effective on 1 April (a) 1994 and (b) 1995. [32444]

Mr. Horam: The planning inspectorate is an executive agency jointly funded by the Department of the Environment and the Welsh Office. The national breakdown of full-time equivalent staff employed by the planning inspectorate was:

	1 April 1994	1 April 1995
England	580	563
Wales	25	21

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32170]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department spent £7,162,000 in 1993–94 and £6,991,000 in 1994–95 on travel and subsistence, both figures at 1993–94 prices. The cost of travel claims alone and the type of transport used could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Magistrates

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what are the numbers of magistrates appointed from each ward in Newport, Gwent, in each of the past five years; and what are their perceived political loyalties. [32102]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The number of magistrates appointed from each ward in Newport in each of the last five years and their stated political affiliation is as follows:

Year	Ward	Number	Politics
1990	Caerleon	1	Labour
	Rogerstone	1	Labour
	The Graig	1	Conservative
	Outside borough	1	Labour
1991	Alt-yr-yn	1	Labour
1992	Alt-yr-yn	1	Labour
	The Graig	1	Liberal Democrat
1993	Alt-yr-yn	2	Labour
	Llanwern	1	Labour
	Outside borough	1	Labour
1994	Caerleon	1	Labour
		1	Conservative
	Langstone	1	Labour
	Ringland	1	Labour
	Rogerstone	2	Labour
	The Graig	1	Liberal Democrat
	Outside borough	1	Uncomitted

Small Claims Court

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if there will be a full period of public consultation before the small claims court limit is increased; and if he will make a statement. [32526]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Lord Woolf consulted widely in the preparation of his interim report. In view of this, the Lord Chancellor does not intend to undertake further public consultation on the question whether he should implement Lord Woolf's recommendation that the limit for small claims, other than those for personal injury, should be raised to £3,000. The power to make the necessary amendments rests with the county court rule committee which, as part of its consideration of the matter, consults interested parties.

Libel Law (Printers)

Mr. Garrett: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will review the libel law to provide printers with the defence of innocent dissemination. [32390]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Government have already decided that the defence of innocent dissemination should be available to printers, and will introduce legislation as soon as there is a suitable opportunity.

PRIME MINISTER

Engagements

Sir Peter Tapsell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Tuesday 4 July. [30992]

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Tuesday 4 July 1995. [30993]

The Prime Minister: This morning I had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. In addition to my duties in this House I shall be having further meetings later today.

European Monetary Union

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what is his policy towards the adoption of a single currency outside the rules of the European Union by countries wishing to do so. [32369]

The Prime Minister: The EC treaty now provides the institutional framework for the adoption of a single currency. It would not be legally permissible for any member states to adopt a single currency otherwise than in accordance with this framework if that prevented or fettered the discharge by the Community institutions of their functions in accordance with the treaty.

The United Kingdom's protocol, annexed to the EC treaty, means that the United Kingdom shall not be committed to move to the third stage of economic and monetary union without a separate decision to do so by its Government and Parliament.

Chemical Weapons Convention

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his statement on the EU Cannes summit of 28 June, (1) when he plans to bring forward legislation to ratify the chemical weapons convention. [32155]

(2) on what grounds he signed a statement calling for the chemical weapons convention to enter into force without delay. [32156]

The Prime Minister: The Government remain fully committed to the chemical weapons conventions. Primary legislation is required to implement the convention in the UK and to enable UK ratification. Work is going ahead on the preparation of the necessary legislation. It is the intention of my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade in the coming weeks to publish a bill in draft for consultation with a view to introducing it as soon as parliamentary time permits.

No. 10 Downing Street

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Prime Minister, if he will state the rules governing the making of announcements relating to party business in, or using the facilities of No. 10 Downing Street. [31987]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 30 June 1995]: Ministers under this and previous Administrations have been allowed—at their own or party expense—to make use of No. 10 Downing street for party business, except for certain purposes during general elections.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32168]

Mr. Howard: The Department's computerised travel claims payment systems do not record information according to the categories requested. The cost of deriving this information from manual records would be disproportionate.

Former Foreign Heads of State

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list all former heads of state of foreign countries who currently have permission to reside in the United Kingdom; and what privileges and status are accorded to each; [32518]

(2) how many former heads of state of foreign countries or members of their family are currently awaiting decisions on their domiciliary status in the United Kingdom. [32521]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: This information is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. In any event, it is not our normal practice to disclose information about the immigration status of individuals.

Mr. Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the current status of ex-King Constantine of Greece in the United Kingdom; and what privileges and precedence are accorded to him and his family. [32519]

Mr. Baker: It is not our normal practice to disclose information about an individual's immigration status.

Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women aged from 18 to 21 years were serving a prison sentence of 10 years or more on 19 June. [31704]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Brian Landers to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 4 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question asking how many (a) men and (b) women aged from 18 to 21 years were serving a prison sentence of 10 years or more on 19 June.

The latest available information is for 31 May when there were 130 men and 7 women aged from 18 to 21 years in Prison Service custody, who were serving sentences of 10 years or more.

Information on the prison population is published in successive volumes of "Prison Statistics England and Wales". The latest edition, containing figures for 1993, is available in the Library.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women were classified as category A prisoners in prisons in England and Wales on 19 June. [31277]

Mr. Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Brian Landers to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 4 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the number of women classified as category A prisoners in prisons in England and Wales

On 19 June there were seven female category A prisoners held in Prison Service establishments in England and Wales.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the number of places in special secure units in prisons in England and Wales and the number of inmates being held in such units as of 19 June. [31278]

Mr. Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Brian Landers to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 4 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the number of places in Special Secure Units in prisons in England and Wales and the number of prisoners in such units.

There are currently twenty three places in Special Secure Units in prisons in England and Wales. Fourteen of them are at Whitemoor prison, where the Special Secure Unit was re-opened on 14 June 1995 and nine at Full Sutton prison. On 19 June there were six prisoners held in these units.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 92, if he will give a breakdown of the ethnic backgrounds of prisoners transferred to hospitals under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last 10 years. [31219]

Mr. Forsyth [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Brian Landers to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 4 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question asking for a breakdown of the ethnic backgrounds of prisoners transferred to hospitals under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last ten years.

Ethnic information is only available for final discharge from prison to hospital since 1993. This covers all reasons for transfer; including those transferred under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act for whom a separate ethnic breakdown is not available. It is shown in the attached table separately for males and females for the years 1993 and 1994.

Film Censorship

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received on the certification by the British Board of Film Classification of the recent video showing deaths by execution; and if he will make a statement. [31725]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: My right hon. and learned Friend has received two letters from members of the public concerned that the video "Executions" has received a certificate from the British Board of Film Classification.

The Government are aware of the public concern about this film. However, the British Board of Film Classification is an independent body, and the Government have no powers to influence its classification decisions. Before awarding a classification certificate, the BBFC is required to take into account any harm which a video work might cause through the manner in which the work deals with, among other things, violent or horrific behaviour or incidents. I understand that this particular work was viewed by the full board of the BBFC, who concluded that it was appropriate to grant it an "18" certificate.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31308]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: In 1993–94 the Home Office paid grants to approximately 900 voluntary organisations and entered into contracts with seven. In 1994–95, grants were paid to approximately 200 organisations and contracts entered into with six. The fall in the number of organisations receiving grants directly from the Home Office reflects changes in the methods for paying certain grants between 1993–94 and 1994–95.

The Home Office paid £64.4 million to the voluntary sector in 1993–94 and £68.8 million in 1994–95. These figures include Home Office money given out as grants by the Commission for Racial Equality and, in 1994–95, by local probation services.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Hotels

Mr. Pendry: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage (1) what is his estimate of the number of properties regularly operating as hotels in England with fewer than six bed spaces; [32028]

(2) how many hotels in England have more than six bed spaces. [32029]

Mr. Dorrell: There are no figures on the number of bed spaces in hotels and similar establishments. However, the database of all serviced accommodation stock known to the English tourist board shows a total of 15,000 establishments with six bedrooms or less, and a further 14,250 with more than six bedrooms.

Radios

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what representations he has received from the Association of Independent Radio Contractors about the concentrations of radio ownership in major urban areas. [31945]

Mr. Dorrell: I met representatives of the AIRC on 28 June and discussed a number of issues. The issue of ownership in urban areas was specifically raised by AIRC at a meeting with Lord Astor on 16 March.

Television

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what is the Government's policy on the revised television without frontiers directive. [31954]

Mr. Dorrell: The Commission's proposal for a new directive to amend the television without frontiers dDirective (89/552/EEC) was communicated to the Council on 14 June and is under consideration in a Council working group of officials. My Department will shortly be seeking the views of the UK industry on the proposals; and on explanatory memorandum will be provided in the usual way.

I have made it clear on a number of occasions that, while the Government welcome many of the changes to the 1989 directive proposed by the Commission, we are strongly opposed to the proposed changes to the quota regime on programme content. And so are most of our partners.

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what has been the change in the level of ITV's spending on programming over the last five years in real terms. [31918]

Mr. Dorrell: For ITV networked programmes the ITV network centre spending budgets for each of the years 1993–95, expressed in real terms at 1995 prices, deflated by HM Treasury GDP market prices deflator of 27 June 1995, were:

1993: £539.8 million

1994: £544.2 million

1995: £552 million (provisional)

Comparable figures for 1991 and 1992 are not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate costs.

HEALTH

District Auditor Reports

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) in how many cases the district auditor has prepared a section 20(3) report in respect of the health service; and in each case what is the name of the body concerned, the reason a report was prepared and the date on which she received it; [28240]

(2) pursuant to her answer of 24 May Official Report, column 591, if she will place in the Library the section 20(3) report on the City and East London family health services authority which she received from the district auditor on 2 February. [28241]

Mr. Malone: Reports issued under section 20(3) of the 1990 Act are not definitive analyses and are not intended for publication. Examination of such reports is required to establish the legal position in each case and any necessary disclosure is achieved by notation of the appropriate statutory accounts.

Pay Review Bodies

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what criteria are used for selecting new members of the pay review body; [30429]

(2) what are the criteria for selection of the chair of the pay review body; and what plans she has to change them. [30430]

Mr. Malone: Both chairman and members of the two review bodies covering national health service staff are appointed by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on the advice of Ministers.

In making the appointments, Ministers look for relevant background experience, for the ability to analyse the issues coming before the review body, and for the capacity to form independent judgments on those issues.

The procedures may need to be reviewed in the light of the Government's decisions on the Nolan committee's recommendations.

Counselling

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has carried out into counselling versus antidepressants in primary care; with what findings; and if she will make a statement. [31505]

Mr. Malone: There is no research currently being undertaken by the Department's policy research programme—formerly the centrally commissioned programme.

The national health service research and development programme includes two current projects in its health technology assessment programme, which has identified counselling in primary care as a priority area. One compares the efficacy and cost-effectiveness of counselling, cognitive behavioural therapy, and usual treatment by the general practitioner for patients with depression and mixed anxiety and depression. The second is to establish the efficacy and cost-effectiveness of counselling in primary care for patients with chronic depression and anxiety.

Pregnancies

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the number of (a) pregnancies among teenage girls, (b) births to unmarried mothers and (c) abortions performed in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each year since 1979. [31602]

Mr. Sackville: The number of conceptions to women aged under 20 and the total number of live births outside marriage are shown in the table. The data are given for each year from 1979 to the most recent year for which information is available—1991 for conceptions and 1993 for births. Conception statistics by county and county district are not readily available before 1989, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The number of abortions by regional health authority of termination are published in the OPCS Series AB 6–19 and in the OPCS Monitor AB95/1 for 1993; copies of which are available in the Library. For reasons of confidentiality, abortion data by area of termination are published only down to RHA level.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many voluntary sector organisations her Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31309]

Mr. Bowis: The Department makes a large number of grants to voluntary organisations, the main channel being the section 64 general scheme. For details of grants given in 1993–94 and 1994–95 I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave to the hon. Member for Clwyd, South-West (Mr. Jones) on 20 June at column 205.

The Department does not normally enter into contractual arrangements for services with voluntary organisations.

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what further plans she has to reschedule temazepam; and if she will make a statement; [31382]

(2) what are the criteria which she applies to reschedule drug substances under the terms of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971; how temazepam relates to these criteria; and if she will make a statement. [31394]

Mr. Bowis: No rescheduling may occur under the 1991 Act except after consultation with, or on the recommendation of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs; and the council is required to have regard to misused drugs which are having, or appear to them capable of having, harmful effects sufficient to constitute a social problem. The council has recommended that temazepam should be controlled under schedule 3 of the relevant regulations rather than schedule 4. The Government's careful consideration of this recommendation is continuing.

My right hon. Friend the Lord President of the Council announced on 10 May at column 756 that the Department is engaged in consultations with a view to banning national health service prescribing by general practitioners of the soft gelatin gel-filled temazepam capsules and the Home Department is taking steps to impose safe custody requirements on manufacturers and wholesalers.

Nursing Homes

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the economic impact on the independent nursing sector of referrals by North Yorkshire county council to nursing homes owned by that council; [31674]

(2) what percentage of referrals by North Yorkshire county council are to council-owned nursing homes; [31676]

(3) what representations she has received from the independent nursing sector on referrals by North Yorkshire county council to homes owned by that council. [31666]

Mr. Bowis: Local authorities may own residential care homes but not nursing homes. I have received representations from my hon. Friend about this matter.

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the number of nursing homes providing specialist care in North Yorkshire owned (a) privately and (b) by the county council. [31673]

Mr. Bowis: Centrally held data on nursing home provision relates to health authority and not local authority areas. In 1993–94 there were 138 registered homes within the North Yorkshire health district. The table gives number of beds by specialisation.

	Number
Mental illness	453
People with learning disabilities	—
Maternity	—
Physically disabled	360
Alcohol and drug misuse	7
Other	3,850
Total number of beds	4,670

Local authorities do not own nursing homes.

Bridge Consultancy Report

Mr. French: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place a copy of the Bridge consultancy report in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [31700]

Mr. Bowis: This is a report commissioned by Gloucestershire social services. I understand that it is not a public document, but my hon. Friend may wish to approach the director of social services for Gloucestershire.

Private Health Care Facilities

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to monitor further expenditure on private health care facilities by NHS hospital trusts. [31841]

Mr. Sackville: Expenditure on health care purchased by national health service trusts from non-NHS providers is already monitored through financial returns.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines have been issued on the use of private health care and facilities by NHS hospital trusts. [31840]

Mr. Sackville: National health service trusts are free to buy in services from other providers, whether in the public or private sector, where they can benefit their patients by doing so.

Residential Homes

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the costs incurred by local authorities in referring people to local authority-owned homes. [31675]

Mr. Bowis: The available information is of gross expenditure by local authorities on residential accommodation for elderly or mentally ill people in local authority run establishments, which in 1993–94 is provisionally estimated to have amounted to £894 million.

Medicines Control Agency

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will publish the annual report and accounts of the Medicines Control Agency. [32851]

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: I have received the report and copies have today been laid before both Houses of Parliament in accordance with the requirements of section 5(2) and 5(3) of the Exchequer and Audit Departments Act 1921.

National Blood Service

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what was the total number of (a) scientific and (b) administrative staff employed by the National Blood Service for each month during the last year. [32025]

(2) what was the total number of (a) scientific and (b) administrative staff employed at (i) Plymouth blood transfusion centre, (ii) Lancaster blood transfusion centre, (iii) Liverpool blood transfusion centre, (iv) Brentwood blood transfusion centre and (v) Oxford blood transfusion centre for each month during the last year. [32026]

Mr. Sackville: These are matters for the National Blood Authority.

Cancer Screening

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she offers to purchasers on breast and cervical screening services for women over 45 years. [32024]

Mr. Sackville: The breast screening programme invites all women aged between 50 and 64 for three-yearly screening. Women aged 65 and over can ask to be screened every three years. Women aged under 50 who do not have breast symptoms cannot at present have routine breast screening by mammography.

The cervical screening programme invites all women between the ages of 20 to 64 for cervical cancer screening at least every five years. Women aged 65 and over who have not had clear smears within the previous 10 years should be invited for cervical cancer screening.

A substantial amount of quality guidance is issued by the Department and the NHS national screening co-ordinating team on a number of issues. These include the age range of women to be included in each screening programme, management of the process and quality standards to be achieved. These are reviewed constantly.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in her Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32181]

Mr. Sackville: Information is not available in the form requested. The amount of claims for travel within the United Kingdom in the Department is shown in the table at constant prices. The Department does not provide bicycle allowances.

Rail and air travel	1,925,861	1,596,171
Other public transport (including car mileage)	1,581,820	1,572,110

Notes:

1. All costs are shown at 1994–95 prices.
2. Costs are for departmental administration only. The Department's agencies do not break down data for travel claims.

Consultants (Suspension)

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions have taken place between her Department and the Southampton University Hospitals Trust regarding the suspension of consultants on full pay. [32336]

Mr. Malone: None. Suspension is a matter between employer and employee.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance she has given to hospital trusts on the procedures and time to be taken for the reinstatement of consultants suspended on full pay following the completion of successful appeals against suspension for alleged medical malpractice or misconduct; [32339]

(2) what guidance she has given to hospital trusts on the minimum time which should be taken to complete inquiries in cases where consultants are suspended for alleged medical malpractice or misconduct. [32337]

Mr. Malone: Guidance on suspension procedures was issued in circular HSG(94)49 to national health service trusts on 31 October 1994, copies of which are available in the Library.

The guidance stipulates no minimum period during which inquiries are to be completed. While decisions on the procedures to be followed for reinstatement rest with the employing authority, the guidance contains an indicative timetable which is strongly recommended to NHS employers for incorporation into any local procedures that they may draw up in consultation with their staff. The guidelines state that every attempt should be made to conclude the investigation and, where appropriate, the subsequent disciplinary process as speedily as possible.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the total cost of salaries paid to consultants suspended on full pay in each of the past five years. [32338]

Mr. Malone: None.

Asthma

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the cost in real terms to the NHS of the prescriptions for drugs to alleviate the symptoms of asthma in the year since 1990–91. [32216]

Mr. Malone: The available information is shown in the table.

The net ingredient cost in actual and real terms of drugs used in the treatment of asthma, 1991–92, 1992–93 and 1993–94

England

Period	Net ingredient cost (£ millions)	Net ingredient cost at 1991–92 prices using the GDP deflator (£ millions)
1991–92	270.6	270.6

1. Drugs as defined by the British National Formulary section 3.1 (bronchodilators), 3.2 (corticosteroids) and 3.3 (cromoglycate and related therapy). Some of these drugs may have been prescribed for conditions other than asthma.
2. The information was obtained from the prescription cost analysis system which is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed in England by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered. It excludes items dispensed by hospital pharmacies.
3. The net ingredient cost refers to the cost of the drug before discounts and does not include any dispensing costs or fees.
4. The Treasury GDP deflator has been used.
5. Statistically comparative data for 1990–91 are not held. Data for 1994–95 are not yet available.

LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance.

Mr. Newton: The amounts claimed in the Privy Council Office, at current prices, were as follows:

	(a) 1993–94 £	(b) 1994–95 £
(i) Public transport	824	1,156
(ii) Car mileage	nil	[1]1,104
(iii) Bicycle	nil	nil

[1] Reflects claims arising from staff using cars during industrial action on the railways.

These figures include claims by the staff of the central drugs co-ordination unit, created within the Privy Council Office in January 1994.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Albania

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what has been the help given from the United Kingdom know-how fund to Albania: in each of the last three years. [31368]

Mr. Baldry: The know-how fund has financed projects in the following sectors in Albania; agriculture, finance, health, local government, education and the fire service. New activities this year include assistance to the mass privatisation programme and to small and medium-sized enterprises. Expenditure has been:

1992–93: £38,000

1994–95: £720,000

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31310]

Mr. Baldry: The ODA allocated £158,449,755 to 220 UK non-governmental organisations in 1993–94. The figures for 1994–95 are not yet available.

Development Co-operation Policy

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will set out the existing disparities between the European Community's development co-operation policy (a) in general and (b) in respect of evaluation of projects and programmes and those of the United Kingdom; and whether the working group has published comparisons between policies and priorities of all member states and those of the community. [31596]

Mr. Baldry: The aims for Community development cooperation set out in the Maastricht treaty are consistent with those of the UK.

Since Maastricht, further measures have been taken to enhance policy and operational coordination between the EC and member states. Joint guidelines have been agreed for a number of sectors—family planning, health, AIDS, education, food security—and a pilot exercise launched in selected countries to enhance operational coordination

The evaluation methodology employed by the European Commission addresses the same issues as the UK's. The main difference is the greater emphasis in UK evaluation studies on examining the cost-effectiveness and on rating the success of projects and the programmes. For further details on this issue I refer the hon. Member to the Foreign Affairs Committee's First Report Session 1994–95 on Monitoring of the European Community Aid Programme and the Government's response to this, Cm2870.

No comprehensive comparison of Community and all member state development cooperation policies has been published. However the policies of all member states who are members of the Development Assistance Committee of the OECD are regularly reviewed by that committee.

China

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department intends to contribute to the fund established by the makers of the film "The Dying Rooms" for the support of children abandoned in Chinese state orphanages. [32017]

Mr. Baldry: We have made no contribution to this fund.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on implications of the recent information obtained on the treatment of abandoned children in China for his Department's funding of the IPPF and UNIFA. [32080]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The United Nations Population Fund and the International Planned Parenthood Federation will be asked about the implications of recent information obtained on the treatment of abandoned children in China.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will undertake research into the links between Chinese population control policy and the situation of abandoned children in China; [32081]

(2) if he will make an assessment of the links between the Chinese population control policy and the imbalance of the sexes in China. [32082]

Mr. Baldry [holding answers 3 July 1995]: We shall continue to seek information on China's population policies and the consequences of their implementation.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the use of repeated visits by population control officials and volunteers to Chinese women with illegal pregnancies or separation of them from their families to exert psychological pressure on them to accept abortion. [32083]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 3 July 1995]: We continue to receive reports alleging abuses of reproductive rights in China.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what information he has regarding the Chinese Family Planning Association and IPPF involvement in house visits and family planning courses in China; [32084]

(2) what information he has regarding UNFPA involvement in funding, training for or participation in house visits and family planning courses in China. [32085]

Mr. Baldry [holding answers 3 July 1995]: We understand from the International Planned Parenthood Federation that members of the China Family Planning Association do make home visits. These visits are designed to inform people of the choices of family planning methods available and provide information on how they can better access reproductive health care services. The CFPA also undertakes training courses to enable people to make informed choices about childbearing. The IPPF has provided vehicles and audio-visual equipment to the CFPA.

The United Nations Population Fund does not fund or provide training for home visits. Its training programmes focus on contraceptive choice, interpersonal counselling and informed consent.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes have occurred in (a) domestic investments, (b) foreign investments, (c) exports, (d) imports, (e) child mortality, (f) participation in education, (g) interest rates and (h) wage levels since the introduction of the Zimbabwe structural adjustment programme; and if he will make a statement on the United Kingdom's policy towards the next structural adjustment programme. [31846]

Mr. Baldry: We shall continue to support Zimbabwe's economic reform programme as an essential means to economic recovery, providing good progress is maintained. In concert with the World bank and International Monetary Fund we recognise the importance of helping to protect vulnerable groups during this transition; we therefore give priority to protecting the social sectors in our aid programme.

The latest available figures from World Bank/IMF sources are as follows:

	Year	Year	Year
	1991	1994 (estimate)
	US$ million	US$ million

European Development Fund

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much in £ sterling terms Britain will contribute to the eighth European development fund; over which financial years those contributions will be made; and what will be Britain's percentage share of the total contributions made to the European development fund. [32612]

Mr. Baldry: Our commitment to the eighth European development fund will be for 1.63 becu, equivalent to approximately £1.36 billion at current exchange rates. Funds will be drawn down over the period 1999–2000 to 2003–4. We shall be the third largest contributor to EDF VIII, providing 12.7 per cent. of member state contributions.

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much in £ sterling terms Britain will contribute to the seventh European development fund; over which financial years those contributions will be made; and what Britain's percentage share will be of the total contributions made to the European development fund. [32611]

Mr. Baldry: Our commitment to the seventh European development fund is for 1.79 becu. The cost in sterling terms will depend on the timing of draw down. At the present exchange rate it is equivalent to approximately £1.5 billion. Funds will be drawn down over the period 1994–95 to 1998–99. We are the third largest contributor to EDF VII, providing 16.37 per cent. of member state contributions.

Indonesia

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 19 June, Official Report, column 16, regarding the national overview of land resources in Indonesia, if any of the project staff trained under the project were (a) stationed in East Timor or (b) responsible for reviewing the land resources and land use of East Timor. [31876]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The Indonesian project staff were attached to the department of transmigration in Jakarta. None were stationed in East Timor. Project staff, working with the UK consultants, reviewed the land resources and land use of the whole archipelago, including East Timor.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 19 June, Official Report, columns 16–17, regarding the regional physical planning, map improvement and training project in Indonesia, if the project covered East Timor; and if officials who attended the training (a) in Indonesia and (b) in the United Kingdom included officials employed by the authorities in East Timor. [31877]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The project included East Timor and local training courses were carried out for officials from Government Departments there. Officials employed by Government Departments in East Timor were not among the people trained in the UK.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Attorney-General if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32169]

The Attorney-General: The amount of travel claims made by staff in my Departments in 1994–95 prices is given in the table.

	Public transport[1]		Car mileage allowance[2]		Bicycle allowance[3]
	1993–94 £	1994–95 £	1993–94 £	1994–95 £	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Crown Prosecution Service	930,295	1,031,401	2,033,162	2,090,518	—	—

[1] All qualifying forms of transport other than private vehicles.
[2] Payment for 1993–94 in TSD and LSLO, and for 1993–94 and 1994–95 in SFO, included in "public transport" figures.
[3] Any payments in the CPS included in "public transport" figures.
[4] 1994–95 amount provisional.

TREASURY

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32178]

Mr. Nelson: The information requested at constant 1993–94 prices is as follows:

	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Public transport	868,988	723,320
Car mileage allowance and bicycle allowance[1]	61	56,662
Total	49	788,982

[1] Records of bicycle allowance payments are not maintained separately.

Central Gilts Office

Mr. French: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 37, if he will review the custody controls in relation to the Central Gilts Office accounts in order to reduce the risk of misappropriation or misdescription of gilt edge securities registered at the Bank of England. [31524]

Mr. Nelson: HM Government have no plans to ask the Bank of England to review its controls in relation to Central Gilts Office accounts. Placing the Bank under the duty of inquiring about the propriety of stock transactions would reduce the speed and efficiency of the settlement service and would therefore add to the costs of government funding. I remain of the view that the measures taken in the Pensions Bill provide effective safeguards for the security of scheme assets.

Inland Revenue (Software)

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the cost to the Inland Revenue of paying for software on which licensing agreements cannot be traced; and if he will make a statement. [31647]

Sir George Young: The Inland Revenue identified a small number of cases of equipment, due to be transferred to EDS, where there was insufficient documentary evidence to confirm that copies of software held have been fully licensed. The Department has agreed with the supplier a fee of less than £150,000, including VAT, to cover licenses for this software.

To prevent recurrence improved procedures have been implemented in line with the requirement of the Inland Revenue IT security standards.

Barlow Clowes

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 20 June, Official Report, column 147–48, if the liability of the companies named in the answer has now ceased; how much money has been recovered to offset the total cost to the Treasury; and what companies remain to pursue; and if he will make a statement. [31728]

Mr. Nelson: A substantial sum, including interest and costs was recovered in settlement of these proceedings to help offset the total cost of the ex gratia payment scheme, and consequently these actions have now been discontinued.

A number of other companies and individuals remain parties to other proceedings commenced by the Government. It is not the Government's policy to comment on the detail of legal proceedings or settlements relating to the Barlow Clowes litigation, so as not to prejudice the outcome of continuing actions.

Personal Pensions

Mr. Denham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when he now expects to publish the SIB/DSS report on the sale of appropriate personal pensions to those on low incomes; [32049]

(2) if he will publish the terms of reference of the SIB/DSS inquiry into the sale of appropriate personal pensions to those on low incomes. [32050]

Mr. Nelson: The publication of this report is a matter for the Securities and Investments Board.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Members' Staff

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee (1) if he will make a statement on the reasons why hon. Members are currently restricted to three employee passes;

(2) if he will issue a questionnaire to hon. Members to ascertain their views on the adequacy of three passes to allow employees access to their offices in order to carry out their duties;

(3) if he will bring forward proposals to ensure that passes are issued only to legitimate employees of hon. Members;

(4) what proposals he has to ensure that hon. Members who wish to employ more than three people to assist them to fulfil all their parliamentary duties may do so and not be prevented by current restrictions on the number of passes;

(5) if he will bring forward proposals to ensure that hon. Members can employ the numbers of properly employed staff that they consider appropriate.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: On 30 January 1989 the House approved the Second Report of Session 1987–88 from the then Select Committee on House of Commons (Services), "Access to the Precincts of the House", which recommended that the number of Members' staff who may hold photo-passes be limited to three. It was not proposed that there should be a limit on the number of staff employed by an hon. Member.

The decision to limit to three the number of photo-passes available to Members' staff was made in the light of pressure on all the House facilities; at that time, the figures showed that only 66 out of 650 Members held passes for more than the proposed limit.

As the pressure on House facilities has not decreased in subsequent years, I do not propose to recommend any changes to the existing regulations.

Combined Heat and Power

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Chairman of the Accommodation and Works Committee what is his policy on the use of combined heat and power in the House of Commons.

Mr. Ray Powell: Wherever appropriate, the opportunity is always taken to incorporate energy efficiency measures into new works and maintenance projects on the parliamentary estate. A combined heat and power plant will be installed in the Norman Shaw buildings later this year at a cost of some £90,000. Projected annual savings worth £18,500 will give a payback period of less than five years. Studies are under way with a view to undertaking a similar scheme in the Palace of Westminster in 1997–98.

TRANSPORT

Chairmen of British Rail and Railtrack

Sir Ivan Lawrence: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what objectives he has set for the chairmen of British Rail and Railtrack for 1995–96. [32849]

Dr. Mawhinney: I have written to the chairmen, separately, setting their objectives. Copies of the letters have been placed in the Library.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32177]

Mr. Norris: This question could be answered only at disproportionate cost.

Euro-freight Terminal

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has had in relation to the impact of the privatisation proposals for British Rail freight division on the decision-making timetable for a Euro-freight terminal in south Wales. [32394]

Mr. Watts: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales is in regular contact concerning proposals for rail freight terminals in south Wales.

Bull Bars

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which police forces (a) took part and (b) did not take part in the survey on injury accidents involving vehicles fitted with bull bars; and what is the total population that each group covers. [32396]

Mr. Norris: The police forces which have taken part in the study are as follows:

Avon and Somerset
Cambridgeshire
Cumbria
Cheshire
Derbyshire
Essex
Greater Manchester
Hampshire
Hertfordshire
Leicestershire
Lincolnshire
Norfolk
North Yorkshire
Nottinghamshire
Northamptonshire
South Yorkshire
Staffordshire
Suffolk
Surrey
Sussex
West Midlands
West Mercia
Wiltshire
South Wales
Central
Fife
Grampian
Northern Strathclyde
Tayside

The total population covered by those forces is approximately 29 million.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his estimate of the total number of deaths and serious injuries involving bull bars in 1994, based on the evidence provided by certain police authorities. [32397]

Mr. Norris: The figures for accidents involving bull bars during 1994, based on the injury accident reports forms compiled by certain police authorities are as follows:

Personal Injury Road Accidents: 1994

	All Police Forces in Great Britain	All Police Forces Reporting Bull Bar Accidents
Accident distribution	All accidents	All accidents	All accidents involving a vehicle fitted with a bull bar	All pedestrian accidents involving a vehicle fitted with a bull bar
Fatal	3,326	1,936	22	6
Serious	39,286	21,551	219	34
Slight	191,489	97,180	815	49
All accidents	234,101	120,667	1,056	89

(Table revised 3/7/95 to include Hertfordshire).

Vehicle Emissions

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ensure that heavy goods vehicles entering the United Kingdom from the European mainland meet the necessary safety of noxious emissions standards. [32443]

Mr. Norris: All vehicles, whether of UK or external origin, are the subject of roadside spot checks to ensure that they comply with emissions requirements. From 1 January 1996, in-service emissions requirements for heavy diesel engined vehicles in all member states will have to comply with the minimum standards laid down in directive 92/55/EEC. An increasing number of vehicles from member states are now being built to the more stringent requirements of directive 91/542/EEC, which came into effect on 1 October 1993.

Highway Code Booklet

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many revisions have been made to the highway code booklet since 1965; and in which years. [32273]

Mr. Norris: The highway code has undergone four major revisions since 1965: in 1969, 1978, 1987 and 1993. Minor amendments have also been made from time to time throughout this period.

Network SouthCentral

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what claims have been made against Railtrack by Network SouthCentral in respect of damage to train sets and loss of passenger revenue in April and May as a result of the failure to maintain the track properly. [31867]

Mr. Watts: A claim has been received and is being considered by Railtrack.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost to Network SouthCentral in April and May of the additional wear to wheels and loss of passenger revenue as a result of the failure to maintain the track properly. [31865]

Mr. Watts: None. This is a commercial matter for the railway industry.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train services in the Network SouthCentral region were delayed by more than five minutes in April and May as a result of the failure to maintain the track properly. [31866]

Mr. Watts: British Rail's performance statistics do not specify reasons for delays. However, I understand from BR that recent track maintenance problems had no noticeable effects on the punctuality of Network SouthCentral services during April and May.

Chief Executive Pay

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list from the date of each agency's creation, by agency, the annual salary including performance pay and bonus payments of the chief executive. [31827]

Mr. Norris: There are eight agencies in the Department of Transport as follows:

Vehicle Inspectorate Executive Agency

Mr. R. J. Oliver was appointed chief executive on creation of the agency on 1 August 1988 and was reappointed in 1991 and 1994. His salary on appointment was £30,644. Subsequent salary changes were:

	Salary £
1 October 1988	32,784
6 January 1989	33,819
1 April 1989	35,415
1 August 1989	38,254
1 October 1989	39,746
1 August 1990	43,307
1 October 1990	44,996
1 August 1991	47,921
1 August 1992	49,790
1 August 1993	52,286
1 August 1994	54,815

For the period 1 August 1988 to 31 March 1991, Mr. Oliver received a non-consolidated performance bonus of £5,000. For the year 1 March 1991 to 31 March 1992 he received a £2,400 bonus; for 1 April 1992 to 31 March 1993 a £2,400 bonus and for 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1994 a £2,800 bonus.

Vehicle Certification Agency

Mr. D. W. Harvey became chief executive on creation of the agency on 2 April 1990 and was reappointed in 1993 and 1994. His salary on appointment was £33,991. This was subsequently changed as follows:

	Salary £
1 August 1990	36,997
1 August 1991	39,402
1 April 1992	41,120
1 August 1992	42,724
1 August 1993	43,836
1 August 1994	45,789

For the year 1 April 1992 to 31 March 1993. Mr. Harvey received a non-consolidated performance bonus of £2,600. For the year 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1994 he received a bonus of £2,450.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Mr. S. R. Curtis was chief executive from 2 April 1990—on its creation—to 2 January 1995. His salary on appointment was £43,350. Subsequent changes have been as follows:

	Salary £
1 January 1991	43,800
1 April 1991	47,090
1 December 1991	48,00
1 April 1992	49,920
1 April 1993	51,360
1 April 1994	54,118
1 April 1995	55,471

For the year 2 April 1990 to 31 March 1991, Mr. Curtis received a non-consolidated performance bonus of £750. For the year 1 April 1991 to 31 March 1992, he received a bonus of £2,250; for 1 April 1992 to 31 March 1993 a bonus of £5,782 and for 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1994 a bonus of £6,762.

Dr. S. J. Ford was appointed chief executive on 3 January 1995 at a salary of £52,704 which was increased to £55,000 on 1 April 1995.

Transport Research Laboratory

Mr. H. J. Wootton was appointed chief executive on creation of the agency on 1 April 1992—ACE designate from 11 November 1991—at a salary of £65,520. Subsequent changes are as follows:

	Salary £
1 April 1993	66,503
1 April 1994	68,332
1 April 1995	70,040

For the part year 11 November 1991 to 31 March 1992, Mr. Wooton received a non-consolidated bonus of £3,150; for 1 April 1992 to 31 March 1993 a bonus of £5,897; for 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1994 a bonus of £6,650.

Driving Standards Agency

Dr. C. M. Woodman was chief executive of DSA from its creation on 2 April 1990 to 31 August 1993. His salary on appointment was £36,818. Subsequent changes were:

1 August 1990	40,116
1 August 1991	42,724
1 August 1992	45,256
1 August 1993	46,924

For the year 1 April 1992 to 31 March 1993, Dr. Woodman received a non-consolidated bonus of £1,250.

Dr. S. J. Ford, grade 5, was chief executive from 1 September 1993 to 2 January 1995. His initial salary was £47,900. This increased to £48,858 on 1 August 1994. For the year 1 September 1993 to 31 March 1994, he received a non-consolidated bonus of £2,934.

On 1 April 1995 Mr. B. L. Herdan, grade 5, was appointed chief executive on a salary of £58,000.

Highways Agency

Mr. L. J. Haynes was appointed chief executive on 1 April 1994 at a salary of £100,000. On 1 April 1995 his salary was increased to £102,500.

The Coastguard Agency

Mr. C. J. Harris, grade 4 was appointed chief executive on 1 April 1994 at a salary of £47,994. On 1 August 1994, his salary was increased to £50,268. This increase was performance related. He received no other payments.

Marine Safety Agency

Mr. R. M. Bradley, grade 4 was appointed chief executive on 1 April 1994—he was ACE designate from 14 December 1992—at a salary of £45,675. On 1 August 1994, his salary was increased to £46,588.

Driving Tests

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the number of non-UK nationals undertaking the driving test in the United Kingdom over the last two years. [31833]

Mr. Norris: This information is not available.

Roll-on Roll-off Ferries

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department has carried out the levels of water that can be contained on the decks of roll-on roll-off ferries without hindering the use of the lifeboats; and at what levels of water the use of lifeboats is impeded. [31437]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 3 July 1995]: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Susan J. Rooke to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 4 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your Question about research into roll-on roll-off passenger ferries' survivability and evacuation.

Substantial research into the effect of water on the car deck on the stability of roll-on roll-off passenger ships, and their evacuation, has been conducted in the UK since the HERALD OF FREE ENTERPRISE and ESTONIA disasters. The International Maritime Organisation's Panel of Experts took account of this research in its study of ferry safety, and it has made proposals which would reduce the risk of rapid capsize. The Government supports these proposals, and we will continue to press for their adoption.

Night Flights

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether restrictions relating to night flights to and from (a) civil airports, (b) private airstrips, (c) military airfields and (d) heliports apply to police helicopters. [32395]

Mr. Norris: My right hon. Friend is responsible for certain noise mitigation measures, which include night flying restrictions, at Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted airports only. At these airports, police helicopters are exempt from current restrictions on night movements. At all other airports, including heliports and private airstrips, the responsibility for noise mitigation lies with individual owners or operators. Restrictions on night flights may form part of any planning approval. These arrangements apply to civilian aerodromes; at military airfields the responsibility lies with the Ministry of Defence.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

United Arab Emirates

Sir David Steel: to ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the current negotiations between the United Kingdom and the United Arab Emirates on a memorandum of understanding; and what assessment he has made of the effect on these of the imposition of an entry visa requirement upon United Arab Emirate citizens seeking to visit the United Kingdom. [32201]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Negotiations between the United Kingdom and the United Arab Emirates on a memorandum of understanding are making good progress. There is no connection with the EU Commission's proposal for a list of third countries, including the UAE, whose nationals would require a visa to enter any EU state.

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations

he has received from Britons resident in the United Arab Emirates about the possible termination by the United Kingdom of the agreement of the waiving of visa requirements for entry to the United Kingdom by nationals of the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Qatar; and if he will make a statement on the effect such termination will have on relations between the United Kingdom and the United Arab Emirates. [32206]

Mr Baldry: The chairman of the British Business Group Dubai and Northern Emirates wrote to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on 17 June about press reports regarding possible EU regulations affecting UAE nationals visiting Britain.

Under article 100c of the treaty of Rome, the European Commission proposed in December 1993 a draft regulation establishing a list of 126 countries, including the UAE, Bahrain and Qatar, whose nationals would require a visa to enter any EU member state. The United Kingdom has registered its concern at the length of the proposed list. Discussions with the other member states and the Commission are continuing; the United Kingdom's aim is to ensure that the list takes account of current UK visa practice as far as possible.

We have close and excellent relationships with the UAE. We do not anticipate that these would be unduly affected, should the UAE be placed on an EU common visa list.

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens are known to be living in the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Qatar. [32204]

Mr. Baldry: The estimated numbers of British citizens living in the countries in question are as follows:

Bahrain: 6,330

Qatar: 3,500

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what considerations make it impossible to continue into 1996 the reciprocal agreement between the United Kingdom and the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Qatar on abolition of entry visa requirements. [32205]

Mr. Baldry: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given earlier.

Iran

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who represented the European Union at the recent trial of the alleged killers of the Reverend Tateos Michaelian and the Reverend Medi Dibaj in Iran; what were their observations on the proceedings; and when the trial is scheduled to continue. [32059]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The French Presidency represented the European Union at the second session of the trial on 18 June. The proceedings remain at an early stage and it would not therefore be appropriate to disclose the Presidency's observations. The trial has been adjourned sine die.

Sudan

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action Her Majesty's Government are taking to put pressure on the Government of Sudan to stop human rights violations and to come to a peaceful settlement of the civil war. [32060]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We regularly press the Sudanese Government to improve their human rights record and persevere with the peace initiative launched last year by the Inter-Governmental Authority for Drought and Development. I raised both issues in a meeting with the Sudanese Minister of State for Foreign Affairs on 22 May.

Former Yugoslavia

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the United States Government on arrangements for the possible withdrawal of UN forces from the former Yugoslavia. [32035]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We have had regular discussions both bilaterally and in NATO with the United States Government on this subject. We and Washington agree that UNPROFOR should remain in Bosnia as long as it can continue to perform a useful task at an acceptable level of risk, but that it is sensible to have contingency plans in place for a possible withdrawal.

European Union (Perception of UK)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his EU counterparts as to the perception of the United Kingdom by other EU countries. [32034]

Mr. David Davis: I meet my European Union counterparts on a regular basis. They recognise Britain's determination to work for an open, competitive European Union which is sensitive to the concerns of its member states.

Drugs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action he is taking with the drug-producing countries to enable their farmers to switch production to other produce. [32036]

Mr. Baldry: Government support for alternative development and crop substitution projects is channelled via the United Nations drugs control programme to which the UK is currently the second biggest donor. Since 1985 the ODA has committed £7 million to promote crop substitution in the opium-growing areas of the Dir valley in Pakistan and since 1988 £4.5 million to a water and sanitation project in the Chapare in Bolivia, an important area for coca cultivation. Both projects are administered by UNDCP. We have recently contributed £100,000 to enable UNDCP to prepare a strategy to reduce illicit poppy cultivation in Afghanistan. In addition, as I explained in my reply on 8 February 1995, to the hon. Member for Carrick, (Mr. Foulkes) Official Report, columns 278–79, ODA has carried out research into alternative crops in Peru and north Morocco and has funded desk studies covering the main coca growing areas of Asia.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32167]

Mr. Goodlad: The FCO—diplomatic wing and ODA—processed more than 20,000 travel and subsistence claims in each of the financial years 1993–94 and 1994–95. These do not include claims processed by posts abroad. Information on total payments broken down by public transport, car mileage allowance and bicycle allowances is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Former Foreign Heads of State

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what countries have lodged protests or made representations to Her Majesty's Government regarding the presence in this country of their former heads of state. [32520]

Mr. Baldry: None.

Mr. Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many former heads of state of foreign countries are in receipt of payments of any kind from United Kingdom public funds. [32522]

Mr. Baldry: None.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Veterinary Medicines Directorate

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what performance targets he has set for the Veterinary Medicines Directorate in 1995–96, and, if he will make a statement. [32853]

Mr. Waldegrave: The chief executive of the Veterinary Medicines Directorate has submitted his proposals to me and I have agreed that the VMD should be set the following performance targets for 1995–96.

full cost recovery for the three business activities of licensing, policy work and residues monitoring; an overall efficiency gain of 2 per cent.

77 per cent. of new applications for marketing authorisations to be issued within 120 clock days; 95 per cent. within 200 days;

These are challenging targets which will build on the improvements already made in the efficiency and quality of service provided by the directorate since its establishment as a next steps agency, and for which I commend the chief executive and his staff. In addition, I have agreed the VMD's corporate plan for 1995–96 to 1997–98, and copies are being placed in the Library of the House and the Public Information Office.

Sheep Dip

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he has completed his consideration of the advice he has received from the Veterinary Products Committee on the report from the Institute of Occupational Health into possible chronic neuropsychological effects of occupational exposure to organophosphate sheep dips; and if he will make a statement. [32854]

Mr. Waldegrave: Yes. In the light of the assessment of the Institute of Occupational Health report by its Medical and Scientific Panel, the chairman of the Veterinary Products Committee, Professor Sir James Armour, has advised me that whilst the report contributed to the body of information now available, and its publication was to be welcomed, it was not in itself a definitive study. The committee found that the study did not provide sufficient scientific evidence to support the hypothesis that chronic health effects are associated with long-term, low level exposure to OP sheep dips. The conclusions reached by the IOH in the associated article in the Lancet did not appear to be adequately supported by the data in the full report. The committee therefore reaffirmed its previous advice that, on the basis of current scientific evidence, the marketing of OP dips should continue.

Among other recommendations, the committee urged that the award of contracts for the epidemiological research be pursued as a matter of urgency, and the need for farmers to follow the guidance in the "Sheep dipping" booklet was re-emphasised. A copy of the chairman's letter, and the full findings and advice of the committee are being placed in the Library of the House.

Having consulted the other Agriculture and Health Ministers who form the licensing authority, I can confirm that the Government has accepted the VPC's advice in full. In doing so, we are mindful of the continuing reports of outbreaks of sheep scab, and the importance of OP dips to animal welfare. Nevertheless, it is essential that users consider what treatment is best, take the steps necessary under the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations to assess the risks and decide what precautions are needed in the use of OP dips, and recognise the importance of following the available guidance and instructions on the label to ensure safe use of the product. This is just as important for non OP dips, where the same precautions are recommended as for OP dips.

We also welcome the IOH report as providing a valuable contribution to the continuing debate on the possible long term effects of exposure to organophosphates. It forms a basis for the further epidemiological research for which we are currently assessing proposals. Following the recent advertisement we have received a total of 12 proposals, and these are being urgently considered. I hope to make a further announcement about progress with this before the end of the month.

Electro-ejaculation

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his estimate of the number of rams who are electro-stimulated each year to obtain semen; and what is the limit on the number of times each ram can receive these electrical charges in a given period. [31125]

Mrs. Browning: Electro-ejaculation of rams is used only rarely and may be carried out only by a veterinary surgeon. The technique is used for diagnostic or research purposes—for example, to diagnose infertility or for the assessment of fertility prior to the breeding season. It is not used for the routine collection of semen.

Slaughterhouses

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) how many slaughterhouses have failed to reach the required standards of hygiene and animal welfare in the last year. [31129]

(2) how many slaughterhouses have been closed down on hygiene and welfare grounds in the last year. [31130]

Mrs. Browning: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 13 June 1995 to the hon. Member for Hampstead and Highgate (Ms Jackson) Official Report, column 512.

Dr. Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what checks are made on the standards of hygiene and animal welfare in slaughterhouses abroad to which animals are sent; and how many slaughterhouses have been closed following such checks in the last year. [31131]

Mrs. Browning: The European Commission carries out inspections of slaughterhouses in member states primarily to check on hygiene standards. Inspections are not confined to slaughterhouses to which British animals are sent. Reports are not published but, following the visits, the inspectors notify the central authorities in the country concerned of any deficiencies found. Those authorities are responsible for ensuring that the necessary corrective action is taken.

EC Directive 93/119/EC, on the protection of animals at slaughter, which came into force on 1 January 1995, makes provision for the Commission inspectors to check establishments to ensure uniform application of the welfare standards laid down. The Government look to the Commission to monitor the enforcement of all Community farm animal welfare legislation. In addition we follow up with the Commission and other member states, as appropriate, specific allegations of breaches of Community welfare directives.

Sheep

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his estimate for the proportion of ewes in the national flock that produce (a) single lambs, (b) twin lambs, (c) triplet lambs, (d) quadruplets or (e) larger numbers. [31127]

Mrs. Browning: ADAS has estimated that 85–90 per cent. of litters consist of single or twin lambs. Triplet lambs in the lowland flock account for an estimated 10 per cent. of births and 1 per cent. in the hill flock. Larger litter sizes are extremely rare, accounting for less than 1 per cent. of births.

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many sheep carcasses were rejected for human consumption at the time of slaughter for reasons of disease or damage caused by bruising or injection site injuries in the last year for which figures are available; and what proportion of sheep offal and other parts of sheep carcasses were similarly rejected. [31124]

Mrs. Browning: Until the establishment of the meat hygiene service on 1 April 1995, meat inspection was the responsibility of local authorities. The information requested is not available centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his estimate for the proportion of the annual lamb crop born before 1 March. [31126]

Mrs. Browning: ADAS has estimated that 10–15 per cent. of the total national flock lamb before 1 March.

Hormones

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many anti-hormone units his Ministry has set up to detect excessive hormones in (a) beef, (b) sheep and (c) other livestock production; and if he will make a statement. [31212]

Mrs Browning: Surveillance for the use of hormonal growth promoters is carried out under the statutory national surveillance scheme for residues in meat. During 1994, 3,941 samples were taken from cattle, 357 from sheep and 390 from other livestock and tested for the presence of hormones. For the third consecutive year, no evidence was found of the use of stilbenes or thyrostatic substances, which are banned under Community legislation. Eleven samples of cattle serum taken on farm were found to have elevated levels of the natural hormone testosterone present, but subsequent investigation established that no illegal use had taken place.

The results of sampling carried out under the national surveillance scheme and other non-statutory surveillance programmes for veterinary residues are published quarterly in the Veterinary Medicines Directorate, VMD, MAVIS newsletter and summarised in the VMD, annual report and accounts. Copies of both publications are available in the Library of the House.

Infant formula (Labelling)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to enforce labelling relating to gastroenteritis rates on infant formula feeds [31292]

Mrs. Browning: There is no requirement in the Infant Formula and Follow-on Formula Regulations 1995, or in EC Directives 91/321 or 95/52 which these implement, on labelling relating to gastroenteritis rates on infant formula feeds. There are no plans to introduce one.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the expected date of publication of draft regulations further to directives 91/321/EEC and 92/52/EEC relating to infant formula feeds. [31294]

Mrs. Browning: The Infant Formula and Follow-on Formula Regulations 1995 (S.I.1995 No.77), implementing Directives 91/321/EEC and 92/52/EEC, were published in February 1995 and came into force on 1 March 1995. A copy is available in the Library of the House.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much his Department has spent on research into bovine tuberculosis in each of the last five years. [31743]

Mrs. Browning: The amount spent on research into bovine tuberculosis in the current financial year and in each of the last four years is set out in the following table:

1991–92: £1,076,000

1992–93: £922,200

1993–94: £1,071,544

1995–96: £1,467,368

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many individual reactors to the cattle tuberculosis skin test in each English county or region have been slaughtered in each of the last five years; and how many of those had visible lesions post mortem. [31739]

Mrs. Browning: The number of confirmed reactors to the cattle tuberculosis skin test in each English county which have been slaughtered in each of the last five years are given in the table. The figures in brackets give the number of reactors slaughtered which had visible lesions at post mortem.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, of what alternative methods to the present skin test for identifying tuberculosis in cattle his Department is aware. [31741]

Mrs. Browning: The Department is involved in work in the central veterinary laboratory and also monitors work elsewhere on the development and assessment of alternative forms of testing for tuberculosis in cattle. None of the alternative serological test being explored, including the gamma interferon test recently trialled in Northern Ireland, is yet sufficiently developed to provide a realistic alternative to the intradermal skin test. However, the Department is currently evaluating the potential use of these tests in conjunction with the interdermal skin test in the field.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many herds in each English county or region have tested positively for tuberculosis in each of the last five years. [31737]

Mrs. Browning: The information is not available in the form requested. However, the number of herds in which cattle tested positive for bovine tuberculosis in each of the Department's administrative areas in each of the last five years were:

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much his Department has paid out in compensation for cattle slaughtered as positive reactors or dangerous contacts in each English county or region in each of the last five years. [31742]

Mrs. Browning: The information is not available in the form requested. However, the amount of compensation paid for cattle slaughtered as positive reactors and dangerous contacts in England in each of the last five years was:

1990: £812,221

1991: £526,259

1992: £683,830

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what are the latest figures for the number of cattle infected with tuberculosis shown by his Department's administrative areas for each year since 1990; and if he will make a statement. [30244]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 22 June 1995]: Bovine tuberculosis is confirmed in cattle on the basis of culture or the discovery of visible lesions. The number of cattle with confirmed bovine tuberculosis in each of the Department's administrative areas in England for each year since 1990 and for the first three months of 1995 were:

The increasing incidence of bovine tuberculosis in the south-west of England is a matter of concern both for the Department and for the farmers involved. It is hoped the five-year trial of a badger control strategy based on the use of a live test for tuberculosis in badgers, which started last winter, will alleviate the problem. Work is also under way to develop alternative solutions for the longer term, including the development of a vaccine for badgers.

Common Agricultural Policy

Dr. Strang: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much of the total 1995 EU CAP budget, in ecus, will be spent on (a) export refunds, (b) intervention buying/storage etc., (c) arable area payment schemes, (d) production aids and (e) removing produce from the market. [31910]

Mr. Waldegrave: The relevant provisions in the 1995 CAP budget are:

(a) export refunds	7,246.5
(b) intervention buying/storage	1,290.7
(c) arable area payments	13,133.0
(d) production aids	8,234.0
(e) withdrawals and similar operations for removing produce from the market (other than intervention buying and export refunds)	683.0

Arable Area Payment Scheme

Dr. Strang: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the largest payment made in England (a) under the arable area payment scheme and (b) for set-aside, in each year for which the arable area payments scheme has been in operation. [31911]

Mr. Waldegrave: As we have given an undertaking to claimants under the arable area payments scheme that all information regarding their claim is held in confidence, specific information on single claims cannot be published.

Live Exports

Mr. Robert Jackson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what information he has received from the European Commission on their view taken on the legal opinion obtained by the RSPCA from Mr. Gerald Barling QC, on banning the export of live veal calves using article 36 of the treaty of Rome. [31850]

Mrs. Browning: Commissioner Fischler confirmed to the European Parliament on 14 June that, taking account of the legal opinion obtained by the RSPCA and others, the view of the Commission remained that no member state could have resort to article 36 in order to ban the transport of calves to another member state in which the minimum requirements of directive 91/629 were being observed.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32214]

Mr. Jack: The amount spent by the Department during each of the last two years on public transport and car mileage allowance, at prices and rates current in the relevant year, is:

(i) public transport	2,285,933	2,148,659
(ii) car mileage allowance	3,770,826	3,714,600

Expenditure on bicycle allowance is not recorded separately but is contained in the public transport figures, which also include some other associated travel costs.

The figure for 1993–94 include the pesticides safety and veterinary medicines directorates.

Responsibility for such matters within ADAS, the central science laboratory, the central veterinary laboratory and the pesticides safety and the veterinary medicines directorates has been delegated to the agency chief executives and I have asked them to reply to you direct.

Meat and Livestock Commission Levy

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the Meat and Livestock Commission levy rate in each year since 1990. [32327]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The Meat and Livestock Commission levy rates expressed in pence per head for the years 1990–1995 are:

General levy

	Pigs	Cattle	Sheep	Calves
1990–91	37	126	25	8
1991–92	36	140	26	8
1992–93	37	154	26	8
1993–94	37	154	26	8
1994–95	38	160	27	8
1995	39	180	30	8

Species promotion levy

	Pigs	Cattle	Sheep	Calves
1990–91	30	140	20	—
1991–92	30	160	24	—
1992–93	30	174	26	—
1993–94	34	174	26	—
1994–95	50	174	26	—
1995	54	205	30	—

The levies are subject to VAT.

European Agriculture Guidance and Guarantee Fund

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list by each objective and by each other community initiative, including RECHAR and INTERREG the value of assistance received under the European agriculture guidance and guarantee fund both nationally and for each standard region of the United Kingdom for each year since 1989. [31361]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 29 June 1995]: A table containing details of receipts under the EAGGF guidance section is set out in the table. All expenditure was under objective 5a of the structural funds—promoting rural development by speeding up the adjustment of agricultural structures in the framework of the reform of the common agricultural policy. The EAGGF guidance section has not provided funding for Community initiatives other than INTERREG and LEADER.

I regret that it has not been possible to provide a breakdown by standard region as EC receipts are accounted for by the agricultural departments, rather than on a regional basis.

Folic Acid

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to make it his policy compulsorily to fortify flour with folic acid to reduce the instance of spina bifida and other neural tube defects. [31332]

Mrs. Browning: The issue of fortification of foods is currently being considered by the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy.

Currently manufacturers may voluntarily fortify flour and other foods with folic acid.

SCOTLAND

Nursing Homes

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people in Scotland aged over 64 years live in (a) private residential homes, (b) private nursing homes, (c) local authority residential homes and (d) national health service nursing homes; and, of these, how many have the cost of their care paid wholly or partly by (i) their local authority, (ii) their health board and (iii) the Department of Social Security; and how many pay for their care wholly from private resources. [25973]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [pursuant to his reply, 12 June 1995, c. 366–67]: The available information is:

Estimated number of people aged 65+ in residential care homes in Scotland at 31 March 1994

Residential Care Homes	Number
Local Authority Homes	7,800
Private Homes	4,050
Voluntary Homes	4,260

Financial support to long-stay residents aged 65+ in private and voluntary residential care homes at 31 March 1994

Means of support	Private homes	Voluntary homes
Wholly by private means	1,065 (38 per cent.)	1,071 (31 per cent.)
Wholly by health board	43 (2 per cent.)	24 (1 per cent.)

DSS preserved rights[1] and local authority top-up	148 (5 per cent.)	264 (8 per cent.)
Local authority[2]	259 (9 per cent.)	326 (10 per cent.)
Total number where means of support known	2,797 (100 per cent.)	3,381 (100 per cent.)

[1] Pre 1 April 1993 higher rates of income support.[2] Post April 1993 arrangements. Local Authorities have financial responsibility for placements. Residents are supported by the local authority and through ordinary income support and residential allowance from DSS.

The financial support of short-stay residents is not collected. The financial support of the remaining residents was unknown due to non-return of forms or missing data on individual residents.

All residents of local authority homes will have their care wholly or partly funded by local authority. At May 1994, 1,000 residents of local authority homes also received income support at the part III rate—equivalent to the state retirement pension.

Nursing Homes

Information on nursing homes is not collected on the same basis.

Estimated number of residents, all ages, at 31 March 1994 is 15,700.

Number of residents aged 65+ at May 1994 receiving pre 1993 higher rates of income support is 8,000.

Other residents will be supported by local authorities, health boards or through private means.

Gaelic

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many consultations his Department has held with groups aiming to increase the use of Gaelic in Scotland in the years (a) 1991, (b) 1992, (c) 1993 and (d) 1994; and if he will make a statement. [29620]

Sir Hector Monro: The Scottish Office has frequent discussions, both formal and informal, with Gaelic organisations and others involved in the support and development of the language and culture. No central record of all such discussions is held, but over the last 12 months, for example, officials have had formal meetings with Comunn na Gaidhlig, An Comunn Gaidhealach, Sabhal Mor Ostaig, the National Gaelic Arts Project, the Scottish Committee of the European Bureau for Lesser Used Languages, Feisean nan Gaidheal, Comann an Luchd-Ionnsachaidh, Comhairle nan Sgoiltean Araich and Comann nam Parant. In addition, they met a delegation of students from Edinburgh university with a petition about Gaelic education and have had discussions on various aspects of Gaelic development with the Scottish Arts Council, Highlands and Islands Enterprise and a number of regional councils. Similar meetings took place in the earlier years.

Over the period 1991 to 1994, Ministers have attended a Royal National Mod, the opening of the Gaelic Television Committee's office in Stornoway and the opening of the new extension to Sabhal Mor Ostaig, the Gaelic college on Skye. In addition, Ministers have held one formal meeting with representatives of the Gaelic Television Committee and met representatives of the Gaelic parliamentary group last year to discuss issues relating to Gaelic education.

Right to Buy

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to allow all community-based housing association tenants the right to buy; and if he will make a statement. [31077]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: We are presently developing with Scottish Homes a scheme to enable housing association tenants to buy their homes on a voluntary basis. The Scottish Federation of Housing Associations will be consulted in due course.

M74

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what studies his Department has made into the possibility of the completion of the M74 motorway between Fullarton and the Kingston bridge, Glasgow, by means of a tunnel; and if he will make a statement. [30956]

Lord James Douglas Hamilton: This proposed section of motorway is the responsibility of Strathclyde regional council. The Scottish Office has undertaken no studies as to how this new route might be constructed.

M8

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to widen part, or all, of the M8 motorway between Glasgow and Edinburgh; and if he will make a statement. [30955]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The Government's highest priority for the Glasgow-Edinburgh road is to provide motorway conditions over the whole length. The link between Newbridge and the Edinburgh city bypass is presently under construction and tenders are now to be sought for the first phase of the construction of motorway between Newhouse and Baillieston.

The existing section of motorway is now reaching the end of its structural life and requires refurbishment. Plans for work on the first section to be repaired, between Newhouse and Shotts, include widening to dual-three lanes, in line with the standards approved for the construction of the new section of motorway immediately to the west. Preparatory studies will be initiated this year to examine whether reconstruction work between Shotts and Newhouse should involve widening.

Civil Servants

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total number of civil servants in each department of the Scottish Office for (a) 1991, (b) 1992, (c) 1993, (d) 1994 and (e) 1995. [31291]

Mr. Lang: The number of civil servants in each department of the Scottish Office is shown in the following table. The figures relate to 1 April in the years from 1991 to 1995.

Staff in post in the Scottish Office and Executive Agencies (full time equivalent) at 1 April

Residential Care

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what response he has made to the document relating to the development of a co-operative sub-sector of the independent sector passed to his Department by the hon. Member for Paisley, South on 14 June; and if he will make a statement. [31379]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In my letter of 29 June to the hon. Member, I thanked him for providing a copy of the report. I said:

"It is very encouraging to see such an initiative which seeks to broaden the range of provision of residential care and which identifies quality and costs as the key elements to achieving success. I shall watch this and similar developments with interest".

Flood Damage

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will meet a delegation representing the Paisley south end flood committee; and if he will make a statement. [31399]

Mr. Kynoch: I know that the Paisley south end flood committee is providing local assistance to those persons still unable to return to their homes following the flooding in December 1994. Their fund-raising efforts are to be commended. The Government have made substantial assistance available to individuals and local authorities, as detailed in my reply to the hon. Member on 21 April 1995; the committee should continue to seek support from the Strathclyde regional council hardship fund and the Renfrew district council's provost fund.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what conclusions he has reached on the causes of the flooding during December 1994 in (a) the south end of Paisley, (b) Park avenue, Paisley, (c) Collier street, Johnstone and (d) other locations within the Paisley, South constituency; what information he has sought and obtained from local and statutory authorities in relation to this flooding; what further plans he has to encourage and facilitate flood prevention measures in these areas; and if he will make a statement. [31389]

Sir Hector Monro: The exceptional rainfall to the south of Paisley over the weekend 9 to 11 December is estimated by the Clyde river purification board to have a statistical return period of over 500 years. Some natural channels and culverts could not cope with the resulting run-off. In some cases, this was exacerbated by blockages to culvert screens. Strathclyde regional council, presently the body with flood prevention powers, has recorded details of notified flood incidents across its area and will make this information available to unitary councils, which inherit these powers in April 1996. The Government have offered to assist with further studies but the council has not yet made any proposals. Renfrew district council, however, as a riparian owner, has given high priority to improving culverts at Stockholm crescent.

Details of damage to housing and other property have been provided by Renfrew district council. In setting the housing revenue account allocation for council housing investment in 1995–96 the Government met in full the council's request for additional funds. Government grant at the rate of 50 per cent. is available for flood prevention schemes should Strathclyde, or the new councils, decide to take further action.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions his Department has had in respect of arranging a visit by Her Majesty the Queen to flood victims in (a) the south end of Paisley and the town of Johnstone and (b) the Ferguslie park area; and if he will make a statement. [31484]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Her Majesty the Queen had already accepted an invitation to visit Ferguslie park to open the Tannahill centre before the flooding took place across south-west Scotland in December. In the light of the flooding, it was decided that a short visit to the Candren road area of Ferguslie park would be appropriate. It unfortunately was not possible, given the very full programme to which she was already committed that day, to include a visit by the Queen to the other areas affected by the flooding. The Ferguslie Partnership has been responsible for the arrangements for the royal visit and the Scottish Office staff, through their participation in the partnership, have been involved in these arrangements.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to introduce measures to indemnify the (a) landlords, including local authorities and housing associations, and (b) residents, occupiers and tenants of properties which have experienced flooding against the risk of future damage to buildings, property and contents from further floods until such times as adequate flood prevention measures have been put in place; and if he will make a statement. [31388]

Mr. Kynoch: It is the responsibility of the landlord to consider insuring the structure of any house or building which they own and the tenant is responsible for insuring the contents of their home. Most public sector landlords have some form of building insurance cover and this is also the case for housing associations.

As far as privately owned stock is concerned, it is for owner-occupiers themselves to make their own arrangements for insuring both the structure of their property and its contents.

Protection of property from flooding is primarily the responsibility of the owner. It is for the riparian owners of water courses, culverts and ditches to maintain these properly. Strathclyde regional council has powers to carry out works to prevent or mitigate flooding, but it has decided not to carry out any flood prevention work in its remaining months of existence.

Local Government Reorganisation

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what restrictions will be placed upon elected members and officers of unitary local authorities travelling abroad on economic development missions to encourage inward investment; how these will differ from the restrictions imposed on the current regional and district authorities; and if he will make a statement. [31397]

Mr. Kynoch: Section 171A (5) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973, which was inserted into that Act by the provisions of section 171 of the Local Governmental etc. (Scotland) Act 1994, requires councils to submit to the Secretary of State for approval their proposals for engaging in economic development activities overseas. Subsection 171A (6) allows the Secretary of State to make his approval subject to conditions. These provisions effectively replicate the terms of section 154A of the 1973 Act which related to local authorities' industrial promotion powers and which has bene repealed by the 1994 Act. Under the new local government structure, the Secretary of State will, as now, consider all proposals for overseas economic development activity that are submitted to him for approval on their own merits and decide upon them accordingly.

Anti-Social Behaviour

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to introduce new measures to deal with (a) anti-social tenants in the public sector, (b) anti-social tenants in the private sector and (c) anti-social neighbours in the owner-occupied sector of housing in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [31385]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The subject of anti-social behaviour by tenants and owner-occupiers is presently being addressed by the Scottish Office in a number of ways. In March, we issued a consultation paper on the effectiveness of controls over neighbour noise, while in May a consultation paper on the possible introduction of probationary tenancies as one means to assist public sector landlords in tackling anti-social behaviour was circulated for comment. The latter was accompanied by a short note to local housing authorities reminding them of the existing range of statutory powers to deal with anti-social behaviour.

Last February, we issued a housing good practice note on tenancy management to all public sector landlords, which included a section on handling neighbour disputes and anti-social behaviour. My Department has also funded the Chartered Institute of Housing to undertake a study of current practice amongst public sector landlords in dealing with anti-social behaviour with a view to identifying effective strategies which may be adopted more widely.

I welcome the announcement by the Scottish Affairs Committee that it proposes to inquire into the subject of housing and anti-social behaviour. I await the Committee's deliberations with interest.

Privatisation

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what further measures he plans for privatisation in areas of policy for which he is responsible, and if he will make a statement. [31380]

Mr. Lang: The Government are committed to continuous exploration of opportunities to improve the conduct of activities currently carried out within the public sector through increased involvement of the private sector, including privatisation where appropriate. We are at present engaged in the privatisation of parts of Scottish Nuclear Ltd. My Department is also reviewing the scope for greater private sector involvement, including the possibility of privatisation, in the activities of Highlands and Islands Airports Ltd.

Community Care

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what policy changes are planned in relation to the future of (a) Dykebar hospital, (b) Merchiston hospital and (c) Elderslie hospital which are likely to affect constituents of Paisley, South who are currently temporarily or permanently resident there. [31396]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No policy changes are planned. The Government's commitment to providing more appropriate and better facilities in the community remains.

Argyll and Clyde health board and its partners in local government will be issuing a draft joint community care plan for consultation on 4 July. I understand that may make proposals affecting health board residents in the Renfrewshire area.

Summary Cause Actions

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many summary cause actions for recovery of possession of heritable property were raised in Scotland in each year since 1988 based upon notices of proceedings for recovery of possession served in accordance with section 47 of the Housing (Scotland) Act 1987, seeking recovery of possession of properties let under secure tenancies in terms of grounds 2, 7 and 8 of schedule 3 to the said Act and based upon notices of proceedings served upon secure tenants within 12 months of the commencement of the secure tenancy. [31533]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 29 June 1995]: The information requested is not available in the detail sought. The total numbers of disposals of all summary cause actions for the recovery of possession of heritable property where decree was granted to the pursuer for each of the years in question are shown in the table.

1990:	13,793
1991:	12,613
1992:	10,647
1993:	11,754
1994:	[1]9,813

Competitive Tendering

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland in what circumstances he encourages, condones or permits his Department, or agencies, bodies, organisations or partnerships financially supported by it, to award contracts which have not been subject to competitive tender; and if he will make a statement. [31384]

Mr. Lang: My Department, executive agencies and associated bodies follow the general principles of the Government's pubic purchasing policy as set out in Government accounting. These are based on securing best value for money through procuring by competition unless there are valid reasons to the contrary. Competitive tendering is encouraged to maintain or improve standards and quality and to promote greater innovation.

There is no requirement within my Department to competitively tender for purchases which are less than £500 in value because the cost of the tendering exercise would be likely to outweigh any saving but even in these cases, buyers are encouraged to shop around for the best prices.

Scottish Ambulance Service

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are his plans for the future of the Scottish ambulance service; and if he will make a statement. [31398]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Since gaining NHS Trust status on 1 April 1995, the Scottish ambulance service has continued to work towards its objectives of providing the highest possible standards of pre-hospital care for patients and an efficient transport service for non-emergency patients.

Notwithstanding the high standard of service that is consistently being delivered, officials of the trust and of the Scottish Office Home and Health Department are considering whether there are any steps that could be taken further to improve the service to those patients who are most in need.

Health Care International

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the 12 members of the Scottish Development Advisory Board in 1988 and the six who attended when the decision was made to back the HCI hospital; and if he will give their qualifications and occupation. [31357]

Mr. Kynoch: The Scottish Industrial Development Advisory Board is established under section 10 of the Industrial Development Act 1982 to advise the Secretary of State for Scotland in respect of his functions in relation to selective financial assistance under section 7 and 8 of that Act. The Act stipulates that "The members of the Board shall include persons who appear to the Secretary of State to have wide experience of, and to have shown capacity in, industry, banking, accounting and finance."

An application for assistance made by Health Care International (Scotland) Ltd. was considered at the board's meeting on 12 April 1988. The board's then membership was:

Member's name and professional qualifications	Occupational background
Mr. Yaqub Ali	Wholesale distribution
Mr. Keith Fox	Textile industry
Mr. Thomas Johnston	Precision engineering
Mr. Barrie F. Lawson	Electrical and electronic engineering
Mr. John M. Little, CA ACMA	Mining equipment industry
Mr. Duncan J. MacLeod, CA	Accountancy and finance
Mr. Austin Merrills	Metal industry
Mr. David Paterson	Banking, Insurance and Finance Trade Union
Professor John C. Shaw, FRSE CA FCMA MBCS	Accounting and finance
Mr. Alan K. Smith, F Eng FI Mech E F Weld I	Engineering
Sir Robert Smith, CA (Chairman)	Accounting, finance and investment
Mr. Robert Thomson	General, Municipal Boilermakers and Allied Trades Union

Of these, Mr. Ali, Mr. Little, Mr. MacLeod, Mr. Paterson, Sir Robert Smith and Mr. Thomson attended the meeting on 12 April 1988, although Mr. MacLeod withdrew when the Health Care International (Scotland) Ltd. application was discussed since his firm was acting as an adviser to the company.

Kelvin Central Bus Co.

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has had concerning the closure of the Kelvin central bus co. garages at Milton road, Kirkintilloch, and Stepps; and if he will make a statement. [28585]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 22 June 1995]: No such representations have been received.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Offshore Oil and Gas Licensing

Sir Michael Neubert: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will announce the award of licences for oil and gas exploration for the North sea and west of Britain under the 16th round of offshore licensing.

Mr. Page: I informed the House on 18 May that I was awarding licences for each of the 26 blocks in the west of Shetland area for which applications were received in the 16th offshore licensing round, and fast tracked these awards so that companies have been able to start work this summer.

Other areas around include the North sea and the west and south of Britain and I am offering licences for 53 of the 56 blocks applied for. In all, I have been able to offer licences for 79 blocks of the 82 blocks applies for in the 16th round, a reflection of the very high standard of applications received and which will help to ensure that the current high level of exploration continues.

Today's awards will result in the shooting of over 3,500 sq. km. of 3D seismic surveys and over 4,000 line kilometres of 2D seismic surveys. Companies have also committed themselves to drill 13 wells in the next two years and a further nine during the rest of the six-year phase of the licences. This level of commitment means that new wells will be drilled in all of the areas offered in the round. In the whole round 7,500 sq. km. of 3D seismic surveys will be carried out and 50 new wells drilled.

Companies applied for blocks in all of the areas offered in the 16th round. As well as the west of Shetland, there was an encouraging level of interest in the west of Cardigan bay where five blocks have been licensed for the first time. There are also a number of blocks in the east Irish sea and English channel that have not been previously licensed. Many blocks in this part of the round received competing applications of extremely high quality, although as expected, competition was generally less than for the west of Shetland.

I have taken fully into account that a number of the areas offered for licensing in this part of the Round are environmentally sensitive, especially those areas close to the coast. For this reason, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Industry and Energy announced an initiative last year involving the Joint Nature Conservation Committee and the UK Offshore Operators Association to produce a series of regional coastal reports which provide valuable data on the coastal and environmental resources in the area concerned.

When examining applications for blocks in these areas, we made sure that applicant companies took account of the environmental resources identified in the reports when planning their work programmes and that they demonstrated how they planned to avoid or minimise any risks to those resources from oil and gas exploration. All companies awarded licences have shown a strong commitment to environmental protection and to the appropriate conditions which are contained in their licences.

These awards—and those announced earlier for blocks in the west of Shetland—have shown the continuing high level of commitment by the oil and gas companies to the United Kingdom continental shelf. The widespread interest in exploration in an increasing number of areas in the UKCS will help to secure the UK's position as an oil and gas producer well into the next century.

Inward Investment

Sir Michael Neubert: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the United Kingdom's performance in attracting internationally mobile investment projects in 1994–95.

Mr. Heseltine: My Department's Investment in Britain Bureau announced in its annual review, published today, that 1994–95 was another very successful year for attracting inward investment into the United Kingdom.

A total of 434 direct investment projects were recorded by the IBB for the period 1 April 1994 to 31 March 1995. This is an increase of 30 projects over the previous year, the highest figure ever recorded, and demonstrates quite clearly just how attractive the UK continues to be to overseas investors. It is also worth nothing that based on information supplied at the time of the announcements, 36,876 new jobs are expected to be created—an increase of 8,149 over last year's new jobs total.

Those results provide strong evidence that, despite ever increasing competition from elsewhere in the European Union, the UK has retained its No. 1 place in Europe for attracting inward investment. This success reflects the attractiveness of the competitive business environment which exists today, in the UK.

The results are also an indication of the successful partnership between the IBB and the many public and private sector bodies involved in the promotion of inward investment at home and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in existing and emerging markets abroad.

I am arranging for a copy of the review to be placed in the Library of the House.

Gifts to Ministers

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list those gifts received by Ministers in their official capacities and reported to the permanent secretary in each of the last five years. [23784]

Mr. Heseltine: A total of 237 gifts were accepted by DTI Ministers between 1 April 1994 and 31 March 1995. 119 of these were retained by the Ministers and 118 became the property of the Department. Seven of these gifts were valued by the Department at more than £125. Of these seven, five became the property of the Department and two were purchased by the Minister, in accordance with the provisions of "Questions of Procedure for Ministers", by payment of the difference between the Department's retail valuation and £125 limit. A breakdown for each Minister is shown in the table.

Figures for earlier years are not available.

Ministerial Gifts—Financial Year 1994–95

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32176]

Mr. Heseltine: My Department's records of travel expenditure do not distinguish between the categories in the hon. Member's question. To provide this information would entail disproportionate cost.

Deregulation Task Force

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what were the criteria used to select the right hon. Francis Maude as head of the deregulation task force. [32271]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The deregulation task force's role is to help the President of the Board of Trade promote deregulation and to advise him on action for Government Departments and associated bodies to take to remove unnecessary regulatory burdens on business. In selecting a chairman for the task force the President sought a senior figure who carried weight in both business and political circles.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much remuneration the right hon. Francis Maude receives as head of the deregulation task force. [32265]

Mr. Evans: The right hon. Francis Maude is not paid for his work as chairman of the deregulation task force but, like other members of the task force, he receives travel and subsistence expenses. Administrative support for Mr. Maude and the task force is provided by the deregulation unit in the Department of Trade and Industry.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many candidates were considered for the appointment as head of the deregulation task force; and who made the appointment. [32274]

Mr. Evans: A number of possible candidates were considered for this appointment. It would not be appropriate to disclose details of particular names. The appointment was made by my right hon. Friend the President of Board of Trade.

Teaching Company Schemes

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans the Government have to enable small and medium-sized enterprises in Barnsley to benefit from the teaching company schemes for the transfer of technology from universities through the secondment of graduates. [32266]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The Government are doing much to enable small and medium-sized enterprises to benefit from the teaching company scheme and SMEs in Barnsley and throughout the UK stand to gain substantially from these measures.

In 1994–95, Government funding of TCS was about £18 million. My Department is the largest contributor to TCS programme costs with £6 million in 1994–95, and we have announced an increase of £4 million over the three years from 1995–96 to 1996–97. In addition, the European regional development fund is able to co-finance TCS spend with SMEs in the area of Yorkshire and Humberside which includes Barnsley. This further increases the money available for TCS there.

There are 518 TCS programmes current at 31 March 1995 and 278 have a SME as an industrial partner. But my Department aims to further increase the number of SMEs who benefit from TCS; our target is that 80 per cent of DTI-supported TCS programmes will involve SMEs. The recent White Paper "Competitiveness: Forging Ahead" reported that a network of 11 TCS centres for small firms has been established. These TCS centres offer SMEs easier access to the technology, knowledge and skills available in Universities. By the end of this year, the number of TCS will increase to 17 and will cover the whole of the UK. The two TCS centres for small firms based at Leeds Metropolitan University and at Sheffield Hallam University are both well placed to help SMEs in Barnsley.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which universities have a teaching company scheme centre set up by his Department to help the needs of small businesses. [32272]

Mr. Taylor: The 10 TCS centres for small firms part-funded by my Department are located at the following universities.

The University of Brighton
Brunel University
The University of Durham
Leeds Metropolitan University
Nottingham Trent University
The University of Plymouth
The University of Reading
Salford University
Sheffield Hallam University
The University of Warwick

In addition, a TCS centre for small firms administered jointly by the University of Ulster and Queens University Belfast is part funded by the Northern Ireland Office.

Business Links

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what arrangements his Department has considered to ensure that local businesses are not handicapped by the lack of access to quality business advice if their local business link were to be excluded from the business links network because it had failed to meet the accreditation criteria set by his Department. [32270]

Mr. Page: The Business Link Accreditation Board will make recommendations to me on individual business link accreditation. These recommendations will take full account of the impact on local businesses and their continuing access to high quality services, should the licence to use the business link brand be withdrawn.

Insurance Policy Sales

Mr. Denham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he now has to improve the regulation of the sale of mortgage protection and unemployment protection policies to ensure that those selling them are properly trained to do so. [32048]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: None. The sale of creditor insurance policies is already governed by the Association of British Insurers code of practice. The code's operation is kept under constant review by an independent code monitoring committee.

Television Rental Industry

Mr. French: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what proposals he has to enhance consumer protection in the television rental industry. [31526]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Most agreements made by consumers for television rental are consumer hire agreements regulated under the Consumer Credit Act 1974. We have no plans to change the provisions of the Act in regard to such agreements.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31304]

Mr. Heseltine: My Department does not keep separate records of its grants to or contracts with voluntary sector organisations.

Insolvency Practitioners

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what measures he has taken to ensure that insolvency practitioners provide adequate disqualification information, following the National Audit Office report on director disqualification. [32601]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The Insolvency Service issued revised guidelines to insolvency practitioners in March 1993 which emphasised the need for timeliness of reports and the adequacy of evidence to support allegations of unfit conduct. These guidelines are being reinforced by the joint insolvency monitoring unit set up in March 1994 by the insolvency profession to raise standards of its members. In addition the Insolvency Service has commenced a programme of visits to practitioners who have a poor record of reporting, backed by prosecution in extreme cases; improved its feedback to insolvency practitioners on reasons why their reports have not met the criteria for commencement of proceedings, and proposed amendments to the disqualification forms used by practitioners, under the Government's deregulation initiative.

Insolvency Service Computer Project

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many computer terminals were purchased by the Insolvency Service to implement the LOIS computer system.

Mr. Jonathan Evans: A total of 1,342 PCs and computer terminals were purchased for the LOIS project.

Official Receiver

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what provision will be made to ensure that, in the event of the contracting out of some of the functions of the official receiver and subsequent requirement on staff to relocate between offices, women staff will not be relatively disadvantaged. [32306]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The Insolvency Service is an equal opportunities employer. In the event of contracting out going ahead, the needs of all staff would be taken into account as far as possible within its operational requirements.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if, in the event of the functions of the official receiver being contracted out, it will be necessary in every case for bankrupts and company directors to attend at the offices of the contractor for interview in order to establish the causes of the failure of the business. [32305]

Mr. Evans: Yes, subject to individual circumstances which would prevent such attendance, such as ill-health.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade in what percentage of cases administered by the official receivers' office in Kingston upon Hull, a trustee or liquidator was appointed at a meeting of creditors or on the instructions of the Secretary of State, in order to realise and distribute assets, in each year since 1986. [32321]

Mr. Evans: The percentage of cases administered by the official receiver's office in Kingston upon Hull in which an insolvency practitioner was appointed as liquidator/trustee are as follows:

Per cent.

Financial year	Bankruptcy	Company
April 1992–March 1993	28	30
April 1993–March 1994	24	36
April 1994–March 1995	27	48

Information for previous years could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what guidance is given to staff of the Insolvency Service, in addition to their training, to ensure that they interview and conduct their inquiries into the affairs of bankrupts and company directors on a professional and consistent basis throughout the 33 official receivers' offices in England and Wales. [32309]

Mr. Evans: A consistent and professional approach is obtained through a thorough programme of training including the sitting of Certified Association of Chartered Accountants examinations by examiners, and the use of an internal technical manual which is regularly updated by the issue of technical bulletins.

A system of management is in place which allows policies to be cascaded through regional managers to official receivers, who in turn disseminate the information to their staff to ensure that consistent practices are applied throughout the country. There is also a professional service action plan which stipulates the conduct of staff when dealing with customers and a pocket guide to investigative interviewing which is being introduced for staff who conduct interviews.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if, in the event of some of the functions of the official receiver being contracted out, bids will be invited from the management and staff of the Insolvency Service. [32307]

Mr. Evans: The advertisements inviting expressions of interest were open to all interested parties and any member of staff of the Insolvency Service will be able to be involved in the contracting out process in the same way as potential providers from the private sector.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will provide an estimate of the maximum distances currently travelled by bankrupts and company directors to be interviewed, in respect of each of the areas covered by each of the official receiver's offices in England and Wales. [32323]

Mr. Evans: This information could only be provided at disproportionate cost. There are 33 official receivers' offices throughout England and Wales providing local accessibility for all bankrupts, directors and members of the public having business with the Insolvency Service.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what written guidance is given to the staff of the official receiver's office, in addition to their training, as to the conduct of their initial enquiries and interviews; and if the same written guidance will be given to contractors engaged in carrying out initial enquiries if some of the functions of the official receiver are contracted out. [32324]

Mr.Evans: All specialist staff within the Insolvency Service have copies of the Insolvency Service technical manual which provides written guidance for the conduct of their initial enquiries and interviews. In the event of contracting out, such guidance would be issued to contractors.

British Nuclear Fuels plc

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, what responsibility he has as (a) director and (b) shareholder for the accounts of BNFL; if he has approved the accounts issued since his appointment as President and what steps his Department takes to verify them. [32199]

Mr. Eggar: It is the responsibility of the Board of Directors of British Nuclear Fuels plc to prepare accounts for each financial year in accordance with the requirements of the Companies Acts. The annual report of the directors and the audited accounts are submitted to the shareholder at the company's annual general meeting. The company's auditors are responsible for forming an independent opinion, based on their audit, on the accounts and for reporting their opinion to the shareholder. Under the terms of section 14 of the Atomic Energy Authority Act 1971, my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade is responsible for laying copies of BNFL's report and accounts before Parliament.

Gas Regulator

Mr. O'Neill: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what criteria will be used to judge the effectiveness of the Gas Regulator in promoting competition. [30073]

Mr. Eggar: The proposed new section 39(2A) of the Gas Act provides that the Director General must report annually to Parliament on the extent of effective competition and on developments in respect of that competition. That will enable Parliament and the public to make appropriate judgments on the effectiveness of the director's work.

Gas Bill (Shippers Licences)

Mr. O'Neill: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment he has made of the impact of the Gas Bill's requirement to legacy transportation holders to operate on terms with like effect and consequences as those without these contracts on increased competition in the gas market. [30098]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 26 June 1995]: The requirements in question, which are contained in the draft standard conditions of shippers' licences, are designed to help secure effective competition in the gas market. We believe, subject to any further points arising in the continuing consultation, that they will have this effect.

Brent Spar

Mr. Dobson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will publish a list of the titles of each report made to his Department by Shell UK about options for the future of the Brent Spar, the name of the person or organisation responsible for the report and the date on which they were written; and if he will place copies of each report in the Library. [31022]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 26 June 1995]: Copies of the Brent Spar best practicable environmental option assessment and impact hypothesis produced by Rudall Blanchard Associates Limited dated December 1994 were sent to the Oslo and Paris Commission on 16 February 1995, and are in the public domain. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House. The supporting studies submitted by Shell to my Department were as follows:

I am considering, in consultation with Shell and the companies responsible for the supporting studies, whether they may also in due course be placed in the Library of the House. Such consideration will need to take account of commercial confidentiality and intellectual property rights.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) if he will list, for the period January 1991 to June 1995, all meetings held and all correspondence or other documentation received or sent between Ministers or officials in his Department and Ministers or other representatives of other foreign Governments in which options for the future of the Brent Spar installation were mentioned, giving for each separate meeting or documentation (a) the date on which the meeting was held, the correspondence or documentation received or correspondence or documentation sent. (b) a full list of attendees at each meeting or authors and recipients of the correspondence or documentation and (c) the topics discussed at the meeting or title and nature of the correspondence or documentation; and if he will place each piece of correspondence or documentation in the Library, [31010]

(2) if he will publish a list for the period January 1991 to June 1995 of all meetings held and all correspondence or other documentation received or sent between Ministers or officials in his Department with any of the Royal Dutch Shell Group of companies or any of its subsidiaries including the Shell petroleum Co. Ltd UK, in which options for the future of Brent Spar installation were mentioned, giving for each separate meeting or documentation (a) the date on which the meeting was held, the correspondence or documentation received or correspondence or documentation sent, (b) a full list of attendees at each meeting or authors and recipients of the correspondence or documentation and (c) the topics discussed at the meeting or title and the nature of the correspondence or documentation; and if he will place copies of each piece of correspondence or documentation in the Library. [31001]

(3) if he will list, for the period January 1991 to June 1995 all meetings held and all correspondence or other documentation received or sent between Ministers or officials in his Department and Ministers or officials in other Government Departments in which options for the future of the Brent Spar installation were mentioned, giving for each separate meeting or documentation (a) the date on which the meeting was held, the correspondence or documentation received or correspondence or documentation sent, (b) a full list of attendees of each meeting or authors and recipients of the correspondence or documentation, and (c) the topics discussed at the meeting or title and nature of correspondence or documentation; and if he will place copies of each piece of correspondence or documentation in the Library. [31011]

Mr. Eggar [holding answers 26 June 1995]: It is my intention to make available in the Library of the House as soon as possible an appropriate set of documents relating to the Brent Spar in accordance with the code of practice on access to government information.

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) which of the reports referred to his Department by Shell dealt specifically with the option of onshore decommissioning; and if he will make a statement, [31252]

(2) if he will list each report made available to him by Shell on which the decision was based to dispose of the Brent Spar by dumping if offshore; which of these were passed to his Department for inspection (a) in their entirety or (b) in summary form; and if he will place copies in the Library. [31253]

Mr. Eggar [holding answers 28 June 1995]: The reports submitted by Shell to my Department are listed in the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras (Mr. Dobson) today. The reports were submitted in their entirety. Two dealt specifically with onshore disposal: "Brent Spar Onshore Disposal Feasibility Study" by McDermott Engineering (Europe) Ltd, and "Brent Spar Scrapping Study" by Heerema Engineering Services (UK) Limited.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Betts: To ask the President of the Board of Trade by how much Government spending has changed in 1994–95 as a result of the private finance initiative, what is the estimated effect in 1995–96; how many jobs are to be created by schemes approved to date under the initiative and how many have been lost as a consequence in the public sector; and what is the forecast of transfer of employment from public to private sector over the last five years because of the initiative. [30821]

Mr. Heseltine [holding answer 28 June 1995]: In addition to my Department's capital provision, £35.7 million was spent on the refurbishment of No. 1 Victoria street in 1994–95 as a result of obtaining private finance for this project. Around £30.5 million will be spent in 1995–96 on the same basis. No calculation has been made of the jobs this project has created/saved in the private sector but none has been lost in the public sector. No forecast has been made of the transfer of employment from the public to the private sector as a result of PFI.

Health and Safety

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many Company directors have been disqualified under the company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 for breaches of health and safety laws. [29240]

Mr. Oppenheim [holding answer 27 June 1995]: I have been asked to reply.

One company director has been disqualified for breaches of health and safety laws under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Disabled People

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) if he will make a statement about the levels of disability in Northern Ireland in comparison with other parts of the United Kingdom and account for the differences; [31416]

(2) what research he has conducted or intends to conduct on levels of disability in Northern Ireland. [31417]

Sir John Wheeler: In order to estimate the prevalence of disability among adults and children, a set of surveys was conducted in Northern Ireland during 1989–90. The surveys were designed to allow comparisons to be made with a similar set of surveys carried out in Great Britain.

From these surveys, it is estimated that there are 201,000 disabled adults and 14,600 disabled children living in Northern Ireland. The prevalence of disability among adults in Northern Ireland is 174 per thousand, which exceeds the rate of 142 per thousand in Great Britain. The rate among children in Northern Ireland is 35 per thousand, which is similar to the rate of 32 per thousand observed in Great Britain.

Information on the levels of disability in Northern Ireland is provided in table 2.8 of "Policy, Planning and Research Unit Surveys of Disability Report 1: the Prevalence of Disability among Adults in Northern Ireland" and in table 2.9 of "Policy, Planning and Research Unit Surveys of Disability Report 2: The Prevalence of Disability among Children in Northern Ireland", copies of which have been placed in the Library.

Comparative information for other parts of the United Kingdom is provided in table 3.9 of "OPCS Surveys of Disability in Great Britain Report 1: the prevalence of disability among adults" and in table 3.8 of "OPTS Surveys of Disability in Great Britain 3: the prevalence of disability among adults" and in Table 3.8 of "OPCS Surveys of Disability in Great Britain Report 3: the prevalence of disability among children", copies of which are also available in the Library.

These surveys were not designed to look at the underlying complaints or causes of disabilities, nor to speculate about the numerous possible reasons for regional differences observed.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding in Northern Ireland from the European Union is spent on meeting the needs of the disabled. [31415]

Sir John Wheeler: The main source of European Union funding is the Northern Ireland single programming document, which covers the period 1994–99. The needs of the disabled are addressed under the priority investment in communities and people and specifically the training for special target groups and training infrastructure measures. Over the programme period, it is estimated that some £18 million—22.73 mecu—will be available from these measures for the provision of vocational training and associated services for the disabled. These measures are complemented by the targeting social needs measure, which may assist disabled groups but is primarily aimed at helping deprived and marginalised people, particularly in areas of social and economic deprivation. In addition to the main NI programme, assistance of some £3 million—3.78 mecu—is also available to the disabled, under the employment community initiative programme 1994–99.

An exchange rate of £1:1.25 mecu has been used.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has to require public transport undertakings to take more notice of the needs of the disabled. [31419]

Mr. Moss: The Government have brought forward amendments to the Disability Discrimination Bill to allow it to set minimum standards of accessibility in new land-based public transport vehicles. These provisions will apply to Northern Ireland public transport operations.

Education and Library Boards

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish the analysis of cost savings to be achieved by reducing the number of education and library boards in Northern Ireland from five to four. [31422]

Mr. Ancram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 27 June, Official Report, columns 587–88.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many responses in respect of the consultative document, "Educational Administration in Northern Ireland: Proposals for Change", supported the removal of control of further education from the education and library boards to the Department of Education. [31656]

Mr. Ancram: Twenty-two responses have been received, which support the removal of the further education colleges from board control. A range of views has been expressed on the most appropriate centralised planning and funding arrangements.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many responses made in respect of the consultative document, "Educational Administration in Northern Ireland: Proposals for Change", called for the withdrawal of the proposals pending local parliamentary democracy and if he will list those representations; [31657]

(2) how many responses made in respect of the consultative document, "Educational Administration in Northern Ireland: Proposals for Change", supported the rationalisation measures and how many favoured decentralisation. [31658]

Mr. Ancram: So far, I have received some 1,400 written responses to the proposals for change document. They relate to the full range of proposals in the document rather than to any specific aspect of them. The responses are being indexed and analysed at present and it is therefore not possible to provide the information requested at this time.

Dial-a-ride Schemes

Mr. Worthington: To ask the secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many dial-a-ride schemes there are in Northern Ireland; and what proposals he has to introduce more. [31418]

Mr. Moss: There are two dial-a-ride schemes operating in Northern Ireland—the Easyrider scheme, which operates in north and west Belfast, and Citylink, which operates in Londonderry. The Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland supports both schemes and is currently considering options for their future development. There are no plans to introduce more dial-a-ride schemes in Northern Ireland.

Education Inspectorate Boards

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether his education inspectorate's reports on (a) institutes of further education; and (b) private training agencies are published; and on what grounds. [31423]

Mr. Ancram: Reports of inspections of institutions of further education in Northern Ireland have been published.

Reports of inspections of recognised training organisations—that is, those receiving public funding for their training programmes, including institutes of further education and private training agencies—have so far been distributed to the funding organisations and to the manager and, if applicable, to the chairman of the management committee of the training organisations to which the report refers, and will be made available to the public for inspections undertaken after 1 September 1995.

Public Bodies

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the members of Northern Ireland quangos, indicating which are appointed by the Secretary of State and which are appointed by, or on the recommendation of local authorities, with the scale of remuneration in each case. [30503]

Sir John Wheeler: The membership of public bodies in Northern Ireland is contained in the Northern Ireland public appointments list, a copy of which is available in the Library. Remuneration for the chairmen and members, plus details of those appointed by the Secretary of State or on the recommendation of local authorities, have also been placed in the Library.

Terrorist Offenders

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people who have served prison sentences for terrorist offences have subsequently been convicted of further terrorist offences after their release during the last 25 years, or for as many years as figures are available,. [23367]

Sir John Wheeler: Figures for the reconviction of terrorist offenders are not kept and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, research carried out by the Northern Ireland Office in 1987 found that of those prisoners convicted of terrorist-related offences who were released in 1984, 20 per cent. were reconvicted of scheduled offences and 20 per cent. of non-scheduled offences in the following two years. The reconviction rate for life sentence prisoners is lower. Only two life sentence prisoners convicted of terrorist-related offences have been reconvicted of further offences directly related to terrorism, although others have been convicted of other scheduled offences.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prisoners currently serving sentences for terrorist offences would be eligible for release if they could qualify for 50 per cent. remission; how many of those can be categorised as (a) loyalist and (b) republican; and if he will make a statement. [32268]

Sir John Wheeler: Precise figures are not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Approximately 400 prisoners are currently serving sentences for scheduled offences which attract one third remission under section 14 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991. Of this 400, between 20 and 30 prisoners will be released by the end of 1995. If the law were changed to restore the rate of remission to 50 per cent. with retrospective effect, between 70 and 80 prisoners would be released immediately and a further 40 and 50 by the end of the year. Such a change would release approximately equal numbers of republican and loyalist over that period.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32172]

Sir John Wheeler: The information is as follows:

	1993–94 £	1994–95[1] £
Public transport	1,829,775	1,587,277
Car mileage allowance	9,503,424	9,214,904
Bicycle allowance	[2]—	[2]—

[1] At 1993–94 prices.

[2] Minimal or negligible amounts included in car mileage allowance.

ENVIRONMENT

Leicestershire Museums, Arts and Records Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the future in a service is not adversely affected by any orders presented to parliamentary by the Secretary of State for the Environment concerning the reform of local government in Leicestershire and the city of Leicester; [30670]

(2) if he will ensure that the Leicestershire museums, arts and records service will be maintained as an integrated operations after the coming into effect of local government reorganisation in Leicester. [30671]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: I refer my hon. Friend to the answers given to him by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for National Heritage on 27 June, Official Report, column 600.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31311]

Sir Paul Beresford: In 1993–94, the Department of the Environment paid direct grants centrally to more than 400 voluntary sector organisations to the value of £28 million. In addition, indirect grant of some £2.5 billion was paid to voluntary organisations; this amount includes all grant-paid by the Department to the Housing Corporation for the support of housing associations. Voluntary sector organisations also benefitted from the task force initiative and the city challenge programme but the precise figures are unavailable.

Figures for 1994–95 are not yet available.

Corresponding information on contracts is not collected centrally.

Subsidence

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what information his Department holds on the incidence of subsidence of domestic dwellings, by area; in what form the information is held; and if this information can be related to post code areas. [31926]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Building Research Establishment maintains a subsidence database, containing statistical data on subsidence damage to houses, for use in the engineering assessment of causes and remedies but this does not contain information by area. However, there is no central record of incidents of subsidence damage to houses by area. The prime holder of such information would be the member companies of the Association of British Insurers and access to their data may be limited by commercial considerations.

My Department's research has produced small-scale maps and databases on a national grid reference and administrative area basis, which can be interpreted to assess the susceptibility to subsidence from mining, natural underground cavities and shrinkable clay formations and to landsliding. In addition, the British Geological Survey operates a ground hazard assessment service (G–HASP) which contains an assessment of the susceptibility to subsidence from various causes on a national grid reference and post code basis.

Bell Green (Contaminated Land)

Mr. Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will undertake an inquiry by his Department to ensure that the London Waste Regulation Authority has fully complied with its legal and operational responsibilities with regard to the treatment of contaminated land at the ex-gas works site, Bell green, London SE26.

Mr. Atkins: I have received no evidence which leads me to believe that the London Waste Regulation Authority may have failed to discharge its functions under part II of the Environment Protection Act 1990 in relation to the site referred to by the hon. Member.

Battersea Power Station

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the future development of Battersea power station; and if he will list the people and organisations with whom he has discussed this issue during the last six months. [31702]

Sir Paul Beresford: Discussions are continuing between Wandsworth council, English Heritage and the owners, on a master plan for the whole of the Battersea power station site. The Government are not a party to those discussions, but would like to see the future development of this important site on the river Thames resolved as soon as possible.

Capital Receipts

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what information he has on the level of accumulated capital receipts by each local authority. [31755]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The latest information on the level of accumulated capital receipts relates to the position at 31 March 1994. The level of receipts can be split into two components; (a) usable capital receipts and (b) amounts set aside from capital receipts as provision for credit liabilities.

A list of the amounts of usable capital receipts held by each local authority at 31 March 1994 was placed in the Library of the House in response to the question of Thursday 9 February 1995 from the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras (Mr. Dobson).

In response to the question of Tuesday 28 March 1995 from the hon. Member for Greenwich (Mr. Raynsford), a further list was placed in the Library of the amounts set aside by each local authority as provision for credit liabilities and not yet applied. These include amounts set aside from both capital receipts and revenue. Separate figures are not available.

Water Companies

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the efficiency savings for the last financial year for each water company for which figures are available. [32107]

Mr. Atkins: As a result of efficiency savings in 1994–95, water companies announced the following benefits:

	For customers
Water company	Cash	Other
Anglian	£12 million over 1 year	£2 million Trust Fund
North West	£90 million over 5 years	£180 million Discretionary investment
Severn Trent	£87 million over 4 years	£24 million Discretionary investment

For customers

Water company	Cash	Other
Yorkshire	£20 million over 1 year	£125 million Discretionary investment
Welsh	£40 million over 4 years	£38 million Discretionary investment
Wessex	nil	£25 million Discretionary investment

For shareholders

Water company	Special dividends	Other
North West	£90 million over 5 years	nil
Severn Trent	£87 million over 5 years	nil
Yorkshire	None announced	£50 million efficiency dividend paid by core business to support future enhanced dividend growth
Welsh Water	£9 million per annum in perpetuity	Prospect of dividend growth from new base including special dividend

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the capital investment made in the last financial year for each water company for which figures are available. [32108]

Mr. Atkins: During 1993–94, the last full year for which information is available, capital investment made by the water industry totalled £2.9 billion. Figures for individual companies are not held centrally.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in a) 1993–94 and b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32211]

Sir Paul Beresford: The amount of travel claims, at current prices, paid in my Department excluding agencies, are:

£ thousands

	1993–94	1994–95
Public Transport	1,492	1,652
Car/bicycle mileage allowance	383	357

Information on bicycle claims is not available separately.

Radioactive Waste Management

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he will announce the results of the Government's review of radioactive waste management policy, and if he will make a statement. [32968]

Mr. Gummer: The final conclusions of the review are being published today in a White Paper—Cm 2919—copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House. It includes the conclusions that I have already announced ont timing of the Nirex repository and strategies for decommissioning nuclear plant—Official Report, 9 May 1995, column 425—as well as on the siting of dry stores for spent fuel, Official Report, 21 February 1995, column 146. In reaching their final conclusions, the Government have taken account of responses to the preliminary conclusions of the review, which were published in a consultation paper last August.

The White Paper sets out the Government's conclusions on the general principles which should be applied to radioactive waste management as well as on specific policies. The primary aim throughout has been to ensure that radioactive waste, irrespective of whether it is produced by public sector or private sector operations, is properly managed and that people and the environment are not exposed to unacceptable risks either now or in the future.

The broad policy aims have been revised and updated to emphasise the respective roles of Government, regulators and producers and owners of radioactive waste, as well as to apply the concept of sustainable development and its supporting principles. Radioactive wastes should not be unnecessarily created. Such wastes as are created must be safely and appropriately managed and treated. They must then be safely disposed of at appropriate times and in appropriate ways.

The Environment Bill, which is currently before Parliament, contains provisions which will streamline the handling of applications to dispose of radioactive waste for nuclear licensed sites in England and Wales by making the new Environment Agency the sole authoriser, with MAFF and the Welsh Office as statutory consultees. In Scotland, Her Majesty's industrial pollution inspectorate—to be subsumed within the Scottish Environment Protection Agency—is already the sole authoriser. The White Paper also says that developers of major projects may, if they wish, submit early applications for disposal authorisations. The regulators will then be able to decide on these before major commitments of money and effort have been made.

The White Paper proposes that disposal to geological formations on land is the favoured option for the long-term management of vitrified high-level waste—HLW—once it has been allowed to cool. The Government are putting in hand the development of the necessary research strategy for this. In selecting a site for the disposal of HLW, the Government will take into account the recommendations in the recent report of a joint study group, drawn from members of the Radioactive Waste Management Advisory Committee, RWMAC, and the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Nuclear Installations, ACSNI, about the need for transparency of decision making and for public reassurance.

For intermediate-level waste, ILW, the Government have decided that there would be no advantage to be gained from delaying the development of the Nirex repository and that, once a suitable site has been found, it should be constructed as soon as reasonably practicable. The precise timetable will depend on the granting of planning consent and compliance with regulatory requirements, including the establishment of a sound safety case. The Government have already promised to hold a full public inquiry into an application for the repository itself, wherever it may be situated, and sees no reason to depart from this procedure.

In the meantime, waste destined for the repository must continue to be safely stored. Where the demands of safety are overriding, the waste must be treated as necessary to improve storage conditions. In addition, where early treatment of the waste will secure worthwhile safety benefits, or worthwhile economic benefits without prejudicing safety, the general presumption against action which might foreclose future waste management options may be relaxed.

In the light of the genuine anxieties expressed by local residents who feared that they might have been affected by the proposal, the Government have decided not to encourage greater use by the nuclear industry of the "controlled burial" of low-level waste, LLW, at suitable landfill sites. Nevertheless, there are sound economic and radiological grounds for controlled burial and the Government believe that it should continue to be used as a disposal route, particularly for "small users"—such as hospitals, universities, research laboratories and non-nuclear industries—subject to the agreement of the site operators and to the necessary regulatory requirements being met. The Government will issue guidance to the environment agencies on the need to consult local authorities about authorisations for controlled burial.

The Government have adopted a policy of self-sufficiency in relation to the import and export of radioactive waste. Radioactive waste should not be imported to or exported from the UK other than in the circumstances set out in the White Paper. These recognise, among other things, that developing countries should not be precluded from taking advantage of the non-nuclear uses of radioactivity, such as medical diagnosis and treatment, because they do not have the resources to acquire suitable disposal facilities of their own. RWMAC will be asked to advise on what detailed guidance might be prepared for the regulators in implementing this policy.

Since 1976, all BNFL's contracts for reprocessing spent nuclear fuel from foreign companies have included options for the return of operational wastes to the country of origin. In line with the principle of self-sufficiency, the Government's policy remains that the options should be exercised, but they accept that this can be achieved by means of waste substitution—whereby radiologically equivalent amounts of additional HLW are returned in place of LLW and ILW, which would be retained for disposal in the UK—provided there is broad environmental neutrality for the UK. However, the Government consider it prudent not to become irrevocably committed to waste substitution in the absence of appropriate disposal arrangements within the UK. This means that BNFL may substitute for LLW now, but any arrangements it now enters into and implements with its overseas customers for the substitution of ILW must be conditional on confirming, at the time a Nirex repository receives planning permission, that waste equivalence has been properly calculated and provide for the ILW to be returned should the Nirex repository not be established by the time BNFL is contractually obliged to return the wastes.

The White Paper is the first comprehensive statement of Government policy on radioactive waste management for 10 years and I hope that it will be welcomed. I will form part of the guidance given by the Government to the environment agencies that are due to be established next year. It will also provide a clear policy framework for regulating the nuclear industry, which is to be restructured and partially privatised following the nuclear review.

Vehicle Emissions

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what estimate he has made of the proportion of (a) carbon monoxide, (b) oxides of nitrogen and (c) particulate emissions which will be the product of road transport in 1995. [30123]

Mr. Atkins [holding answer Monday 3 July 1995]: For 1995 it has been estimated that road transport will account for (a) 89 per cent. of national emissions of carbon monoxide, (b) 45 per cent. of national emissions of oxides of nitrogen and (c) 24 per cent. of national emissions of particulates.

EDUCATION

Special Education

Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent representations he has received from the secretary of the Special Educational Needs National Advisory Council, university of Liverpool; what action he intends to take; and if he will make a statement. [32328]

Mr. Forth: The Secretary of State has received one letter recently from the Special Educational Needs National Advisory Council—about training for special educational needs co-ordinators (SENCOs).

The GEST programme to help local educational authorities with the costs of training teachers of children with special educational needs supports all categories of SEN training, including for SENCOs, enabling LEAs to determine the areas in which they require staff to be trained. Officials are currently undertaking a survey of LEA expenditure under the grant in the 1994–95 financial year.

SENCO training is also available under the GEST programme for the development of school SEN policies. An evaluation of expenditure under the scheme by a sample of LEAs will be undertaken in the autumn of next year.

A full reply will be sent to the advisory council shortly.

Grant-maintained Schools

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Education, pursuant to her answer of 30 January, Official Report, column 497, what was the pupil:teacher ratio in grant-maintained secondary schools in January. [32182]

Mr. Robin Squire: The provisional pupil:teacher ration in grant-maintained secondary schools in England in January 1995 was 16:2.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in her Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32180]

Mr. Boswell: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Higher Education

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what responses have been received to the consultation on the purpose and future shape and size of higher education; and if she will make a statement. [32194]

Mrs. Gillian Shephard: I am replying with the agreement of my right hon. Friends with responsibility for education in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. Altogether, there have been nearly 100 responses to this consultation. I am grateful to all those who took the trouble to send us their views. I am arranging for copies to be placed in the Library.

The responses indicate that, while the objectives identified in the 1963 Robbins report remain broadly valid, there is now more emphasis on higher education's role in underpinning a modern, competitive economy. Both initial and continuing higher education are seen as increasingly important for equipping the work force for higher-skilled work, for coping with change, for handling the rapid proliferation of knowledge, for meeting the challenges of scientific and technical advance and for competing on a global stage.

A number of steps are already being taken which will bear on the responsiveness of higher education to the needs of employers and the economy as a whole. First, the National Council for Vocational Qualifications is consulting in England, Wales and Northern Ireland about the introduction of higher level general vocational qualifications, GNVQs, to complement those at levels 1–3 being developed for schools and colleges. Secondly, the Government have announced a new target for 30 per cent. of the work force to have a vocational, professional, management or academic qualification at NVQ level 4 and above. There are separate comparable targets for Scotland launched last year by the Advisory Scottish Council for Education and Training Targets. Thirdly, the Government have announced that they will consult later in the year about lifelong learning at all levels. Fourthly, the Higher Education Funding Council for England is undertaking a review of postgraduate education, including one-year vocational postgraduate taught courses, for a report in the spring of next year.

The Government will take into account the responses received and the various steps already being taken in developing their higher education policies, and intend to issue a consultative paper. It will cover recent achievements in higher education, the Government's view on the aims and purposes of higher education, an analysis of the demand for higher education as well as for graduates in the economy and the scope for enhancing higher education's response to employment needs, and it will seek views on the future size, shape, and resourcing of higher education. We intend to issue the paper towards the end of this year.

Overseas Students

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the value to the United Kingdom economy of students from aborad studying at United Kingdom higher education institutions; and what assessment she has made of the corresponding situation in other European Union countries. [32451]

Mr. Boswell: Recent research by the Committee of Vice Chancellors and Principals of the Universities of the United Kingdom estimated the economic value of international higher education students in the United Kingdom at approximately £1 billion. I am not aware of any equivalent studies in other European Union countries.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps she is taking to ensure that United Kingdom universities attract a fair share of well-qualified students from overseas. [32449]

Mr. Boswell: This Department, in conjunction with the other education departments, has recently produced a booklet entitled "Studying in the United Kingdom" which aims to let students, as well as their parents and sponsors, know more about the quality of further and higher education in the United Kingdom. The booklet is being distributed mainly by the Government-funded British Council, which also provides the education counselling service, ECS. The ECS is represented in 11 countries across the world and spends around £3.5 million each year on jointly funded projects with institutions in attracting overseas students to the UK. By 1998, it is planned to expand this service to a total of 18 countries at a cost of £5.5 million per year.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many students from overseas not including European Union students come to the United Kingdom for higher education; and what is her estimate of the value to the United Kingdom economy. [32450]

Mr. Boswell: In 1992, the latest year for which figures are available, some 60,200 students from non-European Union countries attended publicly funded higher education institutions in the United Kingdom. A recent research study commissioned by the Committee of Vice Chancellors and Principals of the Universities of the United Kingdom estimated the economic value of all international higher education students in they United Kingdom at approximately £1 billion per annum.

Absence (Respiratory Problems)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many children under the age of 16 years missed more than 18 school days due to respiratory problems is each of the last five years; if she will provide a regional breakdown of these figures; and if she will make a statement. [31924]

Mr. Forth: This information is not collected centrally.

Out-of-school Provision

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will provide a breakdown of the forms of provision made by each local education authority to children out of school. [31824]

Mr. Forth: This information is not available centrally.

School Meals

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the percentage of pupils taking (a) free school meals and (b) paid for school meals in (i) grant maintained schools and (ii) local education authority schools in the most recent years. [31513]

Mr. Robin Squire: The information requested is shown in the table:

Percentages of day pupils[1] taking free and paid school meals in maintained primary and secondary schools in England

Position in January each year

	LEA maintained schools		Grant-maintained schools
	Free	Paid	Free	Paid
1990	11	32	8	48
1991	12	31	6	45
1992	14	29	7	41
1994	18	29	10	38

[1] The number of day pupils who took a school meal on the census day expressed as a percentage of the number of day pupils on roll. A substantial reason for the difference in the respective percentages of pupils eligible for free school meals is the disproportionate number of LEAs with few or no GM schools who have a relatively high proportion of pupils thus eligible.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many voluntary sector organisations her Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31313]

Mr. Robin Squire: In 1993–94, 141 such organisations received a total of £5.9 million. Comparable information for 1994–95 is not yet available, but I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible with the figures.

EMPLOYMENT

Incomes

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the average take-home pay of (a) a lone mother and (b) both adults in a two-parent family with dependent children. [31590]

Mr. Oppenheim: It is estimated from the winter 1994 labour force survey that the take-home pay for a lone mother, excluding benefits, is approximately £128 per week and the combined take-home pay, excluding benefits, of both adults in a two-parent family with dependent children is £357 per week.

Benefits

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many and what percentage of children aged 18 years or under were dependent on people claiming unemployment benefit in (a) York, (b) North Yorkshire, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside and (d) England in each year since 1979. [31604]

Mr. Oppenheim: Information on those aged 18 and under who are dependent on people claiming unemployment-related benefits is available from the labour force survey for England and Yorkshire and Humberside and for 1992–1994 is shown. Information for 1979–1983 is not available and for 1984–1991 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Training

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many and what percentage of people aged under 21 years are on Government-supported training schemes in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England. [31591]

Mr. Paice: The information requested is given in the table. Information for those on Government training programmes is not available for York. Information on the age of trainees is not available for all programmes, so the table covers youth training only. The latest available information on the numbers on YT is for March 1995. As the latest information on the population aged under 21 years of age is for mid-year 1994, YT figures for June 1994 are also given.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what percentage of people aged under 21 years leaving Government-supported training schemes in the past 12 months (a) obtained a recognised NVQ and (b) obtained a full-time job in the field for which they trained in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England. [31592]

Mr. Paice: Information on the age of trainees is not available for all programmes, so the information provided covers youth training only. The latest 12 months for which information is available is for September 1993 to August 1994 leavers. The percentage of people leaving YT during this period who obtained a qualification or credit towards one is 49 per cent. for North Yorkshire training and enterprise council (TEC), 52 per cent. for Yorkshire and Humberside and 52 per cent. for England. Information is not available for York. Information is not separately available at present for recognised national vocational qualifications.

The percentage of people leaving YT between September 1993 and August 1994 who had obtained a full-time job in a field closely related to that in which they received training is given in the table. Regional and TEC level information is not available.

Merseyside TEC

Ms Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) how many places are provided by Merseyside TEC on the jacuzzi course; and what is the cost per place; [31485]

(2) what arrangements are in place to monitor the success of the jacuzzi course provided by Merseyside TEC; how many people have to date completed the jacuzzi course provided by Merseyside TEC; and what assessment he has made of whether the course is an appropriate use of the training budget; [31487]

(3) what course fees or other payments are paid to Mr. Keith Elliott, course leader of the jacuzzi course, by Merseyside TEC, and to the Liverpool Moat House hotel for providing a venue for the course. [31486]

Mr. Paice: In February 1995, Merseyside training and enterprise council piloted a three-day course aimed at building up the motivation and confidence of long-term unemployed people. The course was designed to prepare them for entry on to a training for work programme by giving practical and positive advice on how to retrain and seek employment. The eight people who completed this course went on to further training, with six gaining work-related qualifications and one obtaining a work placement. The qualifications gained will be valuable, in helping them secure employment.

On the strength of the success of this pilot course, Merseyside TEC contracted with John Moores university to deliver a further three-day course commencing 20 June 1995. Fourteen people completed this course and a similar evaluation of the longer-term benefits is currently under way.

The Department contracts with the TECs for the provision of training. TECs are private sector companies and details of the financial arrangements that they make with subcontractors to organise and deliver training are commercial-in-confidence and not part of the Department's contract.

Through the Government office for Merseyside, the Department has in place regular monitoring arrangements to ensure Merseyside TEC's delivery of its programmes, meets the quality standards laid down in its contract.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many and what percentage of 16 to 18-year-olds were in full-time employment in (a) York, (b) North Yorkshire, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside and (d) England in each year since 1979. [31605]

Mr. Oppenheim: The information is shown in the table:

Person aged 16 to 18 years old in full-time employment in Great Britain: spring of each year

Trichloroethylene

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what proposals he has for banning trichloroethylene. [31654]

Mr. Oppenheim: There are no current plans to prohibit the manufacture or use of trichloroethylene.

Mr. O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many fatal cases there have been in each of the last 10 years from the use or inhalation of trichloroethylene. [31655]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Health and Safety Executive records the number of fatalities in workplaces in which trichloroethylene is implicated. The information on its database is shown in the table:

Year	Incidents
1985	nil
1986	nil
1988	1
1989	nil
1990	1

Workplace Accidents (Children)

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 22 June, Official Report, column 384, what plans he has to undertaken an assessment as to the reliability of surveys and official statistics collated and published by his Department, on accidents at work which involve school-age children. [31714]

Mr. Oppenheim: Statistics collected by the Health and Safety Executive give a reliable indication of trends.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will detail the criteria followed by the Health and Safety Executive when deciding whether to prosecute in cases of accidents at work which involve school-age children.

Mr. Oppenheim: The Health and Safety Executive investigates information or complaints concerning the employment of children from local authority child employment officers or any other source. If children are found to be working illegally the employer is told to dismiss the children and their employment is terminated at once. When deciding whether to prosecute, HSE considers the gravity of the offence, the general record and approach of the offender, the deterrent effect and whether the evidence available provides a realistic prospect of conviction.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will investigate the decision taken by the senior Birmingham inspector of the Health and Safety Executive not to prosecute the European African Trading Company for serious breaches of child labour legislation when requested to do so by the Birmingham education authority child employment department. [31715]

Mr. Oppenheim: In August 1994, staff of the Health and Safety Executive's west midlands area office investigated a complaint from Birmingham education authority child employment department about the employment of school-age children. Insufficient evidence was found to support that complaint.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will detail the powers of entry available to investigating and enforcement officers of the Health and Safety Executive (a) in all cases and (b) in those cases with which involve school-age children. [31713]

Mr. Oppenheim: Section 20(2)(a) of the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974 gives Health and Safety Executive inspectors the power to enter premises at any reasonable time, or at any time in a situation which is or may be dangerous, where there is reason to believe that it is necessary for the purpose of carrying into effect any of the relevant statutory provisions within the field of responsibility of the enforcing authority. That applies to all premises for which HSE is the enforcing authority.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 22 June, Official Report, column 384, what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the current system whereby an employer may choose to report an accident at work involving a school-age child either to the Health and Safety Executive or to the local education authority. [31717]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1985 require employers to notify forthwith the appropriate enforcing authority, for the purposes of the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974, in the event of an accident to any person of any age arising out of or in connection with work and resulting in a fatality or major injury. Accidents at work to employees of all ages resulting in an absence of more than three days must be reported within seven days.

Employers do not have a choice of enforcing authority. The enforcing authority will be either the Health and Safety Executive or the local authority for the area and is determined by the nature of the main activity undertaken on the site concerned, according to the provisions of the Health and Safety (Enforcing Authority) Regulations 1989.

Training and Enterprise Councils

Mr. Pearson: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what representations he has received from TECs on the length of the TEC operating agreement; and what are their main concerns. [31823]

Mr. Paice: I meet regularly with representatives of training and enterprise councils and I am aware of their concerns about the length and content of the TEC operating agreement. The agreement is necessary for proper stewardship of public funds and is reviewed annually.

Mr. Pearson: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many TECs (a) are currently financially viable (b) are in the low-risk band under financial appraisal and monitoring, (c) are delivering the YT guarantee, (d) are recognised as an investor in people and (e) have an operational business link; and how many meet all five of these requirements. [31752]

Mr. Paice: Of the training and enterprise councils in England the information is as follows:

(a) Financial Viability

All 74 TECs are assessed as being financially viable.

(b) Financial Appraisal and Monitoring Risk Bands

73 TECs were assessed as being low risk at the end of March 1995. One was assessed as medium risk.

(c) Youth Training Guarantee

All TECs deliver the YT guarantee as part of their contractual requirements.

(d) Investors in People

50 TECs are currently recognised as Investors in People.

(e) Business Links

There are 107 business link outlets covering 34 TEC areas.

Twenty seven TECs satisfy all five requirements.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list all training providers contracted to Hampshire training and enterprise councils at 1 January in each of the past five years and in each case the number of training places provided. [31842]

Mr. Paice: The information is not available in the format requested. Training and enterprise councils are private companies and as such are not required to provide this Department with such information. It is for TECs to decide how they contract with their training providers in order to deliver their contract to the Department. It is up to individual TECs to provide such information direct to hon. Members.

Industrial Tribunals

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many industrial tribunal cases were considered since 1979, by region; and how many resulted in a verdict of unfair dismissal. [32312]

Mr. Oppenheim: The number of industrial tribunal cases in all jurisdictions considered at a hearing, by region, since 1986 is shown in the table. The number of successful unfair dismissal cases is also shown.

Region (England and Wales)	Number of cases heard (1986–1995)	Number of successful unfair dismissal cases
Bedford	8,282	2,284
Birmingham	10,920	2,593
Bristol	8,001	1,788
Cardiff	7,825	1,466
Leeds	13,227	3,204
London North	14,143	2,665
London South	14,237	3,374
Manchester	17,735	4,490
Newcastle	6,609	1,551
Nottingham	7,960	1,922
Southampton	9,633	2,376
Scotland	15,357	3,808

The raw data for individual regions are no longer available for 1985–86, but the aggregated figures for Great Britain for that year are as follows:

Number of cases heard: 13,357

Number of successful unfair dismissal cases: 3,229

Prior to 1985–86, the Department published selected statistics only, and then not on a regular annual basis.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list for each training and enterprise council its budget for 1995–96. [31711]

Mr. Paice: The budgets of individual training and enterprise councils are treated as commercial in confidence between the Department and TECs until the autumn, while TECs complete their negotiations with providers of training.

Health and Safety Executive

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 282, how the degree of hazard and risk posed to employees and the public is measured if the Health and Safety Executive does not specifically identify high-risk and low-risk premises. [32316]

Mr. Oppenheim: Health and Safety Executive inspectors use their professional judgement to assess the degree of hazard and risk posed to employees and the public when they visit premises. In the field operations division, this assessment is formalised in the inspection rating system referred to in my answer to the hon. Member on 21 June 1995, Official Report, column 282.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what estimated health and safety inspector time, in hours, has been spent (a) to date and (b) is planned, in preparing the consultative document, "The Role and Status of Approved Codes of Practice". [32314]

Mr. Oppenheim: During the preparation of the consultative document, on "The Role and Status of Approved Codes of Practice", which was published on 14 March 1995, all divisions of the Health and Safety Executive were consulted about its content and accuracy. The divisions contain inspectors engaged in both operational and policy work, some of whom contributed to the development of the consultative document. However, hours spent on this work and the grades of personnel involved were not recorded and cannot now be estimated. Most of the work done in the preparation of the document was carried out by administrative staff.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 281, what he estimates the final cost of undertaking the current review of the Health and Safety Executive's field operations division to be. [32315]

Mr. Oppenheim: The current review of the Health and Safety Executive's field operations division will need to take account of the report of the senior management review of the Employment Department group which is being undertaken to follow up the White Paper "Continuity and Change" published last summer. That review is still in progress. It is not possible to anticipate the implications for the field operations division review, or its final cost.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the total value of the Health and Safety Executive's field operations division training budget. [32376]

Mr. Oppenheim: The training budget for 1995–96 administered by the field operations division is £678,380. This excludes costs of training for FOD staff provided by the Health and Safety Executive's central training management unit which in 1994–95 amounted to £1,191,165.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the total value of the Health and Safety Executive's information technology budget. [32319]

Mr. Oppenheim: The total value of the Health and Safety Executive's information technology budget for 1995–96 is £9,565,000.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will ask the Secretary of State for Education to instruct local education authorities to submit annual accident returns to the Health and Safety Executive. [31761]

Mr. Oppenheim [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1985 currently require employers, including local education authorities, to notify forthwith the appropriate enforcing authority, for the purposes of the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974, in the event of an accident to any person arising out of or in connection with work and resulting in a fatality or major injury. Accidents at work to employees resulting in an absence of more than three days must be reported within seven days. For local education authorities the enforcing authority in all cases will be the Health and Safety Executive.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will instruct the Health and Safety Executive to prosecute when it is requested to do so by local authority child employment officers. [31762]

Mr. Oppenheim [holding answer 30 June 1995]: The Health and Safety Executive investigates information or complaints concerning the employment of children from local authority child employment officers or any other source. If children are found to be working illegally the employer is told to dismiss the children and their employment is terminated at once. When deciding whether to prosecute, HSE considers the gravity of the offence, the general record and approach of the offender, the deterrent effect and whether the evidence available provides a realistic prospect of conviction.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994-95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32212]

Miss Widdecombe: The information requested is not held centrally and cannot be provided without disproportionate cost. The total amount of travel and subsistence claims paid by the Employment Department group in 1993–94 was £21,498,330 and in 1994–95 was £20,6111,190.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, further to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 286, on the introduction of jobseeker's allowance, if claimants participating in courses not funded by the Further Education Funding Council, including European social fund courses and non-schedule 2 courses, will continue to be able to participate in up to 21 hours per week of supervised study. [32334]

Miss Widdecombe: It is not the case that the current rules allow unemployed people claiming benefits to study for up to 21 hours a week in all circumstances. The rules allow part-time study. Decisions on whether a course is part-time or full-time are made by independent adjudication officers applying the legislation. This will be carried forward into jobseeker's allowance. In the particular case of courses funded by the Further Education Funding Council the new rule for JSA will be that courses of over 16 guided learning hours per week will be classed as full-time. This rule change will not apply to non-schedule 2 courses or courses part-funded by the European social fund which are not also funded by the FEFC or to higher education where the rules will continue to specify "part-time".

International Labour Organisation

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment on how many occasions the person responsible for auditing the accounts of the International Labour Organisation has declined to sign them in the last 10 years. [32398]

Miss Widdecombe: At no time in the last 10 years has the external auditor declined to sign the accounts.

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment who was appointed and when to audit the accounts of the International Labour Organisation. [32399]

Miss Widdecombe: The UK National Audit Office was first appointed as external auditor of the International Labour Organisation in 1978 and was reappointed in March 1995 for a further four years from April 1996.

Social Affairs Council

Lady Olga Maitland: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will make a statement on the outcome of the EC Social Affairs Council held on 29 June. [32748]

Mr. Portillo: I attended the Social Affairs Council on 29 June in Luxembourg. I was accompanied by my hon. Friend the Minister of State. Two proposed directives were discussed: the draft posted workers directive and a draft directive amending an existing health and safety directive on the use of work equipment. In addition, the agenda included items on the Commission's new social action programme, the follow-up to the employment conclusions of the Essen European Council, proposed programmes on poverty and on Community support for older people, a resolution on older workers and council conclusions on the quality of vocational training.

There was a brief discussion of the posted workers directive. As at previous Councils, however, no agreement was reached and the dossier was passed to the Spanish presidency.

Political agreement was reached on the draft amending directive on the use of work equipment. The presidency text on which agreement was reached represents a considerable improvement over the more prescriptive proposal originally put forward. Agreement was reached unanimously, with the UK and Italy abstaining.

There was an informal exchange of views on the Commission's new social action programme. My hon. Friend the Minister of State welcomed the programme's recognition that tackling structural unemployment and creating new jobs should be the first priority for the Community's social policy but regretted that the programme none the less proposed more unnecessary and burdensome employment legislation. No formal conclusions were reached.

There was a discussion but no agreement on the proposed new poverty programme and on the programme for older people. A resolution on older workers was agreed and Council conclusions on the quality of vocational training were agreed in principle.

The Spanish Minister and Commissioner Flynn outlined the work they proposed during the Spanish presidency to follow up the Essen conclusions. The presidency reported on progress with the draft directive amending the acquired rights directive.

DEFENCE

National Parks (Live Ammunition)

6. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what further steps he will take to protect the public enjoying the national parks for recreational purposes from dangers of unexploded live ammunition. [30560]

Mr. Soames: My Department will continue to warn the public of the dangers associated with military training areas, including those which fall within national parks. Although training areas are well defined and warning notices are placed at main access points, we are constantly looking for ways to improve further the safety of the public.

Naval Refits

16. Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what circumstances British shipyards will be invited to tender for the refit of Hunt and Sandown class minehunters. [30570]

Mr. Freeman: Under the policy set out by my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on 24 June 1993, British shipyards may be invited to tender for individual refits within the allocated programme should circumstances dictate such a need. Such circumstances might include operational factors, the needs of other vessels or failure to agree a fair and reasonable price with a royal dockyard company.

BMARC

17. Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what has been the role of his Department's police in the BMARC case. [30571]

Mr. Soames: The role of Ministry of Defence police was to investigate allegations of corruption concerning employees of the Astra group of companies.

Cadet Forces

18. Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to improve and enlarge the cadet forces; and what account he takes of their contribution towards (a) good citizenship and (b) service recruiting. [30572]

Mr. Soames: I strongly support the work of the cadet forces, which help very many young people to develop into good citizens. We are pleased that some of them go on to join the services.

European Procurement

19. Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on his Department's policy on European procurement. [30573]

Mr. Freeman: Our procurement policy is based on securing value for money through open competition. European manufactures may bid competitively for the majority of UK defence equipment needs. The UK actively pursues collaboration with our European allies.

Tornadoes (Compensation Claim)

20. Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on compensation by Airwork for damage to F-3 Tornados at RAF St. Athan. [30574]

Mr. Freeman: The extent, nature and supporting evidence for the Department's claim have been notified to Bricom. Formal lodgment claim with the company will be made later this year

Whether or not specific legal action has to be taken will depend on the company's response to the claim.

Bosnia

21. Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the size and cost of the British defence force contribution in Bosnia; and if he will make a statement. [30575]

26. Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the deployment of British forces in Bosnia. [30580]

Mr. Soames: There are currently some 4,400 British troops in the former Yugoslavia as part of UNPROFOR. More than 4,000 additional troops from 24 Airmobile Brigade are on standby to deploy shortly. The cost to date, as at 31 March 1995, of our contribution to UNPROFOR is some £224,000,000. The estimated cost for the currents financial year is in the region of £130,000,000. This figure does not include the cost of deploying 24 Airmobile Brigade as the modalities of funding are still the subject of discussion. In accordance with long established arrangements, my Department recovers these costs from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office which in turn seeks reimbursement from the UN.

Test Ban Treaty

22. Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his assessment of the prospects of concluding a comprehensive test ban treaty for nuclear weapons. [30576]

Mr. Freeman: It should be possible to conclude negotiations on a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty by the end of 1996. Her Majesty's Government will continue to work actively for that end.

Service Accommodation

24. Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to accelerate the transfer of redundant married quarters and other residential accommodation to civilian use. [30578]

Mr. Soames: My Department has accepted a target to dispose of 4,000 surplus married quarters by the summer of 1996. It has been agreed that properties identified for sale, but on which no sale is in progress after six months, will be auctioned.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many homes were owned at 1 April by his Department or the armed services; and how many were unoccupied on that date in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside, (iv) England and (v) elsewhere. [31586]

Mr. Soames: As at 31 March, the latest date for which figures are available, my Department owned the following dwellings:

	Stock	Vacant
York	530	100
North Yorkshire	4,382	538
Yorkshire and Humberside	5,243	776
England	53,789	10,298
Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland	20,249	2,931

Of the vacant properties, five in York, 68 in North Yorkshire, 161 in Yorkshire and Humberside, 2,947 in England and 289 in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland were in the process of being sold.

Many of the remaining vacant properties were undergoing or awaiting major maintenance work, held for unit deployments, already allotted to families due to move in shortly or formed part of the management margin needed to ensure that accommodation is available for entitled service families.

Conference on Disarmament, Geneva

25. Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with the United Kingdom's ambassador to the conference on disarmament in Geneva; and if he will make a statement. [30579]

Mr. Freeman: Officials from my Department are in regular contact with the UK delegation to the conference on disarmament.

Land Mines

27. Mr. Dunn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next expects to review the United Kingdom's moratorium on the export of anti-personnel land mines which was announced in July 1994. [30581]

Mr. Freeman: The moratorium introduced in July 1994 was reviewed and extended in March of this year. It now prohibits the export of non-self-destruct and non-detectable anti-personnel mines to any country, and the export of any type of anti-personnel mine to countries which have not ratified the UN Weaponry Convention. It will be kept under review, particularly in the light of the forthcoming UN weaponry convention review conference, and of the UK-US proposals for a land mine control programme.

Coulport and Faslane

28. Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many civilians are employed at the establishments at Coulport and Faslane. [30582]

Mr. Freeman: As at 1 April 1995, there were approximately 1,500 civilian staff employed at RNAD Coulport and some 2,000 at CSB Faslane.

Arms Exports

29. Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to amend specific answers to parliamentary questions tabled on matters relating to arms exports with particular reference to weapons contractors. [30583]

Mr. Freeman: Following the statement by my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade on BMARC, Departments have as a prudent measure, started to research some associated areas of defence exports to Singapore. It is too early to draw even tentative conclusions. Any evidence of illegal activity will of course be brought immediately to the attention of Customs and Excise, the independent prosecuting authority for its consideration.

Nuclear Weapons Testing

30. Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with his French colleagues on testing of nuclear weapons. [30584]

Mr. Freeman: My right hon. and learned Friend has discussed nuclear testing with the French Defence Minister, most recently at their meeting on 27 June.

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with his French counterpart concerning the negotiation of a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty. [30577]

Mr. Freeman: The negotiation of a comprehensive nuclear test-ban treaty was one of the wide range of defence matters that my right hon. and learned Friend discussed with Mr. Millon when they met last week.

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for further scientific collaboration with the United States of America on nuclear warhead testing. [32414]

Mr. Freeman: We plan to continue to cooperate closely with the US over a wide range of nuclear technical matters, including alternatives to nuclear weapon testing, which will be necessary under a comprehensive test ban treaty.

RAF Air Crew (Self-authorising Status)

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of Royal Air Force air crew hold self-authorising status; what is the lowest rank of officer authorised to grant such status; and what instructions are given to those with the power to grant such status, concerning the criteria to be adopted in granting this status. [31337]

Mr. Soames: The authority to grant self-authorising status is determined by appointment, not rank, and is vested in station commanders who, in most instances, are group captains. Instructions governing the granting of such status are contained in chapter 12 of the Queen's regulations for the Royal Air Force and orders issued by the command authority. The number and rank of officers holding this status is dependent on operational and training requirements and thus subject to constant revision. Consequently, no central records are kept and such information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

UN Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many days service on UN peacekeeping activities were carried out by United Kingdom military personnel in 1994. [31507]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is not recorded centrally. The number of United Kingdom personnel involved in peacekeeping operations as at the end of each month in 1994 was as follows:

Year	Number
January	2,642
February	2,576
March	3,233
April	3,901
May	3,880
June	4,106
July	3,668
August	4,315
September	4,082
October	4,445
November	3,857
December	3,820

In addition, some 3,500 personnel were engaged throughout the year in operations in support of UN Security Council resolutions.

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many United Kingdom military personnel were engaged on UN peacekeeping operations in each year since 1965. [31508]

Mr. Soames: This information is not held centrally.

War Graves

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what charge is currently made to spouses for photographs of graves of United Kingdom service men and women killed in action in the far east; and if he will make it his policy that his Department covers or waives the charge made to spouses for such photographs; [31413]

(2) he will commission an inquiry into the charges made to the spouses of service men and women killed in action in the far east for photographs of the graves of such service personnel. [31414]

Mr. Soames: Although my Department does not charge the spouses of service men and women killed in action for photographs of the graves, we understand that the Commonwealth War Graves Commission does charge a nominal fee for such photographs. As an independent body created by royal charter and funded by the Commonwealth countries for which it maintains war graves, this is a matter for the commission.

Argentina (Arms Sales)

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations his Department has received from the Argentinian Government about the possible sale of C130-Ks; and if he will make a statement. [32106]

Mr. Freeman: My Department has received no such representations. The UK embargo on defence sales to Argentina would not permit such a sale.

Music Training

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what areas are covered by those taking courses in higher music training; and what is the average length of each course. [32218]

Mr. Soames: Details of the content and length of higher music training courses provided by the three services are as follows:

Royal Marines:

(1) Bugler 1 course

Duration: Five weeks—includes one week of examinations.

Content: Elements–to grade 8, aural and conducting.

(2) Musician 1 course

Duration: Eight weeks—includes one week of examinations.

Contents: Elements—to grade 8, conducting, history, harmony to GCSE standards, aural, scoring, course projects and vive voce—all subject matter covered on the course.

(3) Bandmaster course

Duration: 52 weeks.

Contents: Aural—minimum A-level standard to degree level, vocationally related, harmony and composition, scoring, history and analysis, bandmastership, elements—to advanced degree level, extended composition, conducting and viva voce.

(4) Foreign and Commonwealth students course

Dog Training

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, for each service, how many centres are involved in dog training and where are they located; what is the estimate of the cost of each centre in the current year; and for each centre how many dogs are estimated to be trained in the current year. [32219]

Mr. Soames: This is a matter for the Defence Animal Centre under its framework document. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from A. H. Roache to Mr. Stephen Byers, dated 3 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question regarding the training of dogs.

Following recent rationalisation, the Canine Wing of the Defence Animal Centre, located at Melton Mowbray in Leicestershire, is the only centre involved in the training of dogs for the Armed Forces. It is also able to train dogs and handlers for other government departments. The cost of running the centre in the current year 1995–96 is estimated to be £6.85m which covers cash running costs as well as notional costs for all activities. The cost of canine activities alone is obviously less. It is estimated that 556 dogs will be trained in the current year.

I hope you find this information useful.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32213]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Accounts Agency, who is at present seeking the information requested and will write to the hon. Member shortly with as much as is available. I shall arrange for a copy of his letter to be placed in the Library of the House.

Wrongful Dismissal

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what were the legal costs of his Department in each of the last five years for claims of wrongful dismissal. [32097]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The information requested is not held centrally. The legal costs of wrongful dismissals could be provided only from records in the Treasury Solicitor's department, once my Department had identified all such cases to them. This could only be done at disproportionate cost and could cover only the last three years, since before that date the Treasury Solicitor did not charge Departments for his services. If the hon. Lady wishes to write to my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence with details of the particular category of information is needed, my noble Friend will be happy to consider the matter further.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Contributions Agency

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is his policy towards direct line telephone contact between the Contributions Agency and members of the public; and what measures he has taken to ensure that public inquiries are dealt with quickly and efficiently; [31040]

(2) what impact the business unit analysis restructuring exercise will have upon the number of local offices of the Contributions Agency; [31038]

(3) what steps he has taken to maintain standards of service to the general public provided by the Contributions Agency in light of the business unit analysis restructuring exercise. [31039]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The administration of the Contributions Agency is a matter for Mrs. Faith Boardman, the chief executive. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. Nicholas Brown, dated 3 July 1995:

As Chief Executive of the Contributions Agency, I have responsibility for answering questions about the operation of the Agency. I have been asked to reply to your questions about the restructuring of the Agency's Field Offices and the steps taken to maintain standards of service, and about telephone contact between the Agency and members of the public. In view of the nature of the questions I have combined the responses.

In 1991 the Agency obtained Ministerial approval to move towards a Field network of some 184 Field Offices supported by 90 Inspector outstations. Current research has shown that there is a need to match more closely Contributions Agency outlets to customer locations. Information has been obtained about density of businesses, density of population and locations of the self-employed. This information has been incorporated into the design of the new network; which will consist of around 100–115 locations; comprising 70–75 Field Offices and 30–40 Inspector outstations. This number of locations is similar to the number used by other Revenue collecting organisations dealing with similar operations.

The proposed changes take account of research among customers which shows, in general, that they prefer to make contact by telephone or correspondence. The latest independent Customer Satisfaction Survey undertaken in November and December 1994 shows that 65% of the Agency's customers prefer to contact the Agency by telephone. This is also in line with the experience of other Revenue collecting bodies. The new network of offices will be supported by a fully integrated telephone system providing easier access for the customer to all parts of the Agency. The Agency's change programme includes installation of Information Technology systems which will improve response times for customers and enable quicker processing of work within local offices.

As at present, customers who are unable to call at proposed outlets or who call at a DSS office which does not have a CA presence will be dealt with either by appointment by CA staff or by Benefits Agency staff under the terms of the National Service Statement.

Staff in CA Field Operations will continue to provide a service to the business community advising them about how to operate the National Insurance scheme. This role will be further enhanced in the new organisation with increased emphasis on education and awareness about all aspects of National Insurance.

Communication with customers and the business community will be ongoing to ensure that all those affected by the changes are kept informed and continue to receive an efficient service from the Agency.

I hope you find this reply helpful. If I can be of any further assistance please let me know.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) how many local offices are proposed under the current restructuring proposals of the Contributions Agency; and how many people will, on average, be served by each office; [31240]

(2) what commitments under the citizens charter apply to the service provided by the Contributions Agency; and what account has been taken of these in the proposed restructuring; [31242]

(3) when he expects to lay before Parliament plans for restructuring the Contributions Agency; [31241]

(4) how many local offices of the Contributions Agency currently exist; and how many people are, on average, currently served by each office. [31239]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The administration of the Contributions Agency is a matter for Mrs. Faith Boardman, the chief executive. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. John Denham, dated 3 July 1995:

As Chief Executive of the Contributions Agency, I have responsibility for answering questions about operational matters relating to the Agency and the National Insurance (NI) scheme. I have been asked to reply to your questions about the numbers of local offices, the current restructuring proposals and our commitments under the Citizens's Charter. In view of the nature of the questions I have combined the responses.

In 1991 the Agency obtained Ministerial approval to move towards a Field network of some 184 Field Offices supported by 90 Inspector outstations. There are currently 267 Field locations. The Agency maintains over 60 million individual contributors accounts, and deals with over 1.2 million employers and 2.4 million self-employed people. Figures of the number of customers currently served by each location are not kept, and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. The number of staff currently employed varies considerably between locations from 4 or 5 in some outstations to over 50 in some offices which have already successfully consolidated their operations in one location.

Current research has shown that there is a need to match more closely Contributions Agency outlets to customer locations. Information has been obtained about density of businesses, density of population and locations of the self-employed. This information has been incorporated into the design of the new network which will consist of 9 Regional units outside London, each containing roughly equal numbers of businesses and population. London will be served by 3 Regional units. There will be around 100–115 locations, comprising 70–75 Field Offices and 30–40 Inspector outstations. This number of locations is similar to the number used by other Revenue collecting organisations dealing with similar operations. The exact number of locations has yet to be finalised and it is not possible to give an average figure of the number of people to be served by each location, but overall the effect will be to move to larger numbers which will allow staff to be used more flexibility to meet customer needs and to develop their specialised functional skills and expertise more fully. The locations have been chosen to combine the business needs of the Agency with those of the customer.

The Agency is fully committed to the Citizen's Charter principle and its standards of service are laid down in the Agency's Contributor's and Employer's Charters. These are:

—to reply to complaints sent to the Chief Executive within 10 days

—to respond to enquiries within 10 days

—to reply to a request for a visit within one week and then visit within the next two weeks —to keep waiting time at our reception points to a maximum of 30 minutes —to arrange customer appointments within two weeks

The changes proposed by the restructuring take account of research among customers which shows, in general, that they prefer to make contact by telephone or correspondence. This is also in line with the experience of other Revenue collecting bodies. The latest Customer Satisfaction Survey undertaken in November and December 1994 shows that 65% of the Agency's customers prefer to contact the Agency by telephone. The new network of offices will be supported by a fully integrated telephone system providing easier access for the customer to all parts of the Agency. The Agency's change programme includes installation of information technology systems which will improve response times for customers and enable quicker processing of work within local offices.

As at present, customers who are unable to call at proposed outlets or who call at a DSS office which does not have a CA presence will be dealt with either by appointment by CA staff or by Benefits Agency staff under the terms of the National Service Statement. Implementation of the proposed changes within the Agency will result in an improved service provided by Field offices.

Changes within the Contributions Agency which may impact on customer groups and staff are only introduced after careful consideration of representations received. As re-organisation of a Next Steps Agency is an operational matter this falls within my delegated authority as Chief Executive, I understand that the Secretary of State has no plans to lay the Contributions Agency's restructuring proposals before Parliament.

I hope you will find this reply helpful. If I can be of any further assistance, please let me know.

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment he has made of the role played by the local field officers of the Contributions Agency in monitoring the state of the informal economy and ensuring local employers implement properly the national insurance system. [31116]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The administration of the Contributions Agency is a matter for Mrs. Faith Boardman, the chief executive. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. Llew Smith, dated 3 July 1995:

As Chief Executive of the Contributions Agency, I have responsibility for answering questions about operational matters relating to the National Insurance (NI) scheme. I have been asked to reply to your question about the monitoring role played by the Agency's local field officers.

The Agency is responsible for ensuring compliance with the law on NI matters. To achieve this, NI inspectors, based in our Field Operations local offices, carry out surveys and educational visits to employers to ensure correct administration of the NI scheme. The Secretary of State sets a target for the number of surveys to be undertaken each year. There is currently a re-structuring exercise within our Field Operations which enhances the educational role played by the Agency with increased emphasis on education and awareness of the scheme, the intention being to help our customers "get it right first time".

Proposals for the future include the setting up of dedicated teams specifically to investigate aspects of the informal economy.

I hope you find this reply helpful. If I can be of any further assistance, please let me know.

Social Fund

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was (a) the monthly amount and (b) the total amount of (i) community care grants and (ii) crisis loans in the (1) Paisley, North and (2) Paisley, South parliamentary constituencies which resulted from the flood of December 1994; if he will show in respect of community care grants the average amount awarded to claimants in each constituency, and in respect of crisis loans (A) the average amount and (B) the average weekly repayment which is sought from claimants in each constituency; and if he will make a statement. [31408]

Mr. Roger Evans: The administration of the Social Fund is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member with such information as is available.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Gordon McMaster, dated 3 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about Community Care Grant (CCG) and Crisis Loan (CL) applications received by the Benefits Agency from people affected by the flooding in the Paisley North and Paisley South constituencies.

I should first of all point out that constituency and Benefits Agency (BA) District boundaries do not correspond exactly. Paisley North and Paisley South constituencies are served by the BA District of Renfrew. The information is therefore given for this District.

Information relating to the average weekly repayment of CLs made is not readily available. It could only be obtained by examining every loan award made to the flood victims. In general, if an applicant has no commitments then the repayment rate for a loan is normally 15% of the amount of the Income Support applicable in an individual case. This is intended to ensure both that the repayment rate is appropriate to an applicant's individual circumstances, and that the loan is repaid in the shortest reasonable time. It is also intended to prevent the repayments being too high or going on for too long. However, if the applicant has commitments or debts, rates of 10% or 5% may be applied and even lower rates may be used in extreme cases. Full regard is taken of the applicant's income and any existing commitments when decisions on the rate of repayment are made.

At Annex A I have provided information on the total and average amounts of CCG and CL awards made in the District as at 31 January 1995. After this date only one other application was received from a victim of the flood. The application was made in June and resulted in a CCG award of £869.

I hope you find this reply useful.

Annex A: Details of community care grant and crisis loan awards made by Renfrew district as at 31 January 1995

District	Benefit type	Number of awards	Amount awarded £	Average award £
Renfrew	Community care grant	424	80,951	190.92
	Crisis loans	99	13,159	132.92

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what recent consideration he has given the operation of the social fund review process. [32852]

Mr. Evans: I am pleased to announce that an improvement to the social fund review process will be made and will take effect from 4 September 1995. The change is designed to streamline the stages of the first tier of the social fund review procedures and will improve the speed and the efficiency with which cases are handled within the Benefits Agency district offices.

Applicants will, of course, continue to retain the right of an independent review by a social fund inspector.

Income Support

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many and what percentage of children aged 18 years or under were living in families dependent on (a) income support or supplementary benefit and (b) family credit in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each year since 1979. [31584]

Mr. Roger Evans: Such information as is available is set out in the tables. Income support data for York cannot be provided. Reliable data for North Yorkshire is available only from 1993 following an increase in the sample size. Information for the statistical region of Yorkshire and Humberside is only available from 1991. Family credit data cannot be provided for the specified regions.

Number of dependents in families in receipt of income support in North Yorkshire and Yorkshire and Humberside

Ms Liz Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social security how many people claimed income support by (a) gender and (b) age, for each region in England in the last month for which figures are available and (ii) in the same month in each year since 1990. [32391]

Mr. Evans: I have placed a copy of the available information in the Library.

Pilot Correspondence

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what changes he is considering in the organisation and pattern of replies he expects to make in respect of specific individual cases brought to his attention by hon. Members. [31943]

Mr. Hague: Hon. Members continue to receive individual replies to queries raised on behalf of their constituents. A pilot correspondence unit was set up in April to test whether centralising the management of staff dealing with departmental correspondence would help provide a better service to Ministers, hon. Members and the public.

The pilot project will last until the autumn. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will then consider the results of the exercise, with regard to quality of replies and efficiency of the service provided.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to extend the central correspondence section pilot scheme; what representations he has received concerned the pilot; and what means of consultation will be carried out with hon. Members before any further extension of the scheme is made. [31925]

Mr. Hague: The pilot correspondence unit was set up in April to test whether centralising the management of staff dealing with Departmental correspondence would provide a better service to Ministers, hon. Members and the public.

The pilot project will last until the autumn. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will then consider the results of the exercise, with regard to quality of replies and efficiency of the service provided. In the first three months of operations the unit has replied more than 2,000 inquiries from hon. member. There have been no complaints about the quality of the replies received.

We have received several letters from hon. Members in response to the letter sent by Mr. Sheldon of the National Union of Civil and Public Servants.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what steps his Department is taking to pilot a project to standardise replies to inquiries from hon. members; and if he will make a statement. [31665]

Mr. Hague: None. The Department's pilot project aims to provide hon. Members with replies which answer their specific concerns. Ministers personally approve and sign all replies to hon. Members on policy issues.

The arrangements whereby agency chief executives reply to hon. Members about cases involving their constituents are not altered.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31305]

Mr. Hague: The information requested is in the table.

Year	Number of organisations paid grants	Number of contracts	Total value £
1993–94	83	85	17,001,000
1994–95	85	87	18,591,000

The figures quoted show actual expenditure. Figures rounded to nearest £000.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if a person signing on as unemployed will have this held against him in an appeal for incapacity benefit. [31662]

Mr. Hague: No.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to ensure that a claimant denied incapacity benefit further to appeal, and in turn denied benefit as being classed as unemployed, as the claimant could be deemed unfit for work, will not be left without any money. [31663]

Mr. Hague: The decision on incapacity for work applies across the benefit system. People found capable of work, including those who appeal against that decision, are entitled to claim unemployment benefits if they are available for and actively seeking work. People who are not looking for work may claim income support while waiting for their appeal to be heard.

Mr. Alan Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if people who appeal against a decision that they are capable of work and claim income support pending their appeal will have their full incapacity benefit reinstated for the period between the date of the original decision and the date of the appeal decision. [32040]

Mr. Hague: If a social security appeal tribunal uphold an appeal against a decision that a person is capable of work, any incapacity benefit withheld pending the tribunal decision will be paid. Where income support has been in payment for the period covered by the backdated incapacity benefit, this payment will be reduced to take account of the income support actually paid.

Mr. Alan Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what advice will be given to claimants appealing against a decision that they are capable of work concerning their benefit entitlement pending a tribunal hearing. [32041]

Mr. Hague: In addition to advice from officials in Benefits Agency and Employment Services Offices, everyone found capable of work after application of all work test will be sent, with their decision notice, leaflet IB 203 which explains the help available in finding work and claiming benefits.

Mr. Alan Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security of those people in 1995–96 whom he expects to appeal against a decision that they are capable of work, how many he estimates will, (a) sign on as unemployed and (b) claim income support without signing on. [32043]

Mr. Hague: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Manchester, Withington (Mr. Bradley) on 7 March, Official Report, column 168.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if claimants in receipt of incapacity benefit may retain benefit entitlement for up to four weeks during which they are on a training for work scheme on a trial basis; and if they are deemed to be available for work. [32332]

Mr. Hague: Availability for work is not an issue. Incapacity Benefit claimants who undertake training for work receive an allowance equivalent to their benefit entitlement and additional £10. This is not incapacity benefit. Linking provisions ensure that if there is a break in incapacity benefit entitlement of less than eight weeks, claimants can return to the rate of benefit in payment before the break. For claimants on the short-term higher or long-term rates who attend training courses, this is extended to two years, provided that they are incapable of work when the training course ends.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what help will be offered to a claimant denied the jobseeker's allowance for up to 26 weeks because that claimant had been dismissed from his job. [31664]

Mr. Roger Evans: Sanctioned claimants in vulnerable groups—those with children, those who are sick or pregnant or those who have a sick or pregnant partner, or who have caring responsibilities—may have access to hardship payments, at a reduced rate of jobseeker's allowance throughout the period of the sanction. Claimants who are not in vulnerable groups will receive no benefit for the first two weeks or a sanction; thereafter they may receive hardship payments if they can demonstrate that they or their partner would otherwise suffer hardship.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if, on the introduction of jobseeker's allowance, (a) carers receiving invalid care allowance and (b) claimants in receipt of severe disablement allowance will continue to be able to study up to 21 hours per week on education and training courses without prejudice to benefit entitlement. [32333]

Mr. Evans: We are considering what changes, if any, need to be made to invalid care allowance and severe disablement allowance when jobseeker's allowance is introduced.

National Insurance

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total amount of (a) employers' and (b) employees' national insurance contributions collected for each of the last 10 fiscal years expressed (i) at April 1995 prices and (ii) as a percentage of total Exchequer income. [32335]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information requested is in the table.

	UK contribution income April 1995 prices (£ billion)		Percentage of UK Exchequer income
	Employees' NICs	Employers' NICs	Employees' NICs	Employer's NICs
1985–86	18.85[1]	19.50	8	8
1986–87	19.29	20.85	8	9
1987–88	20.50	22.24	8	9

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32175]

Mr. Hague: Information is not available in the form requested. The total amount of UK travel claims at constant 1994–95 prices in this Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 is as follows:

Residential Care Homes

Sir John Gorst: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what are the latest figures for the number of residents of care or nursing homes with preserved rights to the higher limits of income support, whose total entitlement to social security benefits does not meet their care home fees; and how many such residents are in care homes in the London borough of Barnet. [32528]

Mr. Roger Evans: There are 57,000 people in Great Britain with preserved rights to the higher levels of income support whose total entitlement to income support does not meet their care home fees. Some of these residents may have disregarded benefit, income or capital which could be used to meet any shortfalls.

Figures are not available for the London borough of Barnet.

Income Support Quarterly Statistical Enquiry: May 1994.

Former Foreign Heads of State

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what special rules apply to former heads of state of foreign countries in respect of social security payments; and what is the current procedure for handling claims from such persons. [32517]

Mr. Hague: None. Any claim from such a person is handled in the normal manner.

WALES

Housing Renovation Grants

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales in what circumstances district councils found allocating money received by them from his Department towards housing renovation grants without following the procedure laid down in the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 are liable to repay monies to his Department; on what extent local councillors are surchargeable for dereliction of duty in those circumstances; and who is responsible for instigating surcharges. [31275]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The question of recovery would depend on the circumstances of each case. Local authorities are required to certify that their in-year and final claims meet the legal requirements and that they will notify the Welsh Office of any irregularity. The Welsh Office can suspend or abate on-account payments where it is notified of suspected fraud or other irregularity and can adjust overpaid contributions under a determination made under section 132 of the Local Government and Housing Act.

Section 19 of the Local Government Finance Act 1982 provides that if it appears to the district auditor that any item of account is contrary to law, he may apply to the courts for a declaration to that effect. If such a declaration is made, the courts have various powers including the surcharge of those responsible for authorising the expenditure.

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts within (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31298]

Mr. Richards: In 1993–94 369 voluntary organisations in Wales received grants totalling £18.6 million from the Welsh Office, mainly in direct funding, although some indirect grants are also included. Details of outturn expenditure for 1994–95 will be available shortly and I will write to the hon. Lady.

Details of the number of voluntary organisations contracting with the Welsh Office and the value of these contracts are as follows:

Year	Number	Amount £
1993–94	44	543,100
1994–95	51	672,940

Trunk Road Improvements

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what were the specific environmental reasons for the withdrawal of the A40 Treffgarne Rocks improvement from the road improvement programme in Wales. [31376]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: "Roads in Wales: 1994 Review" identified priority routes and schemes on which resources are to be concentrated. This followed a review of all schemes in the trunk road programme, taking account of economic, traffic and environmental considerations. Against this background it was judged that the scale of the previously envisaged improvement at Treffgarne Rocks could not be justified. The relevant environmental factors included the landscape, river habitats, protected species, wildlife and the river itself within the Treffgarne Rocks, Gorge and Tors sites of special scientific interest.

Mr. Alan W. Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list for each trunk road improvement scheme listed in table 1 of the 1986 Welsh Office document, "Roads for Wales: the 1990s and Beyond", and described as expected to start between January 1988 and December 1990 (a) the actual starting date for construction, (b) the completion date and (c) the cost; and if he will also list those schemes that have been abandoned or where there is still no definite starting date. [31848]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The information requested is set out as follows. A revised forward programme was published in "Road in Wales: 1994 Review", and updated in the Welsh Office's departmental report 1995, Cm 2815.

Infertility Treatment

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many Welsh health authorities fund the ICSI infertility treatment either within their own hospitals or as extra-contractual referrals. [23504]

Mr. Richards: This information is not held centrally.

Schools Performance

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the total number of schools in Gwent included in examination league tables published in each year; and what was the position in those tables of Gwent's grant-maintained schools. [32104]

Mr. Richards: The information on individual school performance is published in county booklets which lists schools in alphabetical order by postal district. They are not presented in ranked position. The total number of schools in the booklet for Gwent is as follows:

	1992	1993	1994
LEA maintained schools	28	29	30
Grant-maintained schools	2	2	3
Special schools	5	2	1
Independent schools	1	3	3

Assisted Places Scheme

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, if he will list those schools which pupils have (a) left and (b) moved to under the assisted places scheme in the past five years; and what were the numbers of placements for each school per year. [32105]

Mr. Richards: Information about pupil movements is not available centrally. The numbers of new assisted places taken per year for each school is as follows:

School	Academic year 1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95

Rent and Council Tax

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, if he will list for each district council the amount of (a) uncollected rent from council houses, and (b) uncollected council or poll tax; and what percentage in each case the uncollected amounts represent of the annual revenue. [32525]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The available information is given in the following table. The uncollected amounts are as at 31 March 1995 and are given as percentages of income for the financial year 1994–95.

[4] The collectable debit is the total amount billed for the financial year 1994–95 net of council tax benefit.

Grant-Maintained Schools

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the total (a) capital payments and (b) revenue payments made to grant-maintained schools in Wales in each year since their status changed. [32109]

Mr. Richards: The information is as follows:

Year	Capital payments £	Revenue payments £
1991–92	—	1,101,134
1992–93	500,367	4,540,974

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices in his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32179]

Mr. David Hunt: Expenditure figures for travel claims are not available in the form requested. Separate figures are available for rail and air travel and for road travel by private car—mileage allowance—or by hire cars as follows:

	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Rail and air	427,557	420,552
Road	564,658	550,900

Euro-Freight Terminal

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he expects to announce a decision on funding the proposed Euro-freight terminal in south-east Wales. [32393]

Mr. David Hunt: As soon as practicable.

Nurses' Pay

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many trusts and directly managed hospitals in Wales have made pay offers to the nursing professions; and if he will list those which have not yet made offers. [32392]

Mr. David Hunt: All NHS trusts and directly managed units in Wales which employ nurses have made pay offers.

TREASURY

Manchester Ship Canal

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has had from Manchester city council about protecting the Manchester ship canal from the possible impact of proposals related to a proposed landfill tax; what reply he is sending; and if he will make a statement. [30995]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The leader of Manchester city council, Councillor Graham Stringer, who is also director of the Manchester Ship Canal Co., wrote to my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor on 15 June about the effect of the landfill tax on dredging operations. I replied on 4 July. Copies of the correspondence have been placed in the Library.

Brent Spar

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what Government tax subsidy was being allowed to the Shell UK company in respect of the sinking of the Brent Spar oil platform; whether it will still be eligible if the platform is broken up on land; whether this tax subsidy will be available to other oil companies when they wish to dispose of their offshore oil rig platforms; and if he will make a statement. [31500]

Sir George Young: As with all other taxpayers, the tax affairs of Shell UK Ltd. are confidential between it and the Inland Revenue. Companies operating in the North sea can claim relief against petroleum revenue tax and corporation tax on the cost of decommissioning their offshore oil installations. In the case of Brent Spar, Shell has already announced publicly that it will forgo the tax relief on any additional cost if onshore disposal were to proceed.

Information Technology Contracts

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 263, if he will place in the Library details of those specific provisions designed to guarantee continuity of service in information technology contracts in the event of a transfer to another supplier or divert to the Department. [31849]

Sir George Young: I am unable, on the grounds of commercial confidentiality, to place in the Library any details of specific provisions contained within the contract between Inland Revenue and EDS.

The negotiation of the contract between Inland Revenue and EDS took place in full recognition of the importance of the various constituent elements that ensure the continuity of service provided to the Inland Revenue and to taxpayers. Specific provisions have been made in the information technology service agreement to secure the computer equipment, software and expertise to ensure continuity of service throughout the contract period and beyond.

Conditionally Exempt Works of Art

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the average length of time that items from the register of conditionally exempt works of art spend out on loan to public galleries, museums and other similar places to which the public have access. [31870]

Sir George Young: The information requested is not available as there is no statutory power to require owners to keep statistics of such of their conditionally exempt items as are on loan to public institutions to which the public has access.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many works of art which are conditionally exempted from inheritance tax or capital transfer tax are currently out on loan to public galleries and museums. [31872]

Sir George Young: The information requested is not available as there is no statutory power to require owners to keep statistics of such of their conditionally exempt works of art as are on loan to public galleries and museums.

Council Tax Appeals

Mr. Denham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many appeals lodged by council tax payers are still waiting to be dealt with for each district value office in England and Wales. [32326]

Mr. Nelson: The number of council tax appeals still outstanding as at 31 May 1995 with each listing officer in England and Wales is shown in the tables:

Biodiesel

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the reasons for the United Kingdom's opposition to EC draft 8205/94, calling for changes in excise duty on biodiesel. [32162]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: At the meeting of the Council of Economic Ministers—ECOFIN—in Luxembourg on 19 June, my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor noted that the proposal has been considered by the Council from time to time without making any real progress, and he suggested that the Council should not expend further effort on it.

The Government continue to find the proposal set out in EC draft 8205/94 unattractive for several reasons. We are opposed in principle to granting long-term tax subsidies to products which would not be financially viable without them. We are not persuaded of the agricultural, environmental or energy policy benefits of subsidising biofuels, and we remain concerned about the effect of tax subsidies on the market for by-products.

World Bank and International Monetary Fund

Ms Armstrong: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans the Government have to progress the recommendations for reforms to the World bank and International Monetary Fund, as outlined in the background paper to the communiqué presented at the recent G7 meeting in Halifax, Canada. [32209]

Mr. Nelson: The proposals agreed at Halifax among the G7 for reform of the World bank and International Monetary Fund now need to be discussed by the entire membership of those institutions. The G7 recognises that changes will need broad support among the membership. The Canadian Finance Minister has written on behalf of the G7 to every governor of the two institutions, commending the proposals and seeking comments. The Government hope they will now be considered by the executive boards of the World bank and International Monetary Fund, and at the autumn ministerial meetings of the interim and development committees. The Government will also discuss the proposals in other forms, and bilaterally with other non-G7 countries. I hope, for example, that we will be able to have a useful exchange of views at the Commonwealth Finance Ministers' conference in October.

Investors' Compensation Scheme

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about the investors' compensation scheme. [33089]

Mr. Nelson: The Treasury has today laid a minute to inform the House that the Treasury has issued a guarantee to the investors compensation scheme, ICS, for up to £17 million.

This wholly exceptional course, which I very much regret the need to take, results from the current judicial review case brought by Sun Life. This challenges certain regulatory rules made by the Securities and Investments Board, SIB, and the Personal Investment Authority, PIA, which is one of the self-regulating organisations recognised by SIB under the Financial Services Act 1986. Mr. Justice Collins yesterday gave Sun Life leave to proceed with the case, which will be heard on 23 to 24 August.

Because of the uncertainty created by this case, the PIA has decided, after taking legal advice, that it would not be prudent to levy its members to provide finance for the ICS as it would normally do. For similar reasons, the ICS board has also decided not to levy PIA members direct. Without the Treasury guarantee, the ICS would be unable to borrow commercially because of the same uncertainty about its ability to raise funds to service and repay loans.

The Treasury guarantee is for £17 million, slightly more than the £15.8 million ICS levy on the PIA, to cover interest which may be incurred and the legal costs associated with the court case.

The Treasury will review the need for the guarantee when the judicial review case is resolved after the hearing in August. In the meantime, the ICS will continue to operate normally, making offers of compensation to investors who have lost as a result of defaults by investment firms, and declaring firms in default in order to trigger claims, as usual. Investors can be confident that this important safety net will continue to function properly, underpinning investor protection.

Extra-Statutory Payments

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 9 June, Official Report, column 339, if he will list the agreed specific delegation level agreed with each Department for authorising extra statutory payments. [28663]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 15 June 1995]: The existing specific delegation levels agreed with the main Departments for authorising extra statutory and extra regulationary payments are set out. The limits reflect a number of considerations, including the nature of the payments that are likely to occur on a particular Department's programme and whether satisfactory ground rules can be agreed for dealing with them. The limits are kept under regular review.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Attorney-General how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95 and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31301]

The Attorney-General: The Crown Prosecution Service paid a grant of £20,000 to the Nuffield Foundation for its interpreter project in 1993–94 and a further grant of the same amount to the same organisation in 1994–95. The service entered into contracts with Shaw House and the Royal London Society for the Blind in 1993–94 under the sheltered placement scheme, the value to the organisations being the employment of disabled persons by the service.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey : To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts within (i) 1993–94; and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31307]

Mr. Dorrell: In 1993–94, my Department paid grants to 32 voluntary sector organisations. The total value of these grants was £832.420. In 1994–95, the number of organisations was 31 and the total value of grants was £874,731. My Department has no contracts with voluntary organisations.

Hotel Grading Schemes

Mr. Pendry: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many hotels are included in the English tourist board's crown grading scheme; and how many are covered by the schemes operated by the Royal Automobile Club and the Automobile Association. [32031]

Mr. Dorrell: The English tourist board crown classification and grading scheme covers 11,500 serviced establishments. This includes 3,500 hotels. The Automobile Association scheme in England covers approximately 5,500 serviced establishments, of which 3,019 are hotels. The Royal Automobile Club scheme includes some 5,200 serviced establishments throughout Britain, 3,400 of which are hotels.

Travel Claims

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will detail the amount of travel claims at constant prices his Department in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 broken down by (i) public transport, (ii) car mileage allowance and (iii) bicycle allowance. [32171]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 4 July 1995]: The information requested for the Department of National Heritage, including the Historic Royal Palaces Agency, Royal Parks Agency, Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts and Royal Commission on Historical Monuments of England is:

	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Bicycle allowance	0	0

The amount of travel claims by public transport could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Justices of the Peace (Cumbria)

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the number of justices of the peace on the bench in each of the divisions in the county of Cumbria by (a) political or non-political affiliation and (b) by gender. [32617]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The number of justices of the peace in each division of the county of Cumbria by (a) political or non-political affiliation and (b) by gender, on the latest information available, is:

	Conservative	Labour	Liberal Democrat	Independent	Not known/other	Male	Female

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31299]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department paid grants to two voluntary sector organisations in 1993–94 and to two in 1994–95. The total value of the grants was £195,000 in 1993–94 and £188,000 in 1994–95.

The Legal Aid Board, a non-departmental public body, paid grants to 10 voluntary sector organisations in 1993–94 and 60 in 1994–95. The total value of the grants was £942,000 in 1993–94 and £2,377,000 in 1994–95. In addition, one law centre and one advice agency with a solicitor received payments under franchise contracts on a case-by-case basis.

Repossessions

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) proceedings were commenced to repossess homes and (b) homes were repossessed in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each year since 1979. [31597]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Hugh Bayley, dated 5 July 1995:

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to your Question about repossession proceedings.

The following charts show the total number of possession actions commenced in York County Court; North Yorkshire; Yorkshire and Humberside and England since 1987 (the earliest year for which data is available). As not all actions result in the issue and execution of a warrant of possession, I am unable to tell you how many properties were repossessed in this period. I have therefore included in the tables the number of possession orders made. I should add that the figures for 1994 are provisional and are consequently liable to revision to take account of any late amendments.

Asylum

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many cases relating to political asylum in the United Kingdom were heard at the immigration appeals tribunal; and how many such appeals were successful in each of the last five years. [31316]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Figures on asylum appeals were not kept prior to the enactment of the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993. A separate figure for appeals by the Home Office was not kept until January 1994. The table sets out the available information:

Immigration appeal tribunal: Political asylum appeals

SCOTLAND

Highlands and Islands Enterprise

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total amount of funding allocated by his Department to Highlands and Islands Enterprise excluding objective 1 figures for development initiatives in (a) Argyll and Bute and (b) Kintyre for the years 1993–94 and 1994–95. [30446]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The allocation of funds to specific local enterprise company areas for economic and social development purposes is the responsibility of Highlands and Islands Enterprise. I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what are the criteria which he applies to reschedule drug substances under the terms of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971; how temazepam relates to these criteria; and if he will make a statement; [31395]

(2) what further plans he has to reschedule temazepam; and if he will make a statement. [31383]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No rescheduling may occur under the 1971 Act except after consultation with, or on the recommendation of, the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. The council is required to have regard to misused drugs which are having, or appear to it to be capable of having, harmful effects sufficient to constitute a social problem. The council has recommended that temazepam should be controlled under schedule 3 of the relevant regulations rather than schedule 4. The Government's careful consideration of this recommendation is continuing.

As my right hon. Friend the Lord President of the Council announced on 10 May, we are taking steps to impose safe custody requirements on manufacturers and wholesalers, and are engaged in consultations with a view to banning the prescribing by general practitioners under the National Health Service of the soft gelatin gel-filled temazepam capsules.

Health Care International

Mr. Tony Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he was informed that an employee of Scottish Enterprise had been given leave of absence to become international marketing director of Health Care International in Clydebank; what reports he received on the outcome of the appointment in terms of contracts for the hospital; and when he received these reports. [31347]

Mr. Kynoch: The granting of leave of absence to an employee of Scottish Enterprise was an operational matter for that body, in respect of which there was no requirement for my right hon. Friend to be informed or to receive reports.

Mr. Stefan Kock

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland from whom Strathclyde police have received representations on the firearms incident involving Mr. Stefan Kock in Scotland in January 1990. [32197]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Strathclyde police have received no representations in relation to this incident.

A74

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will keep the name M74 when the A74 construction to motorway standard is completed; and if he will make a statement. [32613]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 4 July 1995]: My right hon. Friend announced in November 1991 that, on completion of the A74 upgrade, the new motorway will be designated as the M6. However, until the whole route is upgraded, the upgraded section of the route will retain the "74".

My right hon. Friend recently announced that we intend to seek tenders later this year for the last section in Scotland to be upgraded between Cleuchbrae and Paddy's Rickle on a design, build, finance and operate basis and this should see the completion of the upgrade by the end of the century.

Council Workers (Redundancy)

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland for what maximum period of time compensation schemes for council workers made redundant by local government reorganisation operate. [32185]

Mr. Kynoch: The compensation scheme provided under the Local Government (Compensation for Redundancy or Premature Retirement on Reorganisation) (Scotland) Regulations 1995 for any local authority employee made redundant as a result of local government reorganisation will be available until 31 March 1997. The period will, however, be subject to review in December 1996.

Tongue School, Sutherland

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action he proposes to take in respect of the school board of Tongue school, Sutherland. [32657]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: None.

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what procedures apply when the parents of children attending a school indicate by a clear majority of all parents on successive occasions at a properly constituted meeting with the school board that they have no confidence in the board. [32677]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Under section 30 of the School Boards (Scotland) Act 1988, whenever the requisite number of parents so request in writing, the school board must hold a meeting to enable parents to make inquiries and to discuss matters relating to the activities of the board and to make resolutions relating to the activities of the board. The board is required to consider any resolution passed at such a meeting. The requisite number of parents for the purpose of requesting a meeting is 30, or a number of parents equal to at least one quarter of those who were entitled to vote at the most recently held elections of parent members, whichever is the less.

Water Supplies

Mr. Gallie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he expects to publish the report on the 10-year review of demands and resources for public water supplies in Scotland. [33091]

Mr. Kynoch: A report has been published today by the Scottish Office Environment Department describing the outcome of the Department's third long-term assessment of demands and resources for public water supplies in Scotland carried out during 1994, previous studies having been done in 1973 and 1984. I have arranged for copies of the report to be placed in the Library.

The report shows that, at the national and regional levels, resources are more than sufficient to meet average demands for public water supplies beyond 2016, the period covered by the study.

Strathclyde Passenger Transport Area

Mr. Gallie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what boundary he intends for the new Strathclyde passenger transport area following his recent consultation exercise. [33092]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Following careful consideration of the responses received to the consultation exercise, we have concluded that the Strathclyde passenger transport area should cover the existing Strathclyde zonecard travel area, and the whole of the present Strathclyde supported rail network. This will ensure that the Strathclyde passenger transport authority and executive can carry out effectively its local transport responsibilities in Glasgow and the surrounding areas.

I have placed maps illustrating the new area in the Library of the House. I am making arrangements to lay the necessary designation order before Parliament.

ENVIRONMENT

Pollution

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the average proportion in poor quality air of pollution that comes from (a) car fumes and (b) industrial emissions. [31412]

Mr. Atkins: Each episode of poor air quality has its own individual characteristics, so it is not possible to directly attribute the relative contribution that road traffic or industrial emissions contribute to air pollution incidents across the UK. However, detailed emissions inventories of the overall pollutant contributions of the various sectors are available. The table shows the proportions for NOx, SO_2, CO and black smoke for London in 1991.

Percentage air emissions by sector for London in 1991

Figures are all rounded to one decimal place.

Per cent.

	Pollutant
	NOx	SO_2	CO	CO_2	Black smoke
Road transport	75.4	24.5	98.6	32.5	95.2
Domestic	6.5	0.7	0.2	31.4	0.1
Commercial and industrial	11.8	72.6	0.2	29.9	2.4
Other transport	6.4	2.1	1.0	6.3	2.4

Home Improvement Grant

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what estimates he has of the number of home owners wishing to take up a home improvement grant who are unable to do so because of inability to afford the temporary accommodation required while the work in question is carried out; what assistance is available to them; and if he will make a statement. [31906]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The legislation for house renovation grants makes no specific provision to cover the costs of temporary accommodation for applicants while works are in progress. Local authorities may rehouse applicants under their discretionary powers in the Housing Act 1985, but correspondence to my Department suggests that many grant applicants prefer to stay in their homes while the works are carried out.

Ponds

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what measures his Department takes to protect and clean ponds; and what is the budget for these projects. [32160]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Department supports a number of environmental grant schemes, such as countryside stewardship, which include provision for the creation or restoration of ponds. Under the Countryside Act 1968, local authorities can carry out pond restoration and creation, and under the rural action scheme, which is sponsored by the three countryside agencies, grants are available for environmental improvements, including the clearing of ponds. With regard to water quality, many ponds will be subject to the general pollution control functions of the National Rivers Authority.

Ponds are protected through a number of schemes and mechanisms, including some via the site of special scientific interest system under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. It is not possible to identify within the overall budgets the amount spent on protecting and clearing ponds.

Landfill Waste Disposal

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give details of the landfill waste disposal sites in Great Britain where environmental pollution problems have arisen in the last 10 years. [32439]

Mr. Atkins: Landfill waste disposal operations in Great Britain are regulated by the waste regulation authorities. Information about pollution incidents at individual landfill sites is held by the responsible authority. A sample study carried out in 1990 by the Association of County Councils identified 11 cases in the previous 15 years where remedial action to landfill sites was required by waste regulation authorities.

Asbestos

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are the guidelines followed by Government Departments in the use of asbestos or asbestos products in any building work taking place within Government-owned properties; and if he will make a statement. [32671]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Department of the Environment, through the Property Holdings central advice unit, formerly property advisory services division, provides Government Departments with guidelines in the "Guide to Estate Management Responsibilities" and the "Housekeeping Guide for Accommodation Managers".

Drinking Water Inspectorate

Mr. Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when the fifth annual report of the Drinking Water Inspectorate will be published. [32850]

Mr. Atkins: The Drinking Water Inspectorate published its fifth annual report today. Once again, it shows that drinking water in England and Wales is of a very high quality. In 1994, 99.3 per cent. of the 3.5 million tests carried out by water companies on drinking water met the relevant standard, compared with 98.9 per cent. in 1993.

The report provides a detailed picture of water quality in England and Wales which has been tested against the stringent criteria of the water quality regulations which incorporate the limits in the EC drinking water directive.

The inspectorate also published today two leaflets for consumers. "How Good is Your Drinking Water?", summarises the main points of the report. "About Your Water Company" gives brief details of the quality of drinking water supplied by individual water companies.

Copies of the report and leaflets have been placed in the Library of the House.

Manchester Ship Canal

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has had from Manchester city council about protecting the Manchester ship canal from the possible impact of proposals related to a proposed landfill tax; what reply he is sending; and if he will make a statement. [30994]

Sir Paul Beresford: The leader of Manchester city council, Councillor Graham Stringer, who is also a director of the Manchester Ship Canal Co., wrote to my right hon. Friend about the potential impact of the proposed landfill tax on the company's dredging operations on 15 June. I replied on Tuesday 4 July. Copies of the correspondence have been placed in the Library.

Vanadium

Mr. Alan W. Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is estimated total annual United Kingdom emissions of airborne vanadium pentoxide: and what are the main sources. [32003]

Mr. Atkins: Emissions of heavy metals into the atmosphere are not speciated by individual chemical compound type. This is because of analytical difficulties in determining the composition of fly ash on other than an elemental basis. There is, therefore, no information available on emissions of V_2O_5. Emissions of vanadium are not yet included in the national atmospheric emissions inventory. However, the Department's research programme includes work on vanadium and the results will be reported later this year.

Mr. Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the World Health Organisation's guideline for the maximum permitted concentration of vanadium in the atmosphere; and what is the range of concentrations found near (a) power stations, (b) oil refineries and (c) other industrial sources of airborne vanadium. [32004]

Mr. Atkins: The WHO air quality guideline for vanadium for a 24-hour averaging period is $1\mu gm^{-3}$—1000 ng m^{-3}.

The Department of the Environment has been monitoring airborne concentrations of vanadium at three rural sites at Chilton, Oxfordshire; Styrrup, Nottinghamshire and Wraymires in Cumbria since 1972 and at one urban site in Central London since 1976.

The results from the central London site are given as annual averages for each year since 1976. The results from the rural network are given in summary form with the central London site given for comparison.

Tenants

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what guidance is issued to local authorities concerning the method of consultation with representatives of their tenants; and if he will make a statement. [32221]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Guidance to local authorities about consultation with tenants is provided in:

"Large-scale voluntary transfers guidelines", December 1993;

"Tenant Involvement in Housing Management", March 1994; and

"Housing Strategies: Guidance for local authorities on the preparation of housing strategies", 1995.

Redundant Council Workers

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment for what maximum period of time compensation schemes for council workers made redundant by local government reorganisation operate. [32186]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: In England, entitlement to payment of redundancy compensation arising from reorganisation can arise in the period from the date the relevant reorganisation order is made to 18 months after reorganisation takes place.

Supermarkets

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what consideration is given by his Department to the location of large supermarkets in urban areas; what criteria are used in respect of car parking and the effects on other shopping areas; and if he will make a statement. [32357]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Government's policy is to encourage supermarkets to locate in existing shopping centres in urban areas. Where this is not possible, an edge-of-centre site should be sought, within easy walking distance of the centre, to ensure it is accessible by a choice of means of transport. Applications for out-of-centre supermarkets should be assessed in terms of their likely impact on existing centres, their accessibility by a choice of means of transport and their effect on overall car use. With regard to their impact on existing centres, they should be assessed in terms of its impact on trade, future investment in the centre and on the authority's strategy for the centre.

Car parking standards for large supermarkets vary from authority to authority and reflect the location of the store. In London, suburban out-of-centre stores tend on average to have one space per 10 sq m of gross floor space; inner suburban out-of-centre stores one space per 13 sq m, whereas town centre stores can mange comfortably with 1 per 20 to 25 sq m gross floor space. This reflects their respective reliance on the car for access. The Government are proposing a general review of car parking standards, including those for large food stores.

Planning Applications

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list those planning authorities whose standing orders make provision for members of the public to present their case in person during the discussion of planning applications. [32655]

Sir Paul Beresford: My Department does not collect this information.

Statutory Joint Authorities

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment in what circumstances the power to establish a statutory joint authority under section 21 of the Local Government Act 1992 will be available to him. [33090]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The Government's policy is that local authorities which are granted unitary powers should be capable of undertaking the full range of functions entrusted to them. Our guidance to the Local Government Commission reflects this aim and we have carried it through in our decisions.

Under Section 14(5)(c) of the Local Government Act 1992, the Local Government Commission may recommend that joint arrangements are made in relation to local authority functions in an area affected by structural change. It has recommended joint arrangements for structure planning in a number of areas. We have endorsed those recommendations and look to the authorities concerned to make voluntary arrangements accordingly.

Section 21 of the Local Government Act 1992 contains back-up powers for the Secretary of State to establish a statutory joint authority where voluntary arrangements have not been made, or have broken down. Previous ministerial statements about joint working have suggested that the power granted by this section may be exercised in any case where, having regard to the recommendations of the commission, the Secretary of State had requested authorities affected by a structural change order to carry out a function jointly and those arrangements had failed or had failed to materialise.

We are now advised that this power will be available only in those cases where joint working is to take place between authorities all of which have acquired the relevant function as a result of a structural or boundary change. It will not be available where, for example, a new unitary authority has been asked to work with an existing county council.

This new understanding does not affect local authority powers to enter into voluntary joint arrangements. We continue to support the recommendations of the commission in respect of joint working on structure plans by unitary authorities and existing county councils. We look forward to the authorities concerned making suitable voluntary arrangements for the maintenance of an up-to-date strategic planning framework for each of the joint structure plan areas indicated. Following reorganisation, the Secretary of State's powers of intervention in the structure plan process under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 remain unchanged. He will consider the availability and use of those powers in the usual way in order to achieve effective strategic planning.

Environment Council

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Environment Council on 22 and 23 June. [33218]

Mr. Gummer: I represented the UK at the Environment Council in Luxembourg held on 22 and 23 June. Agreement was reached, subject to a parliamentary scrutiny reserve, on four key measures.

I was able to support the common position the Council reached on the proposal for integrated pollution prevention and control. This measure follows a UK initiative and will lead to an integrated approach to pollution control decisions taking into account emissions to all environmental media. Overall, the directive will raise environmental standards across Europe and help to provide a level playing field for UK industry.

There was a short discussion of the proposal for a directive on ambient air quality assessment and management and a common position was agreed unanimously. I joined colleagues from all member states in welcoming the proposed directive which will help to tackle the problems of air pollution across Europe and is in line with existing UK practice.

A common position was also achieved by unanimity on the proposal for the control of major accident hazards involving dangerous substances—amended Seveso directive. The proposal closely reflects UK philosophy and practice.

The Council reached a common position unanimously on a new regulation to replace the existing Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species measures. I welcome the regulation which will require all member states to control trade in endangered species more effectively. The Council also agreed to a UK proposal to retain the existing 1981 regulation banning commercial imports of whale products.

Agreement was also reached on Council conclusions on the follow-up to the Berlin conference of the parties to the climate change convention. I made it clear during the discussion that the UK continued to oppose a mandatory EU wide carbon energy tax. There were discussions on many other issues, including the disposal of disused oil installations, motor vehicle emissions and the proposal for a directive on the ecological quality of water.

Dounreay

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement about the explosion which occurred in May 1977 at the Dounreay nuclear power plant station near Thurso in Scotland; what is his assessment of the damage caused by the explosion; and what are the environmental consequences both then and now. [32431]

Mr. Page: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Scotland on 13 June 1994, Official Report, column 472, to a question from my hon. Friend the Member for Aberdeen, South (Mr. Robertson) and the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Glasgow, Maryhill (Mrs. Fyfe) on 29 June 1995, Official Report, column 747.

HEALTH

First-time Mothers (Publications)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proposals she has to alter the distribution and budget for the publications "Birth to Five" and "The Pregnancy Book". [32161]

Mr. Sackville: None. Both the publications are published by the Health Education Authority and issued free to all first-time mothers.

Foetuses

Mr. Patten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to her answer of 22nd June, Official Report, column 344, what action she will now take following the completion of research for her Department in May into foetuses feeling pain while being aborted. [32506]

Mr. Sackville: No action is called for.

Market Testing

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to extend the current market testing programme to core clinical services. [32359]

Mr. Sackville: The selection of clinical services for market testing is a matter for local management. Guidance was set out in EL (95)29, issued in April, copies of which are available in the Library.

Physiotherapy

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if physiotherapy is categorised as a core clinical service. [32220]

Mr. Bowis: The national health service does not use the term "core clinical services". The nature of physiotherapy services required in hospital or community health services is a matter for purchasers to determine in collaboration with providers, taking account of appropriate professional advice.

Suicides

Mr. Caborn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what records her Department keeps of the numbers of doctors and other health workers who commit suicide while working in the NHS, together with information on the causes of death. [32226]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

Glaucoma

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what measures are in place to monitor the success rate for the detection of glaucoma; and if she will make a statement; [32351]

(2) if she will make a statement as to what measures are planned to improve the detection rate of glaucoma. [32341]

Mr. Sackville: Although the Government recognise the importance of the early detection of glaucoma, this is primarily a matter for the medical and optometric professions. However, we are currently working with the relevant professional bodies to improve the quality of detection and referral of eye disease, including glaucoma.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evidence she has indicating whether there is a universal standard of testing for glaucoma by optometrists across the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [32353]

Mr. Malone: Screening for diseases of the eye, of which glaucoma is one, is part of the routine sight test procedure carried out by optometrists and ophthalmic medical practitioners. We have no reason to believe that standards of sight testing vary.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were treated for glaucoma, per family health service authority, for each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [32350]

Mr. Sackville: Figures in the form requested are not available centrally.

From "Morbidity Statistics from General Practice" it is estimated that, in England, about 101,000 patients suffering from glaucoma were treated by general practitioners during the 1991–92 financial year. Figures are not available for the other years requested.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures are in place to ensure that all people with a higher risk of developing glaucoma obtain all three available tests for the condition from an optometrist; and if she will make a statement. [32352]

Mr. Malone: Close relatives aged 40 or over of diagnosed glaucoma sufferers are automatically entitled to a free national health service sight test, to enable their eyesight to be monitored at no cost to themselves. The examination techniques used in carrying out a sight test are a matter for the clinical decision of the practitioner.

Asthma

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to empower health authorities and commissions to treat the causes as well as the effects of asthma; and if she will make a statement. [32346]

Mr. Sackville: The causes of asthma are unclear, but it is likely that both generic and environmental factors, including exposure to a range of possible allergens, are involved. Work on investigating possible causes is continuing. We have no plans to increase the powers of health authorities and commissions.

National Blood Authority

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the total amount being spent by the National Blood Authority on national new donor day. [32111]

Mr. Sackville: The National Blood Authority anticipates that the estimated expenditure on local publicity is likely to be around £15,000.

NHS Ethnic Health Unit

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will consider funding the development of medical education materials for the ethnic health unit for use at both undergraduate and postgraduate level; and if she will make a statement. [32342]

Mr. Malone: The national health service ethnic health unit was established to work with health authorities and trusts to secure greater benefit for people from ethnic minorities, from the implementation of national and local health strategies. The unit is not responsible for medical education and training. This is a matter for the General Medical Council, the medical royal colleges and the Joint Committee on Postgraduate Training for General Practice.

Health Services (Access)

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research she has commissioned or examined into racism as a factor in access to health services; and if she will make a statement [32344]

Mr. Malone: The Department of Health and other Government Departments have funded the fourth national survey of ethnic minorities, which is being conducted by the Policy Studies Institute. The health section of the survey examines ethnic minorities' access to health services and factors which may facilitate or deter access. The experience of ethnic minorities will be compared with that of whites.

The Department of Health has also commissioned the Refugee Council to undertake a survey to identify the barriers that prevent access to health services for refugees in the United Kingdom.

Multi-cultural Health Care

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will consider appointing to each national health service executive region mangers with responsibility for implementing and monitoring her Department's policy on multi-cultural health care; and if she will make a statement. [32343]

Mr. Malone: After abolition of regional health authorities, it will not be appropriate for public health functions to be managed directly by national health service executive regional offices. Ownership of these functions lies at local level, reflecting the responsibility of health authorities for the overall health of the population. The NHS ethnic health unit works with health authorities and NHS trusts to secure greater benefit for minority ethnic people from the health service.

The priorities and planning guidance for 1996–97, published by the NHS executive in June 1995, requires health authorities and trusts to pay particular attention in seeking and addressing the concerns of those with special needs. The performance management arm of the NHS executive regional offices hold health authorities to account for the implementation of national policies, including the development of services for minority ethnic people.

Medical Training

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what formal education in the health and health care of different cultural groups is available to the medical profession; and if she will make a statement. [32345]

Mr. Malone: The General Medical Council is responsible for the standard of undergraduate medical education. Its most recent recommendations, published in "Tomorrow's Doctors" in December 1993, recognise the need for matters concerning ethnicity to be addressed within the undergraduate medical curriculum.

The medical royal colleges are responsible for the content of postgraduate medical training and education.

The body responsible for general practice vocational training—the Joint Committee on Postgraduate Training for General Practice—expects general practitioners to be knowledgeable about the social, cultural and environmental factors which contribute to health and illness. The specific curricular arrangements to achieve these attributes are the responsibility of regional postgraduate organisations. Further training and experience are provided as part of the continuing education of practitioners.

Dental Services

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received indicating an increase in emergency consultations by patients with general practitioners concerning dental problems; and if she will make a statement. [32347]

Mr. Malone: Two general practitioners have written to the Department of Health on this subject over the past year. Under their terms and conditions of service, GPs are not required to provide dental treatment to their patients.

Specialist Cancer Consultants

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on global supply and demand of specialist cancer surgeons. [32402]

Mr. Malone: Cancer is treated by doctors in a number of specialities. Consultants in the specialties of medical oncology, clinical oncology—radiotherapy—radiology/nuclear medicine, haematology and general surgery all treat cancer patients. However, they are not all involved full time in the treatment of cancer. In addition, other specialties are also involved in the treatment of cancer.

The Government seek to ensure an adequate supply of appropriately trained doctors in each specialty, including those involved in the treatment of cancer. This involves planning the number of doctors in higher specialist training on a specialty by specialty basis. Employment of consultants is a matter for local employing bodies, which make medical staffing decisions in the light of competing priorities and the health care needs of the local population.

On 24 April 1995, following wide consultation, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health announced a strategic framework for the future development of cancer services based on the report "A Policy Framework for Commissioning Cancer Services", copies of which are available in the Library.

NHS Executive Headquarters (Staff)

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list (a) the number of staff who have been offered and accepted early retirement or voluntary redundancy at the national health service executive headquarters, Quarry house, Leeds, in 1995, (b) the cost of the voluntary redundancies and early retirements and (c) the initial costs of relocating the relevant staff to Leeds. [32529]

Mr. Sackville: Some 143 staff at the national health service executive headquarters, Leeds have been offered and accepted voluntary early severance or retirement. On redundancy and early retirement costs I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Barking (Ms Hodge) on 25 May 1995, columns 759-60. On relocation costs, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the right hon. Member for Derby, South (Mrs. Beckett) on 13 January, column 258.

Rape Support Services

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many organisations there are in London which provide support services for women and girls who have been raped or sexually assaulted; if she will list those organisations; and what is the current level of government funding for those services. [32530]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Edgware General Hospital

Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will reconsider the closure recommendation made by the district health authority for the accident and emergency department of Edgware General hospital, Edgware, Middlesex, pursuant to the letter sent on 27 June by the hon. Member for Harrow, East to the Prime Minister. [32656]

Mr. Malone: No. I have nothing to add to the replies I gave my hon. Friend on 21 June, column 259.

Clinical Negligence Scheme

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will provide a list, by region, of those trusts which (a) have joined and (b) not joined the clinical negligence scheme for trusts. [27902]

Mr. Malone [holding answer 12 June 1995]: This information will be placed in the Library.

General Practitioners

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many single-handed general practitioners' practices were in receipt of payments under part VI, paragraph 34, section 2(u) of the NHS (General Medical Services) Regulations 1992 in (a) 1992, (b) 1993, (c) 1994 and (d) in the current year; [28102]

(2) what was (a) the lowest, (b) the highest and (c) the average payment made to single-handed general practitioners' practices under part VI, paragraph 34, section 2(u) of the NHS (General Medical Services) Regulations 1992 in (a) 1992, (b) 1993, (c) 1994 and (d) in the current year. [28083]

Mr. Malone [holding answer 12 June 1995]: The numbers in each financial year were as follows:

However, not all practices were in receipt of payments throughout the whole of each financial year.

Information available centrally does not identify payments made to individual general practitioners.

In 1994–95, the average payment was £19,057.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Orders in Council

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish a table showing for each of the last three years and the current year the number of Orders in Council applying to Northern Ireland under (a) affirmative, (b) negative and (c) emergency procedures. [32383]

Sir John Wheeler: The information in respect of Orders in Council made under paragraph 1 of schedule 1 to the Northern Ireland Act 1974 is as follows:

Year	Affirmative	Negative	Emergency procedures
1992	12	8	nil
1993	12	4	nil
1994	12	4	1
1995	6	nil	nil

RUC Reserve

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many recruits to the RUC full-time and part-time reserve will have training designed to improve community awareness and understanding; and if such training is available to longer serving officers in the RUC full-time and part-time reserve. [31048]

Sir John Wheeler: All new recruits to the RUC (full-time) reserve receive community awareness training. The training is currently under evaluation and it is proposed that it should be extended to the RUC (part-time) reserve.

A programme of divisional training is provided to longer serving officers. During the present cycle of divisional training, one of the subjects covered is professional police ethics which deals with community awareness perspective.

South Eastern Education and Library Board

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which organisations have supported his proposals to abolish the South Eastern education and library board. [31421]

Mr. Ancram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 26 June, Official Report, column 471.

Making Belfast Work

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by Making Belfast Work on administration in the last year, and what proportion of the total budget this represents. [31653]

Mr. Moss: The administrative costs of Making Belfast Work, including nine actions teams, in 1994–95 was £1,510,794. This represents 5.59 per cent. of the total MBW and action team budget for 1994–95.

Animal Diseases

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will show, by type, the number of cases of fowl pest in each year since 1985. [32293]

Mr. Ancram: The term fowl pest includes both avian influenza—fowl plague—and Newcastle disease. Avian influenza has never occurred in Northern Ireland. Since 1985, Newcastle disease has been identified only in Northern Ireland in 1991 when six cases occurred.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of epizootic haemorrhagic virus disease occurred in each year since 1985. [32284]

Mr. Ancram: None.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of bovine spongiform encephalopathy occurred in each year since 1985. [32375]

Mr. Ancram: The information is as follows:

1985: 0
1986: 0
1987: 0
1988: 3
1989: 30
1990: 100
1991: 170
1992: 333
1993: 487
1994: 363
1995: 88 (to 16 June)

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of African horse sickness occurred in each year since 1985. [32302]

Mr. Ancram: None.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of contagious equine metritis occurred in each year since 1985. [32281]

Mr. Ancram: None.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of rabies there were in each year since 1967. [32290]

Mr. Ancram: None.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of peste des petits ruminants occurred in each year since 1985. [32287]

Mr. Ancram: None.

Integrated Schools

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will give for each integrated school the sums expended on (a) capital expenditure, (b) running costs exclusive of teachers' salaries and (c) other running costs, (i) per school and (ii) per child; and if he will give the figure equivalent to (b) and (c) for (1) maintained, (2) controlled and (3) voluntary schools in (A) the primary and (B) the secondary levels, in the last year for which figures are available. [32434]

Mr. Ancram: Capital expenditure incurred by education and library boards on controlled integrated schools in 1994–95 was as follows:

All Children Together Primary	2,614
Carnhill Primary	64,878
Forge Primary	38,277
Brownlow College	32,799

Capital expenditure approved by my Department for grant purposes in 1994–95 for each grant-maintained integrated school was as follows:

Primary Schools
Braidside	78,157
Bridge	64,882
Corran	504,717
Enniskillen	30,450
Hazelwood	172,914
Millstrand	36,598
Oakgrove	600,047
Omagh	46,406
Portadown	122,818
Windmill	4,964
Secondary Schools
Hazelwood College	180,993
Lagan College	81,008

The information on running costs is not available in the form requested, but I would refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Redcar (Ms Mowlam) on 27 March, Official Report, column 484.

Peace Process

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had about the peace process; and if he will make a statement. [29816]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: I have held bilateral meetings with the Ulster Unionist party and the Alliance party respectively, when there was an explanation of some issues that need to be addressed if there is to be a comprehensive and widely acceptable political settlement.

EDUCATION

Independent Schools

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many school age pupils resident in each local education authority area attend independent schools. [31899]

Mr. Robin Squire: The numbers of pupils of compulsory school age in independent schools in each LEA area in England are shown in the table. Information about the LEA area in which pupils are resident is not collected centrally.

"Superhighways for Education"

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many copies of her Department's brochure "Superhighways for Education" have been printed; where they have been distributed; and what is the cost of production and distribution. [32533]

Mr. Boswell: Of the total UK printing of the consultation paper "Superhighways for Education", 15,000 copies were for the Department for distribution in England.

Copies have been sent to a range of interests in the higher education, further education and school sectors and local education authorities. Distribution was also undertaken to relevant industrial and commercial bodies including those which submitted evidence to last year's Trade and Industry Select Committee on optical fibre networks.

The cost of production and distribution in England is estimated at some £54,800.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what specific advertising campaigns have been undertaken by her Department each year since 1979. [32472]

Mr. Boswell: Listed are the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by the Department for Education since 1990:

(Financial year) 1990–91

Teacher Recruitment Advertising Campaign

Teaching as a Career

Train to Teach in London

1991–92

Teacher Recruitment Advertising Campaign

Parent's Charter

National Curriculum Tests

Business Donations to Schools

1992–93

National Curriculum Tests

Grant-Maintained Schools—Helpline

Performance Tables

School Inspector Recruitment

1993–94

Charters for Further and Higher Education

Grant-Maintained Schools

National Curriculum Tests

1994–95

Private Finance Initiative

Details of advertising campaigns prior to 1990 are not readily available apart from costs which were given in a previous answer to the hon. Member on Tuesday 26 June 1995, Official Report, column 512.

Standard Assessment Tasks

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the total cost of (a) marking the standard assessment tests, (b) publishing the results and (c) distributing the results for (i) seven-year-olds, (ii) 11-year-olds and (iii) 14-year-olds in 1994–95 and each academic year since 1989–90. [32471]

Mr. Forth: The tables give the available information relating to seven and 14-year-olds in financial years from 1991–92, the first year in which any pupils were statutorily assessed. The first statutory assessments of 11-year-olds did not take place until 1995.

(a) Marking the standard assessment tests

£ million

Financial year	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95
7-year-olds	20.04	29.08	23.06	21.6
14-year-olds	—	1.56	2.28	1.6

The figures represent the costs of assessment audit; the cost of marking by teachers is not separately identifiable.

(b) Publishing the results of 7 and 14-year-olds (£s)

Financial year	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95
7 and 14-year-olds	29,500	30,400	n/a	29,400

(c) Distribution of the results of 7 and 14-year-olds (£s)

Financial year	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95

Nursery Education

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what were the number and percentage of three-year-olds in (a) maintained nursery schools and nursery classes, (b) infant classes in primary schools, (c) private or voluntary sector provision and (d) pre-school provision overall, at the latest available date. [32038]

Mr. Forth: Information on three-year-olds in schools in England in January 1994 is shown in the table. Information is not available for the private or voluntary sector.

Pupils aged three years of age in schools in England: January 1994

School type	Pupils	Percentage of population[1]
Maintained nursery schools and nursery classes	265,669	41
Infant classes in primary schools	1,285	[2]—
Independent schools[3]	20,964	3
All schools[4]	290,458	45

[1] Full-time and part-time pupils aged three years of age at 31 August 1993, including pupils who became four years of age by 1 January 1994, expressed as a percentage of the estimated population aged three at 31 August 1993.

[2] Negligible—less than 0.5.

[3] Includes pupils in direct grant nursery schools.

[4] Includes pupils in maintained nursery, primary and special schools, non-maintained special schools and independent schools.

Mr. Nigel Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps she is taking to ensure that the extension of nursery education to all four-year-olds does not lead to a reduction in places currently available to three-year-olds. [31952]

Mr. Forth: My right hon. Friend will shortly announce the details of her policy to provide a pre-school place for all four-year-olds whose parents wish to take it up. She has already made it clear that there will be new money to fund the expansion of places.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the cost of providing nursery education for (a) all three-year-olds and (b) all four-year-olds whose parents want it. [31976]

Mr. Forth: The aggregate cost would depend on parental preference and on local expenditure, where information is not collected separately for under-fives or for nursery schools.

Ministerial Travel

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by her, or ministerial colleagues in her Department, paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied her and the total cost in each case, including that of officials, to public funds for each year since 1992. [32253]

Mrs. Gillian Shepherd: The destination, duration and purpose of ministerial overseas trips involving public funds since 1992 are listed.

Total departmental expenditure on foreign travel and foreign subsistence for 1991–92 to 1994–95 is listed:

Financial year	Expenditure £
1991–92	371,435
1992–93	308,158
1993–94	226,033
1994–95	156,803

The additional information requested could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Retirements and Redundancies

Mr. Nigel Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the cost for each local education authority of early retirement and redundancy packages in each of the last five years for which figures are available.

Mr. Robin Squire: Some of the information requested is not readily available. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Area Cost Adjustments

Mr. Nigel Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what factors were taken into account when deciding to include all salaries rather than education salaries in the determination of the area cost adjustment for the education standard spending assessment; [31947]

(2) pursuant to her answer to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Brightside (Mr. Blunkett) on 12 June, Official Report, column 417, what other expenses are taken into account besides salaries and higher rates when calculating area cost adjustment difference percentages; [31977]

(3) to what percentage of the education standard spending assessment the labour area cost adjustment is applied; and for what reason. [31949]

Mr. Robin Squire: All education staff—teaching and non-teaching—are members of labour markets which include other employment groups. The general market earning levels of these groups are therefore reflected in the area cost adjustment. London weighting payments and average teachers' salaries do not represent the full costs of providing a standard level of service in London and the south-east. Further costs arise from lower levels of experience, higher vacancy, wastage and turnover rates and non-salary payments.

The labour cost adjustment is applied to 80 per cent. of the education SSA since that represents the proportion which is intended to relate to employment costs —both direct and indirect and teaching and non-teaching.

Local Education Authority Expenditure

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what were the amount and the percentage of its total education budget spent on provision for pupils out of school for each local education authority in each of the last five years. [31825]

Mr. Robin Squire: The table shows LEA expenditure on education other than at school, and as a percentage of total LEA expenditure, for 1993–94, the latest year for which figures are available. Figures disaggregating expenditure on education other than at school were not collected separately before 1993–94.

Teachers' Pay

Mr. Nigel Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education, pursuant to her answer to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Brightside, (Mr. Blunkett) of 12 June, Official Report, column 417, if she will list separately for each inner, outer, and fringe London education authority and value per teacher of the London cost weighting allowance and the value of other incentives. [31978]

Mr Robin Squire: A teacher serving in the London area shall receive a London area allowance of:

£1,950 per annum if he is serving in the inner-London area;

£1,281 per annum if he is serving in the outer-London area; or £498 per annum if he is serving in the fringe area.

The inner-London area means:

Camden, City of London, Greenwich, Hammersmith and Fulham, Hackney, Islington, Kensington and Chelsea, Lambeth, Lewisham, Southwark, Tower Hamlets, Wandsworth and Westminster and the areas of the London Boroughs of Barking and Dagenham, Brent, Ealing, Haringey, Merton and Newham;

The outer-London area means:

Barnet, Bexley, Bromley, Croydon, Enfield, Harrow, Havering, Hounslow, Hillingdon, Kingston, Redbridge, Richmond, Sutton, Waltham Forest;

The fringe area means:

in Berkshire: the district of Bracknell, Slough and Windsor and Maidenhead; in Buckinghamshire: the Districts of South Buckinghamshire and Chiltern; in Essex: the districts of Basildon, Brentwood, Epping Forest, Harlow and Thurrock; in Hertfordshire: the districts of Broxbourne, Dacorum, East Hertfordshire, Hertsmere, St. Albans, Three Rivers, Watford and Welwyn Hatfield; in Kent: the districts of Dartford and Sevenoaks;

in Surrey: the whole county; and in West Sussex: the district of Crawley;

A governing body may also award up to two points on the classroom teachers' pay spine, or three in inner London, to a teacher who is employed "to teach subjects in which there is a shortage of teachers" or "in a post which is difficult to fill". It is for the governing body to judge whether any teacher meets either of these criteria and, if so, whether to award one or more points. The value of points on the spine varies.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which inner, outer, and fringe London education authorities, in compensating teachers for working in London, pay the inner-London supplement; and, which award extra points on the national wage scale for teachers' salaries. [31950]

Mr. Squire: New awards of the inner-London supplement—the discretionary additional supplement of £822 for teachers serving in the inner-London area—were discontinued from 1 September 1993 for classroom teachers and from 1 September 1994 for head teachers and deputies.

Teachers in receipt of the supplement have a continuing entitlement to it for as long as they remain in the same post and provided they have not been awarded an extra point or points that overtake their current salary including the supplement.

It is at the discretion of relevant bodies to decide whether to award an additional point or points. The relevant body in most cases is the governing body of a school with a delegated budget or a grant-maintained school. It is not possible to provide a breakdown of those governing bodies that have awarded such additional points.

Capital Expenditure, Hampshire

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what has been the average capital expenditure per pupil in Hampshire over each of the past four years in (a) local education authority schools and (b) grant-maintained schools. [31512]

Mr. Robin Squire: Average capital expenditure per pupil in Hampshire in local education authority schools, for the last four years that information is available, is as follows:

1990–91: £131.09
1991–92: £113.85
1992–93: £110.22
1993–94: £129.65

Average capital expenditure per pupil in Hampshire in grant-maintained schools is the responsibility of the Funding Agency for Schools. I have asked the chairman of the funding agency to write to the hon. Member with this information.

WALES

Local Government Reorganisation

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales for what maximum period of time compensation schemes for council workers made redundant by local government reorganisation operate. [32184]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: In Wales, the special scheme in part III of the Local Government (Compensation for Redundancy) Regulations 1994 will operate for all redundancies which occur in the period beginning on 1 January 1996 and ending on 31 March 1997 and which meet the conditions set out in the regulations.

Cardiff Bay

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will place in the Library a copy of the construction contract for the Cardiff Bay barrage. [32400]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I will arrange for a copy of the Balfour Beatty-Costain Construction contract documents, excluding commercially sensitive information and the support technical specifications and drawings, to be placed in the Library of the House as soon as possible. The contract document, specifications and drawings will also be available for inspection at Baltic house, Mount Stuart square, Cardiff, between 9 am and 5 pm Monday to Friday, excluding public holidays.

NHS in Wales

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the members appointed and the vacancies remaining on the boards of (a) the UHW NHS trust in Cardiff, (b) the Cardiff Community Healthcare trust and (c) the University Dental Hospital trust, Cardiff. [32401]

Mr. Richards: The board members appointed and vacancies remaining are as follows:

University Hospital of Wales Healthcare NHS Trust

Mr. D. W. C. Morgan, chairman

Mr. A. Stewart, chief executive

Ms W. Hewitt-Sayer, executive director of nursing

Mrs. M. K. Owen
Mr. J. M. McLean
Mr. T. Knowles
Mr. D. J. E. Morgan
Professor N. C. H. Stott
} non-executive directors

Three executive director positions are vacant.

Cardiff Community Healthcare NHS Trust

Mr. D. L. Crosby, chairman

Five non-executive director and five executive director positions are vacant. An invitation for one of the non-executive positions has been issued.

University Dental Hospital NHS Trust

Mr. A. S. Gould, chairman

Mr. J. D. Griffiths non-executive director

Professor S. R. Palmer non-executive director

Two non-executive director and four executive director positions are vacant.

Each trust has shadow executive directors in place where substantive appointments have yet to be made. Candidates for the remaining non-executive positions are now being interviewed and we hope to make announcements in the near future.

Judicial Reviews

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many applicants have been granted leave to apply for judicial review of his decisions in each of the last 10 years; how many have been unsuccessful; and what were the issues under scrutiny in each application. [32524]

Mr. Gwilym Jones [holding answer 4 July 1995]: The information which can be given without disproportionate cost is as follows. Records show that, since 1986, there have been 28 cases involving applications for judicial review of the decisions of the Secretary of State for Wales. The applications mostly concern education, local government and the environment. It is not possible to say, without disproportionate cost, how many of these applications were unsuccessful.

TRANSPORT

Manchester Ship Canal

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has had from Manchester city council about protecting the Manchester ship canal from the possible impact of proposals related to a proposed landfill tax; what reply he is sending; and if he will make a statement. [30996]

Mr. Norris: The leader of Manchester city council, Councillor Graham Stringer, wrote to my right hon. Friend about the effect of the proposed landfill tax on dredging operations on 15 June. My noble Friend the Minister for Aviation and Shipping replied on 3 July. Copies of the correspondence have been placed in the Library.

Office of Passenger Rail Franchising

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if rail franchise holders will be permitted to increase seating capacity in order to meet Opraf specifications on load factor regulations for commuter trains; and if it will be permissible to do this by reducing seat pitch and leg room, or similar methods. [31900]

Mr. Watts: If a franchise operator amends the internal layout of his stock, the franchising director will reassess its deemed capacity for the purposes of load factor regulation.

Rolling Stock Companies

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of the detailed description of long-term Government support which is to be made available to short-listed bidders to buy rolling stock companies. [31901]

Mr. Watts: Minutes describing undertakings in respect of mandatory modifications and of certain rentals, proposed to be made to the rolling stock companies, were laid before the House on 24 May. I shall arrange for copies to be placed in the Library.

South West Trains

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many employees of South West Trains have been stood off awaiting selected work in each year since 1990; how many of those staff have subsequently been found employment in the railway service; and how many have left the railway service under ill health severance arrangements. [31902]

Mr. Watts: The information requested is not held centrally by the British Railways Board or South West Trains, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Rail Privatisation

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if it remains his policy to franchise 51 per cent. of the rail passenger business by turnover by April 1996; and if he will list target dates for (a) invitations to tender, (b) submission of indicative bids, (c) short-listing of preferred bidders, (d) submission of definitive bidders, (e) completion of tender evaluation and (f) approval by Government, for each of the eight fast track franchises and for the west coast main line. [31898]

Mr. Watts: The Government have not changed their target. Invitations to tender in respect of Great Western, LTS Rail and South Wast Trains were issued on 17 May. Initial, non-binding bids are to be received by 28 July. Formal tenderers will be selected in September. The franchising director expects to award the first franchises in December. He will bring forward the remaining franchises as soon as they are ready. He aims to issue further invitations to tender later this year.

Red Routes

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is the latest assessment of the road safety of the A1 red route through Haringey and Islington; and if he will make a statement. [32224]

Mr. Norris: The assessment by the traffic director for London of the performance of the A1 pilot red route network continues to show that it has produced considerable safety benefits.

Barking to Gospel Oak Line

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with Railtrack about the Barking to Gospel Oak line in respect of (a) track conditions, (b) frequency of train services and (c) the proposed new station at Tufnell Park; and if will make a statement. [32225]

Mr. Norris: I have travelled on the line with train operator management and Railtrack representatives, among others, to see how the service can be improved.

As part of last year's transport policies and programmes settlement, I reserved £200,000 in supplementary credit approval for a consortium led by the London borough of Waltham Forest towards selective station improvements on the line.

I understand that the consortium plans to use the SCA to take forward improvements at Leytonstone high road and Wanstead Park stations.

Railway Speed Restrictions

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many miles of (a) the former Regional Railways, (b) the former InterCity railways and (c) the former Network SouthEast were affected by speed restrictions for each year between 1984 and 1994. [32403]

Mr. Watts: Railtrack informs me that this information is not held centrally and would involve disproportionate cost to collect.

Newbury Bypass

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for transport what estiamte he has been given by the Highways Agency of the likely date of delivery to him of the final report on the A34 Newbury bypass. [32415]

Dr. Mawhinney [holding answer 4 July 1995]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Hampshire, North-West (Sir D. Mitchell, on 5 July.

Sir David Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how long, to the nearest week, he now expects his consideration of the case for proceeding with the A34 Newbury bypass to last. [33219]

Dr. Mawhinney: Last December, I announced that, before construction work began on the A34 Newbury bypass, further consideration would be given to the proposed route. I had no doubt that the current situation on the A34 was intolerable and that there was strong economic justification for a bypass. But I wanted to be sure of the environmental balance between the principal route alternatives and to confirm that the route proposed was the best solution to the problems of congestion in Newbury.

Congestion has got much worse since the public inquiry in 1988. Then there were about 40,000 vehicles a day on the A34 through Newbury. Recent counts show an increase of 25 per cent. in overall traffic levels. Forecasts suggest that traffic flows will reach between 65,000 and 78,000 vehicles per day by the year 2010. The inquiry heard evidence of peak hour delays of up to 30 minutes. Longer delays are not unusual now.

A team of Highways Agency staff not previously associated with the scheme undertook this further consideration and has reported to me. I have placed a copy of its report in the Library.

As the report makes clear, the team examined both the background to the scheme and the changes in appraisal techniques, local circumstances and traffic and economic data that have occurred since the inquiry and the subsequent decisions of the Secretaries of State.

Among these matters, the team gave attention to:

the closure of Greenham Common air base, which opens up the possibility of a new Eastern route;

the expected designation of new sites of special scientific interest in the valleys of the Rivers Kennet and Lambourn; protected species on the line of the announced route;

new archaeological data and the heritage value of the site of the 1643 Battle of Newbury;

the scope for induced traffic as a result of the bypass;

all central route options through the built-up area of Newbury, despite the fact that the inspector at the public inquiry had unequivocally rejected a central route; lower levels of improvement of the existing road.

I have carefully considered all the changes and other factors addressed in the team's report, the scope for alternative options to those examined at the public inquiry, and the balance between all the options. I have also taken into account all the advice that I have been given and representations I have received since this study was inaugurated.

I agree with the team's assessments, and with its overall conclusion that the western bypass, for which statutory orders have been made and confirmed, is the most effective solution for Newbury. I now intend to move ahead speedily with the proposed scheme to bring much-needed relief to the town and its residents. On the basis of the team's report and the work leading up to the earlier decision, I can see no justification for further investigation or delay.

Highway Code

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what have been (a) the annual sales of the road traffic regulations and (b) the annual sales of the Highway Code for each year since 1965. [32208]

Mr. Norris: The information is not available in the format requested.

Traffic Studies (A34)

Mr. Patten: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what grounds he decided not to publish the recent study into traffic on the A34 between Hinksey hill and the Peartree interchange. [32032]

Mr. Watts: Publication of the report could cause unnecessary anxiety about property blight.

A1-M1 Link Road

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the estimated cost of the A1-M1 link road and the level of bids received. [31723]

Mr. Watts: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency. I have asked its chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. John Spellar, dated 5 July 1995:

As you know, the Minister for Railways and Roads, Mr. John Watts, has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking the Secretary of States for Transport if he will make a statement on the estimated cost of A1-M1 link road and the level of bids received.

The estimated cost of the scheme is £190m at 1992 prices excluding VAT and land. Details of the bids are commercially confidential.

Atlantic Conveyor

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what financial contribution his Department made towards the lengthening of the Atlantic Conveyor in 1987. [31727]

Mr. Norris: None.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions have taken place between his Department and the Cunard Steamship Co., concerning the company's intention to sell off the Atlantic Conveyor to a foreign owner, replace the United Kingdom seafarers on board and remove it from the United Kingdom registry. [31909]

Mr. Norris: There have been no discussions with the Department.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what commitment his Department sought from Cunard Steamship Co. in respect of continued United Kingdom registration for the replacement vessel Atlantic Conveyor, prior to the Ministry of Defence making a financial contribution towards its construction. [31754]

Mr. Norris: None.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list militarily useful modification required to be made to the replacement Atlantic Conveyor during construction to enhance its defence capability; and what is the cost of each. [31753]

Mr. Soames: I have been asked to reply.

Militarily useful modifications made to the Atlantic Conveyor comprised: detached flight deck equipment and fittings, portable watertight bulkhead panels, aviation refuelling system, pipework to permit replenishment at sea, military communications equipment and PA system. The cost of the modifications were part of the contract with Cunard, details of which are commercially confidential.

Sycamore Trees, Bramshott

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the destruction of the memorial avenue of sycamore trees at Bramshott on the A3 Portsmouth road. [31724]

Mr. Watts: The trees, planted as a memorial to Canadian service men, were removed in the interest of road safety and the long-term health of the roadside environment. The decision to remove the trees was taken only after extensive consultations with interested parties, including the Canadian high commission.

To ensure that a memorial was retained, new plantations of maple trees imported from Canada have been provided on both sides of the A3 at Bramshott common. All the replacement trees are visible from the trunk road and accessible to the public. Wood from the felled trees is being used to make seats which will be presented to local churches and the national memorial arboretum. A seat will also be placed within the newly planted area.

The need to fell the trees was very much regretted but I hope everyone concerned will agree that the new memorial is an appropriate and fitting commemoration of those Canadians who lost their lives in the two world wars.

Car Share Initiatives

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the car share initiatives being operated for employees within his Department. [31830]

Mr. Norris: While departmental staff may make private arrangements to share commuting journeys by private car, the only part of the Department of Transport that operates a scheme is the Driving Standards Agency. Its scheme covers one quarter of its management areas.

A1 Upgrading

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was his Department's estimate of the cost of upgrading the A1 between Peterborough and Alconbury; and what have been the bids made under the design-build-finance operate scheme. [31722]

Mr. Watts: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency. I have asked its chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. John Spellar, dated 5 July 1995:

As you know, the Minister for Railways and Roads, Mr. John Watts, has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking the Secretary of State for Transport, what was his Department's estimate of the cost of upgrading the A1 between Peterborough and Alconbury; and what have been the bids made under the Design-Build-Finance-Operate scheme.

The project had an estimated construction cost of £144 million (excluding VAT) based on 1992 prices. Details of bids received cannot be divulged because they are commercially confidential.

Road Protestors

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the total cost to public funds of the recent operation to remove protestors from the last house in Fillebrook road, Leytonstone. [31944]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency. I have asked its chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. Harry Cohen, dated 5 July 1995:

As you know, the Minister for London, Mr. Steven Norris, has asked me to write in reply to your Parliamentary Question about the costs to public funds of evictions from 135 Fillebrook Road, Leytonstone in connection with the A12 Hackney Wick to M11 Link Road.

The operation took place only on June 21st, and so far we have identified only the costs of the Under Sheriff and his Officers and of the Treasury Solicitor and their disbursements. These amount to £239,349.52 in total.

This leaves the cost of security guards and I will let you have the figure as soon as we have been billed. The other major cost is of course for police resources, and as such not a matter for the Highways Agency.

No additional HA or consultant staff were employed specifically for the purposes of the eviction, and so we have not attributed any of our overhead costs to it.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32478]

Mr. Norris: Expenditure is as follows:

Year	Total[1]	DOT Road Safety Campaigns[1]	DVLA (a)	DVLA (b)
1985–86	5,655	5,375	0.280	0
1986–87[2]	9,267	8,777	0.490	0
1987–88[2]	9,435	8,905	0.530	0
1988–89	3,294	2,619	0.675	0
1989–90	4,255	3,531	0.724	0
1990–91	3,879	2,791	0.649	0.438
1991–92	5,832	4,666	0.676	0.490
1992–93	6,996	5,758	0.746	0.492
1993–94	5,814	4,245	0.870	0.699
1994–95	6,008	4,518	0.890	0.600

Road Safety: advertising to reduce number of road accidents by specifically targeted campaigns against speeding and drink driving.
DVLA (a): Enforcement of Vehicle Excise Duty—extensive localised publicity for raising public awareness to the penalties of vehicle excise duty evasion and to encourage motorists to relicense their vehicles.
DVLA (b): Sale of Vehicle registration numbers scheme—publicity to increase awareness of the sales scheme and the different product ranges.
[1] All DOT advertising figures exclude VAT.
[2] Includes BA and BAA flotation advertising costs.

Figures prior to prior to 1985 are not readily available.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Patent Office

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how successful the marketing department of the Patent Office has been in recent years according to the Patent Office corporate plans; and if he will make a statement. [32358]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Since the Patent Office became an executive agency in 1990, the work of its marketing department has concentrated on spreading awareness of the importance of intellectual property rights—for example, through advertising campaigns and roadshows. Outputs have been monitored against budgets set, and quality assessed through feedback invited from customers. On both counts, the marketing department has consistently achieved its objectives. However, the effect of its work on demand for Patent Office services could not be quantified, since it has not possible to differentiate it from other determinants such as the economic climate and changes in the speed of innovation cycles.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to contract out the work of the marketing department of the Patent Office, and if he will make a statement. [32348]

Mr. Taylor: My right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade stated in his announcement of the outcome of the Patent Office review on 14 December 1994, Official Report, column 657–58 that the office would be encouraged to contract out activities wherever this is compatible with its statutory role and good value for money. Consultants have been retained to explore market potential for Patent Office services, focusing on demand for non-statutory services such as commercial searches and technical advice, and means of realising it. Contractorisation of marketing and information work is therefore a possibility, but the consultants have not yet reported and no decisions have yet been taken.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what procedures are in place for the consultation with Patent Office employees concerning contractorisation and re-engineering within the office; and if he will make a statement. [32349]

Mr. Taylor: The chief executive of the Patent Office and other senior managers met all staff in small groups following the outcome of the Patent Office review, and discussed issues of contractorisation and reengineering at that time. Another round of discussion will take place later in the summer. The trade unions have been notified of the appointment of consultants to consider selected areas, and contract officers have been identified.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is his most recent judgment concerning the eligibility of the Patent Office employees to make bids for work put to tender by the Patent Office; and if he will make a statement. [32356]

Mr. Taylor: Certain areas of work within the Patent Office are being considered to see whether—in principle—contracting out would be feasible. No tenders have yet been issued. Should tenders be invited, staff may enter a bid on the same basis as the private sector, with the corollary that they will cease to be civil servants if their bid is successful. Bids for contracted out services will be assessed against benchmarks for the forecast cost and quality of service from in-house provision, and so staff already have the opportunity to prove that they can match or beat the private sector if the services remain in-house.

Official Receiver, Hull Office

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many bankruptcy orders and winding up orders have been dealt with by the official receiver's office, Hull, in each of the last six years. [32508]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The total numbers of new bankruptcy orders and winding up orders dealt with by the official receiver, Hull office in each of the last six years were as follows:

1990	168	55
1991	322	116
1992	555	123
1993	645	140
1994	579	135
1995	488	104

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many casual staff have been employed in the official receiver's office, Hull, in each of the last six years. [32509]

Mr. Evans: The numbers of casual staff employed at the official receiver, Hull office as at 1 April in each of the last six years were as follows:

Year	Number of casual staff
1 April 1990	0
1 April 1991	1
1 April 1992	2
1 April 1993	2
1 April 1994	2
1 April 1995	3

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many directors were disqualified under the Directors Disqualification Act 1986 in each of the courts covered by the official receiver's office, Hull, in each of the last four years. [32588]

Mr. Evans: The numbers of disqualification orders made under section 6 of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 in the Great Grimsby, Kingston-upon-Hull, Scarborough, Scunthorpe and York courts covered by the official receiver, Hull office in each of the last four years were as follows:

1992	2
1993	2
1994	3
1995	1

Official Receiver

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to prevent the directors and shareholders of Shreeveport Ltd., or any of their associates, as defined by section 435 of the Insolvency Act 1986, from bidding for any of the contracts for privatising any of the functions of the official receiver.

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The terms of the contract between Shreeveport Ltd. and the Insolvency Service prevent directors and shareholders of Shreeveport, or any of their associates, from bidding for any of the functions of the official receiver.

Mr. Austin: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what consideration he is giving to the recommendation of Stoy Hayward Consulting on using a pilot scheme to evaluate whether the contracting out of the functions of the official receiver will give increased value for money. [32605]

Mr. Evans: The recommendation of Stoy Hayward Consulting was carefully considered, but it was concluded that a pilot scheme would not provide a sufficiently reliable indication of the likely value for money of contracting out across all official receiver's offices.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade in what circumstances he will be prepared to contract out the investigatory function of the official receiver following the enabling order. [32598]

Mr. Evans: There is no intention to contract out any functions of the official receiver other than those currently being considered.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is his policy in respect of the Stoy Hayward Consulting recommendation that the functions of the official receiver should be contracted out only to insolvency practitioners. [32586]

Mr. Evans: Stoy Hayward Consulting concluded from its work that insolvency practitioners were the most likely candidates for contracting out of official receivers' functions, but the invitation for expressions of interest was not restricted to insolvency practitioners.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement as to the likely benefits he expects if the work of the official receiver is contracted out. [32582]

Mr. Evans: The decision to explore the viability of contracting out the functions of the official receiver was based on the potential for increased value for money and advice that contracting out would allow official receivers to concentrate more on their investigative effort.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade whether, when a contractor becomes insolvent, the official receiver awarding the contract will become personally liable for any losses incurred, in the event of part of the function of the official receiver being contracted out. [32590]

Mr. Evans: Pursuant to the provisions of section 72 of the Deregulation and Contracting Out Act 1994, official receivers will remain liable at law for the proper discharge of their function.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how he intends to inform Insolvency Service staff of the developments towards contracting out functions of official receivers. [32507]

Mr. Evans: A communications strategy is in place within the Insolvency Service with the aim of keeping staff up to date with the progress of the contracting out exercise.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if contractors will be required to purchase or lease the LOIS computer system in the event of the functions of the official receiver being contracted out. [32511]

Mr. Evans: No, but there will be minimum mandatory requirements as to compatibility and interfacing between any office systems which providers propose to use and the Insolvency Service's system.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if indemnity, required from contractors awarded the work of official receivers, will include provision for any losses incurred by official receivers as a result of fraudulent behaviour by the contractor or a member of his staff. [32602]

Mr. Evans: Any form of indemnity required from contractors undertaking the functions of the official receivers would need to provide for all liabilities, however arising, falling on the official receiver in relation to those functions.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what contingency plans he will have in place if, in the event of the privatisation of parts of the Insolvency Service, a contractor responsible for carrying out the functions of the official receiver becomes insolvent. [32604]

Mr. Evans: Any contracting out of official receivers' functions will proceed only where value for money is assured and any such calculation will take into account the financial standing of potential contractors. Contracting out to a number of contractors would enable alternate providers to be used in the event of one becoming insolvent.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the addresses of each official receiver's office or sub-office, showing whether the properties leasehold, rented or freehold and, where appropriate, the length of any remaining issue. [32581]

Mr. Evans: The addresses of the offices of official receivers, including sub-offices showing lease/freehold details are:

None of the leaseholds are currently held by the Insolvency Service: the freeholds are held by the Crown.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many expressions of interest he has received after advertising the contracting out of the functions of the official receiver, distinguishing those received from insolvency practitioners and those received from other interested parties. [32585]

Mr. Evans: Some 149 expressions of interest were received, of which 117 were from insolvency practitioners.

Gas

Mr. O'Neill: To ask the President of the Board of Trade on what percentage targets of non-British Gas supply to both commercial and consumer markets his Department will assess the success of the Gas Bill by (a) 1998, (b) 2000 and (c) 2005; and if his Department will review (i) the competitive restrictions on British Gas plc and (ii) its relationship with British Gas TransCo if these targets are not met. [30088]

Mr. Eggar: The regulatory framework proposed in the Gas Bill and accompanying licensing regime is intended to give all gas suppliers the opportunity to supply the market on fair and equal terms. It is not consistent with this objective to set targets for the loss of market share by one particular supplier.

DAMAGED ORIGINAL

The regulatory framework we propose, together with normal competition law, provides mechanisms for the Secretary of State and the director general to consider, as necessary and in accordance with their respective roles, the appropriateness of particular licence conditions—whether standard or specific to British Gas—and the relationship of British Gas TransCo to the British Gas trading businesses.

Ofgas

Mr. O'Neill: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if procedures and criteria by which decisions are arrived at by the Director General of Ofgas will be (a) published and (b) made available to those affected by the decision. [30071]

Mr. Eggar: The director general has adopted a policy of consulting where practicable before taking decisions and setting out in such consultation the basis of her proposed approach. This policy, executed within the framework of the director's statutory duties, is one which the Government supports.

British Gas

Mr. O'Neill: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which companies will hold legacy transportation contracts with British Gas plc on 1 October; and when these contracts will expire. [30072]

Mr. Eggar: This is a commercially confidential matter for British Gas and its contractual partners.

Economic League

Mr. Redmond: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what information his Department receives from the Economic League; and if he will make a statement. [31680]

Mr. Heseltine: The DTI has had no dealings with the Economic League and has received no information from it.

Recycling

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps he is taking to encourage the use of recycled materials in the manufacturing processes of United Kingdom companies. [32455]

Mr. Page: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 22 May 1995, Official Report, column 423.

British Airways

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what discussions he has had with British Airways on its sourcing of aeroplanes and engines from non-European Union countries. [32453]

Mr. Eggar: None.

Aircraft Engines

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what has been the effect on the balance of trade between the United Kingdom and the United States of America of the decision to buy Boeing 727 aircraft with United States rather than United Kingdom—manufactured engines. [32454]

Mr. Eggar: None. The Boeing 727 aircraft, which first flew in 1963, were all powered by US manufacture Pratt and Whitney JT and D engines. No UK carriers ordered new Boeing 727s and thus there was no effect on the UK's balance of trade.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32479]

Mr. Heseltine: The Department of Trade and Industry works with the Central Office of Information, which manages media advertising on behalf of central Government.

Expenditure since 1979 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, total advertising expenditure by the Department through the COI for the past five years is:

Year

1990–91: £5,496,898

1991–92: £798,527

1992–93: £1,120,539

1993–94: £606,338

1994–95: £501,146

Major campaigns each year during this time have been as follows:

RECHAR

Mr. Tipping: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when the east midlands RECHAR II decision document was due to be signed by the European Commission; what delays have occurred; what outstanding issues are yet to be resolved; what reasons are given by the Commission for any such delays; when he expects the decision document will be signed; and if he will make a statement. [31685]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 3 July 1995]: In common with all the Community initiatives programmes sent by member states by the deadline of 31 October 1994 set in the relevant European Commission notice of 1 July, the east midlands RECHAR II programme should have been adopted by 30 April 1995. The process was delayed by the tardy initial response by the Commission to the programme. The Commission wrote on 13 February 1995. The Commission has, in discussions with officials, stated that delays are due to delays in the negotiations of member states' objective 2 and objective 5(b) single programme documents and Community support framework and the large number of Community initiative programmes sent by member states.

I understand that there are no outstanding issues on the east midlands RECHAR II programme and the Commission expect to adopt the programme by the end of July.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Middle East

17. Mr. Carrington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made towards peace in the middle east. [30911]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon, South (Mr. Marshall) earlier.

30. Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next expects to meet the Israeli foreign minister to discuss developments in the middle east peace process. [30924]

Mr. Hogg: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met the Israeli Foreign Minister at the end of March when they discussed the peace process. He currently has no plans to meet Mr. Peres.

Security Council Resolutions

19. Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to improve the effectiveness of the implementation of UN Security Council resolutions as they relate to the former Yugoslavia. [30913]

Mr. Hurd: We are committed to the Security Council resolutions in relation to all countries of the former Yugoslavia. We are major contributors to UNPROFOR and are increasing its effectiveness by providing additional British troops to create a rapid reaction force. We are playing our full part in sanctions enforcement, and are providing a total of 26 monitors to the international conference on former Yugoslavia, ICFY.

We are putting our full weight behind the peace process and welcome the appointment of Mr. Bildt as EU mediator. His appointment and the deployment of the rapid reaction force have created a window of opportunity. It is up to the parties to seize this moment and come to a negotiated settlement, accepting the contact group plan as a starting point.

Intergovernmental Conference

20. Mr. Riddick: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will be prepared to consider handing over any further powers to the European Union and its institutions as part of the negotiations during next year's intergovernmental conference. [30914]

Mr. David Davis: We see no case for any extension of Community competence at the forthcoming intergovernmental conference.

21. Sir Roger Moate: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a further statement about preparations for the forthcoming intergovernmental conference. [30915]

Mr. Davis: We are continuing to develop Britain's approach to the intergovernmental conference. The study group which will prepare for the IGC has begun its work. Its next meeting is on 10 and 11 July.

Sudan

22. Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement about the civil war in southern Sudan. [30916]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We fully support the peace initiative launched last year by the intergovernmental authority for drought and development, IGADD. I expressed concern about the civil war during a meeting with the Sudanese Minister of State for Foreign Affairs on 22 May, and urged the Sudanese Government to persevere with the IGADD initiative.

36. Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on human rights in Sudan. [30930]

Mr. Hogg: We continue to be concerned about the lamentable human rights situation in the Sudan. I raised this with the Sudanese Minister of State for Foreign Affairs in a meeting on 22 May.

Japanese Diet (Apology)

24. Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his Department's policy towards the statement of apology recently discussed by the Japanese Diet; and if he will make a statement. [30918]

Mr. Hurd: We attach importance to the apology given to the Prime Minister in September 1993 by his Japanese counterpart, which included specific reference to prisoners of war. The recent statement by the Japanese Diet is a more general expression of "deep remorse".

Cyprus

25. Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the current situation in Cyprus. [30919]

Mr. David Davis: The present division of Cyprus is unacceptable. We are actively supporting the UN Secretary-General's mission of good offices which offers the best hope for a just and lasting solution.

Exploratory discussions between representatives of the two communities in Cyprus took place in London on 21 to 23 May. We are encouraging both sides in Cyprus to approach future negotiations positively and flexibly.

Governmental Relations (Iran and Iraq)

26. Mr. Chisholm: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the British Government's relations with Iraq and Iran during the 1980s. [30920]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The UK's relations with both Iran and Iraq during the 1980s were difficult. The Iranian Government's policies after the 1979 revolution were hostile to our interests. We had a series of problems with Iraq. The Iran-Iraq war was a further complication.

Kashmir

27. Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the present situation in Kashmir. [30921]

Mr. Baldry: The Indian Government have recently extended President's rule over the state of Jammu and Kashmir for six months from mid-July. They have made it clear that they will try to hold state elections within that period. We hope that such elections could provide a first step towards the genuine political process for which we have long called.

31. Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement setting out Her Majesty Government's policy in respect of Kashmir. [30925]

Mr. Baldry: Our position is unchanged. We continue to believe that the best way forward on Kashmir should involve simultaneous progress on dialogue between India and Pakistan as provided for under the 1972 Simla agreement, improvement in human rights in Kashmir and a genuine political process there and a clear cessation of external support for violence in Kashmir. We stand ready to offer our good offices to help resolve the dispute if both sides so wish.

BBC World Service

28. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he will make a statement on the outcome of the recent review of monitoring of the BBC World Service. [30922]

Mr. Baldry: A review of BBC monitoring, the first in recent years, was carried out in 1994 by a joint team from the BBC, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Defence. The review concluded that BBC monitoring continues to play a valuable role and should be retained, but recommended improvements to the marketing and distribution of its products. From 1997, BBC monitoring will no longer be funded from the grant in aid to the BBC World Service. Instead, official users will pay a subscription, based on their individual requirements. Monitoring will remain part of the BBC, as a fully trading business unit. The FCO will remain the sponsoring Government Department.

These decisions have been agreed with the BBC.

Angola

29. Mr. Grocott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to meet the Angolan Foreign Minister to discuss the situation in that country. [30923]

Mr. Baldry: My right hon. and noble Friend Baroness Chalker had talks with Dr. Venancio de Moura during a visit to Angola on 19 to 21 June. She also had meetings with President Dos Santos, Prime Minister Moco, other Ministers and senior representatives of UNITA. All assured her of their commitment to a successful conclusion to the peace process.

Western European Union

32. Mr. Robert Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what has been the response to the Government's initiative to build up the Western European Union within the Atlantic Alliance. [30926]

Mr. David Davis: The proposals set out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in the House on 1 March have been welcomed by WEU and NATO member Governments as a demonstration of our readiness to play an active and constructive role in this area. WEU Ministers, meeting in Lisbon on 15 May, welcomed our ideas, together with those put forward by other nations, as a significant contribution to the forthcoming debate at the intergovernmental conference.

Arms Exports

33. Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his Department's policy on arms exports. [30927]

Mr. David Davis: It is our policy to support the sale of British defence equipment overseas where this is compatible with our political, strategic and security interests. We observe strict responsibility in our defence exports. We consider applications for licences to export defence equipment on a case-by-case basis in the light of established criteria including the international guidelines to which we are committed.

Former Yugoslavia

34. Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Her Majesty's Government's relations with that part of the former Yugoslavia comprising Serbia and Montenegro. [30928]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We do not recognise the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro). We will review our position in the light of developments in the peace process.

Hong Kong

35. Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what guarantees he has obtained from the Chinese Government that press freedom and trade union rights will be respected in Hong Kong after 1 July 1997. [30929]

Mr. Baldry: Under the Sino-British joint declaration, the Government of the future Hong Kong special administrative region shall maintain the rights and freedoms provided for by the laws previously in force in Hong Kong. The declaration explicitly protects freedom of the press, freedom to form and join trade unions, and freedom to strike.

Russia

37. Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last met members of the Russian Government to discuss human rights in that country. [30931]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: My right hon. Friend last met Foreign Minister Kozyrev on 7 June when he made clear our concerns about human rights abuses in Chechnya. There was a detailed exchange on the general human rights situation at official level in Moscow in April. A further such exchange with the Russians will take place here in July.

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement about Britain's relations with Russia. [30898]

Mr. Hurd: Russia, and our relationship with Russia, have been transformed in the last six years. We are now dealing with a Russia where democracy is putting down strong roots, where the press is free and where the rules of the market increasingly prevail. Russia has become a valued partner in tackling some of the international problems which confront us.

Britain has played a central role in this process of change. We helped redesign Europe's security arrangements, through the 4+2 process, after the collapse of the Berlin wall. We have pressed for a strong and productive relationship between Russia and NATO, which led to Russia joining the partnership for peace process in May. We have worked together closely over Bosnia, as members of the contact group. We have supported Russian involvement in the annual economic summits.

Britain has offered practical support for Russian reform through the know-how fund—widely regarded as the best of its kind. We have also led the debate in Europe on the need to open our markets to Russian exports. I hope this will be crowned by the signature of the interim agreement later this month.

Our relations with Russia have never been better in this century. They have been strongly reinforced by the Prime Minister's close personal relationship with President Yeltsin and by Her Majesty the Queen's dramatic state visit to Russia last year.

Gibraltar

38. Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Administration of Gibraltar in respect of the United Kingdom's requirements in relation to the Gibraltar banking system. [30932]

Mr. David Davis: I have discussed with the Chief Minister, Mr. Bossano, the importance of Gibraltar's banking and financial services industry having the highest reputation of honesty and probity if it is to flourish and make the important contribution to Gibraltar's economy which both he and I want to see.

European Institutions

Mr. Marlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what powers he seeks to repatriate from European institutions. [30917]

Mr. David Davis: We are still considering our approach on a range of issues for next year's inter-governmental conference, including the possible limitation and repatriation of Community competences.

Arms Control

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals have been put forward to date, and what new proposals are planned, to fulfil the commitment made in the chairman's statement from the G7 summit in Halifax, at paragraph 5 of the sections on arms control and disarmament, to work with other G7 nations to strengthen systems of control, accounting and physical security of nuclear materials and the International Atomic Energy Agency. [31874]

Mr. David Davis: The UK has discussed the problems of nuclear smuggling on a number of occasions with G7 partners and Russia. In our view, it is important to ensure adequate systems of nuclear materials accountancy and control and physical protection. We have offered bilateral assistance to a number of countries in this area. At the Halifax summit, it was agreed that a nuclear safety conference should be held early next year which is likely to consider what further role the G7 and Russia can play in this.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32484]

Mr. Goodlad: Figures for total expenditure on promotional material and recruitment advertising in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office—diplomatic wing and ODA—are as given in my written answer to the hon. Member for Gordon (Mr. Bruce) on 13 February 1995. The FCO produces most of its advertising and publicity material in-house. Details of expenditure incurred on advertising agencies could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bosnia

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the involvement of the United Kingdom in Bosnia has so far cost the United Kingdom. [32445]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We have so far contributed over £271 million in aid to the former Yugoslavia—£136 million bilaterally and £135 million through the European Union—and incurred net costs of £292 million for our contribution to UNPROFOR and the Sarajevo airlift. Our commitments to NATO's Deny Flight operation and to Operation Sharp Guard have been £33 million and £1 million respectively. In addition, we have contributed £10.9 million towards the European Community monitoring mission and £1.1 million to the international conference on former Yugoslavia.

There have been other costs to our involvement in the former Yugoslavia, but this information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Opt-outs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many opt-outs for the United Kingdom have been agreed with the European Union. [32037]

Mr. David Davis [holding answer 4 July 1995]: Under protocol No. 11 of the treaty on European union, the United Kingdom is not obliged or committed to move to stage three of European monetary union. Under protocol No. 14 of the same treaty, the member states can agree that all except the United Kingdom could, under a separate agreement between themselves, take acts and decisions to give effect to their agreement on social policy. No such act would be applicable to the United Kingdom, nor would the United Kingdom bear any consequent budgetary burden other than administrative costs of the institutions.

Consular Fees

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to increase consular fees. [33124]

Mr. Baldry: An Order in Council, the Consular Fees Order 1995, made on 28 June, provides for increases between 17 per cent. and 100 per cent. in certain consular fees with effect from 20 July, 1995. A new entry clearance fee for multiple entries, valid for one year, will be introduced on the same date. It is Government policy that the cost of the consular services should be borne by users as far as possible.

Libya

Mr. Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his policy towards the granting of visas to citizens of Libya. [30892]

Mr. Baldry: I can confirm that Libyan nationals are required to obtain visas before they can enter the UK. All applications are considered under the immigration rules HC 395.

Apart from transit passengers, remaining airside, and business visitors previously issued with visas in the past six months, all applications received from Libyan nationals are referred to the migration and visa department of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London. Applicants over the age of 16 are required to sign a declaration of non-violence before being granted a visa.

Libyan nationals can be granted only single entry visas.

The British interests section in Tripoli offers a limited visa service and accepts applications from diplomats, officials and urgent medical and family reunion applications from close family members. Applicants for visit visas can apply at any other British overseas mission designed to issue visas. Applicants for other categories should apply to Valletta. A list of designated posts is held in the Library of the House.

East Timor

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his answer of 22 May, Official Report, columns 382-83, what meetings there have been between the British embassy staff and representatives of the East Timorese people; which leaders they met; and if discussions were conducted about the export of British arms to Indonesia. [32618]

Mr. Goodlad: A member of the British embassy staff last visited East Timor on 27-29 June 1995. He had meetings with a number of East Timorese leaders, covering the range of Timorese opinion.

We have regular meetings with East Timorese representatives in East Timor, in Indonesia and elsewhere. For instance, I met Ramos Horta and Abilio Araujo, at their request, earlier this year in London.

South Africa

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance is being given by Her Majesty's Government to the encouragement of multi-party democracy and good community relations in South Africa. [30896]

Mr. Hurd: South Africa's transformation to full democracy is one of the most welcome developments of recent years. Britain's support for the new South Africa was shown by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's visit last September, and by Her Majesty the Queen's dramatic state visit in March. South Africa will be warmly welcomed at the Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting in November, after 33 years' absence from the Commonwealth.

Britain is helping the new South Africa through promotion of trade and investment, strengthening of scientific, defence, cultural and sporting links, and through development assistance. We helped with preparations for the elections of April 1994, and will help with the local elections in November this year. I also welcome strengthening parliamentary links—including the visit by a delegation of hon. Members in April, and the plans by Madam Speaker to visit in August. I look forward to growing co-operation between Britain and South Africa in the years ahead.

DEFENCE

Maintenance Group Defence Agency

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the key management targets of the RAF Maintenance Group Defence Agency for the financial year 1995–96. [33125]

Mr. Soames: The RAF Maintenance Group Defence Agency's key management targets for 1995–96 concentrate on three principal objectives:

(a) The effective performance of the group.

(b) the economic use of resources.

(c) The introduction of management initiatives.

The group's targets are:

(a) To achieve at least 98 per cent. of the specified aerosystems maintenance task to standard and on time.

(b) To achieve the joint service publication 336 "Defence Supply Manual" speed of issue and pipeline targets for at least 95 per cent. of the depot supply task.

(c) to keep within the group's allocated budget.

(d) To reduce the cost per unit of output by 2.5 per cent.

(e) To issue the invitation to tender, under the "Competing for Quality" initiative, for the designated functions at RAF Sealand by 31 October 1995 and at RAF St. Athan by 1 March 1996.

(f) To continue the comprehensive rationalisation of functions within the agency by:

(1) Completing the transfer of all active stock from RAF Carlisle by 31 March 1996, thereby enabling the closure of the unit by 31 March 1997.

(2) Cease the operation of RAF Quedgeley as an independent unit by 31 March 1996, thereby enabling the closure of the unit by 31 March 1997.

Net Pingers

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution net pingers could make to the safe interaction of dived submarines and fishing vessels; and if he will make a statement. [33126]

Mr. Soames: My Department takes its responsibility for ensuring that fishing vessels can operate safely in areas of submarine activity very seriously. The use of net pingers as a means of enhancing the safe interaction of dived submarines and fishing vessels is one of a number of measures we have carefully considered during extensive consultation with the fishing industry. However, both the Royal Navy and fishermen's representatives have major reservations about the effectiveness of net pingers and, in particular, are concerned that the absence of pinger soundings can never mean that no fishing is taking place. I have, therefore, concluded that, in accordance with the firm views expressed by fishermen's representatives and the Royal Navy, the trial announced in the House by my right hon. Friend the Member for Epsom and Ewell (Sir A. Hamilton) on 15 June 1992, Official Report, column 425, should be discontinued.

I am confident that the comprehensive package of measures that we have introduced in recent years, including the code of practice which governs the conduct of dived submarines in waters frequented by fishing vessels, and the SUBFACTS broadcast system, provides for the safe co-existence of submarines and fishing vessels. Notwithstanding this, we will continue to monitor closely the effectiveness of these measures and to consider any proposals on how safety might be further enhanced.

Helicopter Accident

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what standing instructions were in force on 2 June 1994 concerning preferred routes for Aldergrove-based helicopters flying at low level to Fort George or Inverness; and what changes have been made to those instructions. [31637]

Mr. Soames: There are no such instructions in place. The crew would have selected the most appropriate route.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the authorising officer at RAF Aldergrove, who approved the flight of Chinook ZD576 from Aldergrove to Fort George on 2 June 1994, was given special instructions relating to the high security status of the personnel travelling on the flight. [31635]

Mr. Soames: No special instructions were required.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what altitude restrictions due to the possibilities of icing were in force for Chinook flights from Northern Ireland to the north of Scotland at the time of the flight of Chinook ZD576 on 2 June 1994. [31631]

Mr. Soames: There were no specific altitude restrictions in place for that particular flight. The aircraft icing limitation was +4° celsius and the crew would have sought to avoid flight above the +4° celsius isotherm in cloud because of the potential icing hazard.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the minimum authorised altitude for the flight of Chinook ZD576 from Aldergrove to Fort George on 2 June 1994; and by whom this minimum altitude was laid down. [31623]

Mr. Soames: The minimum authorised altitude of 50 ft. above ground or sea level was in keeping with No. 1 group support helicopter air staff orders, authorised by the Air Office Commanding.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what were the latitude and longitude of (a) the first and (b) the second planned turning points after leaving Aldergrove on the route of Chinook ZD576 to Fort George on 2 June 1994; and if they were known to the board of inquiry into the aircraft's accident. [31639]

Mr. Soames: The board of inquiry determined that the latitude and longitude of the planned turning points were (a) N55° 18.5' WOO5° 48' and (b) N56" 43' WOO5° 14'.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the global positioning system equipment on board Chinook ZD576 was found to have been (a) serviceable and (b) in use at the time of the crash on 2 June 1994. [31627]

Mr. Soames: (a) Yes. (b) Yes.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for how many hours each of the two pilots of Chinook ZD576 on 2 June 1994 had flown (a) in total and (b) on Chinooks. [31633]

Mr. Soames: The information is as follows:

Captain of the flight: (a) 3,165 hours (b) 683 hours

Co-pilot: (a) 2,867 hours (b) 1,492 hours

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the height above sea level of the initial impact of Chinook ZD576 on 2 June 1994. [31625]

Mr. Soames: Eight hundred and ten feet above mean sea level.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the flight of Chinook ZD576 from Aldergrove to Fort George on 2 June 1994 was found to have been properly authorised (a) at station level and (b) by RAF West Drayton. [31636]

Mr. Soames: (a) Yes (b) Yes.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the planned en route ground speed of Chinook ZD576 for its flight to Fort George on 2 June 1994; and what was the estimated speed of the aircraft at impact. [31624]

Mr. Soames: The planned ground speed was 120 knots and the estimated ground speed at impact was 150 knots. The weather indicated a tailwind component.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hours had been flown by each of the two pilots killed in the Chinook crash on 2 June 1994 (a) on previous flights on the day of the accident and (b) during the 30 days up to 2 June 1994. [31640]

Mr. Soames: The information is as follows:

Captain of the flight: (a) 5 hours 40 minutes (b) 59 hours

Co-pilot: (a) 5 hours 40 minutes (b) 20 hours

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if each of the two pilots of Chinook ZD576 on 2 June 1994 had been given special clearances to fly passengers of high security status. [31628]

Mr. Soames: No such clearances were required.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the crew of Chinook ZD576 were informed of the high security status of their passengers from Aldergrove to Fort George on 2 June 1994 prior to planning their route for the flight. [31634]

Mr. Soames: Yes.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if Chinook ZD576 was equipped with any form of electronic map or route display for its flight on 2 June 1994. [31626]

Mr. Soames: RAF Chinooks carry automatic chart displays in the cabin to provide secondary information to the loadmasters on the position of the aircraft. The board of inquiry was unable to establish whether the automatic chart display was in use during the flight.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the sortie planning for the flight of Chinook ZD576 from Aldergrove to Fort George included, at any stage, consideration of a flight at medium altitude. [31630]

Mr. Soames: Yes, but this was rejected because of the poor weather forecast.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what magnetic compass heading the Chinook ZD576 was flying immediately prior to impact; 2 June 1994; and what evidence there was that the aircraft had altered its heading in its last few minutes of flight. [31638]

Mr. Soames: The compass heading at impact is not known. The board of inquiry determined that the magnetic track, which indicates the actual direction flown across the ground, was 025° at impact. There was no evidence of any significant heading change prior to impact.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what revisions have been made to the syllabus for training of Royal Air Force Chinook aircrew as a result of lessons learned from the inquiry into the crash on 2 June 1994. [31338]

Mr. Soames: Existing poor weather abort instructions have been reinforced and issued to all helicopter aircrew to remind them of the procedures to follow in weather conditions where it is unsafe to continue flying under visual flight rules.

Helicopters

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes have been made to RAF procedures for authorising officers to scrutinise route plans for low level helicopter sorties since 2 June 1994. [31629]

Mr. Soames: None.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the regulations governing the lookout duties of loadmaster crew on RAF Chinooks during personnel transport flights at low level in bad weather. [31632]

Mr. Soames: Where their primary duties in the aircraft cabin permit, loadmasters on RAF Chinooks are required to maintain a look out in their field of view.

Low Flying

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the minimum permitted altitude for air defence aircraft carrying out interceptions of ground attack aircraft flying at 100 ft above ground level in tactical training areas. [31334]

Mr. Soames: Two hundred and fifty feet minimum separation distance subject to prior approval by headquarters military air traffic operations.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the mandatory westward flow control for low-flying military aircraft in Glencoe includes the area between Glencoe village and the Ballachulish bridge. [31341]

Mr. Soames: No.

Tartan Warrior

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many sorties were flown during the recent exercise Tartan Warrior; how many of these were by ground attack aircraft; and what was the minimum permitted altitude for the ground attack aircraft involved in the exercise. [31336]

Mr. Soames: A total of 289 sorties were flown during the exercise, of which 200 were by ground attack aircraft. The minimum permitted altitude for the majority of the low-level sorties flown by ground attack aircraft was 250 ft minimum separation distance with a small proportion of sorties permitted down to 100 ft minimum separation distance.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advance information was given to the media concerning Exercise Tartan Warrior; and if he will list those media organisations to whom the information was sent. [31340]

Mr. Soames: Exercise Tartan Warrior was a small-scale squadron training exercise and in the circumstances advance information was not given to the media about all of the activity involved. Details of the use of Tain air weapons range were provided to Moray Firth Radio and to Aberdeen Journals Ltd.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of the ground attack sorties during exercise Tartan Warrior involved carriage of live weapons. [31339]

Mr. Soames: Five sorties involved carriage of live weapons for practice ground attacks on Garvie Island weapons range.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the aim of the recent Tartan Warrior exercise; how many aircraft and of what types took part; and what plans he has for further exercises in this series. [31335]

Mr. Soames: The aim of the exercise was to provide both routine squadron training, and work-up prior to Exercise Air Warrior in the USA, for No. 41 Sqn RAF Coltishall. The following aircraft took part:

Ten Jaguar GR1As

Six Tornado GR1s

Eight Tornado F3s

Eight USAF F15s

A further exercise in the headquarters No. 1 group Tartan series involving No. 6 Sqn RAF Coltishall is planned for October 1995.

Uists and Benbecula (Military Personnel)

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the connection between the presence of military personnel on the Uists and Benbecula and the planned disposal of the Brent Spar. [32377]

Mr. Soames: None.

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what military personnel were present on the Uists and Benbecula on 20 June; and if any were members of the special forces. [32372]

Mr. Soames: The only military personnel present on the Uists and Benbecula on 20 June were those permanently attached to the Royal Artillery Range Hebrides and RAF Benbecula, and a unit of the RAF Regiment which was participating in a two-week training exercise on Benbecula. This exercise had been arranged some time in advance.

Dartmouth Royal Regatta

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the French Government which resulted in sending a French naval warship to the Dartmouth royal regatta; and what plans he has for informing hon. Members of the proposals. [32597]

Mr. Soames: I understand that a French Navy navigational training ship will be visiting Dartmouth at the time of the Dartmouth royal regatta. This has been arranged through the usual naval channels which apply for visits of ships from other NATO navies. I am pleased to say that, due to changed operational requirements, it will be possible for HMS Orwell, a River class minesweeper which is the Dartmouth navigational training ship, to visit Dartmouth during the royal regatta.

Welfare Grants

Ms Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31315]

Mr. Freeman: In 1993–94, my Department paid approximately £19 million to 34 voluntary sector organisations or bodies through grants for services related to welfare work for the armed forces and their families, and in the area of education and training. In addition to this it paid approximately £900,000 towards the cost of running organisations such as help, information, volunteer exchanges–HIVES–and homestart bureaux at numerous armed forces' bases in the United Kingdom and abroad.

For 1994–95, the figures were approximately £18 million to 34 organisations and £1 million to bureaux.

Defence Research Agency

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the countries for which work has been carried out in each of the last three years by Defence Research Agency. [31366]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 5 July 1995:

In today's written answer the Secretary of State for Defence advised you that I would respond to your question about which countries for which the Defence Research Agency (DRA) has carried out work in each of the last three years since I am the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA), which now includes the DRA.

I have listed below the countries with which the DRA has had contracts in the last three years. The excludes countries or organisations with which we have collaborative agreements on scientific and technical work and with which we may have cooperated in the period.

1992–93	1993–94	1994–95
Denmark	Australia	Australia
France	Bahrain	Bahrain
Germany	Brunei	Brunei
Italy	Canada	Canada
Japan	Denmark	Republic of China
Netherlands	France	Denmark
Portugal	Germany	France
Saudi Arabia	Italy	Germany
Spain	India	Hong Kong
Sweden	Japan	Hungary
Switzerland	Netherlands	India
USA	New Zealand	Italy
	Norway	Japan

1992–93	1993–94	1994–95
	Pakistan	Malta
	Peru	Netherlands
	Portugal	Norway
	Republic of Ireland	Pakistan
	Saudi Arabia	Portugal
	Singapore	Saudi Arabia
	Spain	Singapore
	Sweden	Spain
	Switzerland	Sweden
	USA	Switzerland

Kenya

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what military advice source support has been given to the Government of Kenya during each of the last three years. [31370]

Mr. Soames: It is not normally our practice to disclose precise details of military assistance given to any particular country as these are regarded as confidential between Governments. Over the past three years, military assistance to Kenya has mainly taken the form of places for Kenyan military personnel on training courses in the United Kingdom.

Atlantic Conveyor

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he made of the importance of the former Atlantic Conveyor to the Falklands campaign. [31720]

Mr. Soames: The Atlantic Conveyor played an important role in the Falklands conflict. The ship ferried vital naval Sea Harrier and RAF Harrier aircraft to the aircraft carriers. Her subsequent loss, with that of a number of naval and RAF helicopters and much urgently required stores still embarked, was a severe blow.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions have taken place between his Department and Cunard Steamship Company concerning the defence implications of the company's intention to sell the Atlantic Conveyor. [31732]

Mr. Soames: No discussions have taken place between my Department and the Cunard Steamship Company.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements were made for the availability to his Department of the Atlantic Conveyor since 1982. [31719]

Mr. Soames: The agreement between the Cunard Steamship Company and my Department covering the availability of the Atlantic Conveyor for defence purposes expired in January 1995. It is not my Department's policy to release the details of such agreements.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department was first notified by Cunard Steamship Company about its intention to sell the Atlantic Conveyor to a foreign owner. [31731]

Mr. Soames: The Cunard Steamship Company formally notified my Department of its intention to sell the Atlantic Conveyor in a letter dated 2 June 1995.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the financial contribution made by his Department towards the building of a replacement for the Atlantic Conveyor lost in the Falklands War. [31733]

Mr. Soames: The financial contribution made by my Department is commercially confidential.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements his Department has made to ensure the continued availability of the Atlantic Conveyor for Britain's armed forces following her intended sale to a foreign bidder. [31718]

Mr. Soames: None.

Market Testing

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list for each of the last three financial years (a) those activities which have been subject to market testing and (b) those activities where an in-house bid has not been allowed. .. [32183]

Mr. Freeman: The following table lists, for each of the last three reporting periods, (a) those activities which have been subject to market testing that included a bid from the respective in-house organisation; and (b) those activities where an in-house bid was not allowed, that is, where the activity was strategically contracted out.

Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, column 717, when the long-standing collaboration between the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment and the Institute of Aviation Medicine began. [31963]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his Answer of 16th March, asking when the long-standing collaboration between the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) and the Institute of Aviation Medicine (IAM) began, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA), which now includes both these establishments.

2. There was significant collaboration on the development of protective equipment for air crew from the early 1950's. It is possible that earlier collaboration between the precursor establishments of both CBDE and IAM on protection against the threat posed by chemical weapons occurred but we have been unable in the time available to trace record of this.

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, columns 713–14, what were the conclusions of each of the 21 safety audits carried out by his Department's Safety Services Organisation; and if he will place the reports of each of these audits in the Library. [31956]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your letter to the Secretary of State for Defence asking, pursuant to his answer of the 16 March, about the conclusions of the safety audits and for the reports to be placed in Library of the House of Commons, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) as one of its divisions.

2. Safety audits carried out since 1987 found that CBDE is a highly safety oriented organisation with a workforce and management committed to ensuring a safe and health work environment.

3. In the most recent general safety audit the documentation and procedures were considered to be very good, particularly in the so-called high risk areas. Only minor deficiencies were identified and these were concerned with more general safety measures such as routine inspection of electrical equipment and the care and storage of personal protective equipment.

4. Safety audit reports contain some classified information, particularly in relation to the nature of the work being carried out at CBDE. It is not, therefore, considered to be appropriate to release copies.

5. I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which pieces of new equipment have been tested by the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment since 1980 in studies involving service volunteers to assess the ability of service personnel to function with the equipment. [31970]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question asking the Secretary of State for Defence which pieces of new equipment have been tested by the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) since 1980 in studies involving Service volunteers has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes the CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. Items of new equipment under development which are tested in studies involving Service volunteers are subject to both defence security and commercial sensitivities. I am therefore limited in what I can say on this matter. However, I can tell you that the new individual protective equipment comprising of the No. 1 Mark IV NBC suit and the S10 respirator has been trialled in studies involving Service volunteers since 1980.

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who has served as director or head of the Chemical and Biological Warfare establishment at Porton Down since 1965; and in which years each individual served as director or head. [31974]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the directors of the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment's (CBDE) since 1965 has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, has included CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. CBDE's role is to carry out research to ensure that the United Kingdom Armed Forces are provided with effective and safe protective measures against the threat posed by chemical and biological warfare agents. From the late 1950s the work has been on purely defensive measures. The Establishment has had eight directors since 1965:

Mr. E. E. Haddon: 1961–1968

Mr. G. N. Gadsby: 1968–1972

Mr. T. F. Watkins: 1972–1974

Dr. R. G. H. Watson: 1974–1983

Dr. A. Bebbington: 1983–1984

Dr. G. S. Pearson: 1984–1995

Dr. G. D. Coley: 1995–

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the annual report and accounts for the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment for 1994–95 is due to be published. [31973]

Mr. Freeman: We expect the National Audit Office to complete its audit of the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment's 1994–95 accounts shortly. Subject to this, it is intended to lay a copy of the annual report and accounts before the House before the summer recess. Copies will be placed in the Library as soon as they are available.

Porton Technical Papers

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many scientific papers in the series called Porton technical papers were produced by the chemical warfare establishment at Porton Down since 1965; in which years these papers were produced; and how many of them are unclassified. [31967]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking about the scientific papers in the Porton Technical Papers series produced by the Chemical Warfare Establishment (CBDE) since 1965, has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. The role of CBDE is to provide safe and effective protective measures to the United Kingdom Armed Forces against the threat of chemical and biological weapons. The United Kingdom unilaterally abandoned its offensive chemical and biological weapons capability in the late 1950's. Research at CBDE since this time has been concerned solely with providing a defence against chemical and biological warfare agents.

3. The Porton Technical Papers series closed in 1969. A total of 63 papers were published between 1965 and 1969. Seventeen of these 63 papers held at CBDE are unclassified. I regret that it would involve disproportionate costs to identify the exact years in which each of the papers was published and the present classification of the remainder.

4. I hope the information that I have been able to provide is helpful.

S6 Respirator

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, column 718, in which years the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment carried out studies on the protection afforded by the S6 respirator when worn by human beings; what these studies entailed; what was the conclusion of these studies; which chemical warfare agents were used in these studies; and when the S6 respirator was issued for and withdrawn from use by the armed forces. [31961]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking, pursuant to his Answer of 16th March, about work at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) on the S6 respirator, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. The S6 respirator development programme commenced in the early 1950's. During this time a number of user trials were conducted by Service Units. These user trials were, however, not under the control of the then Chemical Defence Establishment (CDE) although personnel from CDE provided general advice on planning the trials and, on occasion, assisted the Unit personnel in conducting the trial. During these acceptability trials the respirator fit was assessed using the Unit's exposure chamber in which chloroacetophenone, a tear gas, was routinely employed. No studies involving the use of chemical or biological warfare agents were conducted to assess the protection afforded by the S6 respirator.

3. In addition, to the user acceptability trials conducted by Service Units, studies were carried out between 1954 and 1964 at CDE using Service volunteers wearing the S6. These studies involved the use of simulant materials such a Bacillus globigii, a common organism found in hay and grassland throughout the UK and judged to present no hazard to health; common salt aerosols; and CS, a tear gas. Further studies measured the ingress of nitrogen into the respirator.

4. The S6 respirator was first issued to the Armed Forces in 1966 and its withdrawal from service began in 1986.

5. I hope this information helpful.

Nerve Agents

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, column 711, what amount of BZ was given to the service volunteers; what tasks or exercises the volunteers undertook after they were given BZ; and how long these lasted, whether these were the first studies with BZ involving service volunteers; what medical countermeasures have been developed by CBDE against BZ; and when was the last time service volunteers were assessed to check whether or not the BZ studies have had any long-term effects. [31964]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter form J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of Defence asking, pursuant to his Answer of 16 March, various questions about the studies undertaken with the psychotropic drug BZ and Service volunteers has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April includes the Chemical and Biological Defence Agency CBDE) as one of its divisions.

2. The volunteers were given dosages of BZ which equated to 7μg per Kg of body weight. The study was carried out under full medical supervision to identify the symptoms arising from exposure to BZ and no tasks or exercises were performed by the volunteers. The effects of exposure to BZ were of short duration and were completely resolved within three days in all cases. The volunteers were examined by the resident Army psychiatrist before and after their participation in the studies.

3. These studies were part of a series of investigations carried out in the early 1960's to determine the effects of exposure to BZ. A total of 21 Service volunteers were involved. No medical countermeasures to the effects of the psychotropic drug BZ have been developed CBDE.

4. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, column 709, what was the conclusion of the research work at Nancekuke to develop a specification for the material used in the preparation process of the nerve agent GB; when this conclusion was reached; and when the results of this research were exchanged with the United States of America, Canada and Australia. [31965]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his Answer of 16 March, about specifications for the production of the nerve agent GB and the dates of release of this information to the members of the technical collaboration panel, has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) as one of its divisions.

2. The specification for the materials to be used in the production of the nerve agent GB was arrived at through systemic process chemistry studies at laboratory and pilot plant stage. The specification was arrived at by January 1956. At this time the United Kingdom decided unilaterally to abandon its offensive chemical warfare programme and the pilot plant was filled with decontaminant in 1956.

3. The materials which were involved in the specification are listed below:

Isopropanol
Hydrogen Fluoride
Methane Triethylamine
Sodium Hydroxide
Aluminium tumings
Aluminium chloride
Phosphorus trichloride
Methyl chloride
Oxygen
Sodium Chloride
Nitrogen

The research data from the development programme was shared with the United States, Canada and Australia over a number of years extending from 1945 to 1956.

4. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research has been carried out on the nerve agent GE at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment at Porton Down since the closure of the nerve agent plant at Nancekuke; what quality of the nerve agent GE has been used in this research at Porton Down; when the results of this research were exchanged with other countries; and under which defence agreement these results were exchanged. [31966]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking for information of the work conducted with the nerve agent GE since the closure of CDE Nancekuke has been passed to me to reply as the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) as one of its divisions.

2. No research involving the nerve agent GE has been carried out at CBDE since the closure of CDE Nancekuke in 1979 as far as we are aware

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what tests and studies have been carried out at the chemical warfare establishment at Porton Down on service volunteers with mustard gas since 1965; what was the purpose of these tests; how the gas was administered to the volunteers; what was the conclusion of the tests and studies; when these tests were carried out; how many service volunteers were involved in these experiments; and where and on what dates the results of these tests were published in open literature. [31972]

Mr. Freeman: This a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence requesting information on the studies involving the chemical and biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) since 1965 has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. The United Kingdom unilaterally abandoned its offensive Chemical and Biological Warfare capability in the late 1950's. Since then the role of the CBDE has been to provide safe and effective protection to the UK Armed Forces against the threat of chemical and biological weapons.

3. From 1965 studies with Service volunteers involving the use of the vesicant agent mustard were undertaken to determine the effectiveness of decontamination procedures and protective measures. Mustard agent, which is an oily liquid, was applied as small drops in patch tests. It would involve disproportionate costs to determine the exact number of volunteers exposed to mustard agent in the past thirty years. Our best estimate, however is that about 70% of volunteers in the late 1960's and 1970's were involved in studies of this nature. Research with Service volunteers and mustard agent ceased in the 1970's when reliable laboratory tests which did not require the use of this type of testing were developed. The results of the studies were not published in the open literature because of the defence sensitivity of this work.

4. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, columns 714–15, which CW agents were used in the studies into the mark IV NBC suit involving service volunteers. [31958]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 5 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking, pursuant to his Answer of 16 March, about which Chemical Warfare agents were used in the studies into the Mk IV NBC suit involving Service volunteers has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Establishment (DERA) which, since April, includes the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) as one of its divisions.

2. No chemical warfare agents were used in studies involving the Mk IV NBC suit and Service volunteers. The protection afforded by the Mk IV NBC suit against chemical warfare agents was evaluated using laboratory techniques which did not require the use of Service volunteers.

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the quantity of the nerve agent GB which is considered medically safe to be used in experiments involving service volunteers at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment, Porton Down; when this limit was set; and by whom. [31968]

Mr. Freeman: All studies involving the use of human subjects must be approved by the independent ethics committee before the study can begin. The committee must be satisfied that the study involves no harm to the health of the volunteers and that there is a military requirement for the investigation. The most recent studies involving the nerve agent GB with service volunteers used levels of nerve agent which produce meiosis in the volunteer. Meiosis is a well-known short-term effect of exposure to nerve agent vapour and there is no evidence that the volunteers experienced any long-term effects. The specific amount of nerve agent GB required to produce this level of response is a defence sensitive matter.

Chemical Weapons

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what details of Britain's past chemical warfare activities have to be disclosed to the relevant authority if Britain is to ratify the chemical weapons convention; to whom and when this information has to be disclosed; how many of his Department's staff are helping to prepare the document disclosing such past activities; where these staff are based; what records are being used to prepare such a document; and if he will make a statement. [31969]

Mr. Freeman: The United Kingdom will be required to make declarations of its past chemical weapons activities to the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in accordance with article III of the chemical weapons convention not later than 30 days after it enters into force for the UK. MOD and other Whitehall officials, supported by CBDE staff, are currently formulating the draft declaration. Information has been collected from historical official documents, periodicals and visits to the sites concerned.

French Nuclear Tests

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advance information he received from the French about their decision to resume nuclear weapon testing; and what was his response. [32089]

Mr. Freeman: It is not our normal practice to reveal whether or not confidential advice has been received from other Governments.

Ballistic Missiles

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 25 May, to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark), Official Report, column 658, what is the nature of the assumed threat to European security which necessitates the development of a ballistic missile system; and what is his estimate of the cost. [32087]

Mr. Freeman: In common with our NATO allies, we are concerned about the emerging risk posed by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery. We are currently engaged in work, both nationally and with allies, to determine our response. We await the outcome of the UK pre-feasibility study for advice on options and costs associated with ballistic missile defence. No procurement decisions have been taken.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Prisons (Segregated Visits)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department by what criteria prisoners are allowed only segregated visits; how many prisoners are affected by this provision; and if it extends to legal and parliamentary visits. [32222]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Jeremy Corbyn, dated 5 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the criteria by which prisoners are only allowed segregated visits; the number of prisoners affected by this provision; and if it extends to legal and parliamentary visits.

A policy of closed visits for all exceptional risk category A prisoners was introduced on 19 June. Our assessment was that this was a necessary security measure for visits to prisoners in the highest security category. There are currently thirteen such prisoners. The policy applies to all visits including legal and parliamentary visits. Visits under open conditions may be allowed in the most exceptional circumstances with the agreement of an operational director of the Prison Service.

In addition, prison governors have discretion to impose closed visits for any prisoner in any other security category where control or security considerations make them necessary.

Danny McNamee

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date he received a submission on the case of Danny McNamee requesting referral to the Court of Appeal; and when he expects to be able to make a statement. [32223]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The submission enclosed with the hon. Member's letter of 7 September to my right hon. and learned Friend the Home Secretary was received on 12 September. I shall write to the hon. Member once consideration of this case has been completed.

Mentally Ill Prisoners

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, columns 92–94, what percentage of remand prisoners transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 was (a) convicted and (b) received a custodial sentence in each of the last 10 years. [31220]

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from A. J. Butler to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 5 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question asking what percentage of remand prisoners transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 were (a) convicted and (b) received a custodial sentence in each of the last 10 years.

The attached table gives the information requested for remand prisoners transferred to prison under section 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983. All prisoners transferred under section 47 of the Act have been convicted and sentenced. The relevant breakdown of 1994 data is not yet available.

Percentage of remand prisoners transferred to hospital under S.48 of The Mental Health Act 1983, between 1985 and 1993, who were (A) convicted and (B) received a custodial sentence[1]

1992	380	241	63	16	4
1993[3]	486	251	52	24	5

[1] This table covers all persons who were admitted to hospital on remand and subsequently disposed of at court.
[2] Excludes restricted hospital orders.
[3] In 1993, 24 persons were disposed of at court where the outcome was unknown.
Note:
1. In 1985, 1988, 1989 the admission figures include a small number of unrestricted patients, as given in the answer of 18 April. The convictions and custodial sentence figures, however, relate to restricted patients only. There is therefore a slight understatement in the percentages for these years.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, columns 92–94, what percentage of (a) male and (b) female prisoners were transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last 10 years. [31219]

Mr. Forsyth [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from A. J. Butler to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 5 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the Office, to reply to your recent Question asking what percentage of (a) male and (b) female prisoners were transferred to hospital under section 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last 10 years.

The information requested is given in the attached table.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, columns 92–94, what was the average length of stay in hospital for prisoners transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 (a) before sentence and (b) after sentence in each of the last 10 years. [31221]

Mr. Forsyth [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from A. J. Butler to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 5 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the average length of stay in hospital for prisoners transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 (a) before sentence and (b) after sentence in each of the last 10 years.

Information is only readily available for restricted patients since 1994. Based on those prisoners transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the 1983 Mental Health Act in the hospital population at the end of 1994, the average length of stay on remand was seven and a half months and the average length of stay under sentence was three years.

Domestic Violence

Ms Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases of women currently imprisoned as a result of conviction for (a) murder and (b) manslaughter of a male partner there was a recorded history of domestic violence. [31271]

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 29 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from A. J. Butler to Ms Clare Short, dated 5 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question asking in how many cases of women currently imprisoned as a result of conviction for (a) murder and (b) manslaughter of a male partner there was a recorded history of domestic violence.

The cases of four women serving life sentences for murder are known to relate to domestic violence. I regret that no information is recorded centrally about the circumstances of manslaughter cases.

Prison Staff Pay

Sir Ivan Lawrence: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what considerations have been given to establishing new pay determination procedures for prison governors and prison officers under section 128 of the Criminal Justice and Public order Act 1994; and if he will make a statement. [32992]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: With the agreement of the Secretary of State for Scotland and the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, I propose to establish pay procedures which are based on direct negotiation between management and the recognised staff representative organisations. This form of pay bargaining would support the need for management and unions jointly to develop the implement pay arrangements which reflect the unique range of duties undertaken in the respective prison services and the changing demands on staff and available resources. I also propose to make available two supplementary procedures in the event that all efforts to reach a negotiated settlement were unsuccessful. First, the services of an independent conciliator would be made available. Secondly, if conciliation did not lead to renewed negotiations, provision would be made for either party to request that the issue in dispute was considered by a mediation panel which would make formal recommendations to the parties. These mediation arrangements would require the creation of one or more standing bodies, independent of the three prison services and the unions.

Representative organisations and staff are being consulted on these proposals. Subject to the outcome, consideration will be given to laying before Parliament appropriate regulations under section 128 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act.

Visitors (Gulf States)

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visitors to the United Kingdom in 1994 came from the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Qatar; and how much they spent in the United Kingdom. [32202]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Exact figures are not available, but it is estimated that the number of visitors given leave to enter the United Kingdom in 1994 were:

Nationality	Number of admissions of visitors
United Arab Emirates	25,000
Bahrain	13,000
Qatar	10,000

The other information requested is not available.

Detainees

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 6 June, Official Report, column 135 which expensive ad hoc accommodation is now being used less to hold Immigration Act detainees; and if he will provide relevant comparative figures relating to the use of such accommodation in the current and previous two financial years. [32069]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The accommodation referred to includes short-term accommodation—up to five days, seven days if removal is to be effected within that period—provided by various private companies at ports of entry to the United Kingdom and police cells.

It is not possible without disproportionate effort to disaggregate the costs of such accommodation from overall detention costs. However, an average cost of a night's detention in police cells is £289, whereas a night in an immigration detention centre costs some £80.

Mr. Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department expects to spending in total on detaining persons under Immigration Act powers in the current financial year. [32053]

Mr. Baker: The immigration service estimates that it will spend some £13.725 million on detaining persons under Immigration Act powers, including escorting and related costs, this year. Some of that cost will be recovered from carriers.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish a breakdown of the number of asylum seekers currently detained under Immigration Act powers by (a) nationality, (b) gender, (c) length of detention, (d) place of detention and (e) immigration status at the time of application. [32071]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: As at 3 July 1995, a total of 690 persons who had at some stage sought asylum were detained. This figure includes people awaiting the setting of directions for removal following refusal of the application, as well as those whose applications were under consideration or subject to appeal. Of this figure, 199 had been in detention less than one month, 109 between one and two months, 255 between two and six months, 113 between six and 12 months, and 14 had been detained for longer than 12 months.

Information on the gender, immigration status, nationality and location of those detained as at 3 July 1995, is provided in tables 1 to 3.

Mr. Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measurable benefit has been achieved by the increased use of Immigration Act powers of detention in asylum cases since 1993; at what financial cost; and if he will make a statement. [32052]

Mr. Baker: It is not possible to identify separately the cost of detaining asylum seekers as no distinction is made between these cases and others where a person is detained under Immigration Act powers. However, the overall cost of running the immigration detention estate, including escorting and related costs, was:

1993–94 financial year—£7.46 million; and

1994–95 financial year—£11.35 million.

These figures reflect the greater number of places available in the immigration detention estate since the opening in November 1993 of Campsfield House.

The use of detention is an important factor in ensuring effective immigration control and its cost is offset by reclaiming money from carriers in appropriate cases.

Mr. Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 12 June, Official Report, column 382, what was the period in working days between receipt of the appeal and promulgation of the determination of the appeal in (a) without foundation cases and (b) substantive cases in the first quarter of 1995; and if he will provide the corresponding figures for each quarter of 1994. [32068]

Mr. Baker: The information requested is shown in the table:

Average time taken[1] (in working days) to determine appeals against refusal of asylum, by type of refusal, January 1994 to March 1995

	Without foundation appeals	Substantive appeals
1994

April—June	42 days	58 days
July—September	40 days	80 days

[1] The time period referred to is the number of working days between the date the appeal is sent to the Independent Appellate Authority and the date of its determination. It does not include the time taken by the Home Office to process and despatch the appeal to the IAA.

Forged Immigration Documents

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to make greater use of computer technology to aid the detection of forged immigration documents. [32207]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Computerisation of the warnings index for arriving passengers has permitted machine readable passports to be checked against lists of stolen documents by swiping them through a reader. All ports of entry are supplied with forgery detection equipment, but the principal methods of detection still rely on light sources—ultra violet and infra red—and microscopes rather than computer technology.

The Immigration Service uses computer technology in a variety of ways in the development of sophisticated document examination techniques. In co-operation with five other countries, the United Kingdom is involved in the introduction of an image retrieval system providing a comprehensive database of the world's travel documents on optical disk. The service also uses photophone technology to transmit high-definition, stored images of travel documents along telephone lines.

Prisons (Drug Counsellors)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many specialist drug counsellors are working in prisons in England and Wales. [31701]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from A. J. Butler to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 5 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about how many specialist drug counsellors are working in prisons in England and Wales.

The Prison Service does not keep central records of the number of specialist drug counsellors working in prisons. A survey of 130 prisons conducted during December 1994 showed that 102 prisons provided specialist individual counselling for prisoners with drug misuse problems.

Individual counselling services are provided by community drug agencies, probation officers, prison psychologists and prison officers with counselling qualifications or experience.

This year the Prison Service is expanding the number and type of treatment programmes available to drug misusers. These include therapeutic communities; 3-month treatment programmes; detoxification units; intensive counselling and education services; and community-linked throughcare programmes. The first phase is being implemented in thirteen establishments with a further twelve by April 1996. The majority of these programmes will be provided by outside drug agencies under contract to the Prison Service. This initiative will increase the level of specialist drug counsellors working in prisons and will provide live training opportunities for prison staff.

In addition, all establishments are reviewing their local drug strategies with the aim of improving the coordination of local services for drug misusers.

Family Law

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposals have been made, or studies sanctioned, by the Council of Ministers of the European Community concerning a convention on family law, including issues relative to custody of children following divorce. [31595]

Mr. John M. Taylor: I have been asked to reply.

In June 1994 the Council of Ministers instructed a working group of experts to prepare a draft convention on jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of judgments in matrimonial matters. In June 1995, the Council considered a progress report on this exercise and agreed that work on it should continue under the Spanish presidency and that the working group should continue to look into the possibilities of the convention covering custody orders made ancillary to divorce proceedings.

Drugs Prevention Teams

Mrs. Jane Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total level of public funding available in real terms to each drug prevention team in Merseyside since the inception of the drugs prevention initiative in 1990; and what will be the total level of public funds available for the new Merseyside drug prevention team for each of the next four years. [31541]

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The total level of public funding available to each drugs prevention team in Merseyside since the inception of the drugs prevention initiative in 1990 was as follows:

	1990–91 £	1991–92 £	1992–93 £	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Liverpool	46,500	188,000	196,009	193,908	206,627
Wirral	—	86,770	185,974	186,597	200,436

The Liverpool team began on 10 December 1990, and the Wirral team began on 30 September 1991.

The total level of funding available to the new Merseyside drugs prevention team will not be known until its programme of work has been settled later this year.

Mrs. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will provide a breakdown of estimated savings in each category of running costs that can be realised by merging the Wirral and Liverpool drugs prevention teams. [31578]

Mr. Forsyth [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The objective in merging the Liverpool and Wirral drugs prevention teams was to make the benefits of the drugs prevention initiative available to many more people, not to make savings in running costs. Independent reviews of the initiative had recommended that the former teams be replaced by larger teams covering wider areas, to increase the opportunities for wider-reaching drugs prevention projects. The new Merseyside team covers all five boroughs of the county.

The comparative running cost figures are:

	Liverpool and Wirral teams (combined) 1994–95 £	Merseyside team 1995–96 £
Staff costs	153,537	151,228
Accommodation	24,389	32,500
Other running costs	59,225	39,805
Grants	149,871	[1]—

[1] The level of funding available for grants will not be known until the team's programme of work is settled later this year.

Mrs. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is his estimate of the total level of savings that will be achieved in each of the next four years by merging the Wirral and Liverpool drugs prevention teams. [31579]

Mr. Forsyth [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The level of funding which the new Merseyside drugs prevention team will have available for making grants will not be decided until its programme of work is settled later this year. It is not therefore possible to estimate at this stage the extent to which there may be savings as a result of merging the Wirral and Liverpool drugs prevention teams.

Kani Yilmaz

Mr. Austin-Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to reply to the letter of 10 April from the hon. Member for Woolwich in respect of Kani Yilmaz; and if he will make a statement on the issues raised. [24924]

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 18 may 1995]: I have written to the hon. Member today.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Housing Benefit

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) if his departmental assistance with loans for home improvements are deemed to be housing costs in respect of paragraphs 5(4) and 5(5) of the Housing Benefit (General) Regulations 1987. [31864]

(2) what representations he has had in regard to difficulties experienced by home owners whose mortgage interest payments are being met by his Department, who have had to temporarily move to alternative accommodation while extensive renovation work is being carried out and who are deemed ineligible for housing benefit. [31907]

Mr. Roger Evans: Home improvement loans which attract assistance from this Department are not considered to be housing costs for the purpose of determining entitlement to housing benefit. I have received no representations about home owners in these circumstances.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what percentage of parliamentary questions, which would have been answered directly by him or his Ministers prior to the establishment of executive agencies, are now referred to the chief executive of such an agency. [28490]

Mr. Hague: The information is in the table.

Session	Number of questions	Percentage replied to by agencies
1992–93[1]	3,305	10.86
1993–94[1]	2,365	14.08
1994–95[1,2]	2,046	9.77

Notes:

[1] These figures have been provided using the POLIS database. It is not possible to guarantee that this is a truly comprehensive figure.

[2] Up to Monday 26 June 1995.

Family Credit

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what increase in family credit payments is expected in the first year of the jobseeker's allowance as a result of the allowance encouraging self-employment. [31661]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is not available.

Consultants

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list all consultants who have been retained by his Department in the past three years to advise on any aspect of (a) the reduction in state protection for mortgage interest payments and the encouragement of a private insurance market for mortgage protection, (b) the introduction of incapacity benefit or (c) the introduction of the jobseeker's allowance. [32051]

Mr. Roger Evans: The Department of Social Security has retained the services of the following consultants to advise on the issues raised by the hon. Member:

Issue	Company	Number of consultants
(a) The reduction in state protection for mortgage interest payments and the encouragement of a private insurance market for mortgage protection.	No consultants retained	nil

Incentives To Work

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he intends to publish further details of his plans to improve incentives to work for people in lower-paid employment; and if he will make a statement. [33088]

Mr. Roger Evans: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Social Security has today published a consultation paper, "Piloting change in Social Security—Helping people into work". This sets out the Government's proposals to test out in eight pilot areas a new in-work benefit. The benefit is designed to make work more rewarding for those with limited earnings power, by enhancing their earnings. It is called earnings top-up.

It will be directed towards people without dependent children and will complement family credit, which already helps some 600,000 lower paid workers with children.

The proposed earnings top-up will increase the rewards of work by an average of about £23 a week for a couple without dependent children and about £19 for a single person of 25 or over. The Government propose to test the effectiveness of two different rates in the pilot areas. The maximum level of help could be up to £54 a week.

The proposals mark the first occasion in the UK in which a social security benefit will be tested out on a pilot basis. The extension of in-work benefits to all people on low incomes would be a major step. There is no experience from any other country on which to draw. So it is right to establish its effectiveness by testing it on a local basis before deciding whether or not to develop a national scheme. Such a decision would only be taken if the pilot scheme proves its worth.

The pilot scheme will cost about £75 million over three years, before taking account of behavioural effects. Parliamentary approval for expenditure on the scheme will depend on the Appropriations Act via an appropriate reference in the departmental estimates. Introduction of a new benefit on a local and temporary basis does not require express statutory authority. The scheme will be subject to detailed rules governing conditions of entitlement, claiming and other matters normally covered in regulations. These will be set out in a publicly available document and Parliament will be given an opportunity to discuss its principle and details. If it is decided to proceed from a temporary pilot to a permanent national scheme, the Government will introduce the necessary primary legislation.

The Government believe that there is a case for extending in-work benefits in this way, but it is not yet proven. People with limited skills and experience may have earning power not much above the level of their out-of-work benefit entitlement. As a result, the net reward for, and incentive to, work is not great.

To forbid employers to pay less than a minimum level of pay would merely mean that anyone unable because of their limited skills, aptitudes and experience to contribute more in value than that minimum would no longer be able to find employment. The ideal solution is, of course, to increase people's earning power by improving their skills, educational attainments and experience. All the Government's education and training reforms are geared to that objective. But most valuable skills and experience are obtained at work. Social security can, therefore, help by making it more rewarding to work, thereby enabling people to get on the first rungs of the ladder of employment, climbing further as they acquire experience and skills.

The consultation document sets out the criteria on which we propose to define and select the eight pilot areas in which earnings top-up will be paid, together with four control areas. It includes a shortlist of 28 areas from whcih the final selection is likely to be made, subject ot the outcome of the consultation. Since the decision on whether or not to proceed to national implementation will be governed by the outcome of the pilot, we attached great importance to getting the pilot areas right and establishing a robust framework for evaluation.

Our present plans are to pay earnings top-up in the pilot areas in the same way as other social security benefits. But we propose also to discuss with employers the feasibility of paying the top-up alongside the wage package, in order to make clearer to recipients the increased gain form working. Depending on the outcome of the discussions, the pilot scheme may be enhanced to test out how this might work in practice. Participation by employers in such a scheme would be voluntary.

The decision to pilot a new benefit locally before deciding whether to introduce it nationally represents a radical departure for social security policy. It will increase the openness and effectiveness of policy making. It is also a major step in seeking solutions to the problems of unemployment, work incentives and the dispersion of earnings power affecting the least skilled. These are problems which every developed country faces. The UK is already a pioneer in its successful use of in-work benefits such as family credit to improve work incentives. We now aim to explore whether to go further.

Social Fund

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the estimated cost to local government of refusal of social fund applications on housing revenue accounts. [32227]

Mr. Roger Evans: None.

Mr. Corbyn : To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the running costs of the social fund as a proportion of annual net payments for each of the last three years. [32228]

Mr. Evans: Social fund administration costs are met separately from expenditure from the regulated and discretionary fund. In 1992–93, the social fund cost £208 million to administer and £270 million in 1993–94. Details of the administration costs for 1994–95 are not yet available and will be published in the next departmental report.

The ratio of social fund administration costs to net payments from the discretionary and regulated fund was 0.98 in 1992–93 and 1.18 in 1993–94. It is more valid to relate administrative expenditure and gross expenditure, including recoveries, and on the basis the ratio was 0.35 in 1992–93 and 0.41 in 1993–94.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the total net cost of the social fund for each of the last three years and the total cost of the single payment system for the last three years of its operation. [32229]

Mr. Evans: The total net cost of the regulated and discretionary social fund was £212 million in 1992–93; £229 million in 1993–94 and £217 million in 1994–95.

The total cost of single payments was £308 million in 1985–96; £370 million on 1986–87 and £198 million in 1987–88

The figures quoted are given in cash prices for the relevant years.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claims for assistance from the social fund at Doncaster and Mexborough benefit offices were made in the year 1994–95; how many were accepted; how many were refused; and what was the figures for the previous year. [31093]

Mr. Evans: The administration of the social fund is a matter for Mr. Ian Magree, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member with such information as is available.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Martin Redmond, dated 4 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about claims to the Social Fund in the Doncaster and Mexborough benefit offices for 1993–94 and 1994–95.

With the creation of the Benefits Agency in April 1991, offices were grouped into Districts. Information has therefore been supplied for the Doncaster and the Rother and Dearne Districts Mexborough Branch Office is one office within the Rother and Dearne District and figures for it cannot be given separately.

Information regarding Funeral Payment (FP) and Maternity Payment (MP) refusals is not readily available and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost. This is because the precise data could only be gathered by a special scan of the Social Fund Computer System. However, I have provided estimated figures for your information.

Information for the Doncaster District is provided at Annex A and for Rother and Dearne at Annex B.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Annex A: Number of applications, awards and refusals, Doncaster district: 1993–94 and 1994–95

Application type	Applications	Awards	Refusals
1993–94
Budgeting loan	9,695	5,809	3,925

The refusal figures for FP and MP have been approximated by deducting awards from applications. No account has been taken of withdrawn applications.

National Insurance

Mr. Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) how many staff he has devoted to ensuring that employers are properly paying national insurance contributions in respect of those they employ. [31273]

(2) how many cases for recovery of (a) underpayment and (b) non-payment of national insurance contributions his staff have pursued in each of the last three complete years; how much extra revenue for the national insurance fund was recovered; in how many cases formal action through the courts was undertaken. [31274]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The administration of the national insurance scheme is a matter for Mrs. Faith Boardman, the chief executive of the Contributions Agency. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. Jim Cousins, dated 4 July 1995:

As Chief Executive of the Contributions Agency, I have responsibility for answering questions about operational matters relating to the Agency and the National Insurance (NI) scheme.

I have been asked to reply to your questions about the numbers of staff ensuring employers are paying National Insurance contributions (NICs) and about details of recovery of underpayment and non-payment of NICs. In view of the nature of the questions I have combined the responses.

Unfortunately the information is not available exactly in the form that you have requested.

One of the Agency's main aims is to ensure compliance with the law in respect of NICs. The operational area in regular face-to-face contact with employers is Field Operations, whose NI inspectors visit over 100,000 employers each year to monitor their compliance with NI law. There are currently 3,440 staff in post in Field Operations, including as at 31 March 1995 1,780 staff holding Inspectors' Warrants.

In addition to the Agency's Field Operations inspectorate force a number of our other operational sections, centrally based on Tyneside, are also concerned with correcting errors made by employers in their payment of NICs and pursuing collection of any arrears identified.

As far as the pursuit of arrears of NICs from employers is concerned, separate statistics are not kept that allow us to differentiate between cases where NICs have not been paid, rather than underpaid. Whenever inspectors survey (visit) an employer they will ensure that action is taken to correct any mistakes. In cases where earlier tax years are concerned the inspector will arrange to collect any arrears due or refer the case to Inland Revenue Audit, under liaison arrangements, for them to arrange collection.

Details of the numbers of surveys undertaken in the three years 1991/92, 1992/93 and 1993/94, together with the number where errors were discovered and the sums subsequently collected are given in the table I am attaching as Annex 1. Results for 1994/95 have not yet been finalised.

In general, self-employed people have a liability to pay Class 2 NICs unless they hold a certificate of exception from payment on the grounds of low earnings. During 1994/95 the Agency pro-actively identified 50,748 persons with an immediate requirement to pay Class 2 contributions. Similar figures for earlier years were not kept.

The table in Annex 2 shows the number of cases in which a summons or writ was issued by either the Agency or the Department's Solicitor's office in each of the last three years. Figures are also given for the number of cases where summonses were issued by the Scottish Office on behalf of the Agency.

The table in Annex 3 shows the number of cases authorised for criminal prosecution in each of the last three years. Records have not been kept of the number of these cases which finally resulted in a Court Hearing. Not all cases in which criminal prosecution was authorised relate to non-payment or underpayment of NICs; some will have resulted from other offences against the NI Acts, and separate figures are not kept.

I regret that I have been unable to answer the precise questions that you have raised, but I hope that my reply proves helpful. Please let me know if I can be of any further assistance.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Graham Riddick: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many asylum seekers there were in May in each year since 1988; how many of those who applied in each such month have been granted asylum in the United Kingdom; how many are still in the United Kingdom; and what was the annual cost to his Department of asylum seekers in each of the years specified. [32070]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is given in the table. Figures for years prior to 1992 are not available.

It is not known how many of those granted either asylum or exceptional leave have remained in the United Kingdom.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Milk

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, to what use money paid by British farmers in fines for overproduction of milk is put. [31667]

Mr. Jack: Money collected in the form of a levy on over-quota milk is used to stabilise the market in milk and milk products and to help offset the costs of storing and disposing of surplus milk within the European Union.

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received regarding the standards of calibration in milk tests for British farmers. [31669]

Mr. Jack: A number of representations have been received linking calibration standards to the outcome of butterfat test results. There are, however, a large number of factors which can cause variations in butterfat test results, of which calibration is only one.

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of the effect on British farmers of current practices in the testing of milk in relation to farmers in other EEC countries and their methods of testing milk. [31671]

Mr. Jack: The EEC Commission's chemical experts' group in milk and milk products has issued a questionnaire to all member states covering the calibration of instruments, inter-laboratory comparisons within member states and inter-laboratory comparisons between member states. Returns are being considered and I would not wish to pre-empt the Commission's findings.

Beef

Dr. Strang: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the nature of the irregularities in the UK beef intervention system which are to result in the European Commission imposing a fine on the United Kingdom Government; and if he will make a statement. [31941]

Mr. Waldegrave [holding answer 4 July 1995]: The Commission's special inquiry into the arrangements applying to the intervention of beef in several member states highlighted a number of control weaknesses. Before and during the time of the inquiry, the UK authorities uncovered irregularities concerning substitution and theft of beef destined for public storage, which were reported to the Commission. Improved procedures are now in place and action for the recovery of the relevant costs for these irregularities was taken. The level of financial correction proposed by the European Commission has not yet been finalised.

Dr. Strang: To ask the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) what is his estimate of the amount of substandard beef held in intervention stocks in the United Kingdom in each of the last six years (a) in tonnes and (b) as a percentage of United Kingdom intervention stocks; [32354]

(2) how much beef currently in intervention in the United Kingdom is considered to be substandard (a) in tonnes and (b) as a percentage of United Kingdom intervention stocks. [32355]

Mr. Waldegrave: The Intervention Board became aware in 1991 of the presence in store of beef which was not of intervention standard. Subsequent investigations, which included a box by box examination of boned beef, have revealed a total of 404 tonnes which did not meet the intervention standards. The beef in question was taken into store in the period June 1990 to November 1993, the last month in which there was intervention buying of beef in the UK. Over that period total intake of beef was 261,000 tonnes, the ineligible quantity representing 0.15 per cent. of that figure. Current stocks total 9,354 tonnes of which about 2,000 tonnes are still being examined and may include further ineligible quantities. The full value of the ineligible beef has either been recovered or will be sought from the companies responsible for boning and packaging it for intake to the intervention stores.

Animal Diseases

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of contagious equine metritis occurred in each year since 1985. [32298]

Mrs. Browning: Two cases of contagious equine metritis were reported in England—both in 1986.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will show, by type, the number of cases of fowl pest in each year since 1985. [32294]

Mrs. Browning: Fowl pests includes both Newcastle disease and avian influenza. One case of avian influenza was reported in England in 1992; the last reported case of Newcastle disease was in 1984.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of peste des petits ruminants occurred in each year since 1985. [32296]

Mrs. Browning: No case of peste des petits ruminants has ever been reported in England.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of bovine spongiform encephalopathy occurred in each year since 1985. [32371]

Mrs. Browning: Bovine spongiform encephalopathy was first identified in November 1986. Information on the incidence of the disease prior to this date is not recorded.

The following is a table of the number of confirmed cases of BSE in England up to 30 June 1995. The cases prior to 21 June 1988 are recorded by date of clinical onset of disease and the cases thereafter are recorded by date of restriction:

Year	Number
1986	7
1987	402
1988	2,256
1989	6,422
1990	12,612
1991	21,990
1992	31,115
1993	28,536
1994	20,300
1995	5,005

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to test imported cattle for bovine immunedeficiency virus. [32246]

Mrs. Browning: None, since such testing is not required under EC rules. Furthermore, no routine reliable serological test is currently available for BIV.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of African horse sickness occurred in each year since 1985. [32299]

Mrs. Browning: African horse sickness has never been reported in England.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of rabies occurred in each year since 1967. [32295]

Mrs. Browning: Since 1967 there have been cases of rabies in the following years only:

1968: 1 (in quarantine)

1969: 4 (3 in quarantine)

1970: 1

1983: 1 (in quarantine)

1990: 1 (in quarantine)

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, how many cases of epizootic haemorrhagic virus disease occurred in each year since 1985. [32297]

Mrs. Browning: No case of epizootic haemorrhagic virus disease has ever been reported in England.

Oilseeds

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proposals his Minister has made at the seminar on industrial markets for United Kingdom oilseeds on 13 June in respect of the rates of excise for biodiesel; and if he will make a statement. [32159]

Mr. Jack: At the seminar on industrial uses for UK oilseeds on 13 June, in response to a question about the possibility of relief from excise duties for biodiesel, my right hon. Friend said that pump-priming support, such as duty relief, was not ruled out, although much would depend upon work going on to establish the environmental benefits of biodiesel.

Food Hygiene

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the number of statutory instruments dealing with food hygiene in (a) manufactures' packers and processors, (b) retailers and (c) cooked food retailers during 1994 and for 1990 to the present. [32163]

Mr. Jack: For England and Wales, the number of statutory instruments dealing with food hygiene manufacturers' packers and processors during any part of 1994 was 28, and for retailers and cooked food retailers 14.

The number of statutory instruments dealing with food hygiene in manufacturers' packers and processors during any part of 1990 to the present was 38, and for retails and cooked food retailers 15.

Information on the statutory instruments is given in the following tables:

Common Agricultural Policy Fraud

Dr. Gavin Strang: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) how many cases of CAP fraud in the United Kingdom have been confirmed in each of the last six years (a) for each agricultural commodity and (b) in total; [32386]

(2) how many cases of intervention fraud in the United Kingdom have been confirmed in each of the last six years (a) for each agricultural commodity and (b) in total. [32385]

Mr. Waldegrave: Fraud is difficult to define, being a matter of criminal intention. However the UK, along with all other member states, is required to report cases of irregularity in CAP schemes, exceeding 4,000 ECUs, to the Commission. An irregularity is an overclaim on the part of the claimant, either deliberately or through error. The information for the six years in question is as follows:

Infant Food (Oestrogen)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 28 June, Official Report, column 691, who is conducting the two studies into oestrogens in infant diets; when they were commissioned; what reports resulted from the earlier study; if they will be made available; and when they are due to produce final reports. [32440]

Mrs. Browning: The two projects are at the Dunn clinical nutrition centre, university of Cambridge and at the Institute of Food Research, Norwich. The projects respectively started in September 1994 and April 1995 and are due to report in March 1997 and March 1998.

Results from the earlier MAFF-funded project are being reported in the scientific literature with one paper already published—Am J Clin Nutr. 1994; 60; 333-340—and a second to be published later this year.

Sheep and Cattle Premiums

Sir David Steel: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will provide provisional quotas and financial assistance to farmers who have not had sheep annual premium and suckler cow premium quotas allocated, because of the judicial review, until such time as the issue is settled. [32640]

Mr. Jack: The judgment given in this case will affect the availability of quota in the national reserves for 1994 and subsequent years. Until those implications have been fully worked out, no allocations of quota can be made from those reserves.

Sir David Steel: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make it his policy not to appeal against the judicial review on sheep annual premium and suckler cow premium quotas. [32641]

Mr. Jack: The Government are currently considering the implications of the judgment given in this case and whether or not to appeal.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 6 July 1995

TREASURY

Education (Spending)

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of gross domestic product in England and Wales is spent on education. [32238]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Gross domestic product by territory is published in table 12.1 of "Regional Trends" 1995 edition on a calendar year basis only, while general Government expenditure by territory is published in table 7.7 of the statistical supplement to the "Financial Statement an Budget Report 1995–96", Cm 2821, on a financial year basis only. In England and Wales, identifiable general Government expenditure on education in 1993–94 accounted for 6.1 per cent. of GDP for 1993.

Import/Export Controls (Breaches)

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent communications or discussions he has had with the chairman of Her Majesty's Customs and Excise in regard to progress in continuing inquiries into alleged malpractice by companies or individuals in military import/export transactions. [32660]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Investigation into alleged breaches of import or export controls is a matter for the commissioners of Customs in their role as an independent investigating and prosecuting authority of the Crown.

Neither the Chancellor nor I, the Treasury Minister with general responsibility for Customs matters, are consulted on decisions on investigation and prosecution in individual cases, but we are routinely informed of significant events in important cases. It would not be appropriate to make public details of communications on inquiries lest they prejudice current or future investigations or legal proceedings or cause unfairness to individuals.

VAT (Tour Operators)

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy urgently to press the European Commission for changes to the regulations relating to value added tax and the tour operators margins scheme. [32879]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: I share my hon. Friend's concern and I have recently written to Commissioner Monti urging that the European Commission should give greater priority to a full review of the EC rules on the application of VAT to tour operators.

Mr. Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what proposals he has to find means of compensating smaller tour operators for damage to their business as a result of the proposed implementation of the Valued Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order; [32881]

(2) what recent representations he has received concerning value added tax and the tour operators margins scheme; and if he will set out the action which he intends to take as a result of those representations. [32878]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: I have received many representations about the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order 1995 which was laid before the House on 9 June, and is due to come into effect on 1 January 1996.

Many in the industry, but not all, wish to see the implementation of the change delayed.

I am aware of the concern expressed about possible distortions of competition and the effect of the order, particularly on the smaller tour operators.

Accordingly, Customs and Excise has begun a wide-ranging review of the scheme and has issued a consultation paper to trade bodies and other interested parties. It has requested replies on the particular issues arising from the 1 January 1996 change by the end of August. I shall then consider what further action, if any, is appropriate.

Mr. Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will identify those sections of the European directives which have led to the promotion of the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order. [32882]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The relevant EC legislation is article 26 of council directive 77/388/EEC—the Sixth VAT Directive.

Mr. Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what will be the net cost to the United Kingdom travel industry of the proposed implementation from 1 January 1996 of the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order; if that order has yet been subject to a compliance cost assessment; and if he will make a statement. [32880]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The increase in the total VAT due to the Exchequer as a consequence of the proposed implementation of the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order 1995 is estimated at between £10 million and £40 million in a full year.

The order is the subject of a compliance cost assessment, a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he intends next to meet representatives of the Association of British Travel Agents to discuss the implications for the United Kingdom travel industry which will be caused by the implementation of the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order. [32967]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: I have no plans for a meeting at this stage. However, Customs and Excise has begun a wide-ranging review of the tour operators' margin scheme and issues arising from the proposed implementation of the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order 1995 will be examined as a matter of priority. Customs has issued a consultation paper and offered to meet representative bodies at any mutually convenient time.

Mr. Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement of his policy on the consistency of the proposed implementation of the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order with help for small businesses. [32883]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: I recognise the concern over the position of smaller tour operators affected by the Value Added Tax (Tour Operators) (Amendment) Order 1995. Their position is being examined as a matter of priority as part of the wide-ranging review of the tour operators' margin scheme, and in full consultation with the industry.

Tortoise Products

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what seizures of tortoise products have been made by Customs and Excise in the last 12 months; and what advice is offered to travellers at ports of entry concerning tortoise products offered for sale in Morocco and other countries. [32747]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: HM Customs and Excise seized the following tortoise products in the year ending 31 March 1995—the latest period for which figures are available:

8 tortoise shells

72 tablets stated to contain tortoise as an ingredient

While advice to passengers is not directed specifically at the sale of tortoise products in Morocco, international travellers are made aware of the controls on protected species in general by means of posters, leaflets and the display cases which appear at many major airports.

Imported Biodiesel (Revenue)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was raised last year on imported biodiesel. [32716]

Mr Heathcoat-Amory: The answer is as follows:

Excise duty: None

Customs duty: Negligible

VAT: Negligible

Departmental Capital Spending

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the expected capital spending figure for his Department for 1994–95; and what is the latest budget figure. [30872]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke [holding answer 28 June 1995]: The provisional outturn figure for 1994–95 is £2.7 million. The budget provision for 1995–96 is £5.6 million.

Duty Receipts

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the total amount of duty on (a) tobacco products, (b) alcohol products and (c) all other liable products for each of the last 10 fiscal years expressed (i) at April 1995 prices and (ii) as a percentage of total Exchequer income. [32331]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 4 July 1995]: The figures are as follows:

	(a) Tobacco duty	(b) Alcohol duties	(c) Other duties[1]
(i) Duty receipts at April 1995 prices—£ million
1985–86	6,942	6,533	17,104

1993–94	3.1	2.5	9.5
1994–95	3.3	2.5	9.5

[1] Other duties include vehicle excise duty and customs and Excise duties, other than those on tobacco and alcohol.
Figures for 1994–95 are provisional.

VAT Receipts

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the total amount of VAT collected in each of the last 10 fiscal years expressed (a) at April 1995 prices and (b) as a percentage of total Exchequer income. [32329]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 4 July 1995]: The figures are as follows:

Net VAT receipts

	(a) at April 1995 prices £ million	(b) as proportion of central government receipts percentage
1985–86	30,092	14.9
1986–87	32,234	15.7

1993–94	41,024	18.6
1994–95	42,879	18.5

Figures for 1994–95 are provisional.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Electronic Mail

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chairman of the Information Committee what information he has on the savings hon. Members will make by using the Internet as opposed to mail for correspondence.

Mr. Gary Waller: Savings will accrue to the House if the Parliamentary data and video network connection to the Internet is used instead of traditional mail. However, in those cases where connection to the PDVN is via a modem, there will be an increased telephone charge.

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chairman of the Information Committee what training will be provided for hon. Members and their staff on the Internet.

Mr. Waller: Demonstrations by the Computer Office to Members of both Houses, their staff and staff of the two Houses in the use of the world wide web and Internet e-mail will be provided at workshop open days. In addition, leaflets will be available on the use of the Internet, and Members and other users can ask the PDVN helpdesk for assistance.

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chairman of the Information Committee if he will commission a study of the trends in hon. Member's work patterns and work load due to the advent of electronic mail; and what mechanisms and training are to be provided for assisting hon. Members and their researchers to deal with Internet e-mail.

Mr. Waller: It is too early to consider such a study, since trends of hon. Members'usage of the PDVN have not emerged. The Committee will consider in due course what mechanisms are appropriate for Internet e-mail and recommend appropriate guidance for users. As far as training is concerned, I refer the hon. Member to my preceding reply to him on this subject.

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chairman of the Information Committee for what reasons hon. Members' connection to the Internet via the PDVN has been delayed; and when he expects access to be available.

Mr. Waller: The Internet connection was completed in mid-May and early testing of the facility took place during late May and through June. General access to the service has depended on standardising PDVN equipment and on the availability of a mail conversion gateway received only at the end of June. Users of the PDVN who are interested in using the Internet are being asked to allow their machines to be converted during the summer recess and should contact the PDVN helpdesk to arrange a convenient time for the upgrade. At the same time, other new services are also being made available, including the Library's parliamentary electronic document distribution system, Novell Group Wise 4.1—the updated version of Wordperfect Office—and also remote Windows access.

Parliamentary On-line Information System

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chairman of the Information Committee, if POLIS will be made available to the general public via the Internet.

Mr. Waller: No.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Subsidence Adviser

Mr. Lester: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he has received an annual report from the subsidence adviser appointed under section 46 of the Coal Industry Act 1994. [33340]

Mr. Page: I have today received the subsidence adviser's first annual report. In accordance with the Coal Mining (Subsidence Adviser) Regulations 1994, copies have been laid in both Libraries of the Houses.

Official Receiver

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what will be the maximum distance bankrupts and company directors will be required to travel to attend for further interview by the official receiver, in order that the official receiver can investigate possible offences which may have been committed if the initial enquiries of the official receiver are contracted out. [32322]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: No decisions have yet been taken in relation to the residual size and location of the Insolvency Service should contracting out go ahead.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the maximum distance any of the constituents of the hon. Member for Great Grimsby who become bankrupt can expect to travel in the event of any of the functions of the official receiver being contracted out. [32584]

Mr. Evans: Accessibility will be an issue for discussion with potential bidders in the course of the negotiations on their proposals for contracting out. It is expected, however, that bankrupts will not be required to travel substantially farther than is presently necessary.

Illegal Steel Subsidies

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what evidence of illegal subsidies his Steel Subsidies Monitoring Committee has so far passed to the European Commission. [31144]

Mr. Eggar: The committee was formed in February 1995 to encourage the UK steel industry and other Government Departments to bring forward information which might point to the existence of illegal subsidies. A good deal of background information has been collected, and discussed with the Commission, including information about Italian, Spanish, German, Portuguese and Irish cases.

Amway UK Ltd.

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer of 26 June, Official Report, columns 447–48, if hon. Members other than Ministers were present at the meetings in 1992 and 1995 between Ministers and Messrs Amway UK Ltd., or the Direct Selling Association. [32619]

Mr. Jonathan Evans [holding answer 5 July 1995]: The hon. Member for Broxtowe (Mr. Lester) was present at both meetings.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Small Claims Limit

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department (1) what consultation his Department has carried out to consider increases in the small claims limit since July 1994; and if he will make a statement. [32737]

(2) how many representations he has received since January as part of the full public consultation prior to any increase in the small claims limit; and if he will make a statement. [32738]

(3) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the interim report of the judicial review on the civil justice system conducted by Lord Woolf to comply with his Department's criteria for a departmental consultation on the level of the small claims limit; and if he will make a statement. [32840]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The small claims limit fell within the scope of the first stage of Lord Woolf's review of access to justice. During this review, Lord Woolf himself conducted an extensive consultation exercise including a programme of public seminars. A list of the individuals and organisations which contributed to the inquiry is annexed to the interim report, which was published last month. In view of that wide-ranging consultation, the Lord Chancellor does not intend to undertake further public consultation on the question whether he should implement Lord Woolf's recommendation that the limit for small claims, other than those for personal injury, should be raised to £3,000. The power to make the necessary amendments rests with the County Court Rule Committee which, as part of its consideration of the matter, will consult interested parties.

Child Abuse Cases

Mr. Alan Howarth: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans his Department has to ensure that the public gallery in court is cleared during the evidence of children in cases of alleged abuse. [32039]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Alan Howarth, dated 6 July 1995:

PQ 95/677: CHILD ABUSE CASES

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to the above Question about the evidence of children in cases of alleged abuse.

I should let you know that, with few exceptions, proceedings in the Crown Court are held in open court. However, section 37(1) of the Children and Young Persons Act 1933 enables a court to direct that all persons, other than court staff, the parties and their legal representatives, be excluded from court when evidence is given by a child or young person in proceedings contrary to decency or morality. The parents or guardian of a child witness can ask their legal adviser to make such an application. It is then for the judge to decide, having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

Prosecution Costs (Plymouth)

Mr. Steen: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what was the cost to public funds of the recent prosecution by Plymouth trading standards department of a resident of south Brent, south Devon, for the sale of a horse. [31838]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Anthony Steen, dated 6 July 1995:

PQ 95/666: COST OF BRINGING A PROSECUTION

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to your Question about the cost to public funds of bringing a prosecution.

I am sorry to have to tell you that this information is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Small Claims Courts

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many landlords were taken to the small claims courts by former tenants for not repaying their deposits in each of the last 20 years; and if he will make a statement. [31919]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Simon Hughes, dated 6 July 1995:

PQ 95/668: LANDLORDS TAKEN TO COURT BY THEIR FORMER TENANTS

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to your Question about the number of landlords who have been taken to court by their former tenants.

I am sorry to have to tell you that this information is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

SCOTLAND

Property Maintenance

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what measures are in place which allow (a) local authorities, (b) mortgage lenders, (c) police forces, (d) council tax registration officers or (e) private citizens to take action to force owner-occupiers who (i) neglect owner-occupied property to the extent that it detrimentally affects the amenity and quality of life of neighbours or (ii) use residential property for trading, storage or warehousing purposes, to cease such practices and return such residential property to proper use; what plans he has to introduce additional measures; and if he will make a statement; [31387]

(2) what action can be taken against a householder of an owner-occupied property in a residential area who (a) neglects to properly maintain his or her property to a reasonable standard or (b) uses the property for trading, warehousing and storage purposes to the significant detriment of neighbours and their amenity; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The responsibility for dealing with houses in poor condition lies with local authorities and they have wide-ranging powers. Where it is drawn to their attention that a house has been neglected they may take action under the Public Health (Scotland) Act 1897, or the Building (Scotland) Act 1959, or the Civic Government (Scotland) Act 1982 or the Housing (Scotland) Act 1987 to require that it be repaired or up-graded. These powers may also be used where neighbours are affected and there is a provision to require the maintenance of private open spaces. Planning permission for change of use is required if a residential property is used for business purposes and that use is more than incidental to the enjoyment of the property as a dwelling house. Authorities have power to take action against those who breach planning control under the Town and Country Planning (Scotland) Act 1972. There are no present plans to introduce measures additional to these powers.

Any action which a mortgage lender could take over the condition or use of a property would be determined in individual circumstances by the terms of the mortgage agreement.

Higher Education

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has received from smaller colleges of higher education alleging difficulties in coping with Scottish Higher Education Funding Council-imposed budget reductions over the next three years; and what response he has made. [32232]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: My Department has received letters from the principals of two monotechnic higher education institutions and nine copies of a campaign letter from representatives of St. Andrew's College of Higher Education. My right hon. Friend has also received formal representations from the Committee of Scottish Higher Education Principals in relation to the 1995 public expenditure survey.

It is for the Scottish Higher Education Funding Council to determine the relative needs of institutions within the total resources available to it. The council keeps in close touch with all the institutions it funds.

My right hon. Friend will be considering carefully the council's assessment of the needs of higher education during the forthcoming public expenditure survey.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what distinction the SHEFC made in deciding budgets for higher education colleges in the next three years, between colleges which had reserves and colleges which had not been permitted to acquire reserves. [32234]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: None. The SHEFC set out its allocations of funding to higher education institutions in its circular letter No. 10/95 on 15 March 1995.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate he has made of the impact of funding cuts in the next three years on the quality of provision in higher education colleges. [32235]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Our expenditure plans for higher education until the 1997–98 financial year were set out in the departmental report "Serving Scotland's Needs", Cm 2814. This included a summary of the quality assessment reports on teaching by the Scottish Higher Education Funding Council in the academic session 1993–94, and reaffirmed the Government's commitment to greater accountability of HEIs in terms of relevant, up-to-date information about quality and standards to such as employers and current and prospective students. The funding councils, including SHEFC, are working to develop indicators for performance including teaching quality.

My right hon. Friend will be considering evidence as to teaching quality and various representations he has received in the forthcoming public expenditure survey. So far almost 30 per cent. of the quality assessments of teaching published by SHEFC have been rated as excellent and only 2 per cent. as unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many overseas students there were in Scottish higher education institutions in each year since 1985; and what proportion they represented of the total. [32236]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The number and percentage of full-time overseas students in higher education institutions from 1985–86 to 1993–94 is shown in the table.

	Number of full-time overseas students	Percentage
1985–86	6,274	8.6
1986–87	7,015	9.5
1987–88	7,087	9.4

1992–93	10,722	10.2
1993–94	11,953	10.7

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the change in the pattern of undergraduate entry to higher education (a) between 1980 and 1987 and (b) between 1987 and 1993, and what studies he has initiated into it. [32241]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The number of entrants to higher education in Scotland by mode and level of study, for the years 1980–81 to 1993–94, has been published in the Statistical Bulletin "Scottish Higher Education statistics 1993–94". Summary information is given in the table.

The centre for education sociology, University of Edinburgh, funded by the Economic and Social Research Council has recently published a paper drawing on data from the Scottish young people's survey, funded by the Scottish Office.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the amount per capita in real terms spent on higher education students in (a) 1980, (b) 1987 and (c) 1993. [32242]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is not readily available for all higher education students. For those students attending universities previously funded by the Universities Funding Council I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 9 February, Official Report, columns 228-29.

Education (Spending)

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proportion of gross domestic product in Scotland is spent on education. [32237]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Identifiable Government expenditure on education in Scotland in 1993–94 was equivalent to 8.1 per cent. of gross domestic product for 1993.

The following points are relevant to the interpretation of this figure:

(i) It excludes all private sector spending on education.

(ii) It includes expenditure on recreation and leisure, sport and Gaelic broadcasting. If these items were excluded the figure would be 7.8 per cent.

(iii) It includes the cost of grants and of student loans received by all Scottish-domiciled students undertaking higher education courses. It does not include expenditure on awards or loans for students who are domiciled elsewhere in the United Kingdom but are undertaking courses in Scotland.

Scottish Record Office

Mr. Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the accounts statement of the Scottish Record Office executive agency will be published. [33339]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Copies of the accounts statement for 1994–95 have today been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

WALES

Fowl Pest

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will show, by type, the number of cases of fowl pest in each year since 1985. [32291]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No cases of fowl pest—avian influenza or Newcastle disease—have been reported in Wales since 1985.

Tuberculosis (Cattle)

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many individual reactors to the cattle tuberculosis skin test have been slaughtered in each Welsh county in each of the last five years; and how many of those had visible lesions post-mortem. [31740]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The information is not available in the form requested. However, the numbers of reactors to the cattle tuberculosis skin test in each animal health office area in Wales which have been slaughtered in each of the last five years are given in the following table. The figures in brackets give the number of reactors slaughtered which had visible lesion at post-mortem.

Area	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994
Cardiff	—	20(20)	3(3)	28(22)	46(42)
Llandrindod Wells	—	—	4(4)	—	25(21)
Caernarfon	5(1)	1(1)	—	1	1
Carmarthen	18(16)	60(57)	48(37)	62(54)	188(180)

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many herds in each of the Welsh counties have tested positively for tuberculosis in each of the last five years. [31738]

Mr. Jones: The information is not available in the form requested. However, the numbers of herds in which cattle tested positive for bovine tuberculosis in each Animal Health Office area in Wales in each of the last five years were as follows:

Area	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994
Cardiff	—	4	3	10	18
Llandrindod Wells	—	—	—	—	6
Caernarfon	1	—	—	—	—
Carmarthen	5	14	13	17	38

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department has paid out in compensation for cattle slaughtered as positive reactors or dangerous contacts in each of the Welsh counties in each of the last five years. [31735]

Mr. Jones: The information is not available on a county basis. The following table shows the amounts paid for cattle which reacted to TB tests, by divisional office area.

Division	1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94	1994–95
Caernarfon	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	6,940	4,644
Carmarthen	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	191,997	323,163

Wales	86,159	74,854	102,316	341,116	414,903

[1] No separate data available. The counties covered by the Divisional Offices are:

Caernarfon—Clwyd and Gwynedd.

Carmarthen—Dyfed.

Llandrindod—Gwent, Powys, Mid-Glamorgan, South Glamorgan and West Glamorgan.

Rabies

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many cases of rabies there were in each year since 1967. [32288]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No cases of rabies have been reported in Wales since 1967.

Epizootic Haemorrhagic Viris Disease

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many cases of epizootic haemorrhagic viris disease occurred in each year since 1985. [32282]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No case of epizootic haemorrhagic viris disease has ever been reported in Wales.

Animal Illnesses

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) how many cases of African horse sickness occurred in each year since 1985; [32300]

(2) how many cases of peste des petits ruminants occurred in each year since 1985; [32285]

(3) how many cases of contagious equine metritis occurred in each year since 1985. [32303]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No cases have occurred in Wales since 1985.

Agricultural Grants

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the percentage of each agricultural grant dealt with within the time targets set in "Commitment to Service". [32157]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: It will take some time to compile the latest data. I will write to the hon. Member when we have done so.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many claims for compensation due to late payment of agricultural grants have been lodged; how many claimants have received compensation; and what was the total cost of compensation. [32423]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: This information is not centrally collected and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many cases of bovine spongiform encephalopathy occurred in each year since 1985. [32374]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Bovine spongiform encephalopathy was first diagnosed in November 1986; there are no figures available prior to this date.

The numbers of confirmed cases of bovine spongiform encephalopathy in Wales in each year since 1985 are as follows:

1986: 0
1987: 26
1988: 159
1989: 507
1990: 1,083
1991: 2,234
1992: 3,716
1993: 3,627
1994: 2,296
1995: 508 (to 30 June 1995)

Population

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the population of working age for Wales for the most recent date for which figures are available and in 1991, 1981 and 1971. [32441]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The resident population of Wales, of men aged 16 to 64 and women aged 16 to 59 is shown in the following table.

	Residents of working age
1971	1,582,000
1981	1,662,700
1991	1,723,600
1993	1,724,000

Ambulance Service

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will ensure that when recording the periods of activation time for emergency ambulances those times are related to the ambulance which arrives at the relevant scene of the emergency. [32495]

Mr. Richards: The activation time for emergency ambulances is the difference between the time that an emergency call is received and the time that the nearest available ambulance is dispatched. This gives an accurate indication of the time taken within the ambulance trust to react to a call.

Farming

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the prospects for (a) dairy farmers (b) sheep farmers. [32937]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The latest available information on the prospects for dairy and sheep farmers is published in "Farm Incomes in the United Kingdom 1993/94", available from the Library of the House. Data for 1994–95 will become available in the autumn.

USK River

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has received concerning the possible designation of the Usk river catchment as a special area of conservation under the terms of the European wildlife directive. [31142]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: We have received five letters and a petition on the subject.

Grant-maintained Schools

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list for the financial years 1992–94, 1993–94, 1994–95 and 1995–96 the applications for project capital funding made by grant-maintained schools, indicating the amount received for each school in each year and the purposes for which the funding was granted. [32620]

Mr. Richards: The information requested has been placed in the Library of the House.

National Health Service

Mr. Milburn : To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the value of moneys held in trust by individual national health service trusts and health authorities. [32955]

Mr. Richards: The value of moneys held on trust by individual national health service trust and health authorities in Wales as at 31 March 1994 is as follows:

	£000
Health Authority
Clywd District Health Authority	3,084
East Dyfed District Health Authority	3,890
Gwent District Health Authority	2,906
Gwynedd District Health Authority	2,942
Mid Glamorgan District Health Authority	1,345
Powys District Health Authority	370
South Glamorgan District Health Authority	5,866
West Glamorgan District Health Authority	3,284
Welsh Health Common Services Authority	55
NHS Trust
Pembrokeshire NHS Trust	536
Powys Healthcare NHS Trust	142
Bridgend and District NHS Trust	4
Llanelli/Dinefwr NHS Trust	5
Carmarthen and District NHS Trust	0
Ceredigion and Mid Wales NHS Trust	2
South and East Wales Ambulance NHS Trust	4

Notes:
1. 31 March 1994 data is provisional and the latest available.
2. The figures for the value of monies held on trust is taken to be the value of net assets.

Blood Supplies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what percentage of blood supplies in each region was supplied to private hospitals in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will indicate the number of units involved. [32971]

Mr. Richards: In south Wales, the National Blood Transfusion Service (Wales) supplied 1 per cent.—1,100 units—of donated blood to private hospitals in 1994–95. The National Blood Authority is responsible for collecting and supplying blood in north Wales.

Pre-School Education

Mr. Sweeney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement about pre-school education in Wales. [33471]

Mr. Hague: The scheme announced today by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment to give parents of all four-year-olds a voucher that can be exchanged for pre-school education, will apply equally in Wales.

Wales has a good record in this field with some 90 per cent. of four-year-olds already receiving some form of pre-school education. I hope the scheme will enable all four-year-olds to benefit from a pre-school place.

The voucher will be exchangeable for a part-time place in any private, voluntary or maintained institution providing nursery education, a full-time place in a reception class in a maintained school where this is available, up to a full-time place in a playgroup of a combination of these options. The value of the voucher will initially be set at £1,100.

Parents will be able to top up the value of the voucher in the private and voluntary sector if that is necessary. But provision in maintained schools will continue to be free.

Providers of places for which vouchers are exchanged will be expected to meet certain minimum quality criteria and be subject to light-touch inspection arrangements. The scheme will be funded by a mixture of recoupment of some of the money already spent on pre-school education in the maintained sector and of new money.

It is my intention that the scheme will be fully operational in Wales from April 1997. I shall be consulting interested parties about implementation of the scheme, including how to make sure we are well prepared to secure its successful introduction.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Gibraltar

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action he has taken to ensure that Crown property is not being used for tobacco smuggling in Gibraltar. [32092]

Mr. David Davis: The Gibraltar law enforcement authorities have taken a number of steps to combat smuggling generally, including increased sea patrols with the help of the Gibraltar Squadron. These law enforcement authorities would take action against smugglers if there was hard evidence that Crown property was being used as a base for smuggling.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the extent of tobacco smuggling between Gibraltar and Spain. [32090]

Mr. Davis: We do not have exact figures for the amount of tobacco smuggled between Gibraltar and Spain. For the period 1 January 1995 to 3 July 1995 the Royal Gibraltar police seized 199 boxes of contraband tobacco.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has held with the Gibraltar Government regarding tobacco smuggling. [32091]

Mr. Davis: We regularly discuss smuggling with the Gibraltar Government, including tobacco smuggling. Discussions were held recently on the need to tackle the activities of fast boats.

Albania

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to open an embassy in Albania. [32670]

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: We re-established diplomatic relations with Albania on 29 May 1991. HM ambassador at Rome is accredited to Albania and a chargé d'affairs is resident in Tirana. We have told the Albanian Government that we cannot consider opening a full embassy until an outstanding property claim has been settled.

Intergovernmental Conference

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will made a statement on the meeting of the reflections group held in Toledo on 1 and 2 July. [32886]

Mr. David Davis: The third meeting of the intergovernmental conference study group took place on 30 June and 1 July in Toledo, Spain. It was an informal meeting at which the head of the European secretariat at the Cabinet Office, Mr. Brian Bender, represented me.

The meeting discussed the EU and the citizen, and the justice and home affairs pillar of the Maastricht treaty. On the question of the EU and the citizen, Mr. Bender argued that the EU needed to be made more relevant to people's lives. This was best achieved by addressing issues of real concern to people, such as jobs, growth, less interference by the EU, and less EC fraud and waste. Further development of the concept of European citizenship which was proposed, for example, in the reports to the study group by the Commission and the European Parliament, raised difficulties. In the UK the concept of European citizenship was seen as coming into potential conflict with national identity. People were also concerned about possible future obligations of citizenship.

With regard to simplifying the treaty to make it less complex and more readable Mr. Bender applauded the objective but expressed some scepticism about whether it could be achieved without altering the substance of the treaty. A careful balance had been achieved in the Maastricht treaty which needed to be preserved.

On the justice and home affairs pillar of the treaty, Mr. Bender took issue with the suggestion in the Commission and European Parliament reports to the study group that the third pillar was not working effectively. The positive outcome of the Cannes European Council at which three conventions were agreed—Europol, customs information system and fraud—demonstrated that the third pillar could deliver results. Problems with the pillar related more to the sensitivity of the subject matter than to the institutional procedures introduced at Maastricht. It might be possible to simplify committee procedures within the pillar, but it would be a grave mistake to try to develop EC techniques such as majority voting or enhanced rights of initiative for the Commission. This might produce more decisions, but it would generate resentment and could do long-term damage to member states' political will to co-operate in these areas.

Mr. Bender argued that democratic oversight of the third pillar should rest primarily with national Parliaments.

Embassies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list each new car acquired by embassies or posts abroad in the last five years, indicating (a) the name of the embassy or post, (b) the make of the car and (c) the cost. [32975]

Mr. Hanley: The information, in the form requested, is not readily available, and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In the last five years the FCO, including ODA, has spent £20,985,391 on the purchase of 1,201 vehicles for 215 overseas posts. These have included more than 20 different makes and types ranging from motor-cycles, cars, minibuses, vans and trucks to meet specific local needs.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the refurbishments made to the properties of embassies or posts abroad in each of the last three years, indicating (a) the name of the embassy or post, (b) the nature of the alteration and (c) the cost. [32982]

Mr. Hanley: The information requested is not immediately available. I shall write to the hon. Member as soon as it has been assembled.

ENVIRONMENT

Housing

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (a) how many state-funded housing association and (b) council-owned homes there were, and how many were unoccupied, on 1 April in (i) York, (ii) north Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each since 1979. [31585]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The available information is set out in the tables. The housing association data for 1988 and earlier years are based on estimates provided by local authorities and there is known to be some under-reporting of vacant dwellings.

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the Department's estimate of the number of local authority houses that will be built in the current financial year. [32821]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The Department does not prepare forecasts of new house building.

Social Housing

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) how many asylum seekers were allocated social housing in each of the last 10 years as a percentage of the total number of allocations made by each local authority in England, Scotland and Wales; and if he will make a statement; [31920]

(2) how many (a) women under 18 years and (b) men under 18 years have been waiting (i) over six months, (ii) over 2 months and (iii) over 18 months for social housing in each local authority in England, Scotland and Wales; and if he will make a statement; [31921]

(3) how many individuals, classified as vulnerable under part III of the Housing Act 1985, were allocated social housing in each of the last five years as a percentage of the total number of allocations made by each local authority in England, Scotland and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [31922]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The information requested is not available centrally.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many starts were made in social housing for rent in each Hampshire district in each of the past five years; and how many starts he estimates will be made in each district in each of the next two years. [31844]

Mr. Jones: The publication "Local Housing Statistics" shows estimates of housebuilding starts by housing associations and by local authorities for each local authority area Hampshire. Figures are shown in table 1 of each of the following issues:

Year	Issue number
1990	103
1991	105
1992	109
1993	110
1994 (first three quarters only)	112

Copies of these publications are in the Library.

The Department does not prepare forecasts of new house building starts.

Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) which members of the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment receive a grant from (a) the National Environment Research Council and (b) a private company; and in the latter case if he will list the companies and the size of grants; [32499]

(2) if he will list the members of the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment with the name of their present employer; and whether they receive any form of research grant from any Department. [32500]

Sir Paul Beresford: The current membership of the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment comprises:

Professor J. Beringer: University of Bristol
Professor E. M. Cooke: Public Health Laboratory Service
Dr. P. Dale: Institute of Plant Science Research
Dr. A. Garland: Glaxo-Wellcome plc
Dr. C. Gliddon: University of Wales
Dr. A. Gray: Institute of Terrestrial Ecology
Ms J. Hill: Green Alliance
Dr. J. Kinderlerer: University of Sheffield
Mr. J. McLeod: National Institute of Agricultural Botany
Professor D. Onions: University of Glasgow Veterinary School
Professor N. Poole: Zeneca Ltd.
Dr. D. Robinson: Scottish Crop Research Institute

Members are not required to provide comprehensive information on sources of funds for research, and such information is not therefore held by my Department. However, the National Institute of Agricultural Botany, the Scottish Crop Research Institute, and the Institute of Terrestrial Ecology all currently hold research contracts from my Department. Members are required to disclose any personal or professional interest, or any interest of the organisation which employs them before review of specific applications by the committee.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if members of the public are allowed to attend committee meetings of the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment. [32502]

Sir Paul Beresford: Members of the public are not allowed to attend meetings of the committee. They may make written submissions to the committee.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will place the annual reports of the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment for the last five years in the Library. [32496]

Sir Paul Beresford: The first annual report of the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment was published last year and it was placed in the Library.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what investigations has taken place on the decision by the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment to allow the testing of genetically modified scorpion venom virus in open fields. [32497]

Sir Paul Beresford: The confined release of a genetically modified scorpion venom virus was the subject of a consent issued by the Secretary of State to the Institute of Virology and Environmental Microbiology in April 1994, following advice received from the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment.

Following the receipt of communications from some members of the public, the proposed release was reviewed for a second time by the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment, and its advice was that the consent should be maintained.

During the course of the release, the site was visited by specialist inspectors from the Health and Safety Executive, whose report confirmed that the release was being carried out in accordance with the terms and conditions of the issued consent. A satisfactory report of the release has been submitted by IVEM to the Secretary of State.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many forms of genetically modified viruses have been permitted by the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment. [32501]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment has no authority to permit releases; consents for releases are given by the Secretary of State for the Environment, acting jointly with, as appropriate, the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, the Secretary of State for Scotland, or the Secretary of State for Wales.

The Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment has to date given advice to the Secretary of State for consents to release two forms of virus, one, a baculovirus, the other a bacteriophage.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list all the applications for the release of genetically modified organisms which have been refused by the Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment. [32498]

Sir Paul Beresford: The committee has no powers to approve applications. Since the committee was placed on a statutory basis in 1993, it has not advised that any applications be refused. It has delayed its advice on specific applications pending the provision of additional information, and it has advised on precautions to be taken in making specific releases.

Planning Applications

Mr. John Townend: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if registered restricted covenants that seek to preserve the character of a development are considered as other material considerations when a planning application is being considered. [32421]

Sir Paul Beresford: While restrictive covenants and planning controls impinge upon each other to some extent, they constitute different systems of control and each has an independent existence. It is, however, ultimately for the courts to decide what is a material consideration.

Mr. Townend: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are the implications for planning applications for the absence of the term, building line. [32422]

Sir Paul Beresford: It is for a local planning authority to determine in the first instance whether a planning application adequately describes a proposed development. The validity of applications is ultimately a matter for the courts.

Oil and Gas Platforms (Dumping)

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if the Government will support the Oslo Commission decision of 29 June to ban the dumping at sea of North sea oil and gas platforms. [32503]

Sir Paul Beresford: No decision on this subject could be reached by the Oslo Commission on 29 June for procedural reasons, but a majority of the contracting parties indicated that they would vote in an intersessional written procedure for a decision for a moratorium on deep sea disposal pending the development of a ban as soon as possible. The UK and Norway—the only two countries which have deep-sea installations—indicated that they will not vote for that decision. Under the convention, they will thus not be bound by it. Any ban will be mere posturing by countries without such installations. These countries less than three years ago signed the OSPAR convention which provides for case-by-case assessment to determine the best way for the environment as a whole of decommissioning each major offshore installation—this remains the most effective way of dealing with this difficult problem.

Planning Blight

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received on the subject of compensation for planning blight; and if he will make a statement. [31159]

Sir Paul Beresford: My Department regularly receives inquiries and comments about compulsory purchase and the compensation that may be payable.

During an Adjournment debate on 5 April, Official Report, columns 1693-1700. I mentioned that certain aspects of the current arrangements require a careful and objective review. We therefore propose to commission research to look into a wide range of issues, which will include the effects of blight and the attitudes and expectations of those affected by compulsory purchase.

Marine Ecosystems (North Sea)

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what action is being taken to stop the destruction of marine ecosystems in the North sea. [31163]

Sir Paul Beresford: A range of national, European Union and international action is being taken to protect North sea ecosystems. The fourth North sea conference in June concluded that, within territorial waters, implementation of the EC habitats and birds directives was a priority. The conference asked the Oslo and Paris Commissions to consider what action is needed in respect of those waters outside territorial limits.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Dicks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the levels of revenue reserves held by local authorities. [33468]

Mr. Curry: My Department has recently conducted a survey of the general fund revenue reserves held by local authorities during 1994–95. The results show that authorities held about £5.7 billion in revenue reserves at 1 April 1994, of which about £2.3 billion was unallocated, the remainder being earmarked for specific purposes or held on behalf of schools under local management of schools schemes.

Authorities expect their reserves to decrease by 1 April 1995 to about £4.8 billion, of which £0.6 billion would be held on behalf of schools, £2.3 billion in other earmarked reserves, and £1.9 billion in working balances and other unallocated reserves. This compares with their budgeted revenue expenditure of £45.6 billion for 1995–96.

Assuming that authorities appropriate from reserves the amounts which they have taken into account in their 1995–96 budgets, their reserves would total £3.9 billion on 31 March 1996, of which we estimate that between £1.25 billion and £1.5 billion would be unallocated.

I have today placed in the Library of the House a copy of the available figures for the reserves which each authority expects to hold at 1 April 1995.

Mortgage Indemnities

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment pursuant to his answer of 26 June, Official Report, column 541, if he will list by local authority in England and Wales (a) the total value of indemnities given on mortgages under section 442 of the Housing Act 1985 and (b) the total value of indemnities given on loans for all purposes. [32340]

Mr. Robert B. Jones [holding answer 4 July 1995]: The available information on the total value of indemnities given on mortgages under section 442 of the Housing Act 1985 between April 1986 and 31 March 1995 is given in the table. This is based on data as reported by local authorities during the course of the year and does not incorporate any estimation for non-response.

Information on the value of indemnities given on other types of loan is not collected.

Information in respect of Welsh local authorities is the responsibility of my hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Archway Tower

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will call for a report from the Property Services Agency on the future use and current condition of Archway tower, Junction road, London N19, formerly leased to the Department of Social Security.

Sir Paul Beresford [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Property Holdings has responsibility for Archway tower, which is leased to my Department, and is in need of some modernisation and refurbishment.

It was formerly occupied by the Benefits Agency as a public caller office. It has recently moved to premises more suitable for its needs. While the building has been considered by other Departments, so far no interest has been shown and it has therefore been placed in the hands of letting agents with the intention that the lease is, if possible, totally disposed of.

Homeless Households

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what proportion of households accepted as homeless by local authorities under part 3 of the Housing Act 1985 was recorded as ethnic minority households in the last year for which figures are available. [30547]

Mr. Robert B. Jones [holding answer 26 June 1995]: The statistical return—P1E—on which local authorities are asked to provide information on their activities under the homelessness provisions of the Housing Act 1985 has, since the second quarter of 1991, asked about the ethnic origin of households accepted for permanent re-housing. Complete data are not provided by a sizeable number of authorities and, because of the considerable variations in the ethnic mix between authorities, national estimates are not produced on the data currently submitted.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) how many schemes and to what value have been approved in 1994–95 under the private finance initiative; what are the estimates for the current financial year; how many schemes are currently being considered and at what value; for how long have they been considered and how many have been in the assessment process for over (a) six months and (b) 12 months; and what was the average length of time taken to assess schemes so far approved; [30844]

(2) how many schemes and by how much Government spending has changed in 1994–95 as a result of the private finance initiative; what is the estimated effect in 1995–96; how many jobs are to be created by schemes approved to date under the initiative and how many have been lost as a consequence in the public sector; and what is the forecast of transfer of employment from public to private sector over the last five years because of the initiative.

Sir Paul Beresford [pursuant to his reply, 28 June 1995, c.655]: I indicated that the Department of the Environment and its sponsored bodies attracted around £4 million in private investment. This should have stated that £4 billion had been attached in support of programmes in 1994–95.

HEALTH

Glaucoma

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what is the average cost to her Department for providing glaucoma sufferers with a lifetime of prescriptions; [31403]

(2) what is the total annual cost to his Department for providing prescriptions to glaucoma sufferers; and how much is claimed back each year through prescription charges; [31401]

(3) what is the average cost to his Department for prescriptions to glaucoma sufferers per annum, per patient; and what is the same cost to the patient in prescription charges. [31400]

Mr. Malone: The available information is shown in the table:

Drugs used for the treatment of glaucoma, 1994 (provisional) England

	Amount
Net ingredient cost	£25.4 million
Prescription items	3.4 million
Average net ingredient cost per prescription item	£7.50

1. Drugs as defined by the British National Formulary section 11.6 (Treatment of glaucoma). Some of these drugs may have been prescribed for conditions other than glaucoma.
2. The information was obtained from the prescription cost analysis system which is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed in England by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered. It excludes items dispensed by hospital pharmacies.
3. The net ingredient cost refers to the cost of the drug before discounts and does not include any dispensing costs or fees.
4. Prescription data does not identify the disease or condition for which the item has been prescribed.

Autoimmune Rheumatic Disease

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department carried out into a national repository of multicase families with autoimmune rheumatic disease; what have been the findings; and if he will make a statement. [30001]

Mr. Malone: The main agency through which the Government support biomedical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council, which receives its grant in aid from the office of my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. In 1993–94 the MRC spent £2.9 million on research into the autoimmune system.

No research is being carried out by the Department of Health into autoimmune rheumatic disease.

Committees

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which members of (a) the Committee on Mutagenicity of Chemicals in Food, (b) the Committee on the Medical Aspects of Food Policy and (c) the Committee on Toxicity of Chemicals in Food receive grants from private companies. [32418]

Mr. Sackville: Relevant grants for research from private companies are declared by members in the appropriate register of commercial interests, copies of which will be placed in the Library.

Health Authority Boundaries

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects the new health authority boundaries to be published; and if he will make a statement; [32412]

(2) what guidance he has offered to regional health authorities concerning consultation with the public about new health authority boundaries; [32410]

(3) what opportunity there is for hon. Members to make representations concerning proposals for the new health authority boundaries; [32409]

(4) if he will place in the Library details of the proposed new health authority boundaries; [32413]

(5) what requirements he has placed on regional health authorities to consult with the public prior to finalising the new health authority boundaries. [32411]

Mr. Malone: Public consultation on the boundaries of the new health authorities will be carried out by regional offices of the national health service executive. A copy of the guidance "Consultation On The Boundaries Of The New Health Authorities" is available in the Library.

Each regional office will issue a consultation document setting out proposals for the new health authority boundaries within its area. Consultation will start on 17 July and will last three months. Comments should be made to the appropriate regional office by 17 October.

Decisions on the boundaries of the new health authorities will be made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health, following the consultation period, taking into account the views expressed.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32475]

Mr. Sackville: Information for the years 1979–80 to 1984–85 is not available. Advertising expenditure for the financial years 1985–86 to 1994–95 is as follows:

	£ million
1985–86	3.106
1986–87	7.969
1987–88	6.494
1988–89	3.724
1989–90	7.280
1990–91	4.797
1991–92	8.058
1992–93	5.053
1993–94	5.809
1994–95 (estimated)	4.305

Advertising campaigns have included AIDS, drug and solvent misuse, organ donation, blood donor recruitment, nurse recruitment, keep warm keep well, food hygiene, cot deaths, health of the nation, and the Children Act.

The figures include the 1.75 per cent. commission charged by the Central Office of Information for services associated with cental purchasing.

Details of specific advertising campaigns, their purpose and their cost could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Infertility Treatment

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many health authorities fund the intra-cytoplasmic sperm injection infertility treatment either within their own hospitals or as extra-contractual referrals. [32505]

Mr. Sackville: The information is not available centrally.

Young Offenders

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what number and percentage of young offenders aged (a) under 16 years, (b) 16 years and (c) 17 years were subject to supervision orders supervised (i) by social service departments and (ii) by the probation service. [32637]

Mr. Bowis: Information available centrally on supervision by social services departments only distinguishes children aged 14 and over from other children. These figures are in "Supervision Orders, year ending 31 March 1994, England" A/F 94/16, copies of which are available in the Library.

Supervision by the probation service is the responsibility of my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

Children's Homes

Mr. Hill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to publish the report of the social services inspectorate study of small children's homes. [32728]

Ms Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the study by the social services inspectorate into unregistered children's homes was completed; and if he will place a copy of the study in the Library. [32544]

Mr. Bowis: The report is not yet completed.

Hospital Maintenance

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the latest figures for backlog of hospital maintenance by region. [32812]

Mr. Sackville: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, East (Mr. Brown) on 8 December 1994, columns 359–60 for the latest information available.

Supra Regional Services

Mr. Trend: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make available a summary of the funding and levels of activity agreed for 1995–96 with centres designated to provide supra regional services. [33469]

Mr. Sackville: A summary of this information has been placed in the Library as an addendum to the document "Supra regional services 1995–96" announcement by the Secretary of State for Health.

Co-trimoxazole

Mr. Trend: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the Medicines Control Agency has now considered the place of co-trimoxazole in current clinical practice. [33470]

Mr. Sackville: The Medicines Control Agency has considered this matter and consulted the Committee on Safety of Medicines. The Government propose fully to implement their advice, which is that the indications for co-trimoxazole should be restricted to the following:

> Treatment and prophylaxis (primary and secondary) of pneumocystis carini pneumonitis in adults and children.
> Treatment and prophylaxis of toxoplasmosis, treatment of nocardia.
> Treatment of acute exacerbations of chronic bronchitis and urinary tract infections, where there is bacterial evidence of sensitivity to co-trimoxazole and good reason to prefer this combination to a single antibiotic.
> Treatment of acute otitis media in children, where there is good reason to prefer co-trimoxazole to a single antibiotic.

The CSM also advised that there are no new safety issues with co-trimoxazole but proposed clarification of the safety information in data sheets and that patient information leaflets should be introduced as soon as possible. An article in "Current Problems in Pharmacovigilance" will be published shortly providing these findings to health professionals. A copy of the bulletin will be placed in the Library.

Anaphylaxis

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths in England and Wales in 1994 are known to have been due to anaphylaxis. [31143]

Mr. Sackville: The number of deaths certified as due to anaphylactic shock—international classification of diseases code 995.0—in England and Wales for 1992, the latest year for which figures are available, was nine.

NHS Trusts

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health where registers of trust board members' interests are held. [32986]

Mr. Malone: Each national health service trust must hold and maintain a register of board members' interests and that register must be available to the public on request, in accordance with the "Codes of Conduct and Accountability for NHS Boards", copies of which are available in the Library.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what procedures exist to register conflicts of interest declared by trust board and health authority members; and how many such matters have been notified to his Department or the NHS executive. [32976]

Mr. Malone: The codes of conduct and accountability require members of national health service boards to declare any private interests that are potentially material and relevant to NHS business and to have those interests recorded in board minutes and entered into a register. Guidance from the NHS executive recommends that the register should be kept up to date by means of an annual review. There is no requirement on members of NHS authorities and trusts to make any additional declaration of interests to the NHS executive or to the wider Department of Health.

NHS Appointees (Payments)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the Answer of 16 February, to the hon. Member for Don Valley (Mr. Redmond), Official Report, column 808 (1) if he will (a) provide similar figures on NHS appointees' payments for previous years and (b) indicate when 1994–95 figures will be available; [32979]

(2) if he will disaggregate the figures on NHS appointees' payments to show the value of (a) bonus payments, (b) benefits in kind and (c) taxable expenses allowances. [32980]

Mr. Malone: Information on the remuneration of members of the boards of individual regional and district health authorities and national health service trusts in 1994–95 is expected to be available centrally in November this year. Information is not available centrally for previous years or disaggregated in the form requested.

NHS Estates

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will itemise the assets and values now diverted from individual trusts to NHS Estates, by region; [32987]

(2) what plans NHS Estates has to dispose of assets divested to it by NHS trusts. [32988]

Mr. Sackville: No assets have been transferred, or are proposed to be transferred from trusts, to NHS Estates, so there are no plans by NHS Estates for any disposals.

Redundancy Packages

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many redundancy packages are at present being offered by (a) his Department and (b) by the NHS executive. [32914]

Mr. Sackville: There are currently no redundancy schemes on offer to staff. An earlier voluntary scheme closed on 31 January 1995.

Hospital Managers

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the average number of hours worked by hospital managers in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [32918]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

NHS Trust Managers

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the number of managers within NHS trusts as recommended by the Audit Commission. [32922]

Mr. Malone: The Audit Commission has made no such recommendation.

Clinical Negligence Claims

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information is held by his Department or the NHS executive on the medical procedures that are most prone to clinical negligence claims. [32989]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list by trust the (a) number, (b) value and (c) medical specialty against which clinical negligence claims were settled in each of the last years for which figures are available. [32977]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally in the form requested.

Intensive Care Beds

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultations he has had with the relevant (a) hospital trusts, (b) district and (c) regional health authorities in relation to the failure to locate appropriate open heart surgery and intensive care bed facilities any closer than the University hospital of Wales in Cardiff, in respect of Mr. Dennis, a patient at Wexham Park hospital, Slough, Buckinghamshire; and if he will make a statement. [32841]

Mr. Sackville: None. It is the responsibility of health authorities to work with their local hospitals, to ensure the adequate intensive care provision to meet local needs.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received in relation to the provision of a hospital-to-hospital bed bureau service to reduce transfer times in urgent and intensive care cases. [32843]

Mr. Sackville: There have been a number of representations about the possible use of information technology for the establishment of a database showing available intensive care beds.

Blood Bags

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the estimated saving from changing supplies of storage bags for blood; what has been the estimated total cost of replacing the blood stock lost through defective bags; and what action is being taken with regard to those responsible for the decision. [32845]

Mr. Sackville: Negotiation of a national contract to replace 14 regional contracts for blood bags led to lower prices from the previous monopoly supplier and introduction of an alternative source of supply with no reduction in product specification. Estimated savings are £700,000 for 1994–95.

The National Blood Authority is urgently investigating the problems that have recently been identified with Tuta bags.

Hospital Closures

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 25 May, Official Report, column 765, what information on closures of hospitals is collected by his Department and in what form [32916]

Mr. Sackville: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave her on 6 February, Official Report, columns 35–36.

Dr. Johnston

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the approximate number of communications between the NHS management executive and Camden and Islington health authority over the last six years in relation to Dr. Johnston's legal action; and if he will make available copies of these communications to hon. Members. [32920]

Mr. Malone: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave her on 24 May, Official Report, column 602.

Blood Supplies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of blood supplies in each region was supplied to private hospitals in the last year for which figures are available, indicating the number of units involved. [32984]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally. It has always been the policy of the national health service to meet non-NHS reasonable requests for blood on the basis of availability and clinical need.

Departmental Staff

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff members of (a) his Department and (b) the NHS executive have expressed an interest in redundancy. [32915]

Mr. Sackville: There were 1,560 applications for voluntary early retirement/severance from staff of the Department and its agencies. Some 231 applications were from national health services executive staff.

Bull Bars

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to investigate whether bull bars have caused preventable death; and what plans he has to advise the Department of Transport in respect of controls on these bars. [32919]

Mr. Sackville: By the end of the year, the Department of Transport hopes to be able to produce an interim report on accidents involving vehicles fitted with bull bars. It is currently analysing information collected in 1994 by 30 police forces in England, Scotland and Wales. The Department of Health is liaising closely with the Department of Transport, which will be considering what action might be taken to control the use of bull bars.

Bed Availability

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will set up an inquiry into the best means of providing information on bed availability to hospitals urgently requiring specialised intensive care facilities at other hospitals. [32842]

Mr. Sackville: It is for health authorities and providers to ensure that hospitals have effective bed management procedures for intensive care and that specialist centres develop a co-ordinated approach to bed usage. There are currently several initiatives in hand to facilitate an immediate response to specialised intensive care units seeking to transfer a patient in the event of their having no spare capacity.

Resource Allocation

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the origin, statistical basis and purpose of the market forces factor in the national health service executive's new formula for resource allocation; and if he will make a statement. [32844]

Mr. Sackville: To be equitable, the allocations system has to take account of the fact that the cost of providing services is higher in London and the south-east. A market forces factor—MFF—was first introduced on the recommendation of the advisory group on resource allocation in 1980 and later reviewed in 1988.

The MFF was reviewed in 1993 as part of the review of weighted capitation. The review was able to take account of more detailed data on staff costs from the new earnings survey as well as a detailed model of how care is purchased across the country.

A more detailed explanation is in the booklet "HCHS Revenue Resource Allocation—Weighted Capitation formula" and a more technical paper "Market Forces Factor—Staff Pay Adjustment" copies of which are available in the Library.

NHS Trust Funds

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the value of moneys held in trust by individual NHS trusts and health authorities. [32974]

Mr. Sackville: This information will be placed in the Library.

Hospitals (Energy Consumption Returns)

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the number of hospitals in the energy consumption returns in each year since 1979. [32921]

Mr. Sackville: Information on the number of hospitals obtained from energy consumption returns was not collected before 1993–94. I refer the right hon. Member to the replies my hon. Friend the Minister for Health gave her on 16 May, Official Report, column 173–76 and on 24 May, Official Report, column 597 for the available information.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Patrick Kane

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will refer to his advisers the article, a copy of which has been sent to him, concerning Patrick Kane; and if he will arrange for his case to be reviewed by the Life Sentence Review Board. [30211]

Sir John Wheeler: I can confirm that, following an internal review of this case, Patrick Kane has been informed that his case will be referred to the Life Sentence Review Board earlier than the normal 10-year stage of imprisonment. The case will be considered by the Northern Ireland Life Sentence Review Board in early 1997.

Northern Ireland Civil Service Commission

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to ensure that the proportion of senior open competition appointments by the Northern Ireland Civil Service Commission who are civil servants approximates to the proportion appointed by the Civil Service Commission in England. [32164]

Sir John Wheeler: The Northern Ireland Civil Service Commission recruits solely on the basis of merit as determined in fair and open competition and all eligible candidates, either from within the civil service or from outside, are assessed against common job-related requirements.

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will set up an independent inquiry into the Northern Ireland Civil Service Commission's conduct of open competitions for senior appointments with particular reference to (a) the reasons for the predominance of civil service appointees, (b) the limited professional experience required of appointments to the post of chief engineer and scientist and (c) the role of the retiring chief executive of the Training and Employment Agency in the appointment of his successor. [32198]

Sir John Wheeler: The Northern Ireland Civil Service Commission has a well established record of fair and impartial recruitment. I see no need for an independent inquiry into the conduct of open competitions for senior appointments bearing in mind that:

(a) appointments are made solely on the basis of merit; and in 1994 some 50 per cent. of appointees at grade 6 and above were from outside the civil service;

(b) the requirements for the post of chief engineer and scientist were related to the duties of that post and to those of the chief executive of the industrial research and technology unit; the dual role of the postholder called for a balance between technical competence and management ability;

(c) the selection panel for the post of deputy chief executive/chief executive designate of the Training and Employment Agency was properly constituted in accordance with rules drawn up by the Civil Service Commissioners.

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he intends to appoint an independent person to take charge of the Northern Ireland Civil Service Commission. [32191]

Sir John Wheeler: I have recently reviewed the composition of the Northern Ireland Civil Service Commissioners and I shall shortly be recommending to Her Majesty the appointment of a further independent commissioner. This will bring the balance of commissioners to three non-civil servants and three civil servants. I am satisfied that the office of chairman of commissioners should be held by the permanent secretary of the Department of Finance and Personnel, who is responsible, by virtue of the Civil Service (Northern Ireland) Order 1986, for the general management and control of the Northern Ireland civil service.

School Building

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools were built in the years (i) 1960 to 1964, (ii) 1965 to 1969, (iii) 1970 to 1974, (iv) 1975 to 1979, (v) 1980 to 1984, (vi) 1985 to 1989 and (vii) 1990 to 1994; and what was the design life of schools in each period. [32438]

Mr. Ancram: The number of new schools built in each of the periods is set out in the table. Information about the design life of schools built in each period is not available.

Period	Primary schools	Secondary schools
1960–64	100	39
1965–69	147	21
1970–74	110	19
1975–79	65	10
1980–84	25	1
1985–89	17	1
1990–94	26	5

Railways

Mr. Mallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what amount of INTERREG grant Northern Ireland Railways will expect to receive in relation to the development of (a) Portadown and (b) Lisburn railway stations. [32404]

Mr. Moss: Northern Ireland Railways has not applied for grant from the INTERREG II programme for the development of Portadown and Lisburn railway stations.

Mr. Mallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what amount of financial contribution Northern Ireland Railways expects to receive from Craigavon district council in relation to the development of Portadown railway station. [32405]

Mr. Moss: There are no plans for any development at Portadown railway station in the immediate future. Therefore the question of funding from Craigavon district council does not arise.

Mr. Mallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what amount of financial contribution Northern Ireland Railways expects to receive from Lisburn district council in relation to the development of Lisburn railway station. [32406]

Mr. Moss: There will be no financial contribution from Lisburn borough council. The expenditure incurred at Lisburn has resulted from the need to carry out work to the structure of the building, which had become a safety risk. The full cost of the work is being met by the Northern Ireland Transport Holding Company.

Blood Supplies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of blood supplies in each region was supplied to private hospitals in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will indicate the number of units involved. [32970]

Mr. Moss: During the financial year 1994–95, a total of 630 units of ordinary blood, red cells, were supplied to the Ulster independent clinic in Belfast and to the North/West independent clinic in county Londonderry. This represents 1 per cent. of the total blood supplies.

In addition, 18 units of platelets—less than 0.1 per cent. of the total—and 12 units of fresh frozen plasma—0.2 per cent. of the total—were supplied to the Ulster independent clinic.

Trust Funds (Health)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the value of moneys held in trust by individual NHS trusts and health authorities. [32972]

Mr. Moss: The information in respect of the health and social services boards at 31 March 1994 was as follows:

	Northern £	Southern £	Eastern £	Western £	Total £
Capital in Perpetuity Accounts	25,308	8,359	474,689	85,731	594,087
Other Fund Accounts	2,375,436	649,850	13,362,927	734,901	17,123,114
Total	2,400,744	658,209	13,837,616	820,632	17,717,201

On 1 April 1993 the first six HSS trusts became operational in Northern Ireland. However, at 31 March 1994 the relevant funds held in trust had not transferred to the HSS trusts. Accordingly in 1993–94 the trust funds remained with the relevant Health and Social Services Board for accounting purposes, although the relevant HSS trust did have access to their proper funds.

Dr. Yin Yin Teoh

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the recommendations arising from the investigation by the trust of the circumstances surrounding the Dr. Yin Yin Teoh case which he intends to implement in other hospitals. [32917]

Mr. Moss: The Department of Health and Social Services is presently considering the relevance to other hospitals in Northern Ireland of the recommendations arising from the investigation by the Royal Group of Hospitals HSS trust into the case involving Dr. Yin Yin Teoh. It is likely that these will be made available to other hospitals in the near future.

General Practitioners Fundholders

Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what level of savings was achieved by general practitioner fundholders in Northern Ireland during 1993–94, and if he will make a statement. [33503]

Mr. Moss: In 1993–94, the first year of the fundholding scheme in Northern Ireland, savings retained by fundholding GPs amount to £2,456,539, representing some 8 per cent. of budgets set. GPs are obliged by law to spend savings in ways which will benefit their patients. In the main, practices are, to date, using their savings on initiatives such as reducing waiting lists, funding additional services, purchasing clinical equipment and, in one case, redeveloping a health centre.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Criminal Injuries Compensation

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what have been (a) the administration costs, (b) the legal costs and (c) other costs incurred as a result of the introduction of the 1994 tariff for criminal injuries compensation, the ensuing court case, and the subsequent abandonment of the tariff scheme. [32635]

Mr. Maclean: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to him in the Official Report on 17 May, column 288.

Foundation for Business Responsibilities

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will make a statement on the powers of the Charity Commissioners to force charities to provide lists of their donors; what penalties can be imposed to enforce these powers; and if these powers were used during the commissioner's investigation into the Foundation for Business Responsibilities; [32055]

(2) if he will make a statement on the legal powers of the Charity Commission to compel individuals to come for interview to aid its inquiries; what penalties can be imposed to enforce these powers; and if such powers or penalties were used in the commission's investigation into the Foundation for Business Responsibilities. [32054]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The Charity Commission has power under the Charities Act 1993 to require a person to supply documents, or copies of documents, relevant to the discharge of its functions. A person who is found guilty of wilfully suppressing any document which he is required to produce to the commission may be liable to a fine and/or a term of imprisonment.

Charities are not, however, required to retain lists of individual donors. The commission does not use its formal powers to require lists of donors.

The commission may compel individuals to come for interview during an investigation, using its powers under section 8 and 9 of the Charities Act 1993, and it may enforce those powers under sections 87, 88 or 90(2) of that Act. I understand that it was not necessary to use those powers during the commission's inquiry into the Foundation for Business Responsibilities.

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 29 June, Official Report, column 766, if the Charity Commission investigators were informed of other break-ins at the Foundation for Business Responsibilities' former offices; and if they sought or received confirmatory evidence of these further break-ins. [32743]

Mr. Baker: Charity Commission investigators were not informed of any other break-ins at the Foundation for Business Responsibilities' former offices.

Stalking

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the available data on stalking in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement; [32061]

(2) what action he proposes to deter stalkers and to protect their victims; [32063]

(3) what representations he has received from the national anti-stalking and harassment campaign and support association; what response he has made; and if he will make a statement; [32064]

(4) if he will introduce legislation to make stalking a criminal offence. [32060]

Mr. Maclean: It is a matter of great concern when an individual persistently and obsessively pursues another, to the point of causing distress and anxiety to the unwilling recipient of his attentions.

We are aware of a number of such cases through press reports and information supplied by the police, individuals who have been personally involved, and the national anti-stalking and harassment campaign, NASH. NASH has also provided a number of detailed assessments of the problem, including proposals to amend the law to make stalking a specific criminal offence.

This is, however, a difficult area in which to legislate, since the behaviour of stalkers can range from ostensibly harmless activities such as sitting outside a person's house, following them, and sending flowers and chocolates—which cannot be prohibited by law—to more serious actions, such as making threats, nuisance telephone calls, and sending abusive letters—which are already criminal offences.

I have responded to NASH, and to others, expressing the Government's reservations about legislating in this area. Nevertheless, we are aware that specific anti-stalking legislation is in place in the United States and Canada, and we are examining their laws to see if there are any lessons to be learnt.

Children (Interviews)

Mr. Alan Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to include guidance on interviewing children with special needs within the memorandum of good practice in line with the Criminal Justice Act 1991. [32044]

Mr. Maclean: We are considering whether to revise the memorandum of good practice to take account of this and other points raised by research and experience to date.

Sabotage

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice his department has offered to farmers and the food industry on measures they can take to protect themselves from sabotage and other acts of violence; and if he will make a statement. [31166]

Mr. Michael Howard: The animal rights national index, which is based at New Scotland Yard and funded by my Department, provides regular briefings to companies and other national organisations at risk from animal rights extremists. The index also provides assessments and other material for police special branches to support them discharge their responsibility for organising local briefings for those considered to be possible targets. Where individuals or locations are assessed to be at particular risk, the police offer specific protective security advice.

Closed Circuit Television

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to initiate another competition for closed circuit television funding. [32735]

Mr. Maclean: The recent CCTV challenge competition injected £5 million into local CCTV schemes, generating up to £13.8 million in other funding. Although my right hon. and learned Friend has not ruled out the possibility of further competitions in the future, it is too early to give a firm commitment.

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what specific funding is available in the current financial year and in 1996–97 to assist with the installation of closed circuit television in shopping centres and high streets. [32380]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 3 July 1995]: Local authorities can bid for funds under the single regeneration budget challenge fund for various specific purposes, including the establishment of CCTV schemes. The recent CCTV challenge competition has injected £5 million into local CCTV schemes, generating up to £13.8 million in other funding. The possibility of further competition in the future has not been ruled out but it is too early to give a firm commitment.

Private Security Industry

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to respond to the first report from the Home Affairs Committee HC17 on the private security industry. [32736]

Mr. Maclean: My right hon. and learned Friend has asked colleagues for their views on the report, and the Government will then respond as soon as possible.

Metropolitan Police Committee

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects the Metropolitan Police Committee to issue its first annual report. [32739]

Mr. Maclean: This is a matter for the chairman of the Metropolitan Police Committee.

Reactivated Firearms

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has about shootings involving reactivated firearms. [32981]

Mr. Maclean: We are aware of 19 incidents since the beginning of 1993 involving firearms which have been identified as being previously deactivated and then reactivated to working condition. The standards to which firearms are deactivated have been comprehensively reviewed. Revised, more stringent, specifications will be introduced shortly.

Police Paperwork

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 9 February, Official Report, column 383, what progress has been made on the development of a standard computer system for all police forces. [32856]

Mr. Maclean: A standard computer system for case processing is being developed by Greater Manchester police as part of the national strategy for police information systems. The system is expected to make a significant contribution towards reducing police paperwork, in keeping with the recommendations of the recent efficiency scrutiny of the administrative burdens on the police. Standard computer systems for the custody process, the provision of management information, and the direction of police responses to incidents, which were identified by the police service as priorities for immediate national development, are also now being taken forward. Avon and Somerset constabulary, Hertfordshire constabulary and the Metropolitan police have undertaken to produce standard systems for each of these essential tasks. We expect that the first of these systems will become available towards the end of next year. The Government are providing both technical and financial assistance to each of the lead forces.

Neckholds

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what reports his Department has received about deaths or injuries from the use of neckholds; what plans he has to review their continued use or training arrangements appertaining to officers authorised to use them; and if he will make a statement. [32093]

Mr. Maclean: The Police Complaints Authority, in its annual report for 1993, stated that it had passed expert opinion on the effect of neckholds and certain armlocks to the relevant committee of the Association of Chief Police Officers. I understand that that committee has almost completed a review of the guidance on self-defence and restraint. Training of police officers in the use of self-defence and restraint techniques is a matter for the chief officer of each force.

Retail Staff

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, columns 268–69, if he will list the types of violence against retailers that has led to representations being made to him by right hon. and hon. Members. [32252]

Mr. Maclean: The representations made to my right hon. and learned Friend were made in response to a proposition carried at the 1995 annual delegate meeting of the Union of Shop, Distributive and Allied Workers, USDAW. This proposition, which was copied to hon. Members, referred to the deaths of, and attacks against, retail workers.

Crime Statistics

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information his Department holds on the incidence of crime by geographical area smaller than police force area; and if this information can be related to post code areas. [31929]

Mr. Maclean: Information on notifiable offences recorded by the police is collected regularly by the Home Office only at police force area level. More local figures are obtained from forces on an ad hoc basis in order to answer specific requests for internal briefing, or for use in research projects.

Arrests

Ms Gordon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were arrested for all types of offence in each police force area in 1994. [31367]

Mr. Maclean: The available information relates to the total number of arrests and is given in the table.

Total arrests in England and Wales in 1994, by police force area

Michael Bettaney

Mr. Bermingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the security alert that took place at Swaleside prison on Saturday 27 May involving the convicted spy Michael Bettaney; if Michael Bettaney had access to maps, drawings and photographs of the outside of the prison; what disciplinary proceedings have arisen or will arise out of this incident; when Michael Bettaney's case will next be reviewed by the parole board; and for what reasons Michael Bettaney is held in conditions that isolate him from other prisoners at Swaleside prison. [28351]

Mr. Michael Howard [holding answer 13 June 1995]: Through the vigilance of staff supervising a visit at Swaleside prison on 27 May, a number of photographs were confiscated from Michael Bettaney, along with a crude outline drawing showing Swaleside and Elmley prisons as squares.

Security at the prison has not been compromised. The police have now concluded their investigations and reported to the Crown Prosecution Service. A Prison Service inquiry is now taking place into the incident and the question of disciplinary proceedings will be decided when that inquiry is concluded and after the Crown Prosecution Service has decided whether to take action.

Michael Bettaney became eligible for parole after serving a third of his sentence and, like other prisoners, his case is reviewed annually.

For reasons of national security I am unable to discuss the conditions in which Michael Bettaney is held, or the reasons for them.

Ian Hay

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will agree to meet a delegation of constituents concerned about the circumstances surrounding the killing of Ian Hay by a police marksman. [32378]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 3 July 1995]: I have already agreed to meet my hon. Friend, at a mutually convenient date, to discuss his constituents' concerns about this case.

Police Tasks Review

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total cost of undertaking the review of police core and ancillary tasks; how many of his Department's officials were allocated to work on the review; and how many staff hours were spent on it. [32079]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 3 July 1995]: Five Home Office staff and one Metropolitan police chief inspector were allocated to the review. The total staff hours are estimated at 12,000. The associated pay costs, travelling and subsistence, and the estimated cost of printing and distribution, amounted to about £233,000. This does not include the costs incurred by other organisations involved in the review.

Sex Tourism

Mrs. Jane Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consultations he has had with other EU member states concerning possible measures to prevent sex tourism and the sexual abuse of children in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [28839]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 15 June 1995]: We are monitoring closely the ability of other countries' laws, including those of other EU member states, to deal with the problem of child prostitution and sex tourism, to see whether any lessons can be learnt.

Mrs. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to introduce legislation to permit the prosecution in the United Kingdom of United Kingdom subjects who commit sexual offences, with particular reference to those against children, in foreign countries. [28837]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 15 June 1995]: The Government deplore the sexual exploitation of children, wherever it may occur. Our own law against such abuse is rightly severe. Our courts' jurisdiction, though, is territorially based rather than nationality based, and we therefore have no power to prosecute British nationals who commit offences against children in other countries.

We are, however, considering whether there is any scope for further Government action to tackle the problem of child prostitution and sex tourism.

Mrs. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he intends to take to monitor the sale and promotion of sex holidays in foreign countries by tour operators, travel agents and individuals in the United Kingdom. [28838]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 15 June 1995]: We are aware of the concern about the sale and promotion of sex holidays in foreign countries by tour operators, travel agents and individuals in the United Kingdom. By its nature, such activity does not lend itself likely to monitoring by the Government. We are, however, currently considering whether international police liaison in this area could be improved.

Young Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of (a) boys and (b) girls under the age of 16 years who were being held in prisons in England and Wales as of 19 June. [31099]

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 26 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Brian Landers to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 6 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question asking for the number of (a) boys and (b) girls under the age of 16 years who were being held in prisons in England and Wales as of 19 June.

The latest available provisional information is for 30 April 1995. On that date 187 males (52 remand and 135 sentenced) and 4 females (all sentenced) aged under 16 were held in Prison Service establishments in England and Wales. Information on the juvenile prison population is published in successive volumes of "Prison Statistics England and Wales" (Table 3.2 of the 1992 edition, Cm 2581), a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

TRANSPORT

Marine Rescue

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each year since 1986 the number of (a) incidents and (b) people involved, including those rescued, assisted and fatalities, for each marine rescue centre. [31756]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Coastguard Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from C. J. Harris to Ms Joan Walley, dated 6 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply your recent Parliamentary Question as the question deals with an operational matter, for which I have responsibility as Chief Executive.

Tables giving the details you requested have been placed in the Library.

Persons assisted is a combined total of persons assisted and rescued, separate figures are not available for the two categories.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will make his decision on the tenders for the CTRL project submitted on 14 March. [32095]

Mr. Watts: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport to my hon. Friend the Member for Mid Kent (Mr. Rowe) on 3 July 1995, Official Report, column 61.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the studies that have been undertaken into the traffic impact on (a) Hackney and (b) East London generally of a channel tunnel rail link station at Stratford. [32442]

Mr. Watts: A broad brush assessment of the road traffic and highway impact of a possible channel tunnel link station at Stratford in East London is set out in Ove Arup and Partners' final report on Stratford traffic impacts, which formed part of, and was published in January 1994 at the same time as, Union Railways' report to Government on the rail link. Substantial further work will be required if it is decided that an intermediate station should be provided at Stratford.

Ferry Safety

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 23 May, Official Report, column 569, how long was the interval between (a) the general alarm signal and the abandon ship signal, (b) the abandon ship signal and the reception of all passengers aboard lifeboats/liferafts and (c) the reception of all passengers aboard lifeboats/liferafts and the reception ashore, in the ferry exercises Common Aim 3, Claymore, Goodwin, Liverpool Bay, Eddystone, Webex, Seafire, Beauforts Dyke and Soverign. [31491]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Coastguard Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from C. J. Harris to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 3 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question as the question deals with an operational matter, for which I have responsibility as Chief Executive.

The information requested is not recorded by the Department.

Flight Delays

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the average delay time of scheduled flights to European destinations from Heathrow in March and June. [31854]

Mr. Norris: The average delay to scheduled passenger flights between Heathrow and European airports in March 1995 was four minutes.

June 1995 statistics will not be available for approximately eight weeks.

Birmingham Orbital Routes

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what plans he has to invite private consortia to construct the proposed western orbital motorway around Birmingham through the design, build, finance and operate private finance initiative; and if he will make a statement; [32741]

(2) what is his current policy on the building of the proposed western orbital motorway around Birmingham as a toll motorway under the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991; and when he intends to invite private consortia to bid to act as concessionaire for the route. [32740]

Mr. Watts: No decision has yet been taken to build the western orbital. The next step in the planning of the scheme would be the publication of draft orders which would open a formal objection period leading to a public inquiry.

The trunk roads review, published in March 1994, indicated that the western orbital route would be considered for its suitability to be taken forward under a design, build, finance, and operate contract. DBFO contracts involve remuneration to operators from Government, and do not require payment of tolls by road users.

Train Services

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the adequacy in meeting the needs of passengers of the integration and co-ordination of bank holiday services stopping at Epsom, Dorking, Havant and Portsmouth, run by South West Trains and Network South Central and services stopping at Portsmouth harbour run by Regional Railways. [32621]

Mr. Watts: None. This is an operational matter for British Rail and its train operating units.

Motorway Charging

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what plans he has to sign contracts for design, build, finance and operate road schemes, prior to enacting legislation to enable a charge to be levied from users of existing motorways. [32745]

(2) what studies he has carried out into the implications for public spending of the design, build, finance and operate private finance initiative if Government plans for motorway charging is abandoned or substantially delayed; [32742]

(3) whether he intends his plans for motorway charging to encompass (a) the A419/A417 Swindon-Gloucester road, (b) the A69 Newcastle-Carlisle road, (c) the A30/A35 Exeter-Bere Regis Road, (d) the A50/A564 Stoke-Derby road and (e) other all-purpose trunk roads. [32744]

Mr. Watts: Competitions for the first two tranches of DBFO projects, comprising eight schemes, are currently under way. They are expected to be concluded later this year and early next year respectively. The DBFO initiative is not conditional on charging users directly for the use of inter-urban roads. Remuneration of DBFO operators, which will be over 30 years and linked to usage, will be met from the resources available to this Department for its spending programmes.

Legislation would be required to introduce charging and that would be a matter for Parliament in due course. The Government have said that they envisage charging for the motorway network.

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his timetable for his plans to charge motorists for the use of motorways; and if he will make a statement. [32746]

Mr. Watts: Policy on motorway charging remains as stated by the then Secretary of State for Transport in the Official Report, column 646–49, on 2 December 1993. Its introduction is subject to the availability of suitable technology, which is being assessed, and Parliament's approval of the necessary legislation.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Household Income

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the average annual household income after deduction of direct and indirect taxation and housing costs at 1995 prices of (a) the richest 20 per cent. and (b) the poorest 20 per cent. of families in each year since 1979 in (i) York, (ii) north Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England. [31606]

Mr. Burt: The information is not available in the form requested.

Estimates of average household income after direct and indirect taxation for the richest and poorest 20 per cent. of households in the United Kingdom as a whole, have been published each year since 1957 in an article on "The Effects of Taxes and Benefits on Household Incomes" in "Economic Trends". The most recent estimates for 1993 are available in the December edition of 'Economic Trends' No. 494 (HMSO ISBN 011 620643 8).

In addition, estimates of patterns of personal disposable income in the United Kingdom can be found in "Households Below Average Income 1979—1992–93"—HMSO ISBN 011 762 3180—published in June this year.

Copies of both publications are in the Library.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, what are the Government estimates of the percentage of unemployment benefit claimants disqualified from benefit for leaving employment voluntarily, being dismissed for misconduct or for refusal of employment since April 1994, who would be eligible for jobseeker's allowance hardship payments for (a) the completed period of disqualification and (b) part of the period of disqualification. [32592]

Mr. Roger Evans: The arrangements for access to hardship payments of jobseeker's allowance will broadly follow those which apply for actively seeking work in income support. As now, entitlement to hardship payments will be decided by an adjudication officer on a case-by-case basis. Figures for those who would be entitled to such payments under jobseeker's allowance are therefore not available.

However, the estimated financial effects of the jobseeker's act include an assumption that up to 90 per cent. of those currently receiving a reduced rate of income support because of a disqualification from unemployment benefit would receive a jobseeker's allowance hardship payment at some point during an equivalent jobseeker's allowance sanction.

Unemployment Benefits

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people have had their benefits reduced for failing to attend or complete a compulsory programme in each quarter since January 1993. [32187]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is set out in the table:

Number of reductions in benefit following failure to attend or complete a compulsory programme

Quarter year	Restart courses	Jobplan workshops[1]	Totals
1993
January–March	900	—	900
April–June	3,800	—	3,800
July–September	7,300	—	7,300
October–December	12,300	—	12,300
1994
January–March	13,200	—	13,200
April–June	7,600	9,800	17,400
July–September	7,400	11,400	18,800
October–December	7,300	11,300	18,600
1995[2]
January–March	6,100	9,400	15,500

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to nearest hundred.
[1] Jobplan Workshops started in April 1993. From April 1993 to March 1994 statistics were combined with those for Restart courses.
[2] Figures for 1995 are provisional and subject to amendment.

Mortgage Interest

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 27 June, Official Report, columns 584–85, following the introduction of changes to the rules on income support help with mortgage interest payments, what consideration will be given to unemployed people now receiving income support help with mortgage interest payments who refuse to accept temporary or seasonal employment contracts that may extend to over 12 weeks in duration but which may return them to unemployment after 1 October 1995. [32113]

Mr. Roger Evans: A person refusing temporary or seasonal employment without good cause will be disqualified for receipt of unemployment benefit for a period of up to 26 weeks, but not extending beyond the period for which the employment in question would have been available. As long as the job refused remains open to the claimant, there is normally no entitlement to income support, except under the hardship provisions. If, however, the job is no longer open to the claimant any entitlement to income support will be subject to a reduction in the personal allowance for the same period. If income support is paid under either of these alternative routes, any help with mortgage interest payments is unaffected. Decisions on benefit are taken by independent adjudication officers, who are supported by advice contained in the adjudication officer's guide, a copy of which is in the Library. There is no intention to amend the legislation on good cause for refusing employment as a result of the change to the income support rules on mortgage interest payments.

Optical Character Recognition

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will make a statement on his plans to introduce optical character recognition into his Department's processing of benefit applications. [32913]

Mr. Roger Evans: The Department is looking at this technology for benefit applications.

However, there are a number of issues to be resolved before any decisions can be made.

Income Support

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many income support and unemployment benefit claimants have (a) successfully and (b) unsuccessfully claimed income support under the hardship rules for each region and for Great Britain as a whole for each quarter since April 1994, indicating those whose claim was in doubt due to their (i) not actively seeking work and (ii) availability for work. [32594]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is set out in the table.

[1] The regions are: Southern England (SE); Wales and Central England (W and CE); and Scotland and North East (S and NE).
[2] Awards or refusals of hardship payments under Income Support (General) Regulation 10A to those not actively seeking work.
[3] Awards or refusals of hardship payments under Income Support (General) Regulation 8 to those not available for work.
[4] Figures are rounded to the nearest 100; therefore totals are not necessarily the sum of the regional figures.
[5] Figures for January—March 1995 are provisional and subject to change.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will give the number of people claiming income support by (a) gender and (b) age for each region and nation in the United Kingdom in (i) May 1994 and (ii) the latest month for which figures are available. [32983]

Mr. Burt: I have placed a copy of the information in the Library.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many severe hardship (a) claims and (b) awards were made in each (i) district and (ii) area directorate in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [32978]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Science Teachers

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many science teachers in secondary schools are physics graduates; how many of these teach in (a) local authority-run schools, (b) grant-maintained schools, (c) independent schools and (d) others; and what is the proportion of physics graduates among science teachers in each category. [32239]

Mr. Robin Squire: The figures requested are only available for maintained secondary schools in England, including grant-maintained schools. The figures given relate to January 1992. On that date, there were 6,300 science teachers with a degree including physics, excluding BEds. This represented 17 per cent. of all science teachers. Separate figures are not available for grant-maintained schools.

Ministerial Travel

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by him or ministerial colleagues in his Department paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied him and the total cost in each case, including that of officials to public funds for each year since 1992. [32255]

Mr. Paice: The available information is given in the following table:

Notes on Office Holders:

Secretary of State:

April 1992—May 1993: Mrs. Shepherd.

May 1993—July 1994: Mr. Hunt.

July 1994—to date: Mr. Portillo.

Minister of State:

April 1992—July 1994: Mr. Forsyth.

July 1994—to date: Miss Widdecombe.

Assaults on Staff

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment for each quarter since January 1992, what is the number of recorded assaults on staff by claimants in Employment Service offices. [32360]

Mr. Paice: I have been asked to reply.

Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service under its chief executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from M. E. G. Fogden to Mr. Stephen Byers dated 6 July 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the number of recorded assaults on staff by claimants in Employment Service (ES) offices during each quarter from January 1992.

There are currently around of 1,200 ES local offices carrying out some 2 million direct transactions with the public each week, so in any one quarter there are approximately 25 million face to face contacts with the public. It is against this backdrop that the following table of recorded assaults over the past 3 years should be seen.

Quarter ending	Actual assaults[1]	Attempted assaults	Verbal assaults
March 1992	38	13	284
June 1992	44	47	250
September 1992	49	116	149
December 1992	72	169	158
March 1993	70	123	156
June 1993	69	79	187
September 1993	74	140	231
December 1993	45	116	155
March 1994	61	91	249
June 1994	42	54	179
September 1994	70	59	483
December 1994	92	50	474
March 1995	91	51	664

[1] These figures include staff who sustained no physical injury as a result of the assault.

The ES takes very seriously the safety of its people and over the past two years we have regularly emphasised the importance of reporting all incidents and staff have been actively encouraged to do so. Furthermore, the likelihood of assault in every ES local office is assessed by trained risk assessors and appropriate steps taken to reduce the risk.

I hope this is helpful.

Schools

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many (a) education authority secondary schools, (b) grant-maintained schools, (c) independent schools and (d) others there were at the latest available date. [32240]

Mr. Robin Squire: The latest available information for all school types at a consistent date is shown in the table.

Schools in England—January 1994

	Primary	Secondary	Total
LEA maintained	18,423	3,075	21,498
Grant maintained	260	554	814
Independent[1]	[2]—	[2]—	2,268
Others[3]	[2]—	[2]—	1,862

[1] Includes direct grant nursery schools.

[2] Independent schools and special schools may cater for pupils of all ages and are not classified into primary and secondary schools.

[3] Includes maintained nursery schools and special schools.

On 1 July 1995, there were 422 grant-maintained primary schools, 631 GM secondary schools and four GM special schools operating in England.

Grant-maintained Schools

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list the primary and secondary schools in the Tonbridge and Malling constituency that have achieved grant-maintained status and those schools where applications for grant-maintained status are awaiting her decision.

Mr. Robin Squire: There are currently 10 grant-maintained schools in the Tonbridge and Malling constituency. Details are as follows.

Primary schools

Ditton CE Primary School

Ditton Infant School

Snodland CE Primary School

Brookfield Primary School

Secondary schools

Aylesford School

Hillview School for Girls

The Hayesbrook School

The Hugh Christie School

The Malling School

Tonbridge Grammar School for Girls

At present, there are no schools in this constituency with applications for grant-maintained status under consideration.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Integrated Administration and Control System

16. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of whether the guidelines and penalties under the IACS scheme are sufficiently clear and that the penalties are in proportion to the offence committed. [31177]

Mr. Baldry: The rules on penalties are set out clearly in the IACS 1995 booklet; under the scheme rules there is no discretion to waive or reduce penalties.

Sheep

17. Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the recommendations from the Farm Animal Welfare Council's report on the welfare of sheep have not been implemented; and if he will make a statement. [31178]

Mrs. Browning: The Farm Animal Welfare Council's report made a practical and positive contribution to the welfare of sheep. Our detailed response to the Council's recommendations was published on 29 March this year. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

Organic Food

19. Dr. Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proposals he has to encourage organic food production. [31181]

Mr. Boswell: The Government are already doing a great deal to encourage the production of more organic food, including the introduction of the organic aid scheme a substantial R and D programme and support for the work of the independent United Kingdom register of organic food standards.

Milk

20. Mr. Colin Shepherd: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he will next meet the President of the National Farmers' Union to discuss the marketing of milk. [31182]

Mr. Baldry: My right hon. Friend the previous Minister regularly met representatives of all sides of the agriculture industry, including the president of the National Farmers' Union, to discuss issues of importance to them. I am sure that my right hon. Friend the new Minister will continue this regular dialogue.

Veal Calves

21. Lady Olga Maitland: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to promote humane rearing of veal in Europe. [31183]

Mrs. Browning: My right hon. Friend the previous Minister secured the agreement of the European Commission to bring forward from 1997 its review of directive 91/629/EEC laying down minimum standards for the protection of calves. The Commission has work in hand and when its report comes forward to the Council, we shall press the case for an early end to the use in the European Union of close confinement systems for rearing calves. In preparation for this, I have visited EU capitals to enlist ministerial support. The response was encouraging.

Pesticides

22. Ms Quin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what research his Department is currently undertaking into the use of pesticides on food crops. [31184]

Mrs. Browning: MAFF has a wide range of research related to the use of pesticides on food crops; the various elements of this research are designed to contribute both to the Government's policy objective that pesticide use should be limited to the minimum necessary for the effective control of pests compatible with the protection of human health and the environment, and to the improvement of the economic performance of the agriculture and horticulture industries. The recently published "MAFF Research Strategy 1995" sets out the Ministry's current strategy for research and provides a more detailed examination of the R and D programme in each sector.

Common Fisheries Policy

23. Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to develop ideas for the reform of the common fisheries policy in 2002. [31185]

Mr. Baldry: My predecessor established the common fisheries policy review group, whose job it is to come up with constructive and realistic proposals for improving the operation of the common fisheries policy. The views of fishermen have also been invited.

Animal Transportation

24. Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what further welfare proposals he has for animals in transit in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) abroad; and if he will make a statement. [31186]

Mrs. Browning: As my right hon. Friend the previous Minister, announced to the House on 22 June, Official Report, columns 477–78, the EU Council of Agriculture Ministers has reached agreement on Community-wide rules on the welfare of animals during transport. The rules introduce maximum journey limits and minimum rest periods and will apply throughout the EU. We shall circulate our proposals for implementing regulations in due course; all member states must introduce the necessary national legislation to implement the agreement by 31 December 1996.

Pesticides

25. Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement about the levels of pesticide residues found in fruit and vegetables. [31187]

Mrs. Browning: The Government have a substantial annual surveillance programme for pesticide residues in a wide range of foodstuffs, including fruit and vegetables. The results are published annually in the report of the working party on pesticide residues. In the most recent report, no residues were found in 66 per cent. of all samples and the maximum permissible residue was exceeded in only 1 per cent. of samples. The residues found had no implications for human health.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to reduce the level of pesticides leaching into United Kingdom waterways. [31175]

Mrs. Browning: The pesticides approval process takes into account their potential to contaminate water and approval conditions are set to minimise contamination.

Fish Stocks

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to ensure that future stocks of fish are adequately protected. [31180]

Mr. Baldry: Britain contributes fully to the common fisheries policy, which exists to ensure the sustainable exploitation of fish resources in the waters of the European Union.

DEFENCE

Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether service personnel who took part in the service volunteers programme at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment can have access to the laboratory and scientific records of experiments and studies in which they participated. [31957]

Mr. Soames: This matter is for the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, under its framework document. I have asked the chief executive, DERA to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 6 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking whether the Service Personnel who were Volunteers at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) can have access to the laboratory and scientific records of the experiments in which they participated has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA), which since April, includes CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. It is a long standing policy of CBDE to provide details, on request, of the studies in which a Service volunteer participated to the medical practitioners who are responsible for the medical care of the individual concerned. The medical practitioner can then take into account activities undertaken at CBDE in their ongoing care for their patient. Former volunteers who have written directly to CBDE requesting information on the studies undertaken are also given an outline of the type of investigation in which they participated, but more detailed information is only released to qualified medical personnel with a direct responsibility for the individual.

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what medical countermeasures to protect service personnel have been developed by the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment since 1980 following studies and tests with service volunteers. [31971]

Mr. Soames: This matter is for the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, under its framework document. I have asked the chief executive, DERA to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 6 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking what medical countermeasures have been developed by the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) since 1980 following studies and tests with Service volunteers has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, incudes CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. The nature of the medical countermeasures available to defend the United Kingdom Armed Forces against the threat posed by chemical and biological warfare agents continues to be a sensitive matter. The knowledge of countermeasures clearly diminishes their value and I am not, therefore, able to go into detail. I can, however, say that some of the studies undertaken using Service volunteers have enabled the development of an improved combined therapy auto-injector used to combat the post-attack symptoms of nerve agent poisoning.

3. I hope this information is helpful to you.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service volunteers were involved in studies with the MK 4 overboot at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment at Porton Down; when these studies were carried out; what was the nature and conclusion of these studies; under which defence agreement the results of these studies were shared with other countries; and when these overboots were issued for use by the armed forces. [31959]

Mr. Soames: This matter is for the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, under its framework document. I have asked the chief executive, DERA to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 6 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the studies on the Mk 4 overboot at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) has been passed to me to reply as Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, has included CBDE as one of its divisions.

2. The development of the Mark 4 overboot began in the late 1970's. CBDE's contribution to the programme was to provide general advice on design and material testing. Studies of this nature involved no use of Service volunteers by CBDE. Wearer trials to determine the acceptability of the new design for use in military operations were conducted for the programme's sponsoring branch, the Directorate of Clothing and Textiles, by the Defence Nuclear Biological Chemical Centre at Winterbourne Gunner.

3. The development of the Mk 4 overboot was carried out wholly by the United Kingdom and the results of studies undertaken as part of the programme were not shared with other nations.

4. The Mark 4 overboot was accepted into service in 1984 and the first production run was completed in 1986.

5. I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what grounds it was considered necessary to create an Independent Ethics Committee in July 1991 to oversee the service volunteer programme at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment, Porton Down; why the previous committee of Porton Down medical officers was set up; on what date it was set up; and if the Committee of Porton Down Medical Officers ever exercised its veto on human experiments. [31960]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The creation of the Independent Ethics Committee in July 1991, followed the publication of guidelines from the Royal College of Physicians. The previously existing committees were subsumed into it in order to ensure that the CBDE continued to follow best practice. No studies involving service volunteers can be conducted without the approval of the committee, which reviews the protocols to ensure that every study has a clear military justification and a risk assessment has been carried out.

The Committee on the Safety of Human Experiments, whose membership included the medical officers of CBDE, was set up in 1963 by the then Director, Mr E. E. Haddon. The reason is believed to be the concern expressed internationally regarding the ethics of human experimentation, reflected in the 1964 declaration of Helsinki.

The committee had the right to veto studies, but more importantly was the focus for modifying protocols and maintaining the register of work. Studies could not start without the permission of the committee, which was subsumed into the IEC.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how long Professor Hugh Dudley has been the chair of ethics committee overseeing the service volunteers programme at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment, Porton Down; who else is currently serving on this committee; how many members of Porton Down staff serve on this committee and what post they hold within Porton Down; if the committee has the right to veto experiments involving service volunteers; in what years the committee has met more than four times since its inception and what the reason for this was; and if he will place all the minutes of this committee since its inception in the Library. [31975]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Professor Dudley has been the chairman of the Independent Ethics Committee since its inception in 1991 in response to the Royal College of Physicians' guidelines for experiments involving human subjects. The committee consists of 11 members, nine of whom are drawn from outside the MOD. The external members of the committee include representatives of the medical and legal profession, senior academics and lay people. The senior military officer and the technical director of the CBDE are the only members of the CBDE staff who are members of the committee. No studies involving service volunteers can be conducted without the approval of the ethnic committee.

The panel has not yet found it necessary to meet on more than four occasions in a year, but provision remains for it to do so, if required. The minutes of this committee include matters which are of commercial and defence sensitivity and it would not be appropriate to place them in the Library of the House of Commons.

Nerve Agents

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 16 March, Official Report, columns 711-12, on what dates the results of the NAPS studies were published in the scientific journals named. [31962]

Mr. Soames: This matter is for the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, under its framework document. I have asked the chief executive, DERA to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Ken Livingstone, dated 6 July 1995:

Your question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking, pursuant to his Answer of 16th March, on what dates the results of the NAPS studies were published in the scientific journals named, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, includes the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE) as one of its divisions.

2. The articles on studies involving NAPS were published in Toxicology and Applied Pharmacology in January 1978, in the Journal of Pharmacy and Pharmacology in July 1978 and May 1979, and in the Fundamentals of Applied Pharmacology in December 1985.

3. I hope this information is helpful.

Press Conference

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which journalists and publications were invited to attend his press conference with his French counterpart on 27 June; what criteria were adopted in deciding who was invited to attend; and if he will make a statement on the exclusion of journalists from the press conference. [32432]

Mr. Soames: Invitations to the press briefing on 27 June were extended to French correspondents and broadcast organisations based in London and to accredited defence correspondents of main domestic news media. The Defence press office, which was responsible for issuing invitations, did not seek to exclude journalists from any recognised news organisation.

Third Country Trading Relations

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 29 June, Official Report, column 749, if he will examine evidence submitted by hon. Members of links between British firms and Licentee AG of Switzerland. [32953]

Mr. Arbuthnot: If hon. Members have evidence of illegal activity this would be a matter for the enforcement agencies.

Nuclear Weapon Testing

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his French counterpart about France's decision to resume nuclear weapon testing. [32088]

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he made to his French counterpart during their meeting in London on 27 June on the proposals by France to resume nuclear tests in Mururoa; and what representations he has recently received on nuclear testing. [31948]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I have nothing to add to the reply given to the hon. Member for Southwark and Bermondsey (Mr. Hughes) on 4 July, Official Report, column 180.

Ministerial Visit

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he intends next to visit NATO headquarters in Brussels. [32725]

Mr. Soames: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence is due to visit NATO Headquarters for the Defence Planning Committee on 29 and 30 November 1995.

HMS Andromeda

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to whom HMS Andromeda has been sold; what assessment his Department has made as to whether it received good value for money from the sale; what is his Department's definition of value for money; and if he will make a statement. [32724]

Mr. Arbuthnot: HMS Andromeda was sold to the Indian navy in March this year. It is not our practice to reveal details of such sales in the interest of customer confidentiality, but I can say that the price realised directly to the taxpayer met the criteria given in my reply to the hon. Member for Dunfermline, West (Ms Squire) of 14 February, Official Report, column 613. The sale has also generated work for a number of British companies in the refit and spares support fields.

Offset Obligation Agreements

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those occasions during the last 10 years in which, as part of an international participation agreement, his Department has made credit available for the establishment of joint venture companies, technology transfers and defence research and development contracts. [32416]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Offshore suppliers of equipment to the MOD may meet their industrial participation, or offset, commitments in a number of ways, including transfer of technology, the award of defence research and development contracts and certain work arising from the establishment of joint venture companies. Such arrangements are commercially confidential, and we cannot disclose details.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the offset agreements with (a) the United States and (b) other manufacturers of defence equipment signed during the last 10 years; and if he will list the value in each case. [32417]

Mr. Arbuthnot: A list of offset obligation agreements singed during the last 10 years follows. For reasons of commercial confidentiality, I am unable to list individual values.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what studies his Department has undertaken of the employment effects of (a) offset agreements made as part of his Department's purchase of defence equipment and (b) offset agreements made by British companies as part of their agreement to sell to another country. [32456]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The Department's aim in negotiating offset agreements with offshore companies is to attract new, quality, defence work to United Kingdom defence industry. Such work brings employment benefits to the UK, but the Department has made no study of this particular aspect. When British companies are doing business overseas, it is for them to judge the level of offset they can offer, and we have undertaken no study of the employment effects of such arrangements.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the value of the obligation agreements with (a) CAE Electronics, (b) E–Systems, (c) Cummins, (d) Hughes Aircraft Co., (e) McDonnell Douglas, (f) Raytheon, (g) SAAB, (h) Texas Instruments, (i) Westinghouse and (j) TRW–OSIS. [32535]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The industrial participation obligation agreements which we have with offshore contractors are commercially confidential, and therefore I cannot disclose the individual values.

Astra plc

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if all the schedules of documents taken from the Astra group of companies have now been accounted for. [30066]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 28 June 1995]: A re-sort of the seized property store, directed by the deputy chief constable of the MOD police, has accounted for all schedules of documents seized from the Astra group of companies by the MDP in relation to their investigations of corruption involving those companies.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which (a) other Departments and (b) agencies of Government on bodies acting on their behalf had access to the papers taken from the Astra group of companies in early 1990. [30064]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 28 June 1995]: Department of Trade and Industry inspectors were allowed access to such papers by and in the presence of MDP officers in pursuance of their own enquiries.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the occasions on which his police staff visited Astra plc or any of its subsidiaries between 1 January 1989 and 31 December 1991. [30100]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Officers from the MOD police fraud squad are recorded as having visited the premises of Astra plc or its subsidiaries, in connection with the investigation of corruption involving those companies, on the following occasions between 1 January 1989 and 31 December 1991: 13 March 1990, 30 March 1990, 3 April 1990, 4 April 1990, 5 April 1990, 9 April 1990, 10 April 1990, 11 April 1990, 26 April 1990, 10 May 1990, 11 May 1990, 16 May 1990, 19 May 1990, 20 May 1990, 24 May 1990, 25 May 1990, 15 June 1990, 20 June 1990, 21 June 1990, 10 July 1990, 11 July 1990, 19 July 1990 and 7 August 1990.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence under what authority Detective Inspector Berry of the MOD police was acting when he wrote to the Astra administrators on 27 January 1993. [30102]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Detective Inspector Berry is a member of the MOD police who operate under the Ministry of Defence Police Act 1987. He holds the office of constable under the Crown, and acted under the direction of superintendent, head of the MDP fraud squad.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what grounds (a) Mr. Chris Gumbley, (b) Mr. John Seilens, (c) Lieutenant Colonel Hollingsworth and (d) Mr. Miller of Astra plc were arrested by Ministry of Defence Police officers. [30108]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 27 June 1995]: All four were arrested on suspicion of corruption under the provisions of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906.

Mr. John Anderson

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the treatment of Mr. John Anderson by the Ministry of Defence police and the resultant complaint to the Police Complaints Authority. [30107]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Mr. Anderson was arrested by the Ministry of Defence police in April 1990. He was detained in connection with a possible case of corruption; he was interviewed and released without charge. Subsequently, he made a number of complaints concerning the circumstances of his arrest. These were investigated in accordance with the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984, and the report forwarded to the independent Police Complaints Authority. The PCA, having carefully studied the report, decided that no disciplinary action should be taken against the officers who were the subject of Mr. Anderson's complaints.

TREASURY

Firearms and Ammunition

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were (a) found to be illegally importing firearms and ammunition and (b) prosecuted for illegal importation of firearms and ammunition in each year since 1992. [33247]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Customs and Excise does not hold central statistics on the number of people found to be illegally importing firearms and ammunition. The table shows, for 1992, 1993 and 1994, the number of detected irregularities in firearms importations; seized firearms; and resulting prosecutions. It is customs' policy to take offence action, either by prosecution or compound penalty, when there is sufficient evidence to show that those concerned were knowingly concerned in a fraudulent evasion of United Kingdom firearms and ammunition prohibitions and restrictions. In all other cases, action is restricted to seizure of the goods. As an alternative to criminal prosecution, the compound penalty procedure is used primarily in respect of non-commercial importations of CS gas canisters or undeclared firearms held for personal security reasons by visiting yachtsmen. These factors account for the low rate of prosecutions resulting from a large number of detections and seizures.

Year	Detections	Firearms seized	Prosecutions

1993	276	8,674	4
1994	441	6,821	12

Single Currency

Mr. Cash: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the European Commission (a) has spent and (b) is proposing to spend on propagating its proposals for a single currency and on the green paper on the subject. [28077]

Mrs. Angela Knight: Line A-3501 of the European Community budget sets out expenditure on technical preparatory work for economic and monetary union. An element of the expenditure under line B3-306 is attributable to the provision of information on economic and monetary union, while an element of the expenditure under line B5-600 covers relevant statistical information. These figures do not include Commission staff and publication costs, which are not broken down by function in the budget. Copies of the European Community budget for years to 1995, and of the preliminary draft budget for 1996, are available in the House of Commons Library.

Banknotes

Mr. Beith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has proposed or considered arrangements under which banknotes would continue to be issued to Scottish and Northern Ireland banks under a single European currency. [30462]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: By the terms of the Maastricht treaty, provided the European Central bank was prepared to authorise them to do so, Scottish and Northern Ireland banks could continue to issue their own banknotes, though they would remain without legal tender status, as is currently the situation. Article 16 of the statute of the European system of central banks, a protocol to the Maastricht treaty, expressly provides that the European Central bank shall respect as far as possible existing practices regarding the issue and design of banknotes.

Employee Share Ownership

Mr. Keen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what statistics are held on employee share ownership plans established by companies over the last five years; how many companies and employees are covered by such plans; what is the level of control and ownership established by those plans; if he can give examples of plans establishing employee control of the running of their company; and if he will make a statement. [32426]

Mr. Jack: The law provides favourable tax treatment for employee share ownership trusts or plans—commonly known as ESOPs—which meet certain qualifying conditions set out in the legislation. In addition, "case law ESOPs"—as they are often called—which do not meet all the statutory requirements, may nevertheless qualify for one of the tax reliefs available to qualifying ESOPs, following principles established in case law. There is no requirement for qualifying ESOPs to be approved in advance by the Inland Revenue, so it is not possible to say how many have been established. Information about other arrangements which may be described as ESOPs is not held centrally. The other detailed information requested is not available.

Public Sector Borrowing Requirement

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the breakdown of the public sector borrowing requirement in the last fiscal year between central and local government. [32819]

Mr. Waldegrave: Central Government borrowing, on its own account, was £38.3 billion in 1994–95. Local authorities made a net payment of £1.1 billion and public corporations made a net repayment of £1.9 billion.

House Builders Federation

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last met the House Builders Federation; and when he next expects to meet it. [32816]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The Chancellor last met the president of the House Builders Federation on 22 September 1993. At present, the House Builders Federation has not requested a meeting this year.

Uncollected Tax

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the figures for uncollected tax in 1994 for (a) PAYE, (b) capital gains tax, (c) corporation tax, (d) schedule D and (e) VAT. [32828]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The amount of value added tax written off or remitted in the year ended December 1994 was approximately £550 million. The information requested on PAYE, capital gains tax, corporation tax and schedule D tax is not yet available.

National Debt

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he estimates the national debt will reach £310 billion. [32826]

Mr. Waldegrave: Net public sector debt is forecast to reach £310 billion by the end of March 1996, about the cyclical peak of the GDP debt ratio.

Cheque Clearing

Sir David Steel: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will set a date for the implementation of the cheque clearing system as set out in the 1990 White Paper "Banking Services: Law and Practice", Cm 1026. [33143]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The Government have already said that they intend to introduce legislation as soon as an appropriate opportunity arises to allow the cheque clearing system described in the 1990 White Paper to be introduced. It is not possible to be more precise at the moment.

Charities (VAT)

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the amount of irrecoverable VAT paid by charities in the last year for which figures are available; and what proposals he has to compensate charities for lost revenue. [33022]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: No official figures of charities' irrecoverable VAT are kept. I am currently studying proposals for a compensation scheme recently submitted to me by the charities tax reform group.

Gilts and Bonds

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the taxation of gilts and bonds. [33978]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The Government have decided to proceed with the reform of the taxation of gilts and bonds outlined in the consultative document published by the Inland Revenue on 25 May 1995. However, these changes will not apply to the overwhelming majority of private investors.

These proposals will produce a simpler and more sensible tax regime, and will pave the way for market innovations which would help to ensure that the United Kingdom maintains and enhances its competitive position in world financial markets. The introduction of a strips market will be a further important step in the development of the gilt market, widening investor choice and helping to reduce funding costs.

At the same time, the Government intend to protect the interests of private investors. There will be a threshold, set at nominal holdings of £200,000, below which private investors will continue to pay tax on interest on the present basis. In addition, the Government have decided that the existing regime should continue to apply to two issues of low coupon gilts—3.5 per cent. 1999/04 and 5.5 per cent. 2008/12. These gilts are widely held by private investors. The Government have also decided that all non-equity shares—including zero-coupon preference shares—should be outside the new regime, although the position may be reviewed if serious distortions result. These decisions mean that probably fewer than 4,000 private investors—0.5 per cent. of the total—will be within the new regime. Many of those affected will on balance gain, rather than lose, from the reform.

There will be special rules to ensure that gilt and bond unit trusts are not disadvantaged, and that there is tax exemption for corporate bond Personal Equity Plans.

The element in the return on indexed gilts due to indexation of the principal repayment will remain tax free.

Many of those responding to the Inland Revenue's consultative document have expressed the wish for more time to discuss technical details with the Inland Revenue. At the same time, the Government are conscious of the difficulties which the markets and those having to make commercial decisions are facing because of uncertainty as to whether the reform will go ahead.

The Government have, therefore, decided to delay the start of the new regime until 1 April 1996 for companies, and until 6 April 1996 for the few private investors with holdings of over £200,000. In the meantime, the Inland Revenue will continue technical discussions with interested parties.

The Government have decided in principle to introduce an official gilt strips facility. It has also decided that gilts strippable through any such market should be exempt from withholding tax and the quarterly accounting arrangements to be introduced in connection with gilt repo. The introduction of a strips market will not take place before the second half of 1996. In the meantime, the Bank of England will be consulting further on the details.

Ms Armstrong: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what representations he has received to exclude zero dividend preference shares from the scope of the proposed changes to the taxation of gilts and bonds; and if he will make a statement; [33846]

(2) what assessment he has made of the extent to which private investors holding zero dividend preference shares will be affected by the proposed changes to the taxation of gilts and bonds; [33847]

(3) what steps he intends to take to avoid the potential for double taxation of gilts and bonds held by collective investment vehicles under the changes proposed to the treatment of these investments. [33845]

Mrs. Angela Knight: I refer to the answer my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor is today giving to the hon. Member for Southport (Mr. Banks).

Oil Companies (Decommissioning)

Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what information he has on the cost to the Exchequer of tax relief for decommissioning costs claimed by oil companies operating in the North sea in each financial year since 1985–86; [31226]

(2) what is the size of the adjustment in the forecasts of tax revenue published in the "Financial Statement and Budget Report 1995–96" to take account of relief claimed for decommissioning costs by oil companies operating in the North sea in 1995–96 and 1996–97 and any future years for which figures are available. [31227]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 28 June 1995]: The cost of decommissioning North sea oil installations is one of the costs of extracting oil in the North sea. As it is the profits of North sea oil companies that are taxed, it is right that tax relief should be given for relevant decommissioning costs.

There were no decommissioning costs in North sea oil and gas fields before 1991. From 1991–92 to 1996–97, deductions in tax revenues—royalties, petroleum revenue tax and corporation tax—average about £5 million per annum due to relief claimed for decommissioning costs. They are then expected to rise substantially.

Tax Relief

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue would be raised by limiting all tax relief to the basic rate of tax. [32531]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 5 July 1995]: Based on a projection of the 1993–94 "Survey of Personal Incomes" and other survey data in line with assumptions in the summer economic forecast, the estimated full year yield at 1995–96 income levels would be about £890 million.

Bank of England, Leeds

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about the long-term viability of the Bank of England branch in Leeds. [32545]

Mrs. Angela Knight [holding answer 6 July 1995]: This is a matter for the Bank of England. The Bank has recently completed a review of its branches and agencies. The Bank concluded that the economic liaison and representation work of its nine regional agents, including Leeds, had become increasingly important and should continue. It has, however, decided to cease branch banking operations and will discuss the branches' work on note distribution with the major clearing banks.

Alcohol Taxation

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the relative tax rules on spirits and other alcoholic drinks in relation to units of alcohol; and what assessment he makes of revenue maximisation in determining the level of duty imposed on spirits. [32954]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Excise duties on all alcoholic drinks are levied at specific, rather than ad valorem, rates on the end product. Duty on spirits is levied according to the litres of pure alcohol content, whereas that on beer is charged per hectolitre per cent. alcohol by volume. Cider is also taxed per hectolitre but subject to a maximum strength of less than 8.5 per cent. alcohol by volume. Duty per hectolitre on wine varies according to the nature and strength of the product: five duty bands cover a range of strengths from 1.2 per cent. up to 22 per cent. alcohol by volume and differentiate between still, sparkling and fortified wines.

My right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer takes into consideration a wide range of social, economic and health factors as well as revenue considerations when setting the level of taxation on spirits.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Drugs Misuse

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are the criteria which he applies to reschedule drug substances under the terms of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971; how temazepam relates to these criteria; and if he will make a statement. [31393]

Mr. Maclean: No rescheduling may occur under the 1971 Act except after consultation with, or on the recommendation of, the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs; and the council is required to have regard to misused drugs which are having, or appear to them capable of having, harmful effects sufficient to constitute a social problem. The council has recommended that temazepam should be controlled under schedule 3 of the relevant regulations rather than schedule 4, the effects of which would be as the then Minister of State described in his reply of 19 April to the hon. Member, Official Report, column 196. The Government's careful consideration of this recommendation is continuing.

Following consultation with the Department of Health the Home Office is taking steps to impose safe custody requirements on manufacturers and wholesalers, and the Department of Health is engaged in consultations with interested parties with a view to banning NHS prescribing by general practitioners of the soft gelatin gel-filled capsules. These measures were announced by my right hon. Friend the Lord President of the Council on 10 May, Official Report, column 756.

Racially Motivated Incidents

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many racially motivated attacks are estimated to have taken place within the Greater London area in each of the last 12 months. [31699]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested has been provided by the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis and is contained in the table. The data supplied relate to the number of racially motivated incidents as per the Association of Chief Police Officers definition and excludes the City of London.

Racial incident figures: Metropolitan Police District

Association of Chief Police Officers definition: Any incident in which it appears to the reporting or investigative officer that the complaint involves an element of racial motive, or any incidents which include allegations of racial motivation made by any person.

Penile Plethysmograph Tests

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the accuracy of penile plethysmograph tests as predictions of behaviour; what are the guidelines for the use of such tests; and what assessment he has made of the consequences of taking such tests in terms of prisoners' assumptions about one another. [32247]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. George Howarth, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about what assessment has been made of the accuracy of penile plethysmograph (PPG) tests as predictions of behaviour; what are the guidelines for use of such tests; and what assessments has been made of the consequences of taking such tests in terms of prisoners' assumptions about one another.

The use of PPG by the Prison Service follows the guidelines published by the British Psychological Society and is only one element in the comprehensive assessment which forms part of the Prison Service's Sex Offender Treatment Programme (SOTP). Its use is based on relevant research findings and advice from international experts. This research indicates that sadistic and paedophilic sexual preferences, shown up by the PPG, are common among convicted sex offenders and rare among unconvicted men. In addition, convicted sex offenders, who show these preferences to a more marked degree appear more likely to re-offend.

However, PPG assessment is not primarily used by the Prison Service to predict future behaviour. It is used with men who have already been identified as being at risk of committing sexual offences to assess one factor, sexual preferences, which may contribute to their offending.

Since the PPG is used as part of a comprehensive package of assessment and treatment, it is difficult to isolate this particular element from the effect of the SOTP as a whole. Research has shown, however, that by the end of the SOTP, when PPG assessment is included, participants typically:

accept responsibility for their offences rather than blaming other people.

are more aware of the damage and distress caused to victims.

are more aware of the factors which put them at risk of committing further offences.

have worked out ways of controlling these factors.

behave in a less aggressive and impulsive way in relation to prison staff and other prisoners.

are less emotional and angry.

A careful and rigorous evaluation of its effects on prisoners is built into the SOTP. The programme is periodically revised in the light of evaluation results.

Young Offender Institutions

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the approximate start-up cost of the two proposed young offender institutions in England and Wales. [32433]

(2) what are the approximate costings of running experimental young offender institutions in England and Wales. [32435]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. George Howarth, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Questions about the approximate start-up cost of the two proposed young offender institutions and the approximate costings of running experimental young offender institutions in England and Wales.

The Prison Service is currently working on proposals for two new types of regime for young offenders. Information about the projected costs of these ventures cannot be given until the proposals have been approved and an announcement made.

There are no young offender institutions being run on an experimental basis in England and Wales at present.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32482]

Mr. Howard: Expenditure on advertising by my Department for each year since 1979 is as follows:

1979–80:	£2,904,671
1980–81:	£1,649,605
1981–82:	£1,834,476
1982–83:	£1,957,304
1983–84:	£2,760,681
1984–85:	£3,262,700
1985–86:	£3,306,391
1986–87:	£5,000,000
1987–88:	£4,700,000
1988–89:	£5,400,000
1989–90:	£5,500,000
1990–91:	£5,728,000
1991–92:	£7,275,940
1992–93:	£7,344,635
1993–94:	£9,090,222
1994–95:	£10,912,000

These figures include the 1.75 per cent. commission charged by the Central Office of Information for services associated with centralised purchasing.

The specific campaigns undertaken between 1990–91 and 1994–95 were as follows:

1990–91
Crime Prevention
To encourage more widespread crime prevention.	2,890,309
Electoral Registration
To encourage un-registered but otherwise eligible citizens to register to vote.	468,419
Fire Service Recruitment
To recruit retained fire fighters.	22,387
Special Constabulary
To stimulate increased applications to join the Special Constabulary.	1,176,645
Fire Safety
To encourage wider ownership, installation and maintenance of smoke alarms in domestic premises.	1,165,831
Miscellaneous Campaigns
A range of small campaigns such as Police Graduate Recruitment and advice about Magistrates' Courts.	4,409
1991–92
Crime Prevention	3,637,514
Dangerous Dogs Legislation
To inform owners of dogs included in legislation of action they must take to comply with that legislation.	262,719
Electoral Registration	627,336
Absent Voting
To advise eligible voters of absent voting rights	512,062
Fire Service Recruitment	25,773
Special Constabulary	954,705
Fire Safety	1,244,000

Miscellaneous Campaigns	6,700
1993–94
Crime Prevention	4,984,722
Elections	620,000
Special Constabulary	1,459,000
Fire Prevention	2,020,000
Miscellaneous Campaigns	6,500
1994–95
Partners Against Crime
To encourage crime prevention and greater public co-operation with the police through Neighbourhood Watch, Street Watch and Neighbourhood Special Constables schemes.	6,675,313
Electoral Registration	650,000
Fire Safety recruitment	30,094
Fire Safety	757,428
Special Constabulary	2,799,165
Campaigns planned for 1995–96 are as follows:
Partners Against Crime
Electoral Registration
Fire Safety
Special Constabulary

This work is still being developed and it is not yet possible to give a precise budget for each campaign. The forecast total spend for advertising in the current financial year is £7,300,000.

A breakdown by campaign subjects in the years before 1990–91 could be provided only at disproportionate cost to public funds. However, the subjects listed for the past five years are broadly the same as those covered in previous years.

Cannabis

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to allow experiments into the use of cannabis for medical purposes. [32493]

Mr. Maclean: The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 makes specific provision for research relating to otherwise illegal drugs, such as cannabis, to be undertaken under licence. Some licences for research into cannabis are already in existence; any future applications for licences will be carefully considered as and when they are received.

Police Cautions

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the percentage of persons cautioned for indictable, excluding motoring, offences as a percentage of persons found guilty or cautioned for each police force area in 1994. [32633]

Mr. Maclean: The latest available figures, which are for 1993, are published in table 5.4 of "Criminal Statistics, England and Wales, 1993". The 1994 figures will be available in autumn 1995.

Victims Helpline

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the total cost of the victims helpline since its establishment; and what number of telephone calls have been received. [32634]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Jack Straw, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent question about the victim helpline.

From its commencement on 5 December 1994 to 4 July this year, the Helpline had received 192 calls. The total cost over the same period is estimated to be in the region of £23,000 including the start up costs of £8,400.

Police Cells

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total cost of keeping prisoners in police cells in 1994. [32636]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Jack Straw, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the total cost of keeping prisoners in police cells in 1994.

The total cost for 1994 was £14,780,000.

Correspondence

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the hon. Member for Coventry, North-East will receive a reply to his letter to the Minister of State for the Home Department, the right hon. Member for Penrith and The Border (Mr. Maclean), of 8 June. [32638]

Mr. Maclean: I wrote to the hon. Member on 5 July.

Drugs (Prisons)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the fines and penalties imposed on prison inmates for being in possession of drugs at each prison in England and Wales during the months of March, April and May. [32673]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the fines and penalties imposed on prison inmates for being in possession of drugs during the months of March, April and May.

Provisional figures for the number of offences and the number of punishments awarded for possession of a controlled drug are shown in the attached table, a copy of which will be placed in the Library of the House, for each Prison Service establishment where it was proved that an offence was committed.

Wheelclamping

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to introduce proposals on wheelclamping on private land. [32822]

Mr. Maclean: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to his question on 20 April, Official Report, column 268.

Prisoner Escapes

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of States for the Home Department how many prisoner escapes from (a) establishments and (b) escorts there were in 1994–95 in (i) London and (ii) England and Wales. [32537]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from A. J. Pearson to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the number of prisoner escapes from (a) establishments and (b) escorts in 1994/95 in (i) London and (ii) England and Wales.

The information for the period 1 April 1994 to 31 March this year is shown in the attached tables.

Figures exclude prisoners recaptured within 15 minutes provided that no further offence has been committed.
[1] Figures for England and Wales include those for London.

Prisoners (Visits by Lawyers)

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he plans to take to remedy the shortage of prison officers supervising visits to prisoners by lawyers. [32541]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about visits to prisoners by lawyers.

There is no general shortage of prison officers to supervise visits to prisoners by lawyers. Accommodation may sometimes become over-stretched and result in difficulty in agreeing to visits at short notice. Many prisons find that the best service can be offered by operating a booking system.

Criminal Injury Compensation

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to what date he intends to backdate the option of structured settlements for victims who are awarded large sums of criminal injury compensation under the existing scheme administered by the Criminal Injury Compensation Board; and whether the qualifying date will be (a) the date of injury, (b) the date of application for compensation or (c) the date of award. [33103]

Mr. Maclean: As indicated in a Commons Committee, 27 June, Official Report, column 236, before applicants under the 1990 scheme, or an earlier scheme, can benefit from structured settlements it will be necessary, first, to amend the 1990 scheme to allow payment to be made by the purchase of annuities and, secondly, to make statutory provision to ensure that income from such annuities is exempt from income tax. The Criminal Injuries Compensation Bill which is currently being considered in another place provides an appropriate vehicle for this.

It will not be possible to offer structured settlements to victims whose claims have already been settled. But once the 1990 scheme has been amended and the statutory provision has been enacted, victims whose claims have not then been finally settled will, in all appropriate cases, be offered the option of payment by structured settlement.

EDS

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the contracts his Department has with the computer company EDS. [33169]

Mr. Howard: My Department has one contract, originally set up with the Inland Revenue, with EDS. It relates to the supply of microfiche for the Home Office pay service, the annual value of which varies according to the number of copies produced. The contract value for the period July 1994 to March 1995 was £20,000, excluding VAT.

Inquests

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what powers a coroner has to ensure he sees all papers and documents relating to a death before him, and that all such papers and documents are placed before the relevant inquest. [31479]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: A coroner has no power to order the production of papers and documents which might be likely to afford assistance in his inquiry, but he can, where he considers it necessary to do so, compel such production by means of a Crown Office subpoena. The decision as to which papers and documents should be put in evidence at an inquest is a matter for the coroner.

Probation Officers

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement about his future plans for probation officer recruitment and training. [32848]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: My right hon. and learned Friend will make an announcement when he has completed his consideration of the responses to the consultative proposals which he published earlier this year.

Prisoners (Drug Tests)

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if tests on prisoners to check for illegal drug use will include checks simultaneously for cannabis, heroin and cocaine; [32749]

(2) what evidence he has of prisoners changing from cannabis use to heroin use to avoid detection in present drugs surveillance tests; [32750]

(3) what is his calculation of the length of time residues of (a) alcohol, (b) cannabis, (c) heroin and (d) cocaine can be detected in the human body. [32751]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Questions about the drug testing programme in prisons.

All mandatory drug tests include simultaneous checks for cannabis, heroin and cocaine.

There is no evidence from the initial phase of implementation of mandatory drug testing that prisoners are changing from cannabis to heroin use to avoid detection. We are aware that heavy users of cannabis may retain the drug in their bodies for longer than light users of cannabis or users of harder drugs such as heroin. This has been taken into account in the development of the drug testing policy and we are taking a number of precautions to ensure that prisoners are not encouraged to move from cannabis to harder drugs in the mistaken belief that they are more likely to escape detection.

The period over which residues of different drugs remain detectable within the body depends not only on the drug type, but also on the metabolism and physical make-up of the individual and the frequency of and amount of drug taken. The detection period will also depend on the detection threshold set for the particular test.

The attached table provides estimates on drug retention. The figures are based on the period of time that a drug remains detectable when a urine sample is used as the basis for the drug test.

Drug type	Typical maximum detection period
Alcohol[1]	12 to 24 hours
Cocaine	2 to 4 days
Cannabis[2]
Single use (once a week)	1 to 4 days
Moderate use (2 to 4 times a week)	2 to 7 days
Heavy use (daily use)	7 to 14 days
Chronic use (extreme daily use)	up to 30 days
Opiates (including heroin)	2 to 4 days

[1] Tests for alcohol are not part of the Prison Service mandatory drug testing programme which covers controlled drugs only.

[2] The retention of cannabis in the body is highly dependent on the amount of the drug taken and the frequency of use; far more so than for other drug-types. For this reason a number of different "typical" scenarios have been provided in the table.

Mr. Barry Gray

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he plans to take following the release of Barry Gray by Securicor guards after being given a prison sentence at Southwark Crown court. [32534]

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the release from custody of Mr. Barry Gray.

A full enquiry by a senor governor is currently being conducted into all the circumstances surrounding Mr. Gray's release at Southwark Crown court on 19 June. Once this has been completed we will consider what further action, if any, needs to be taken.

Prison Escorts

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff are currently employed on prison escort work by Securicor in London. [32539]

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 10 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the number of staff employed by Securicor Custodial Services Limited.

857 staff were employed by Securicor on prisoner escort work in London at the end of June 1995.

PRIME MINISTER

Judicial Appointments

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions in the last 10 years he has declined to pass on to Her Majesty recommendations from the Lord Chancellor's Department in respect of senior appointments. [32861]

The Prime Minister: It is on the basis of the Lord Chancellor's advice that I make recommendations to Her Majesty the Queen for appointments to the senior judiciary, but the advice from the Lord Chancellor in respect of these appointments is a confidential matter, as is the use I make of it.

Bank of England

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister in which periods since 1965 there has been a trade union leader as a member of the court of the Bank of England; what plans he has to appoint a successor to Sir Gavin Laird; and if he will make a statement. [33273]

The Prime Minister: The following trade union leaders have been directors of the Bank of England since 1965; Sir William Carron, 1963 to 1969; Sir Sidney Greene, 1970 to 1978; Mr. Geoffrey Drain, 1978 to 1986; Sir Gavin Laird, 1986 to 1994. Members of the court are not appointed to represent particular institutions or organisations. The aim is always to appoint the best people to advise the Governor and other executive directors of the bank.

Former Prisoners of War

Mr. Madden: To ask the Prime Minister what representations he has made to the Japanese Government since his visit to Japan in 1993 about examining whether non-governmental measures would assist in the provision of compensation for British prisoners of war; and if he will make a statement. [33292]

The Prime Minister: I have been in contact with successive Japanese Prime Ministers about these matters, including my present counterpart, Mr. Murayama. Although our proposal for a non-governmental foundation did not prove to be feasible, we are pursuing our discussions with the Japanese Government about other possible approaches. Those efforts will continue.

Air Strikes (Bosnia)

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Prime Minister what consideration led to the decision not to carry out air strikes to protect the UN designated safe areas including the capital of Bosnia; what agreement has been reached with the Serbians regarding air strikes and the release of UN forces; and if he will make a statement. [33114]

The Prime Minister: As I told the House on 28 June, Official Report, column 905, we certainly made no deals with the Bosnian Serbs over the release of the hostages. The UN and other Governments have stated clearly that they made no deals either. Air power remains an important option available to the commanders on the ground for protecting UN forces and enforcing relevant UN resolutions.

Ministerial Advisers

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Prime Minister what part was played in the Conservative party leadership contest by advisers to Ministers; what were the official positions of such advisers; and if he will make a statement. [32838]

Special Advisers

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Prime Minister what part (a) Gregor Mackay, (b) Sophie McEwen, (c) Rachel Whetstone and (d) Tim Collins have played as civil servants in the current Conservative party leadership campaign; and what restrictions apply to civil servants in these circumstances. [32839]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 6 July 1995]: The officials named are special advisers. Special advisers may take part in political activities of the sort described provided they do so during leave or in their own time in addition to fulfilling their normal duties.

Ministerial Speeches

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 26 June, Official Report, columns 445–46, if he will list all publications, published by Government Departments at public expense, which contain a collection of a Minister's speeches, in the format recently produced by the Department of Transport—"Transport, the Way Ahead". [32110]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 5 July 1995]: "Transport: The Way Ahead" was published by the Secretary of State as a consultation document. It includes a series of six speeches by my right hon. Friend which address central issues of transport policy on which views are invited.

I am aware of two other recent departmental publications which include collections of ministerial speeches: "Progress through Partnership", published by the Department of Health in February 1995, includes four speeches by the Secretary of State for Health. "Purchasing for Health: A Framework for Action", published by the Department of Health in June 1993, includes three speeches by the right hon. Member for Peterborough (Dr. Mawhinney) as Minister of State together with one by the chief executive of the national health services.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Morocco

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Morocco's expressed intention to extend registration for the proposed referendum in Western Sahara to an additional 100,000 people. [33266]

Mr. Hanley: The additional applications in question were submitted by the Moroccans last October, before the deadline for multiple application. The Security Council has endorsed a proposal by a recent mission to the Western Sahara by some of its members that the Moroccans should conduct a preliminary vetting of the 100,000. Our ambassador in Rabat has raised the matter with the Moroccan Prime Minister.

Access to Information

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures have been taken in accordance with the declaration on the right of access to information within the treaty on European Union by (a) the Commission and (b) the British Government. [33140]

Mr. David Davis: We have played a leading role in developing access to information in the Community. Following the Birmingham declaration an openness in October 1992, the Council and the Commission jointly agreed a code of conduct on public access to documents, which is now in operation. A number of Council debates have been televised. Council debates are preceded by comprehensive press briefing and followed by press releases giving details of votes on legislative acts. These press releases are made available to Parliament.

Since the Maastricht declaration on the right of access to information the Government have extended their own procedures to take account of the creation of the European Union, and notably the new intergovernmental pillars. Key documents are deposited in Parliament. For legislative proposals, explanatory memoranda are made available to the public through libraries and information centres.

Arms Exports

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions there have been in the EU Council of Ministers on the criteria governing arms exports agreed in June 1991 and supplemented in June 1992. [32407]

Mr. David Davis: None. However, all member states of the European Union adhere to the existing criteria when considering potential arms exports.

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions there have been on arms exports within the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe. [32408]

Mr. Davis: The Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe held a seminar in Vienna on 20 and 21 June to exchange information amongst OSCE participating states about national procedures and policies governing arms exports.

On the first day the seminar discussed export law, control lists, licences and enforcement practices and procedures. On the second day the seminar discussed increased transparency, improved international co-operation and combating illegal convention arms transfers.

Mr Jamal Akkas Chowdhury

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the United Kingdom post in Doha Qatar intends to despatch the explanatory statement explaining why Mr. Jamal Akkas Chowdhury, ref. DOH/826/94/R, was refused entry clearance to join his wife in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [33293]

Mr. Hanley: I have asked the embassy at Doha for details and will arrange for the hon. Member to receive a substantive reply from the migration and visa correspondence unit as soon as possible.

Nuclear Weapons Tests

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential environmental effects of French nuclear weapons tests at Mururoa upon the British dependent territory of Pitcairn; and whether the French Government have provided Her Majesty's Government with any assessment of the environmental consequences of its nuclear testing programme at Mururoa and Fangataufa in French Polynesia since 1966 upon British dependent territories in the Pacific. [33480]

Mr. David Davis: President Chirac has given an assurance that the planned tests will not cause any harm to the environment. He also issued an invitation to experts to visit the area to verify this for themselves. The French Government have made it clear that all the tests will take place underground. We are not in a position to conduct an independent assessment; the French Government have not provided the United Kingdom with environmental impact assessments of their previous tests in the south Pacific.

Mr. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what requirements exist for European Union member state countries to inform (i) the Council, (ii) the Commission and (iii) Euratom over plans to conduct nuclear tests in the territories of the European Union or overseas dependent territories of the Union; and what such notifications have been made in the last year. [32887]

Mr. Davis [holding answer 6 July 1995]: There is no requirement under the treaty on European Union or the Community treaties—including the Euratom treaty—for a member state to give notification of plans to carry out nuclear weapons tests. A member state could if it wished give such notification in the context of the common foreign and security policy. None has been given in recent years.

Wilton Park

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how the Wilton Park executive agency performed against the targets which were agreed for 1994–95; and if targets have yet been agreed for the current year. [33656]

Mr. Hanley: According to provisional figures which are subject to full audit, Wilton Park exceeded all four of the agreed targets set for 1994–95 financial year, for the number of conference participants, income, cost recovery and cost per head to the FCO overall.

The Wilton Park departmental board met in April. We have agreed to the recommendation of the board that the following key targets be adopted for this financial year:

To increase overall income from £1,157K in 1994–95 to £1,203,000K;

To increase cost recovery from 78.2 per cent. in 1994–95 to 80.3 per cent.

To increase the target for the overall number of Wilton Park conference participants from 1,260 in 1994–95 to 1,350;

To reduce the average cost to the FCO of each participant from £237 in 1994–95 to £219;

It has also been agreed that from 1995–96 Wilton Park will aim to recover 73 per cent. of the cost of Wilton Park conferences—1994–95: 64 per cent.

Government Papers

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the progress of the review of previously withheld papers for which he is responsible. [33903]

Mr. Rifkind: Since the review was announced in 1992, some 5,500 previously withheld papers have been released into the public domain. These represent some 80 per cent. of the total reviewed, and have included material on Rudolf Hess, the Russia Committee, the Special Operations Executive, SOE, Suez, the Cuban missile crisis and the Malayan emergency. A first tranche of papers relating to the information research department of the Foreign Office is about to be released.

EU Council

Mr. Dicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on forthcoming business in the Council of the European Union. [33657]

Mr. David Davis: The following is the information:

MONTHLY FORECAST OF BUSINESS FOR JULY 1995

Queen's Messenger Service

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to end the Queen's messenger service. [30894]

Mr. Goodlad: None.

East European Students

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what bursaries to English universities his Department is sponsoring from new eastern European democracies, at what cost to public funds; and if he will make a statement. [31156]

Mr. Baldry: In 1994–95 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office provided over 500 scholarships and awards to enable students from eastern and central Europe to come to study at universities and other academic institutions in the United Kingdom, at a cost of approximately £2.6 million.

TRANSPORT

Cycle Parking

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the buildings occupied by his Department which have provisions for the parking of cycles. [31829]

Mr. Norris: Copies of the list of DOT buildings with cycle provision will be placed in the House Library in due course.

BR Research

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if BR Research will own as a private company intellectual property rights in innovations in railway technology developed by BR Research while in the public sector; if it will also carry liabilities resulting from litigation over any failures of such technological developments; and what compensation will be paid to other sections of British Rail which formerly had access to the use of such developments without payment of a licence fee. [32685]

Mr. Watts: The detailed terms of the disposal of BR Research, due to be agreed by the end of this financial year, will be a matter for the British Railways Board.

Catford Road Scheme

Mr. Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list all the properties that have been acquired so far in connection with the A205–A21 Catford town centre road scheme, with the owners of those responsible for their management pending the start of the work, and any land or properties that still need to be purchased. [32675]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency.

I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. Jim Dowd, dated 10 July 1995:

As you know, the Minister for Transport in London, Mr Steven Norris, has asked me to write to you about the question you asked in the House seeking information on the properties required for the improvement of the South Circular Road in Catford Town Centre.

I enclose, as you requested, lists showing:

(a) the properties already purchased in connection with the scheme and in the ownership of the Secretary of State with occupiers where appropriate and,

(b) those yet to be acquired, with owners and occupiers.

Thames Strategy

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what progress has been made to increase the movement of goods by water rather than road as advocated by the Government office for London's document on Thames strategy; [32679]

(2) what steps have been taken to encourage the use of the Thames for commercial river-borne traffic on the lines of the Government office for London's document on Thames strategy. [32678]

Mr. Norris: The report of the River Thames working group, which I chaired and which published its report last December, identified the potential for maximising the use of the Thames for commercial transport. I have subsequently held a number of meetings with operators and potential operators on the Thames to discuss the scope for expanding freight and passenger services. This process will continue.

The River Thames working group report has stimulated wider interest in transport on the river. The Thames strategy report and the Thames gateway planning framework, both published this year by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, recognise the benefits of maximising the Thames for commercial traffic and the need to safeguard essential river-related infrastructure.

Financial assistance, in the form of freight facilities grant, is also available to operators to encourage the movement of goods by water or rail rather than by road.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many properties have been purchased in connection with the development of the channel tunnel rail link; and what has been the total cost of these purchases. [32857]

Mr. Watts: Two hundred and forty properties at a total cost of £42.6 million, including home loss and disturbance payments where appropriate, have been acquired by Union Railways Ltd. for the present channel tunnel rail link project.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if the successful bidders for the construction of the channel tunnel rail link put in tenders which included the channel tunnel rail link with and without (a) a station at Stratford and (b) a long box at Stratford. [33243]

Mr. Watts: It was a requirement of the CTRL competition that bidders should submit a reference specification bid and a number of required alternative bids. The reference bid included only the short box at Stratford needed to accommodate a cross-over and to permit construction of a connection to the possible servicing and maintenance facilities at Temple Mills. The required alternative bids covered both an international only and a combined international and domestic station at Stratford, both of which require construction of a long box.

New Vehicles

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of current vehicles in the United Kingdom are new cars built since 1993. [32870]

Mr. Norris: The most recent available information is for licensed stock at the end of 1994. It is estimated that, to the nearest half per cent., 13.5 per cent. of current vehicles are new cars built since the beginning of 1993, 10.5 per cent. are petrol driven new cars built since the beginning of 1993.

Municipal Bus Companies

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his current policy towards the divesting of former municipal bus companies by local authorities; what factors have led to changes in policy; and if he will make a statement. [32943]

Mr. Norris: There has been no change in our policy towards these companies: we are keen to see them move into the private sector.

Vehicle Harmonisation Directive

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on developments in negotiations on the draft vehicle harmonisation directive. [32811]

Mr. Norris: An expert working group chaired by the European Commission is currently considering the extension of the whole vehicle type approval framework directive 70/156/EEC, as amended by directive 92/53/EEC, to categories of vehicle other than cars. No target has been set for the adoption of amending proposals.

Road Pricing

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when his Department plans to publish the full report on the feasibility of road pricing in London; and what the cost of that study is to date. [32734]

Mr. Norris: A full report on London research will be published as soon as practicable. To date the study has cost approximately £2.7 million.

Catalytic Converters

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what tests have been carried out by the Transport Research Laboratory on the efficacy of catalytic converters at (a) 30,000 miles, (b) 40,000 miles, (c) 50,000 miles and (d) 60,000 miles; and if he will publish the results; [32867]

(2) what research has been carried out by the Transport Research Laboratory on the problem of cold start emissions from catalytic converters; [32868]

(3) what research has been carried out by the Transport Research Laboratory on the performance of catalytic converters in service in reducing harmful vehicle emissions. [32866]

Mr. Norris: None. However, the Government recognise that improving catalyst performance and maintaining it under all operating conditions are key factors in securing improvements in air quality. New vehicle standards already in place for 1996–97 will deliver improvements in catalyst warm-up time. As part of the EU discussions on standards for 2000, the Government have made proposals for a cold start test aimed at further reducing warm-up time to within a few seconds, a study of the case for extending durability requirements for new cars from 80,000 km to 160,000 km and the use of on-board diagnostics to monitor emissions performance throughout the life of the vehicle.

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many cars built since 1993 fitted with catalytic converters use super unleaded fuel. [32869]

Mr. Norris: As at April 1995, super unleaded petrol accounted for approximately 4.8 per cent. of total petrol sales. The precise number of cars using super unleaded is not known, although since October 1990 all petrol cars have had to be designed to use premium unleaded petrol, which is universally recommended by manufacturers. Moreover, very few new cars currently on sale in the United Kingdom can derive any benefit from the use of super unleaded petrol.

Driving Licence Fraud

Mr. Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to reduce driving licence fraud. [32731]

Mr. Norris: We plan to introduce a new plastic card driving licence in July 1996 incorporating a photograph of the holder. This will help to eliminate misuse of licences and impersonation at driving tests.

Orange Badge Scheme

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received about councils refusing to recognise the orange badge disabled parking scheme; and what plans his Department has to ensure that the orange badge scheme is accepted throughout the country. [33223]

Mr. Norris: We receive a small but steady flow of representations about the fact that the orange badge scheme does not apply in central London, and about arrangements introduced by some local authorities elsewhere which have the effect of excluding orange badge holders along with other motorists, either absolutely or unless they have a special locally issued permit.

The local authorities concerned with the central London area have, with the Department's encouragement, agreed limited parking concessions for orange badge holders and the possibility of extension is kept under review. We have issued advice to local authorities that are considering pedestrianising an area that the needs of disabled people must be fully taken into account; and we have made clear that we discourage local schemes requiring permits in addition to orange badges, although we have no power to prevent them.

Cones Hotline

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what is the total number of calls received by the cones hotline; and how many resulted in remedial action being taken; [32752]

(2) what is the total cost of the cones hotline. [33115]

Mr. Watts: The cones hotline began in June 1992 and by the end of June 1995 it had received 17,700 calls. Approximately half the calls concerned cones and traffic management, and half were requests for information about roadworks or general queries about roads, planning, policy, and so on. Where appropriate we have taken steps to alter the layout of cones, improve signposting at roadworks, review diversion routes, repaint road markings and investigate road lighting at roadworks as a result of comments and complaints from hotline callers. In five cases, this follow-up action required the complete removal of cones and traffic management measures which were no longer required. During the last financial year, 1994–95, the cost of the dedicated service line was approximately £5,000. The cost of staffing the line was met from within existing establishment and budgets.

Pollution Monitoring Centre

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pollution monitoring centres are now operating in regard to vehicle emissions in each of the largest 20 cities in the United Kingdom. [32680]

Mr. Clappison: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows nitrogen dioxide, NO_2, and volatile organic compounds, VOCs, monitoring sites where the results are representive of vehicle emissions for the 20 largest cities in the United Kingdom:

City	Automatic NO_2 sites	Automatic VOC's sites	NO_2 diffusion tube sites

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Television

Mr. Allen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the Government's position on the European Parliament's amendments to the draft EC directive on the use of standards for the transmission of signals. [31914]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The Government are considering carefully the European Parliament's amendments to the draft EC directive on the standards for the transmission of television.

Benchmarking

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how successful his Department has been at encouraging the increased use of benchmarking within industry; and if he will make a statement. [33275]

Mr. Ian Taylor: My Department recognises that benchmarking provides an important stimulus to improving competitiveness within United Kingdom companies, and has a number of related initiatives in this area. Full details of our activities were published in the recent competitiveness White Paper.

The benchmarking challenge was set up in 1993 to encourage trade associations to form benchmarking clubs. Twelve successful associations were supported under the challenge and their activities are progressing. We are also collaborating with an increasing number of trade associations on the implementation of benchmarking initiatives. These activities are designed to improve the competitiveness of the association members.

My right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade announced at the CBI conference and in the competitiveness White Paper that the Department would establish a national benchmarking scheme, to provide a high-quality benchmarking service for business links and business support organisations. Discussions are taking place between the Department, CBI and business links on the introduction of such a scheme.

Consequently, demand for DTI benchmarking publications has been high, with over 40,000 publications being distributed in two years.

Teaching Company Scheme

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the proposed locations for the six extra teaching company scheme centres for small firms which his Department intends to open by the end of 1995. [33276]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Bids from universities for five TCS centres for small firms are currently being considered; decisions are likely to be announced next month.

In addition, a proposal is being considered for a TCS centre for small firms on Merseyside to be assisted by the European regional development fund.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many businesses in the metropolitan borough of Barnsley are currently participants in the teaching company scheme. [33281]

Mr. Taylor: One business in the metropolitan borough of Barnsley, Ice Technology Ltd. of Penistone, is currently a TCS industrial partner.

Growth Targets

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what growth targets for business investment his Department has set. [33280]

Mr. Eggar: Companies, not Governments, are best placed to take decisions about business investment. The best encouragement the Government can give companies to invest is a stable economic environment based on low inflation. With inflation staying low and the recovery proceeding steadily, business investment is expected to grow by 4.75 per cent. in 1995 and by 9.5 per cent. in 1996.

Defence Industrial Base

Dr. David Clark: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is his Department's definition of the United Kingdom defence industrial base. [33233]

Mr. Eggar: My Department has not defined the United Kingdom defence industrial base. In conjunction with the Ministry of Defence and industry, my Department has commissioned a study on the value of the defence industry to the UK economy. The first phase is due to report in July. The key conclusions will be reported to the House.

Dr. Clark: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what percentage of the United Kingdom manufacturing output was accounted for by the defence industry sector in each of the last 10 years. [33232]

Mr. Eggar: My Department has produced the following broad estimates based on figures published by Central Statistical Office and the Ministry of Defence. Figures are available only up to 1992.

Year	Per cent.
1982	9
1983	8
1984	8
1985	8
1986	8
1987	7

Directors

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what distinction his Department draws between the role of executive and non-executive directors; and whether non-executive directors are expected to supervise the day-to-day work of the executive directors. [33013]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The distinction between executive and non-executive directors is not defined in company law. However, I agree with the recommendation in the Cadbury code of best practice that non-executive directors should bring an independent judgment to bear on issues of strategy, performance and resources, including key appointments, and standards of conduct.

Bankruptcy

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many bankruptcy orders were made in the Great Grimsby county court in each of the last three years. [32510]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The total numbers of bankruptcy orders made in the Great Grimsby county court in each of the last three years were as follows:

Year ended 31 March	Number of bankruptcy orders
1993	132
1994	134
1995	94

Company Officials (Prosecutions)

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many directors were successfully prosecuted by the Insolvency Service, indicating the relevant Act of Parliament and the section number, in 1991, 1992, 1993 and 1994. [32603]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The number of directors successfully prosecuted by the Insolvency Service in the last three years and details of the offences concerned are as follows:

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many bankrupts were successfully prosecuted for offences under the Insolvency Act 1986 in 1994, identifying the relevant section, by the Insolvency Service. [32587]

Mr. Evans: In 1994 a total of 66 bankrupts were successfully prosecuted by the Insolvency Service for 128 offences under the Insolvency Act 1986 as a result of the Official Receiver's report. Details of the offences are as follows:

Nature of offence	Insolvency Act 1986 relevant section	Number of convictions

Astra Holdings plc

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what were his Department's findings in respect of the care exercised by Mr. James and his colleagues on the main board of Astra in advising shareholders to subscribe to a rights issue for the acquisition of BMARC. [33108]

Mr. Ian Taylor: As the opening paragraphs of the inspectors' report on Astra Holdings plc makes clear, the inspectors were asked to investigate in particular the circumstances surrounding the acquisition by Astra of PRB sa and the rights issue made in that connection. The inspectors also investigated a number of ancillary matters and reviewed the company's accounting policies. In relation to the acquisition by Astra of BMARC, the inspectors' report concentrates on the effect of this acquisition on the results of the Astra group.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will summarise the findings of his Department's inspectors concerning the manner in which the directors of Astra Holdings had performed its duties. [33050]

Mr. Taylor: I refer the hon. Member to the report of the inspectors on Astra Holdings plc, published by HMSO, ISBN 0115153514, a copy of which was placed in the Library of the House.

Offshore Installations

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many oil and gas platforms in the North sea are estimated to be taken out of production by 2000; and of those how many are expected to be (a) brought ashore for dismantling; (b) toppled at site and (c) removed and sunk in a deep water location. [33536]

Mr. Eggar: Depending upon field performance and economic factors at the time, current estimates indicate that some 32 fixed offshore installations on the United Kingdom continental shelf could reach the end of their lives by the turn of the century. Of these, 19 are located in water depths of less than 75 m and in accordance with international guidelines will be totally removed. Their disposal will be considered on a case-by-case basis, but it is likely that they will be returned to shore. Decisions on those installations in deeper water, where under international guidelines partial removal is permitted, will be taken according to individual circumstances and in the light of a comparative assessment of the alternative options. This will have proper regard for environmental considerations and other users of the sea, as well as risk, technical feasibility and cost in order to arrive at the best practicable environmental option.

Depressive Illnesses

Mr. Skinner: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will introduce legislation providing safeguards to prevent persons suffering depressive illnesses from being discriminated against by insurance companies, and if he will make a statement. [33048]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: No. However, the Disability Discrimination Bill, currently before Parliament, will give some protection to people suffering severe depressive illness.

International Atomic Energy Agency Report

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when the most recent safeguards implementation report was completed by the International Atomic Energy Agency; what comments were made in the report about the application of safeguards on United Kingdom facilities and materials exported from the United Kingdom; and if he will arrange for a copy of the report to be placed in the Library. [32876]

Mr. Eggar: The International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards implementation report for 1994 was issued to members of the agency's board of governors in May 1995. The detailed report is confidential to the board of governors, but its contents will be summarised in the IAEA annual report for 1994, a copy of which will be placed in the Library of the House when it is published. In addition, the IAEA and its board of governors have recommended publication of an executive summary to the 1994 SIR, a copy of which will also be placed in the Library of the House when it becomes available.

Post Office

Mr. Spellar: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the external financing limit for the Post Office for 1995–96; and what was the figure for the two previous years. [32820]

Mr. Lang: For 1995–96, the Post Office has been set a negative external financing limit of £213 million. For the two previous years, the figures were as follows:

£ million

Year	Target	Outturn
1993–94	–181	–182
1994–95	–226	–235

Newspapers

Mr. Spellar: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his oral answer of 14 June, Official Report, column 777, what response he has received from the Director General of Fair Trading regarding concerns about newspaper carriage charges. [32824]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: I understand that the Office of Fair Trading is monitoring carefully the effects of the recent changes in the newspaper industry, including their impact on carriage charges. The OFT will keep under consideration whether a further reference to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission would be justified.

Ceramic Industry

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment he has made of the future employment potential of the ceramic industry in north Staffordshire. [33224]

Mr. Eggar: As with any other, the prospects for this sector—including employment—depend on the strength of its international competitiveness. The Department is working with the sector on competitiveness through initiatives such as a tableware strategy group, a manufacturing improvement club and regular discussions with the British Ceramics Confederation on a range of other issues which affect its future prospects.

Mrs. Figoni

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if his Department intends to seek further medical evidence in the case of Mrs. Figoni of Glan Gors Fawr Rhosybol, Amlwch, Ynys Mon, Gwynedd, before announcing his decision on the application by British Gas for a compulsory purchase order in respect of land at Glans Gors Fawr; and when the expects to announce his decision. [32658]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Having considered the matter carefully, I do not intend to seek further medical evidence. I expect a decision to be announced shortly.

Mr. Jones: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the procedure followed in the inquiry into the application for a compulsory purchase order by British Gas relating to land belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Figoni of Glan Gors Fawr Rhosybol, Amlwch, Ynys Mon, Gwynedd; and what assessment he has made of whether proper regard was given to the objections made to the location of the inquiry. [32659]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 6 July 1995]: I am satisfied that the procedure followed at the inquiry and the opportunities afforded for representations to be made subsequently were adequate to ensure that proper consideration could be given to all matters relating to British Gas's application and that proper regard was given to the one objection made with respect to the location of the inquiry.

Deregulation

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the criteria used by his Department to identify regulations as suitable for repeal. [33279]

Mr. Freeman: I have been asked to reply.

Under the deregulation initiative, Departments have reviewed all their regulations which impact on business to identify candidates for repeal or amendment. In so doing, each regulation is considered on a case-by-case basis to determine whether or not it still serves a useful need and whether it is unduly burdensome.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Legal Aid (Inquests)

32. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what studies have been initiated to discover the demand for legal aid in regard to inquests. [31470]

Mr. John M. Taylor: None. However, this issue is raised in the legal aid Green Paper, on which the Government would welcome views.

Court Practices

33. Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will introduce legislation to modernise courts' practices. [31471]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Courts' practices are already being modernised through the increased use of information technology—for example, the use of closed circuit television links for child witnesses, lap-top computers and communication links for the judiciary, case tracking systems in various courts, infra-red hearing enhancement systems in courtrooms, and two widely used computerised bulk issue centres for summonses and warrants.

Judicial Appointments

35. Mr. Janner: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) women and (b) members of ethnic minorities are currently (i) high court judges, (ii) county court judges, (iii) circuit judges and (iv) chairpersons of industrial tribunals. [31474]

Mr. John M. Taylor: On 1 June 1995 there were six female High Court judges, 31 female circuit judges and eight female full-time chairmen of industrial tribunals. On the same date there were, according to the best information we have available, no High Court judges of ethnic minority origin, four circuit judges of ethnic minority origin and two full-time chairmen of industrial tribunals of ethnic minority origin. Circuit judges sitting in the county court are included in the circuit judge figures.

Disabled People

36. Mr. Barnes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is his Department's policy concerning the accessibility of the judicial system to disabled people; and if he will make a statement. [31475]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Facilities for disabled people are continuously reviewed and every effort is made to improve them as necessary.

Court Service (Delays)

37. Mrs. Roche: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make a statement regarding delays in the Court Service. [31476]

Mr. John M. Taylor: While there will always be an element of delay in all court proceedings, the Court Service is taking active measures to keep it to the minimum.

Legal Aid (Eligibility)

38. Dr. Goodson-Wickes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what recent representations he has considered about eligibility for legal aid. [31478]

Mr. John M. Taylor: I receive many representations about legal aid eligibility. Recently there have been 50 responses to the consultation paper "Legal Aid for the Apparently Wealthy".

Limitation Legislation

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he expects to complete his review of limitation legislation. [31473]

Mr. John M. Taylor: As I informed the hon. Member on 13 March, the review is to be carried out by the Law Commission. It announced in its sixth programme that it hopes to have completed its work on limitation periods generally by the end of 1998.

Law Commission

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he expects the Government to publish their response to the Law Commission's report on mental incapacity. [33057]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Government have set up an interdepartmental working group, chaired by the Lord Chancellor's Department, to consider the Law Commission report on mental incapacity. The group is to produce an initial report for consideration by Ministers by September 1 1995. The Government's initial response will be published once Ministers have had an opportunity to consider the working group's report.

Small Claims

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he expects to implement Lord Woolf's recommendation that the small claims limit, other than for personal injury claims, should be raised to £3,000. [33111]

Mr. John M. Taylor: No timetable has yet been set for the laying of a statutory instrument before the House.

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to exclude all personal injury claims valued at under £1,000 from the small claims procedure. [33112]

Mr. Taylor: In his interim report on access to justice Lord Woolf recommended that, pending the introduction of a new "fast track" procedure, personal injury cases up to £1,000 should remain within the small claims jurisdiction, and the Lord Chancellor has accepted this recommendation.

Internet

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to (a) allow or (b) compel HMSO to make available statutes, other official parliamentary publications from his Department and court judgments on the Internet; and if he will make a statement. [33113]

Mr. John M. Taylor: These and related matters are kept under review but it would be premature to make a statement.

Crown Office Liaison

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what liaison arrangements exist between his office and the Crown Office in Edinburgh. [31472]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department and Crown Office consult each other on matters where they share a common interest.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

RMS St. Helena

Sir David Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when it is anticipated that the report of consultants on the sailing schedule of RMS St. Helena will be published. [31580]

Mr. Hanley: The consultants' draft report is currently under consideration. It is hoped that the final report will be available in approximately three months' time when copies will be made available to the Libraries of the House.

Population Control (China)

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the amount of funding support given to the Chinese Family Planning Association by the Chinese Government. [32016]

Mr. Hanley: We have asked the International Planned Parenthood Federation whether it can obtain this information. Any information received will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on whether the UNFPA has changed its view on whether the Chinese population control programme is totally voluntary. [32014]

Mr. Hanley: The United Nations Population Fund does not claim that the ways in which the Chinese family planning programmes are implemented are always voluntary. UNFPA has continuously voiced its concern to the Government of China over reports of coercion.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the prevalence of articles encouraging coercive population control in Chinese newspapers in the 1990s. [32010]

Mr. Hanley: We are not able to monitor all press publications in China. However, we understand that the press generally reflects official policy on population issues.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the sums given by the UNFPA to the construction of factories in China for the manufacture of intra-uterine devices; how many factories have been built; when they were completed; how many IUDs are manufactured each year; if such IUDs are inserted coercively; and if China now imports IUDs. [32018]

Mr. Hanley: The United Nations Population Fund has assisted in the upgrading of five copper IUD manufacturing facilities at a cost of approximately $7 million. China has at least one other such facility. We do not have information on the completion dates of these facilities, or the number of IUDs currently being manufactured in, or imported to, China. We have received reports that IUDs have sometimes been inserted coercively, and we totally condemn such practices.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the training given by the UNFPA for Chinese population control officials; and if such training is offered to officials from the national, state and prefectural levels of Chinese government; what computer hardware and software is provided by the UNFPA to (a) the Chinese State Family Planning Commission and (b) prefectural level population control offices; what systems this equipment was designed to run and to what use the equipment is now being put; and what information he has on the training offered by the UNFPA in the use of IT for population control purposes. [32006]

Mr. Hanley: The United Nations Population Fund's recent training has focused on interpersonal counselling and informed consent practices for family planning and health workers at local level.

UNFPA supplied computers for both the 1982 and 1990 censuses, and it has supplied computers to 22 Chinese universities for teaching population science. The computers that were provided for censuses are now used for inter-census surveys and research.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on any statements made by the IPPF or UNFPA which specifically condemn the use of coercion in population control in China. [32012]

Mr. Hanley: Both the United Nations Population Fund and the International Planned Parenthood Federation make it clear in their policies and statements that they strongly oppose the use of coercion in population and reproductive health programmes. Neither organisation issues public statements criticising the population policies of any individual country. However, both have expressed their concern, in written and oral communications with the Chinese authorities, about reported incidents of coercion. We believe that both the UNFPA and IPPF are capable of making the right judgments about how best they can help towards improving population and reproductive health policies in individual countries.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the role played by the Chinese State Family Planning Commission in the drafting and dissemination of coercive family planning regulations to Chinese states since 1979, in organising coercive population control initiatives, and in the initiation and implementation of the responsibility system and the veto with one vote system in which cadres are judged by their results in keeping to the one child policy. [32008]

Mr. Hanley: We understand that the State Family Planning Commission has overall responsibility for policy on family planning, and that provincial people's congresses, municipalities and autonomous regions are responsible for establishing their own regulations relating to family size. Responsibility for programme implementation rests with provincial family planning commissions. We have no authoritative information on the "responsibility system".

Philippines Cordillera

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the European Union agricultural assistance programme in the Philippines Cordillera; and what changes he will be seeking in the next phase of this programme. [31845]

Mr. Hanley: The European Commission has not yet released the results of a recent evaluation of the Philippines Cordillera project. We understand, however, that it is likely to recommend the funding of a second phase of the project. We will seek to ensure the evaluation findings are fully reflected in the proposals for any such second phase.

WALES

Departmental Policies

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he intends to continue with all the policies of his last two predecessors. [31451]

Mr. Hague: The Government's policies for Wales are clear and will continue.

Mr. Hanson: To ask the Secretary State for Wales what changes of policy he plans. [31454]

Mr. Hague: The Government's policies for Wales are clear and will continue.

Voluntary Sector

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what initiatives he intends to take to encourage the work of the voluntary sector in Wales. [31438]

Mr. Richards: We shall continue to encourage, develop and maintain a strong, vigorous and independent voluntary sector.

Caretakers

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will provide funding to improve the working conditions of caretakers in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [31439]

Mr. Hague: This is a matter for the employers involved.

Departmental Priorities

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will state his priorities for the next six months. [31441]

Mr. Hague: The Government's policies for Wales are clear and will continue.

State Nursery Schools

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has of the percentage of children of the age of three and four years currently in state nursery schools; and if he will make a statement. [31442]

Mr. Richards: Some 5 per cent. of three and four-year-olds in Wales currently attend maintained nursery schools, either full or part time. Almost another 31 per cent. attend nursery classes in maintained primary schools, and a further 36.5 per cent. attend maintained schools' reception classes, again either full or part-time.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment announced on 6 July, Official Report, columns 517-32, our proposals to give all parents the opportunity to choose a publicly funded place in nursery education for their four-year-olds.

Official Duties

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how he divides his time between his role as Secretary of State for Wales and his other official duties. [31443]

Mr. Hague: I have no other official duties.

National Health Service (Dental Services)

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many representations he has received on NHS dental cover in Wales during the past 12 months. [31445]

Mr. Richards: In the past 12 months, 218 representations on the question of dental cover have been received either from or on behalf of people living in Wales. Of these, 136 were for hon. Members.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what progress has been made regarding the provision of NHS dental treatment in Wales. [31453]

Mr. Richards: There are presently 850 general dental practitioners in Wales, 36 per cent. more than in 1979. Some 1.7 million patients are registered with a dentist and some £68 million was spent on NHS dentistry in 1993–94.

Earlier this year the then Secretary of State announced that he was making a further £2.5 million available in Wales to improve dental services in the community and an announcement will be made soon about how that money will be spent.

Unitary Authorities

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he plans to meet leaders of the new unitary authorities in Wales to discuss service provision. [31446]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I have already meet the leaders of two of the new unitary authorities and my colleagues and I look forward to meeting all of the other leaders in the future.

Welsh Grand Committee

Mr. John Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will renew the policies put forward in 1992 on the meetings and format of the Welsh Grand Committee. [31448]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: It is up to the Committee to determine when and where it meets and such things are arranged through the usual channels.

Rural White Paper

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has for a rural White Paper for Wales. [31450]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: My right hon. Friend and I have no plans to publish a rural White Paper for Wales.

Civil Service (Jobs)

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary or State for Wales how many full-time civil service jobs there are in Wales; and how many he expects there to be in two years time. [31452]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: There were 28,724 full-time equivalent civil servants in Wales at 1 April 1994. This figure includes part-time staff who are counted as half units. Information on full-time staff only is not held centrally. The civil service will remain a significant employer in Wales.

Welsh Development Agency (Property Sales)

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what effect he expects the sale of Welsh Development Agency property to have on future investment and job creation in Wales. [31455]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Receipts from the sale of Welsh Development Agency property will be reinvested in the economy of Wales to create more jobs and more investment.

Fire Service (Reorganisation)

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to visit Wales in the next month to discuss the response to the proposals to reorganise the fire service. [31457]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No, the responsibility for fire brigades and their reorganisation in Wales rests with my right hon. and learned Friend the Home Secretary.

Countryside Council for Wales (Budget)

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will reverse the recent reductions in the budget of the Countryside Council for Wales. [31459]

Mr. Hague: The most recent adjustment to the budget of the Countryside Council for Wales was an addition of up to £525,000 to enable necessary new work to be undertaken in the current financial year.

Landfill Sites

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement concerning his policy on the tipping of contaminated soil and other substances in landfill sites. [31460]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Landfill sites for the disposal of waste must be licensed by waste regulation authorities. Individual licence conditions determine the types of waste which may be deposited at a site.

The Government have provided guidance to waste regulation authorities in a series of waste management papers.

Tuberculosis (Cattle)

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what advice he has received on the reason for the change in the number of positive tuberculosis tests for cattle in the last five years. [31735]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: There has been an increase incidence of the disease and investigations support the contention that much of the increase is due to infection from badgers. The Government are already carrying out research into ways of avoiding transmission of disease from badgers to cattle, including studies on the effects of badger removal operations on the badger population and their impact on the subsequent spread of disease within the badger population.

A55

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the estimated cost of building the dual carriageway A55 expressway between Chester and Bangor in current prices. [32931]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The information is not available in the form requested. The improvements to the A55 between Chester and Bangor cost some £700 million.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the completion date of the dual carriageway from Menai Bridge to Holyhead. [32930]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Schemes to extend the A55 dual carriageway across Anglesy are included in the "programmed" pool, planned to start before April 1998, of the forward trunk road programme published in the Welsh Office's departmental report, Cm 2815, on 9 March 1995. Once started, the schemes will be completed, as soon as possible.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the cost of building the Conway A55 expressway tunnel. [32933]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The cost was £228,000,000.

Housing

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what new measures he will take to encourage local authority and housing association homes for single men; and if he will make a statement. [32936]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Cm 2901, "Our Future Homes", published on 27 June, set out the Government's proposals for meeting future housing need.

Bypasses

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the cost of building (a) the Hawarden bypass (b) the Chester southerly bypass (c) the Norling bypass and (d) the Mold bypass in current prices. [32932]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The information is not available in the form requested. The actual cost of each scheme was: (a) Hawarden bypass, £32,000,000; (b) Chester southerly bypass, £16,000,000; (c) Northop bypass, £14,000,000; (d) Mold bypass, £18,000,000.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he proposes to build the Alltami bypass; and if he will make a statement. [32934]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Proposals for an Alltami bypass form part of the A494 Mold-Ewloe improvement. This scheme is included in the longer-term consideration pool of the forward trunk road programme published in the Welsh Office's departmental report, Cm 2815, on 9 March 1995.

Rail Services

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how he proposes to encourage passenger and freight traffic to move from road to rail; and if he will make a statement. [32929]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The Government's programme for transferring the railways to the private sector will result in improved and more attractive services. Freight facilities grants are available to encourage the transfer of freight from road to rail or inland waterway where this would provide significant environmental benefits.

Hill Livestock Compensatory Allowances

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make it his policy to pay interest on hill livestock compensatory allowances to farmers in the event of late payment. [32389]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Clwyd, South-West (Mr. Jones) on 27 June 1995, Official Report, column 614.

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what proportion of farmers have now received hill livestock compensatory allowance payments for the current year. [32364]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Ninety-one per cent.

Agricultural Claims

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the number of appeals against disallowance of claims for agricultural subsidies in the last complete year for which figures are available; and how many appeals succeeded on the grounds that the applicant had made a genuine mistake in providing the information. [32363]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: This information is not recorded and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Nurses' Pay

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 4 July, Official Report, column 200, if he will list the dates on which each trust and directly managed unit in Wales employing nurses made a pay offer. [33288]

Mr. Hague: This information is not held centrally.

Waiting Lists

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 3 July, Official Report, column 46, what special measures he proposes to assist those health authorities with out-patient waiting lists in excess of six months' waiting time to bring their lists into line with patients charter undertakings. [33290]

Mr. Hague: The second tranche of waiting times initiative moneys, some £6.7 million, was released to health authorities in April. All authorities have confirmed their commitment to the hospital waiting times measures in the patients charter for Wales. By the end of September it should be rare for anyone to have waited over six months for a first out-patient appointment.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 3 July, Official Report, column 46, how many patients on the waiting lists of general practitioner fundholders are included within the total given for health authorities in each of the two columns listed. [33289]

Mr. Hague: The information relating to waiting lists at 31 March 1995 is shown separately for patients of health authorities and general practitioner fundholders in the table:

	Number waiting more than six months for out-patient appointment		Number waiting more than 18 months for in-patient or day case treatment
Health authority area	Health authority lists	GP fundholder lists	Health authority lists	GP fundholder lists
Clwyd	477	224	74	—
Dyfed	1,231	63	92	17
Gwent	2,588	433	2	—
Gwynedd	315	270	11	11
Mid Glamorgan	3,091	445	184	19
Powys	206	—	—	—
South Glamorgan	2,612	1,187	132	24
West Glamorgan	1,739	1,643	65	35
Wales	12,259	4,265	560	106

National Parks

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the number of access agreements made in each national park in the most recent year for which figures are available. [33489]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The information is not available centrally. I will obtain the information from the parks and write to the hon. Member.

SCOTLAND

Co-operatives

Mr. McAvoy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action he is taking to ensure that Scottish Enterprise recognises the potential of co-operatives in Scotland; what joint activities it is undertaking with the Scottish Co-operative Development Committee to this end; and if he will make a statement. [32473]

Mr. Kynoch: The Government encourage Scottish Enterprise to work closely with other relevant organisations to create opportunities for enterprise, employment and self-employment in Scotland. Co-operatives have a role to play in this. Any joint activity involving Scottish Enterprise and the Scottish Co-operative Development Committee is an operational matter for Scottish Enterprise. I have asked its chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Women's Aid Groups

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will increase funding and assistance to women's aid groups; and if he will make a statement. [32607]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The majority of the funding for local women's aid projects is provided by local housing and social work authorities. Housing authorities have a statutory duty to assist people who are homeless or potentially homeless, including women who are fleeing domestic violence Under the community care arrangements, local social work authorities can contract with women's aid groups to provide support and accommodation to the victims of domestic violence. Local agencies are best placed to determine the requirement for such services in response to local needs and circumstance.

A large majority of the local women's aid refuges in Scotland are affiliated to the national umbrella organisation, Scottish Women's Aid. Scottish Office grant funding to the SWA has increased by over 60 per cent. in the past three years and provides around 75 per cent. of the organisation's total income.

The Scottish Office also assists local women's aid projects through the urban programme. The Scottish Office provides 75 per cent. of the urban aid grant, with local authorities meeting the balance. Urban programme funding for women's aid projects has also increased significantly in recent years.

Quality Standards

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make all companies which supply Scottish Office and local authorities meet and attain BS5750 standards; and if he will make a statement. [32606]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: My Department is very conscious of the importance of a range of quality issues and gives these due weight in reaching procurement decisions. It is for the supplier to determine the quality management system to be used in providing goods or services, and my Department requires to be assured that there are such systems in place and it is normal practice to ask suppliers to describe these in their bid or at the pre-qualification stage. Accreditation to BS5750 is a helpful way for suppliers to demonstrate their quality systems, but we do not insist on this as it is not appropriate in all cases and there can be satisfactory alternatives.

In relation to local authorities, it is for authorities themselves to determine the quality which they require. The question of whether or not a supplier has BS5750 accreditation is one factor which authorities may wish to take into account. For services subject to compulsory competitive tendering, we issued guidance to authorities on quality assurance in the Scottish Office Environment Department circular 13/93.

Concessionary Travel Schemes

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will introduce a national concession travel scheme in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [32608]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No. Regional and islands councils have discretionary powers under section 93 of the Transport Act 1985 which allow any local authority, or any two or more local authorities acting jointly, to establish a concessionary travel scheme for eligible categories of person. After local government reform, the new councils will retain these powers and the Strathclyde passenger transport authority will have the power to establish a scheme for its area. Decisions on the extent and administration of such schemes are entirely for the local authorities to consider, taking account of local needs and circumstances. The Government see no need to introduce a national concession travel scheme in Scotland.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on arrangements for concessionary travel for passengers over the age of retirement after April 1996. [32894]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: After local government reform the new councils will retain the discretionary powers under section 93 of the Transport Act 1985 which allow any local authority, or any two or more local authorities acting jointly, to establish a concessionary travel scheme for eligible categories of person including passengers over retirement age. The Strathclyde passenger transport authority will also have the power to establish a scheme for its area. Decisions on the extent and administration of such schemes are entirely for the local authorities to consider, taking account of local needs and circumstances.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list those local authorities that currently operate concessionary travel rates for pensioners. [32895]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: All Scottish regional and islands councils operate a concessionary travel scheme, although the eligible categories and charges may vary between local authorities. The scheme operated by Orkney islands council is restricted to the inter-islands air service.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate the current net real cost of allowing concessionary travel schemes for pensioners in the last three years for which figures are available. [32896]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Concessionary travel schemes are provided for different categories of person and separate figures are unavailable for pensioners. Local authority net expenditure on total concessionary fares in Scotland over the last three years is as follows:

£ thousand

	Cash terms	Real terms[1]
1992–93	38,868	41,960
1993–94	41,518	43,514
1994–95	45,735	47,107

[1] Calculated from Her Majesty's Treasury GDP deflators dated 28 June 1995 converted to 1995–96 prices.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate the cost of extending concessionary fare practices to other local authority areas that currently have no concessionary schemes. [32897]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: All regional and islands councils already operate concessionary fares schemes.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to meet local government representatives, pensioner organisations and the other interested parties to discuss concessionary travel schemes for retired people; and if he will make a statement. [32898]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No meetings are planned. Decisions on the extent and administration of such schemes are entirely for the local authorities to consider, taking account of local needs and circumstances.

Farm Thefts

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what was the number of cases of livestock theft for each of the last 10 years; [33130]

(2) what was the number of cases of theft of produce from fields for each of the last 10 years; [33131]

(3) what was the number of burglaries on farms and farm out-buildings for each of the last 10 years. [33132]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Travelling People

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what guidance has been given to procurators fiscal concerning action to move on travelling people from unauthorised encampments in districts where official sites are available for travelling people; and if he will make a statement on the encampment by the A198 road at Prestongrange, East Lothian. [33060]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Since 1 April 1985, the toleration of unlawful encampment by travelling people has been linked to achievement by local authorities of provision of pitch targets set by the Secretary of State for Scotland on the basis of recommendations by his Advisory Committee on Scotland's Travelling People. My noble and learned Friend the Lord Advocate has issued instructions to procurators fiscal to the effect that, in considering the appropriateness of criminal proceedings in relation to unlawful encampment by travelling people, they need not have regard to the policy of toleration where the relevant local authority has met its pitch target. These instructions relate to the consideration of criminal proceedings where a report has been received from the police. The procurator fiscal at Haddington has yet to receive a report from Lothian and Borders police in relation to any encampment by the A198 road at Prestongrange, East Lothian.

Private Finance Initiatives

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list those projects incorporating private finance initiatives in Scotland specifying (a) the value of the private finance, (b) the region and (c) the type of industry. [29619]

Mr. Kynoch [holding answer 28 June 1995]: Details of projects involving the private finance initiative which are currently under way in Scotland are contained in the table. The value of each project is estimated since the investment has come from the private sector and thus falls outwith the responsibility of the Scottish Office.

£ Million

Project	Estimated value £
Skye Bridge	23.6
Ayrshire and Arran Health Boards:
90 elderly care beds at Irvine	3.8
Lothian Health Board:
Joint Venture on siting of Clinical Genetic Service	0.8
Lothian and Forth Valley Trust Consortium:
Waste collection and incineration	5.0
Northern Consortium Trusts and Health Boards:
Waste collection and incineration	5.0

The Scottish Office document, "Private Finance Partnership in Scotland", published in March 1995 identified potential projects with a total value of £2.68 billion.

Feudal Superiors

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on district councils' legal rights over feudal superiors of land on which houses are owned by district councils or the individual occupiers. [30662]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson [holding answer 27 June 1995]: In general, district councils' relationship with feudal superiors in respect of land is the same as that of any other owners. District councils have, for instance, the same right as other owners to apply to a lands tribunal to seek variation or discharge of feudal rights under section 1 of the Conveyancing and Feudal Reform (Scotland) Act 1970.

District councils have no legal rights in relation to feudal superiors of land owned by individual householders.

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what legislation has been enacted to ensure feudal superiors could not repossess council houses bought under the right-to-buy legislation; and if he will make a statement on the legal rights of feudal superiors over land on which a council house has been purchased by the occupier and on the legal rights of the occupiers of houses previously owned by the local council on the ownership of their homes in relation to their feudal superior. [30664]

Mr. Robertson [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The legal position is unclear following a decision of the Court of Session on 3 March 1995 which indicated that the right to buy does not prevail over rights of pre-emption of feudal superiors. That decision, however, did not deal with any other feudal rights and did not address the question of whether the superior could exercise a right of irritancy in respect of past right-to-buy sales in contravention of a right of pre-emption.

The need for clarification of the law to protect the rights of purchasers is being considered.

Research Projects

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many research projects were commissioned by the Scottish Office for 1993–94 and 1994–95. [31890]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The Scottish Office commissioned 706 research projects in 1993–94 and 712 in 1994–95.

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will name the companies, and where they are based, which were commissioned by the Scottish Office to carry out research projects in 1993–94, 1994–95 and from April 1995; what research project each company was commissioned to carry out in each period; and how much each research company was paid for each project in each period. [31893]

Mr. Robertson [holding answer 3 July 1995]: Information is not readily available in the form requested. Where appropriate, details of research projects, and those commissioned to undertake them, are published, for example in the Scottish Office central research unit's "Register of Research", a copy of which is available in the Library.

Most of the Scottish Office's research is commissioned with specialist research institutes or university departments rather than with companies.

Child Care

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proposals he has for future funding of out-of-school care projects and development work (a) where there is Scottish Enterprise involvement and (b) on any other basis. [32233]

Mr. Kynoch [holding answer 6 July 1995]: The current out-of-school child care initiative will continue to be delivered in Scotland by the enterprise network until March 1996. As in England, any further proposals will be made in light of the final evaluation of the scheme.

Further Education (Capital Equipment)

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what examination is made of the system for disbursing capital equipment moneys following their transfer from individual further education colleges to the enterprise companies; to whom decisions on disbursement are accountable; what provision is made for publicising disbursement decisions; and what opportunities arise for students and other interested parties to influence the process. [32112]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson [holding answer 6 July 1995]: No funds have been transferred from individual further education colleges to local enterprise companies for disbursement to colleges for the acquisition of capital equipment.

Blood Supplies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what percentage of blood supplies in each region was supplied to private hospitals in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will indicate the number of units involved. [32991]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 6 July 1995]: The Scottish national blood transfusion service supplies blood and blood products from five regional transfusion centres. The latest information available about the supply of blood to non-NHS hospitals is for 1993–94. This is as follows:

	Blood product units
North RTC	0
North East RTC	408
East RTC	169
South East RTC	637
West RTC	1,975
Total	3,189

The units issued to non-NHS hospitals represented less than 1 per cent. of total issues by regional transfusion centres during this period.

NHS (Moneys in Trust)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the value of moneys held in trust by individual NHS trusts and health authorities. [32973]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 6 July 1995]: This information is not held centrally.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Kensington Palace (Tours)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage who organises and sets the admission prices of summer evening tours of Kensington palace; and who receives the proceeds. [32945]

Mr. Sproat: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has statutory responsibility for the funding, management and presentation to the public of the state apartments and royal ceremonial dress collection at Kensington palace. Day-to-day responsibility for admission prices, the receipt of the proceeds and opening arrangements is delegated to the chief executive of Historic Royal Palaces, which is an executive agency of the Department of National Heritage.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32483]

Mr. Sproat: Since it was formed in April 1992, neither my Department nor the Royal Parks agency has commissioned any outside advertising agencies. However, the Historical Royal Palaces agency regularly undertakes advertising campaigns to promote the palaces for which it is responsible. The costs since April 1992 are as follows:

1992–93: £205,089

1993–94: £717,000

1994–95: £548,000

The specific advertising campaigns, their purpose and individual costs are broken down as follows:

1992–93

(i) TOWER OF LONDON

Purpose: To increase the number of visitors.

Cost: £92,000

(ii) HAMPTON COURT PALACE

Purpose: To increase the number of visitors.

Cost: £113,089

1993–94

(i) TOWER OF LONDON

Purpose: To increase the number of visitors.

Cost: £355,000

(ii) HAMPTON COURT PALACE

Purpose: To increase the number of visitors.

To increase the ratio of domestic visitors to overseas visitors.

To change the perceptions of Hampton Court palace to a place where history comes to life.

Cost: £262,000

(iii) CORPORATE SALES PROMOTION

Purpose: To launch the royal pass entitling visitors to entry to all palaces for £15.

Cost: £100,000

1994–95

(i) TOWER OF LONDON

Purpose: To increase the number of visitors.

To launch the re-presentation of the Crown jewels.

Cost: £370,000

(ii) HAMPTON COURT PALACE

Purpose: To increase the number of visitors.

Cost: £92,000

(iii) CORPORATE SALES PROMOTION

Purpose: To consolidate further the royal pass and develop a multi-lingual joint Palaces leaflet.

Cost: £86,000

Capital Spending

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what is the expected capital spending figure for his Department for 1994–95; and what is the latest budget figure. [30878]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 28 June 1995]: The information requested is as follows:

£ million

Department of National Heritage	1994–95	1995–96
Central Government's own expenditure	167	188
Public Corporations' expenditure	155	130
Local authority expenditure	261	—
Total	583	318

There are no figures currently available giving the departmental breakdown of planned local authority capital expenditure in 1995–96. The total capital expenditure 1995–96 will not therefore be comparable with the figure for 1994–95.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Sheep Scab

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received, since 1 January, asserting that the incidence of sheep scab has increased since compulsory dipping was discontinued, and if he will make a statement on his policy towards (a) making sheep scab a notifiable disease, (b) making dipping compulsory on farms where scab has been found and (c) making testing for scab compulsory on neighbouring farms. [30271]

Mrs. Browning: The Department has received a number of representations on the subject of sheep scab since 1 January.

In response to claims early last year that the incidence of sheep scab had increased, we carried out our own investigations in March 1994 into the level of scab at markets and in flocks treated by private veterinary surgeons. Although the results were not conclusive, they indicated that the number of infested sheep had increased. In co-operation with the industry, we conducted a publicity campaign to encourage farmers to treat their sheep for scab. In addition, the official veterinary presence at markets was significantly increased; infested animals are being withdrawn from sale and treated and the owners risk prosecution under animal welfare legislation.

A second state veterinary service survey has indicated that the numbers of sheep affected by scab sent to markets and sales has declined. This is an encouraging sign and should help to reduce the spread of scab.

However, reports from practising veterinary surgeons suggest that the number of infected farms is increasing. The veterinary surgeons also suggest that some farmers are not treating their sheep strictly in accordance with the manufacturers' instructions. This can lead to the temporary suppression of the disease which then re-establishes itself later.

The full results of this years survey and those from last year are as follows:

	1994	1995
Market visits
Number	869	867
Batches with suspected scab	177	47
Per cent. visits where scab found	20	5
Serious welfare cases	13	6
Other outbreaks of scab found by SVS
Number	53	34
Outbreaks of scab known to private veterinary surgeons
Number	254	595

The Government are concerned at the increasing spread of sheep scab and accordingly propose to carry out a publicity campaign to encourage good management practices, including the proper use of the available treatments. The newly established Meat Hygiene Service will be watching out for signs of scab infestation in sheep arriving at slaughterhouses and will report any welfare cases to the state veterinary service for follow-up action on the farms concerned. Where necessary, appropriate action will be taken under farm animal welfare legislation. We will also be continuing our increased surveillance of sheep sales and taking follow-up action in connection with any welfare problems associated with scab infestation.

In addition to the initiatives above, I have asked officials to consider what other options may be available for dealing with the disease.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food for what reason the policy of compulsory sheep dipping was changed, and if he will make a statement. [31246]

Mrs. Browning: The decision to remove statutory controls for sheep scab, which included compulsory dipping, was mainly based on the failure of these arrangements to eradicate the disease and the view that they were unlikely to do so in the future. Given also the substantial demands placed on the state veterinary service and local authorities, the lack of EC interest in the disease—which would make it difficult to prevent scab being reintroduced again on imported animals—and the lack of commitment shown by a substantial minority of farmers, it was decided that Government involvement in the control of sheep scab could no longer be justified.

This does not mean that the Government are no longer concerned about the threat posed by scab and I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Nicholson).

Mr. Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the recorded levels of sheep scab in each of the last five years. [31244]

Mrs. Browning: The numbers of confirmed cases of sheep scab in Great Britain in 1991 and 1992 were as follows:

1991: 116

1992 (to 30 June): 94

The collation of official records on the number of outbreaks of sheep scab was discontinued after deregulation in 1992.

The official veterinary presence at sheep markets was increased between 1 September 1994 and 3 March 1995, during which time suspected sheep scab was detected in 49 out of 2,878 market visits. In total, 364 animals had to be withdrawn from sale and treated under the Welfare of Animals at Markets Order 1990 and a further 210 animals with suspected sheep scab were sent direct to slaughter.

For further information on the amount of scab discovered during surveys conducted by the state veterinary service in March 1994 and March 1995, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Nicholson).

Voluntary Oranisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994—95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31314]

Mr. Baldry: The information required to answer is not held centrally and can be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Milk Testing

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will consider establishing a national body to check standards of milk testing for British farmers. [31670]

Mr. Baldry: The Intervention Board executive agency, which is responsible for administering milk quotas throughout the United Kingdom, has already commissioned the Central Science Laboratory to check standards at laboratories which are approved to carry out butterfat tests on milk.

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will consider establishing national calibration standards in respect of testing for butter fat, protein and total bacteria content in milk. [31668]

Mr. Baldry: The suggestion that a simple source for calibration standards be specified, whilst acceptable in principle to the Intervention Board executive agency and to those laboratories participating in milk testing, may be difficult to prescribe. It would, effectively, prevent those organisations currently supplying such standards from continuing to do so. In the current climate of deregulation within the United Kingdom dairy industry such action would need to be considered carefully and justified in terms of a clearly identified need.

Tuberculosis (Cattle)

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what advice he has received on the reason for the change in the number of positive tuberculosis tests for cattle in the last five years. [31736]

Mrs. Browning: There has been an increased incidence of disease and approximately 90 per cent. of the cattle tuberculosis herd breakdowns in the south-west of England are attributed to infection by badgers after detailed epidemiological investigations. The Department is already carrying out research into ways of avoiding transmission of disease from badgers to cattle and is co-operating with university departments on studies on the effects of badger removal operations on the badger population and their impact on the subsequent spread of disease within the badger population.

Integrated Administration and Control System

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received on the proposals to amend the system of field numbering on maps which are to accompany forms associated with the integrated administration and control system. [32362]

Mr. Baldry: A range of farming industry organisations has been consulted on proposals which, if adopted, would involve changing the system of issuing field numbers, for the purpose of applications under the integrated administration and control system. Officials are considering comments from those who have responded and meeting with organisations where appropriate.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food whether his Department has completed the exercise of standardising maps which are to accompany forms associated with the integrated administration and control system. [32361]

Mr. Baldry: My Department is not carrying out an exercise of standardising maps. However, a wide range of checks is carried out on applications under the integrated administration and control system. These include detailed checks of field data and maps submitted in support of area aid applications.

Bull Calves

Mr. Keen: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what action he is taking to stimulate the domestic market for bull calves; if he is actively considering encouraging the establishment of alternative rearing systems or introducing tighter animal welfare systems; what help is being offered to United Kingdom farmers to assist in establishing a realistic animal friendly alternative that would help to end the continental trade in live animals for veal production; and if he will make a statement. [32425]

Mrs. Browning: The United Kingdom has since 1990 banned close confinement systems of veal rearing, and we are now working hard to achieve agreement to raise the less exacting minimum standards which apply at European Union level.

Only a minority of bull calves born in the UK are exported live. None-the-less a move from live exports to the value added business of producing meat in the UK makes sense in the long run. The Ministry is encouraging this through research into improving the quality of dairy bread beef, and work with the Meat and Livestock Commission to promote beef exports.

We are also funding a demonstration unit on welfare friendly veal at the ADAS research centre at Rosemaund, near Hereford. The aim of this unit, which opens later this month, is to show how to produce veal under systems which conform to the UK's high welfare standards.

Fishing Incidents

Mr. Cox: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many incidents have taken place between British fishing vessels and fishing vessels of other European Union countries in each of the last three years. [32672]

Mr. Baldry: Incidents between fishing vessels can take place in varying circumstances and are not necessarily reported to fishery protection vessels or to the fishery inspectorates. Comprehensive records of such incidents are not kept.

Fishing (Discussions)

Mrs. Bridget Prentice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to meet representatives of the fishing industry to discuss access to the Irish box and western waters. [31160]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 6 July 1995]: My predecessor met representatives of the fishing industry on a number of occasions recently at which this issue was discussed, and I propose to do so again as the need arises.

Meat Levies

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 26 June, Official Report, column 528, on meat levies, what were the total levies for (a) sheep and (b) calves in each year since 1990; and what would be the total revenue raised for the Meat and Livestock Commission for (a) sheep, and (b) calves and (c) other in each year since 1992 if animal exporters had paid the levies on each animal exported in each year since 1992. [32388]

Mr. Baldry [holding reply sent on 6 July 1995]: The information requested is as follows.

(1) Total levy receipts

£ million

	(a) sheep	(b) calves
1989–90	8.6	0.02
1990–91	9.8	0.02
1991–92	10.1	0.02
1992–93	10.0	0.03
1993–94	9.8	0.03

(2) Total levy due

£ million

	(a) Sheep	(b) Calves	(c) Others
1991–92	10.2	0.02	19.0
1992–93	10.3	0.03	18.7
1993–94	10.1	0.03	19.8

HEALTH

NHS Loto

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of state for Health (1) what rules govern the use of the letters NHS in publicity for private companies' projects; [31353]

(2) what discussions have taken place between his Department and the organisers of NHS Loto to discuss (a) the distribution of any funds generated, (b) advising on the re-launch of the NHS Loto and (c) departmental approval of the project; and if he will make a statement; [31354]

(3) what permission was sought from his Department to use the letters NHS to promote the NHS Loto. [31352]

Mr. Sackville: The use of the letters NHS is not the subject of any express provisions in legislations.

NHS Loto is run by the registered charity National Hospital Trust and operated on its behalf by Pascal and Co. The trustees of the National Hospital Trust sought the endorsement of Department of Health Ministers prior to the relaunch of NHS Loto on 1 June 1995. This was not forthcoming.

Centre for Epilepsy

Sir Donald Thompson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the future of the Centre for Epilepsy. [31862]

Mr. Bowis: I have the personal written assurance of the chairman of the King's Healthcare national health service trust, Mr. Stanley Kalms, that the trust will encourage the development of specialised multidisciplinary treatment and care for people with epilepsy and will help the centre to establish itself as the focus for this.

At present, the Centre for Epilepsy is established at the Maudsley hospital site. Owing to the current reorganisation of neurosciences services at the Maudsley, the centre has recently moved into temporary accommodation. The chief executive of the trust, has assured me at a meeting on 26 June, that the centre will return to permanent accommodation within the Maudsley hospital during November this year.

Research Grants

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which members of (a) the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy, (b) the Committee on Mutagenicity of Chemicals in Food and (c) the Committee on Toxicity of Chemicals in Food receive research grants from his Department. [32419]

Mr. Sackville: Only Dr. S. Bingham and Professor M. Marmont of the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy have research contracts funded through the Department's policy research programme or the nutrition research programme.

Sensible Drinking

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to receive the findings of the review of the "Sensible Drinking" message; and if he will make a statement. [32815]

Mr. Bowis: I expect the interdepartmental group on sensible drinking to complete its work around the end of the year.

Nutrition Task Force

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what is the estimated budget for 1995–96 and 1996–97 for the nutrition task force; [32720]

(2) what future changes are planned for the nutrition task force and if he will make a statement. [32719]

Mr. Sackville: The nutrition task force, which was set up in November 1992 to bring together relevant interests and prepare a programme of action to achieve the diet and nutrition targets in "The Health of the Nation" White Paper, published its programme in March 1994. The remit of the task force was extended by a further year to set in train the implementation of the programme. It will make a final report to Ministers by the end of the year. The task force's remit to develop the programme will then have been fulfilled. Action set in hand as a result of the task force's work will be completed by the relevant sectors within the wider community.

The nutrition task force does not have a specific budget. Expenses are paid to members under normal rules. A total of £250,000 has been allocated for expenditure in 1995–96 on publicity arising from the nutrition task force programme. A similar bid has been made for 1996–97.

Child Abuse

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the local authority children's homes in England and Wales where child sex abuse is known to have taken place in each of the last three years. [32859]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Treatments

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he proposes to ensure that additional costs of metered water for essential water intensive health treatments, including hydro-therapy and renal dialysis, do not fall on (a) the health service and (b) patients. [32711]

Mr. Sackville: Since April 1994, local health authorities have been responsible for meeting the costs of water used in the course of home haemodialysis by patients whose water supply is metered by their local water company. I am not aware of other conditions which require equivalent volumes of water for treatment provided at home. These arrangements have been introduced relatively recently; there are no plans to review them at this stage.

Nutrition Monitoring

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what studies on monitoring nutrition his Department plans to commission over the next two years. [32721]

Mr. Sackville: My Department plans to commission this year, jointly with the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, the national diet and nutrition survey of children aged four to 18 years.

Elderly Patients, Wandsworth

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many national health service beds in hospitals in the London borough of Wandsworth are available for the nursing of elderly patients. [33107]

Mr. Bowis: Information is not available centrally in the form requested.

Performance Tables

Sir James Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the performance of (a) the Dorset Healthcare national health service trust and (b) the national health service as a whole; and if he will make a statement. [33699]

Mr. Malone: I would like to congratulate the Dorset Healthcare trust on its excellent performance in the national health service performance tables for the second year running. Not only has the trust improved its performance against the existing performance tables indicators but the new indicators introduced this year show that 100 per cent. of patients are seen in out-patient clinics within 13 weeks of referral by their general practitioner. Copies of the NHS performance tables are available in the Library.

The tables show yet another year of achievement for the NHS as a whole. Performance has improved so that:

93 per cent. of patients are now assessed within five minutes in accident and emergency departments;

88 per cent. of patients are now seen within 30 minutes of their appointment times; over half of hospitals admitted 95 per cent. or more of patients in the eight main surgical specialties within 12 months of going on a waiting list;

The figures for day surgery also show substantial improvement. Over 60 per cent. of arthroscopies and laparoscopies, more than a quarter of inguinal hernia repairs and a third of cataracts are now done on a day surgery basis. This is a better option for many patients who prefer not to have to stay in hospital overnight.

Information is included in the tables for the first time on the waiting time to see a consultant following referral by a GP:

82 per cent. of patients are seen within 13 weeks of referral;

and

95 per cent. within 26 weeks of referral.

These figures suggest that the NHS is well on course to meet the new patients charter standard, introduced on 1 April this year, of nine out of 10 patients being seen within 13 weeks and all patients being seen within 26 weeks.

The tables also show that 64 per cent. of GP practices have produced charters for their patients.

This is an impressive record of achievement. Trusts have earned more than 3,000 five-star ratings this year. But not every trust has performed well on every indicator and action is already under way to secure even better performance next year.

Community Psychiatric Nurses

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many whole-time equivalent community psychiatric nurses were working in the NHS in each year since 1992; and how many of these CPNs have received training to implement the proposed power of supervised discharge. [32243]

Mr. Sackville: The number of whole-time equivalent qualified, unqualified and "other" nursing staff—excluding agency—working in the community psychiatric nursing area of work in the national health service hospital and community health services in each year since 1992 is as follows:

1992: 4,210

1993: 4,320

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest ten whole-time equivalents.
2. Agency staff are excluded.
3. Figures are for England as at 30 September each year.
4. 1993 is the latest year for which figures are available.

PD(STATS)B Non-Medical Workforce Census

Information on nursing staff in the community psychiatric area of work who have undertaken training to implement the proposed power of supervised discharge is not available centrally.

Contracts (EDS)

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the contracts his Department has with the computer company EDS. [33175]

Mr. Sackville: The Department has no contracts with EDS.

Committee Membership

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who are the present members of (a) the Committee on the Safety of Medicines, (b) the Medicines Commission and (c) the Committee on Toxicity of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment; by whom they are employed; what consultancies or directorships each holds with chemical or pharmaceutical companies; and which are engaged in research on behalf of chemical or pharmaceutical companies. [32899]

Mr. Sackville: The information will be placed in the Library.

Junior Doctors

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his Department's change of policy regarding the place of registrars' and senior registrars' contracts following the abolition of regional health authorities. [33227]

Mr. Malone: Subject to formal negotiation with the medical profession and following the abolition of regional health authorities, contracts for registrars and senior registrars will be held by national health service trusts with deans of postgraduate medicine overseeing their educational needs. The detail of the new arrangements has yet to be agreed but it will need to ensure that continuity and quality of training programmes are protected under the new arrangements.

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures will be introduced to aid junior doctors within training rotations to negotiate new contracts every six months with NHS trusts; and if he will make a statement. [33231]

Mr. Malone: Detailed arrangements for the transfer of junior doctors' contracts to national health service trusts are being discussed with the medical profession. These discussions include a package of safeguards. The six elements of this are:

national terms and conditions of service with a degree of local flexibility;

a "lead trusts" scheme to ensure that doctors on rotations are not required to strike new employment contracts with each new posting; continuity of service via the Health Authorities Bill, now secured; a network of employment, educational and service-level contracts tying the deans, trusts and junior doctors into a relationship designed to safeguard educational standards and appropriate levels of training;

a review of the proportion of junior doctors' salary costs funded by the deans; and additional training of trust personnel staff to avoid some of the problems currently arising when trusts manage house officer and senior house officer contracts.

Mr. Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he will take to ensure that NHS trusts will honour agreements on nationally negotiated packages for junior doctors with special reference to the new deal which limits their hours of work. [33226]

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures are planned to ensure that NHS trusts implement national agreements limiting junior doctors' hours of work when NHS trusts are responsible for their contracts; and if he will make a statement. [33230]

Mr. Malone: National terms and conditions of service continue to apply to junior doctors including the limits on junior doctors' hours under the new deal which are set out in "Terms and Conditions of Service for Hospital Medical and Dental Staff (England and Wales)". All national health service trusts are required to comply with these limits.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many additional staff will be required in each NHS trust to manage junior doctors' contracts when their contracts are held at trust level; and if he will make a statement. [33229]

Mr. Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what will be the cost nationally of each NHS trust personnel department employing at least one additional member of staff to deal with junior doctors' contracts in the event of their being transferred to trust level after the abolition of regional health authorities. [33234]

Mr. Malone: It is for individual trusts to make decisions about staff numbers.

Mr. Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made as to whether NHS trusts' personnel departments have staff with sufficient experience and knowledge to manage the complexities of junior doctors' contracts. [33228]

Mr. Malone: We are considering what training is necessary to ensure that registrar and senior registrar contracts are managed effectively.

Contraceptives

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what guidance he has given for the provision of Norplant free by family planning clinics. [33271]

Mr. Sackville: A full range of contraceptive services should be available to those who wish to use them. It is a matter for local health authorities to decide how best to use their resources to provide comprehensive and accessible services that meet the needs of local users.

NHS Pension Scheme

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what is the average amount contributed by the NHS to their pension fund prior to retirement of (a) female and (b) male doctors; [33237]

(2) what is the average amount paid in by comparable female and male doctors into the NHS pension scheme prior to retirement and the average amount female and male doctors receive in pension after retirement; [33236]

(3) for how many years female and male doctors have put the same contribution into NHS pension schemes; and for which years payments can be taken into account in calculation of widowers' pensions. [33272]

Mr. Malone: National health service employers contribute 4 per cent. of pensionable earnings to the national health service pension scheme in respect of their employees. Female and male doctors contribute 6 per cent. of their pensionable earnings to the scheme and contribution rates in every year have been the same for both sexes. Information is not available centrally about the amounts contributed, and average pension received, by staff groups. Widowers' benefits are based upon service accrued after 6 April 1988 unless cover for earlier service has been purchased.

NHS Appointees (Payments)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information is held by his Department or the NHS executive on expenditure on trust board and health authority member's allowances. [33249]

Mr. Malone: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Don Valley (Mr. Redmond) on 16 February, Official Report, column 808, which gives the latest information available centrally about payments to members of health authorities and national health service trust boards.

Tendering

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 259, what information his Department or the NHS executive holds on the costs associated with (a) market testing and (b) compulsory competitive tendering in the NHS. [33158]

Mr. Sackville: Information is held on the value of a large number of individual service contracts which have been notified to the national health service executive by NHS trusts and other Units. Individual contract values are not released except with the prior agreement of the two parties concerned. It is not yet possible to access the information on contract values by numbers above or below a given size without detailed scrutiny of the full list of contracts.

NHS Contracts

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS organisations entered into contracts with either (a) Touche Ross or (b) Arthur Anderson Chartered Accountants in the period from December 1993. [33145]

Mr. Sackville: The information is not available centrally.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he is prepared to examine proposals to keep St. Bartholomew's hospital at Smithfield open. [33504]

Mr. Malone: The recent decision on the future of St. Bartholomew's hospital was right for patients and for the future of hospital services in east London. Alternative options for the future of the Smithfield site are currently being examined by a task force chaired by Sir Ronald Grierson.

Pay Review Body

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he has appointed the new chair of the Pay Review Body for Nurses, Midwives and Health Visitors; and if he will list the criteria for selection. [33270]

Mr. Malone: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave her on 4 July, Official Report, column 102, on this subject. An appointment will be made in due course by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister.

Hip Replacement Operations

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his estimate of the percentage of hip replacement operations that required (a) one revision and (b) more than one revision in each of the past 12 years. [29268]

Mr. Sackville [holding answer 21 June 1995]: The information is not available in the form requested. The information in the table shows the proportion of the total number of hip operations in each of the last six years that were revisions. Comparable figures for earlier years are not available.

	Hip operations	Revisions	Percentage revisions
1988–89	46,490	2,882	6.2
1989–90	50,790	3,555	7.0
1990–91	50,725	3,449	6.8
1991–92	55,642	3,895	7.0
1992–93	57,437	3,963	6.9
1993–94	58,439	3,740	6.4

NORTHERN IRELAND

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31306]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is as follows:

	Voluntary sector organisations		Voluntary sector organisations
Year	Paid grants	Value of grant £	Awarded contracts	Value of contract £
1993–94	1,342	77,597,234	326	68,086,243
1994–95	1,373	71,404,810	321	69,608,550

Some payments due under the letters of offer were made in the same financial year.

Dungiven Bypass

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he now expects work to begin on the Dungiven bypass. [32447]

Mr. Moss: The Dungiven bypass is not included in the Department's current five-year major road works programme.

Bridge Strengthening

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what sums have been expended to date on the bridge strengthening programme; and how long it will be and at what cost before the programme is complete. [32446]

Mr. Moss: In the last three years, approximately £13.2 million has been expended on the bridge assessment and strengthening programme. Information prior to 1992–93 is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The provision allocation for the 1995–96 financial year is £5 million.

It is planned that the assessment programme will be completed by 31 December 1998. The cost and the timing of the completion of the associated strengthening works will depend on the volume of work identified and the availability of finance.

Limavady Bypass

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he now expects work to begin on the construction of the Limavady bypass. [32448]

Mr. Moss: Work on the first stage of the Limavady bypass is due to commence in the 1997–98 financial year, subject to the availability of finance.

Further Education

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of capital expenditure on education has been devoted to further education in each of the past 10 years. [32904]

Mr. Ancram: The information is as follows:

Year	Percentage
1984–85	3
1985–86	3
1986–87	4
1987–88	5
1988–89	9
1989–90	10
1990–91	9
1991–92	6
1992–93	8
1993–94	7

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish the proposed five-year building programme for further education colleges in Northern Ireland. [32906]

Mr. Ancram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 June, Official Report, column 466.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which further education colleges he has visited; and if he will make a statement on the physical condition of those colleges. [32903]

Mr. Ancram: I have visited Fermanagh, Omagh, Limavady, North-West, Magherafelt, North-East, Upper Bann and East Tyrone colleges.

The physical condition of these colleges varies from excellent to some instances where provision is poor.

Belfast Institute of Further Education

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will visit the Ormeau road premises of the Belfast Institute of Further Education; and what actions he proposes to take to bring its facilities up to modern standards. [32902]

Mr. Ancram: I always try to respond positively to invitations to visit schools and colleges.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 June, Official Report, column 466.

Emergency Legislation

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he intends to start a full-scale independent review into the emergency legislation; and what will be its timetable. [32692]

Sir John Wheeler: The timing of the independent review of the continuing need for the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991 and the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989 has yet to be decided. The Government will take a number of factors into account before initiating the review and deciding upon its timetable. These will include assessing the security situation in Northern Ireland to see if confidence in a lasting peace has been clearly established.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if it is his policy that internment should not feature in the proposed successor legislation to the Emergency Powers Act 1964. [32693]

Sir John Wheeler: Provision for the detention of terrorists—in section 34 of and schedule 3 to the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991—are currently not in force. The Government will carefully consider the continuing need for such provisions in the context of preparing the successor legislation to replace the existing Act which expires next year.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussion he has had with the Chief Constable of the RUC on the desirability of using Police and Criminal Evidence Act powers rather than emergency legislation wherever possible; and what was the response. [32695]

Sir John Wheeler: Discussions between Ministers and the Chief Constable on security matters remain confidential. However, it is hoped that a changing and improving security situation will mean that the use of the powers contained in the emergency legislation will continue to decrease to the point where they are no longer needed.

Detainees

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were held in each holding centre in each month of 1994 and each month of 1995 to date. [32694]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is as follows:

1994	Castlereagh	Gough	Strand Road
January	128	37	4
February	114	47	3
March	129	35	0

August	99	39	13
September	47	9	5
October	56	6	3
November	51	13	3
December	36	9	1

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many detentions under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1985 were made in each month of 1994 and each month of 1995 to date; and for what lengths of time detainees were held. [32697]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is as follows:

Diplock Courts

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has to phase in more trials with jury rather than continuing the use of Diplock courts over the coming year. [32698]

Sir John Wheeler: The Government have no plans to amend schedule 1 to the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991, which lists those substantive offences that are dealt with on indictment by the Crown court without a jury in accordance with section 10 of the Act. The future independent review of the legislation will address the continuing need for all aspects of counter-terrorist law.

Collegiate Court

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his response to the proposal by the Standing Advisory Commission on Human Rights that consideration should be given to the establishment of a collegiate court pending full restoration of jury trials. [32699]

Sir John Wheeler: The Government are not presently persuaded that multi-judge courts are desirable to deal with scheduled offences. There is no evidence to show that a change to multi-judge courts would necessarily produce better justice, or significantly enhanced confidence in the court system. Any person convicted of a scheduled offence in a single-judge court has an automatic right of appeal to the Court of Appeal which itself comprises three judges, and there is an important safeguard in that the trial judge is required to produce a written judgment setting out his reasons for any conviction.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which projects have been selected by the Water Executive for the private finance initiative; what is the estimated cost of these projects; when they were due to go out to tender; and what is the estimated delay caused by these projects being included in the private finance initiative. [32823]

Mr. Moss: The Water Executive has a major capital construction programme designed to ensure compliance with national standards, incorporating those of the EC, over the next 10 years. This programme has significantly increased the executive's capital demands and it is appropriate that we explore the use of private finance in this context. It is a normal method of funding infrastructure projects internationally, as well as in the United Kingdom, and I am anxious that the potential for its application to the Water Executive's capital programme should be tested.

Government recognise that using private finance must provide genuine value for money. I have therefore agreed that, as a first step the Water Executive should select two pilot schemes to test the viability of the private sector financing, building, owning and operating such facilities on a long-term basis. In order to assist with this work a consortium comprising Mott MacDonald Ltd., and NatWest Markets have been appointed to act as a manager and financial advisor of the pilot scheme.

I am presently considering the final selection of the schemes to be included in the pilot project. They will probably have a combined capital value of over £20 million and I will announce the details in due course.

I do not anticipate that the private finance initiative will cause any significant delays in these schemes.

Students

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of Northern Ireland domiciled students leave to study at higher education institutions in Great Britain; and what percentage return to work in Northern Ireland. [32908]

Mr. Ancram: In 1993–94, the latest year for which information is available, 24 per cent. of all Northern Ireland domiciled new entrants to higher education left to study at institutions in Great Britain, including 34 per cent. of full-time undergraduate new entrants. In the same year, 11 per cent. of Northern Ireland domiciled first-degree graduates from Great Britain universities returned to Northern Ireland to take up employment.

Electronic Surveillance

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he proposes to implement electronic surveillance of interviews with suspects in holding centres; and what form this will take. [32700]

Sir John Wheeler: The Government have said that they will give consideration to the introduction of an electronic recording scheme for the police offices, in the context of the successor legislation to the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991 if it still appears necessary to do so in the light of the developing security situation.

Holding Centres

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has to close any holding centres. [32701]

Sir John Wheeler: None at present.

Coroners Courts

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what response he has had from the Lord Chancellor to the recommendations by the Standing Advisory Commission on Human Rights on the reform of coroners courts in Northern Ireland. [32702]

Sir John Wheeler: In Northern Ireland, coroners courts and inquest procedures are the responsibility of the Lord Chancellor. The Lord Chancellor has confirmed to the Secretary of State that he has no present plans to change the current system of inquests in Northern Ireland.

Forensic Science Laboratory

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals there are for the future use of the site of the former forensic science laboratory at Newtownbreda; when he expects to make a decision; and if he will make a statement. [32994]

Sir John Wheeler: The former site at Newtownbreda of the Northern Ireland forensic science laboratory is no longer required by Government. In accordance with standing policy it will be sold and it is intended to arrange a public auction for this purpose as soon as possible.

Human Rights

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has to cease using derogation under article 5(3) of the European convention on human rights and article 4 of the international covenant on civil and political rights. [32696]

Mr. Howard: I have been asked to reply.

Limited derogations under article 15 of the European convention on human rights and article 4 of the international covenant on civil and political rights cover detention by the police on the Secretary of State's authority under the prevention of terrorism Act of persons suspected of involvement in Northern Irish terrorism. The Government continue to keep the need for the derogations under review but it is too early to be satisfied that they could safely be withdrawn.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Family Credit

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list for each month since December 1994 the percentage of family credit claims taking five working days to be dealt with from the time of the claim being received by his Department and the figures for each subsequent day up to 30 working days. [31678]

Mr. Roger Evans: The administration of family credit is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ian Magee to Ms Liz Lynne, dated 6 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the clearance of claims to Family Credit.

I enclose, at annex A, a table which details the proportion of claims cleared within 5 days and up to 30 days, from December 1994 to the end of May 1995.

I hope you find this useful.

Annex A: Clearance times for Family Credit claims—December 1994—May 1995.

The figures provided indicate the cumulative total percentage cleared in each working day.

Mortgage Interest

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to commission further research into the exclusion of certain categories of borrowers from mortgage protection insurance policies. [32045]

Mr. Roger Evans: We have no such plans. However, we have already worked closely with the Association of British Insurers in developing guidelines to best practice which addresses many of the concerns about existing mortgage protection insurance. We continue to have on-going discussions with the Association of British Insurers and the Council of Mortgage Lenders and, as with any new policy, we will be monitoring carefully the changes to the provision of income support help with housing costs.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the dates of all meetings held by himself or his Department with (a) the Association of British Insurers, (b) representatives of individual insurance companies and (c) other individuals connected with the insurance industry to discuss the reduction of mortgage interest protection by income support prior to the initial announcement of this policy. [32047]

Mr. Evans: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had meetings with the Association of British Insurers. Ministers and officials in this Department have had regular, and on-going, discussions with the Association of British Insurers, representatives of individual insurance companies and other individuals connected with the insurance industry.

Habitual Residence Test

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people were refused income support due to the habitual residence requirement in March; and how many of these were (a) British nationals, (b) European economic area nationals and (c) others. [32718]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is in the table:

	British nationals	EEA nationals	Others	Total
March 1995	492	802	730	2,024

Note:
"Others" include asylum seekers who had the habitual residence test applied to them but were paid benefit under other provisions.

State Pension

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many (a) divorced and (b) widowed pensioners are receiving a full state pension based on their spouse's national insurance contribution record; and of these how many are also in receipt of (i) income support or (ii) other state benefits. [32074]

Mr. Heald [pursuant to the reply, 3 July 1995, c. 82]: The information given was incorrect. The correct information is as follows:

The figures for widowed and divorced pensioners are not available separately. The total number in March 1993 was 1,783,000. It is not possible to identify how many of these people were receiving income support or other benefits.

Source:
Retirement Pension Statistics Biannual inquiry 31 March 93.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many women are in receipt of the married women's pension of £35.25; and what is the Government's estimate of how this figure will change over the next 10 years. [32075]

Mr. Heald [pursuant to the reply, 3 July 1995, c. 83]: The information given was incorrect. The correct information is as follows: the number of women in receipt of the married woman's pension of £35.25 at 31 March 1994 is 1,905,140.

An estimate of how this figure will change over the next 10 years is not available. However, over the next 10 years the total of category BL and ABL pensioners is likely to remain approximately stable. Within this group the numbers with category ABL will rise and the numbers with category BL will fall.

In the longer term, due to the effects of home responsibilities protection and the abolition of the married women's reduced rate option, more women will become entitled to a category A pension at over 60 per cent. The numbers with category A pensions will rise and the numbers with category BL and ABL pensions will fall.

Note:
Category BL pension is payable to a married woman on her husband's contributions at up to 60 per cent. of the standard Category A rate, provided she and her husband have both reached pension age.
Category ABL Pension is payable to a married woman and is a combination of Category A and Category BL. Where a married woman's own Category A entitlement is less than 60 per cent. of the standard rate, the pension is supplemented up to that level with Category BL pension based on her husband's contributions.

Social Fund

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many Benefits Agency district offices received increases in their budgets between 1 April 1994 and 31 March 1995 for (a) social fund loans and (b) community care grants. [32846]

Mr. Burt: All Benefit Agency districts received increases to their social fund budget allocations for both grants and loans at 1 April 1994. Details of the initial social fund budget allocations and additional allocations by district for the financial year 1994–95 are in the Library.

Income Support

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 27 April to the hon. Member for Plymouth, Sutton (Mr. Streeter), Official Report, column 641, what progress has been made in implementing the joint statement of intent negotiated between his Department and the fuel and water industries concerning procedures for direct payment of fuel and water bills from income support. [32847]

Mr. Burt: The joint statement of intent aims to facilitate proper use of the direct payment scheme for fuel and water charges. Copies have been sent to fuel and water companies, the fuel and water regulators, and to all Benefits Agency district offices. It is for the Benefits Agency and the utility companies at local level to follow the agreed procedures.

State Pension Age

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he plans to increase the state pension age of women from 60 to 65 years. [33235]

Mr. Heald: Our proposal to move state pension age for women from 60 to 65 was set out in the White Paper "Equality in State Pension Age", Cm 2420, a copy of which is in the Library. The change will be phased in over a 10-year period, commencing April 2010.

Income Distribution

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the percentage contribution of social security to the incomes of those in the bottom 10 per cent. through to 50 per cent. of the income distribution, by decile. [33474]

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: I will write to the hon. Member shortly.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Student Awards

Mr. Bryan Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will publish a table showing the latest available figures for the number of students in each local authority in England and Wales undertaking courses of further education aged (a) 16 to 18 years and (b) 19 years and over; and what proportion of these age groups was not in receipt of any discretionary award. [33146]

Mr. Paice: The number of students in each LEA in England who are undertaking further education (a) aged 16 to 18 years and (b) 19 years and over; and the estimated proportion of each of these age groups who do not receive an award under section 2 of the Education Act 1962, are shown in the following table.

Older Students Allowance

Mr. Bryan Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans she has to ensure that those students currently studying part-time access courses will be eligible for the older students' allowance after 1 September. [33151]

Mr. Paice: Students who are currently studying on full-time access courses will remain eligible for the older students' allowance if they undertake a follow-on course of higher education which begins on or after 1 September 1995. Students must be aged 26 or over at the start of their new course and meet the relevant earning threshold.

Health and Safety

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 282, if he will give the date that the refined inspection rating system, to determine the level of priority of a workplace visit from a Health and Safety Executive inspector, is to be implemented; and if the new inspection rating system will be published. [32318]

Sir Paul Beresford: I have been asked to reply.

The refined inspection rating system has been in use in offices in the north-west region since 26 June 1995 and was implemented in offices in Wales on 3 July 1995. The system will be implemented in other offices in the near future, although dates have yet to be agreed.

There are no plans to publish details, because the system is an internal planning tool.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 281, if he will define higher risk premises and low hazard, low risk premises. [32317]

Sir Paul Beresford: I have been asked to reply.

Health and Safety Executive inspectors use their professional judgment to assess the degree of hazard and risk posed to employees and the public when they visit premises. In the field operations division this assessment is formalised in the inspection rating system, which enables premises to be compared according to the assessed hazards and risks. "Higher risk premises" are those towards the top of this scale. "Low hazard, risk premises" are those at the lower end.

ENVIRONMENT

Leicestershire Museums, Arts and Records Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make it his policy to safeguard the future on a country-wide basis of the Leicestershire museums, arts and records service; and in what circumstances he will use his powers under section 21 of the Local Government Act 1992. [30669]

Sir Paul Beresford: The decision on how best to provide services for arts, museums and records must be for the authorities concerned. On the use of section 21 of the Local Government Act 1992, I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Erith and Crayford (Mr. Evennett) by my right hon. Friend the Member for Hertfordshire, West (Mr. Jones) on 5 July, Official Report, columns 219-20.

Homelessness

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many families with children aged 18 years or under were accepted as homeless in (i) York, (ii) North Yorkshire, (iii) Yorkshire and Humberside and (iv) England in each year since 1979. [31581]

Mr. Clappison: The available data relate to homeless households with dependent children in priority need for which local authorities accept responsibility to secure permanent accommodation under the homelessness provisions of the Housing (Homeless Persons) Act 1977 and the Housing Act 1985. The table sets out the reported data for York: 1979 and 1980 data are not available. The table also gives the data readily available for North Yorkshire, Yorkshire and Humberside and England: returns are not submitted by all authorities and it would involve disproportionate cost to provide figures, including estimates for missing data, other than for the years shown.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many people aged under 18 years were homeless (a) in 1988 and (b) at the latest date for which figures are available. [32831]

Mr. Clappison: Data on the numbers of young people for which local authorities in England accept responsibility to secure permanent accommodation under the homelessness provisions of the 1985 Housing Act have been collected since the second quarter of 1991. The numbers accepted in the 12-month periods ending March 1992 and March 1995 were as follows:

	Homeless households in priority need with a vulnerable young person	Young single people not in priority need
1991–92	3,460	2,360
1994–95	3,600	2,060

Underground Car Parks

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to his answer of 6 June, Official Report, column 107, if the research being undertaken into the reduction of the pollutants benzene and particulates with regard to ventilation in underground car parks takes into account their relationship with unleaded petrol and catalytic convertors. [32370]

Mr. Clappison: The research referred to in my hon. Friend's answer of 6 June is monitoring the actual levels of these pollutants found in car parks in use. Car park usage reflects the types of vehicles currently being driven, including vehicles using unleaded petrol and fitted with catalytic convertors.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32486]

Sir Paul Beresford: Figures are readily available for the past five financial years only. To go back further would involve disproportionate costs.

Thames Strategy

Miss Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps have been taken to encourage local authorities to adopt river-borne options for the transport of waste along the lines of the Government office for London's Thames strategy document; and how many London local authorities have contracted to move their waste by river rather than road. [32687]

Mr. Clappison: The advantages of using the river for transport of bulk materials such as waste are highlighted in several items of guidance relating to both waste issues and planning. Planning policy guidance note 23 on "Planning and Pollution Control", states in 2.3 that, where waste cannot be disposed of reasonably close to its source, priority should be given to the use of rail or water transport where this would reduce the overall environmental impact and is economically feasible. "A Waste Strategy for England and Wales" published as a consultation document in January 1995 refers to the advantages of river transport for waste in paragraph 1.61. The need to safeguard relevant riverside sites is an important issue. This message is set out in the Thames strategy report, the Thames gateway planning framework and the report by the River Thames working group. Copies of these documents are in the Library. Local authorities are encouraged to take full account of environmental factors in reaching decisions on the award of waste transport and disposal contracts but such decisions are matters for authorities alone.

I understand that, currently, seven London local authorities have contracts in place for the movement of waste by river.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Barron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) how many landfill sites for the disposal of waste have opened in each of the last five years, and how many have closed; and if he will list this information by region; [32649]

(2) what guidance his Department has issued concerning consultations and investigations to be undertaken by each relevant authority in relation to applications for permission to create new landfill sites for the disposal of waste; [32643]

(3) what priority he gives to each category of land use in determining the criteria for permission to create new landfill sites for the disposal of waste; [32644]

(4) what was the previous use of each new landfill site for the disposal of waste created (a) since 1 January and (b) in each of the preceding four years; [32645]

(5) what is his policy on the use for waste disposal of (a) greenfield sites, (b) agricultural land, (c) derelict industrial land and (d) contaminated land for (i) landfill (ii) other types of waste disposal; [32646]

(6) what alternative means to the landfill disposal of waste have been considered by his Department; and what conclusions have been reached on each; [32647]

(7) what is the average size of landfill sites for the disposal of waste in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) each region; [32648]

(8) what is the number of landfill sites for the disposal of waste in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) each region; and what were the numbers in each of the last five years; [32650]

(9) what is his policy on the creation of new landfill sites for the disposal of waste; [32652]

(10) how many applications for permission to create new landfill sites for the disposal of waste have been refused in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) each region (i) since 1 January and (ii) in each of the preceding four years. [32654]

Mr. Clappison: Policy and guidance on waste disposal operations are included in the draft waste strategy for England and Wales published earlier this year, the planning policy guidance note on planning and pollution control—PPG23—and the series of waste management papers produced by the Department.

The strategy contains details of the Government's waste management policies, which are directed towards the minimisation of waste and its reuse and recovery wherever possible. It is recognised, however, that successful policies in this area will not eradicate waste. As a nation, we will continue to produce large quantities of waste for which final disposal is the only economic and environmentally sound option. The Government's policy is to set in place the necessary controls to ensure that waste disposal takes place without endangering either the environment or human health.

In order to operate a landfill site in England, it is necessary to obtain planning permission under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and a waste management licence under section 35 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990. Planning permission for landfill sites is granted by the relevant waste planning authority. Waste management licences are granted by the relevant waste regulation authority.

Guidance on the consideration of planning applications for landfill sites is contained in PPG23. More generally, circular 15/92 and appendix B of circular 9/95 provide guidance for planning authorities on publicity and consultation arrangements in respect of applications for planning permission.

A proposal to establish a new landfill site for the disposal of waste may require an environmental impact assessment. Guidance on the consultations to be undertaken, and on the form of the assessment is published in the booklet "Environmental Assessment—A Guide to the Procedures" and is also provided in DOE circular 15/88. Waste regulation authorities are likely to be consulted on any environmental assessment undertaken as part of a planning authority's consideration of a planning application for a site.

Decisions on planning application for landfill sites must be made in accordance with the provisions of the development plan, unless material consideration indicate otherwise. The criteria adopted by waste planning authorities in their consideration of landfill proposals will depend on the terms of the policies, and the proposals for land uses, set out in the development plan. The assessment of applications for landfill sites must also take into account the objectives of the EC framework directive on waste, insofar as these are relevant, and the Government's planning policy guidance, including the guidance on waste management facilities in PPG23. Planning policies for the countryside and agricultural land, open space and green belts are set out in PPGs 7, 17 and 2 respectively.

Details of the numbers of applications for planning permission for new landfill sites in England granted and refused over the last five years are as set out in the table.

Details of the previous use of new landfill sites granted planning permission within the last five years are not held centrally.

The information relating to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland is a matter for my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Wales and for Scotland and my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

The Department has published guidance to waste regulation authorities on the discharge of their responsibilities concerning waste management licensing, including consultation procedures and initial investigations on licence applications, in waste management papers 4 and 26 and in DOE circular 11/94.

Under section 36 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, a waste regulation authority must consult the National Rivers Authority, the Health and Safety Executive and, where appropriate, the relevant nature conservation body, before it approves a licence application.

Before an application can be determined, the applicant is required to provide to the waste regulation authority a working plan which shows how the applicant proposes to prepare and develop, operate, monitor and control pollution, and restore and complete the facility. The working plan should contain the operator's plans for the management of gas and leachate and for capping and restoration.

Information on the number of applications for waste management licences granted or refused in each year is not held centrally. Waste regulation authorities hold information about the number of landfill sites in their areas, and the numbers opened and closed, as well as the size of each site. The total number of licences in force for landfill sites in England for the years since 1991–92 is set out in the table:

Year	Number of licences
1991–92	3,330
1992–93	3,186
1993–94	2,618
1994–95	2,541

Mr. Barron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what criteria his Department uses to assess appeals on applications for permission to create new landfill sites for the disposal of waste; [32651]

(2) how many appeals he has received (a) for the United Kingdom and (b) for each region (i) since 1 January and (ii) in each of the preceding four years concerning a decision to (1) grant and (2) refuse permission to create new landfill sites for the disposal of waste. [32653]

Mr. Clappison: There is a right of appeal to the Secretary of State against a refusal by a planning authority to grant planning permission, and also against a refusal by a waste regulation authority to grant a waste management licence for a landfill site.

Section 54A of the Town and Country Planning Act 1991 requires that every planning application must be determined according to the development plan unless material considerations indicate otherwise. This requirement applies to local planning authorities determining a planning application, and to the Secretary of State determining a planning appeal.

The first criteria for the assessment of landfill planning proposals are therefore those contained in the development plan. In particular, structure plans and waste local plans contain policies governing development for waste disposal purposes, but the policies of district local plans will also be considered.

The Secretary of State gives guidance in planning policy guidance notes, PPGs and minerals planning guidance notes MPGs. Of particular relevance is part 5 of PPG23 "Planning and Pollution Control" and, where an old mineral working is to be filled, MPG7 "The Reclamation of Mineral Workings".

Pollution control agencies will be consulted on every waste landfill planning application, and their advice will be an important consideration in determining planning applications and appeals.

Technical aspects of waste management are the subject of advice in waste management papers, published by the Department, parts of which may be relevant to the consideration of planning proposals for landfilling; parties to a planning appeal may refer to other published technical papers of standing, which may be material to a planning decision.

The Secretary of State has received planning appeals relating to landfill sites in England as set out in the table. The information relating to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland is a matter for my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Wales and for Scotland and my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

[1] Covers period 1 January to 30 June 1995.

Section 43(1)(a) of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 provides specified persons with a right of appeal to the Secretary of State against a decision of a waste regulation authority to reject an application for a waste management licence. The Act, together with regulations 6 to 9 of the Waste Management Licensing Regulations 1994, sets out the procedure for making and determining appeals. Guidance on the regulations is provided in DOE circular 11/94 and guidance on determining licence applications is provided in waste management paper No. 4. The Secretary of State's decision on individual cases is dependent upon the specific issues brought before him by the parties involved.

Since 1 May 1994, in England, three appeals have been made under section 43(1)(a) of the Environmental Protection Act against the refusal of a waste regulation authority to grant a waste management licence for a new landfill site. One of these appeals has been made since 1 January 1995. The appeals are before the Secretary of State for consideration. A new monitoring system was introduced on 1 May 1994 when the new licensing system came into force. Prior to 1 May 1994, the information was not kept in a form that can now provide comparable figures for the preceding four years. The information relating to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland is a matter for my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Wales and for Scotland and my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Mr. Barron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many applications for permission to create new landfill sites for the disposal of waste have been granted in (a) England and (b) each region (i) since 1 January and (ii) in each of the preceding four years. [33127]

Mr. Clappison: I refer the hon. Member to my earlier reply about landfill sites.

Local Government and Housing Act 1989

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when part V of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 will come into effect; and what has been the cause of the delay. [32676]

Sir Paul Beresford: Part V of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 has already been brought into effect, except for certain sub-sections relating to the control of minority interests in certain companies which in keeping with the principles of the private finance initiative it is not now intended to bring into force.

Energy from Waste

Mr. Barron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what consideration has been given to the promotion of energy from waste schemes in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) each region in line with the national waste strategy; and what future consideration is planned. [32642]

Mr. Clappison: "A Waste Strategy for England and Wales", published as a consultation document in January 1995, sets out the means by which we can aim to manage waste in a more sustainable way and, in contributing to this, the role which energy from waste can play in recovering value from waste. The draft waste strategy highlights ways in which central and local government, working with industry, can further encourage its take-up. The Government are currently considering the many responses they have received on the draft strategy, and expect to publish the final version towards the end of the year.

Stray Dogs

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the requirement on local authorities to check for any microchip carried by a stray dog. [33102]

Mr. Clappison: There is no requirement on local authorities to check for any microchip carried by a stray dog.

Chancery Lane Public Record Office

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement about the future use of the Chancery lane public record office. [31477]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Public Record Office is moving to greatly enlarged premises on its Kew site at the end of 1996 and, as a result, it will vacate Chancery lane by this date.

This important historic building is part of the Government estate and responsibility for its future rests with Property Holdings. Extensive discussions have been held with English Heritage and the City of London Corporation, the relevant planning authority, about its future use and a number of options are being explored, including retention for other Government purposes. If the building is not needed by Government, a number of private uses are being considered. One of these is a continuation of the legal nature of the building which would include barristers' chambers, other legal users, perhaps with some attendant residential use. It would also be suitable for educational/institutional use.

Property Holdings will shortly be opening discussions with potential private sector operators who might implement one of these uses that is acceptable to English Heritage and the planning authority. Interested parties would be welcome to contact the agents, BH_2 at their City of London offices.

National Parks

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) how many representations he has received from members of the public in support of the amended national park purpose of promoting opportunities for quiet enjoyment and understanding in (a) March, (b) April, (c) May and (d) June of this year; and if he will place copies of these representations in the Library; [33482]

(2) how many representations he has received from organisations in support of the amended national park purpose of promoting opportunities for quiet enjoyment and understanding in (a) March, (b) April, (c) May and (d) June of this year; and if he will place copies of these representations in the Library. [33481]

Mr. Clappison: The following number of representations has been received:

	Organisations	Members of the public
March	13	56
April	4	11
May	1	15
June	4	7

As these representations were not made in response to a public consultation exercise, it is not appropriate to place copies in the Library.

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the number of access agreements made in each national park in the most recent year for which figures are available. [33490]

Mr. Clappison: This information is not held centrally. I have asked officials to seek details and will write to the hon. Member.

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is now the status of the commitment to quiet enjoyment as set out in the Government response to the Edwards report "Fit for the Future", page 26, paragraph 12.1(i), in January 1992. [33483]

Mr. Clappison: We considered very carefully the consequences of introducing into the revised and updated national park purposes set out in the Environment Bill the phrase "quiet enjoyment". We concluded that the disadvantages outweighed the advantages in doing so. Subsequent debates on the Bill have reinforced our belief that this conclusion was correct.

DEFENCE

Explosives and Propellants

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 28 June, Official Report, column 682, what account was taken of the sale of explosives propellants and related end products to countries abroad in reaching the explosives, propellants and end products agreement. [32437]

Mr. Arbuthnot: One of the objectives of the EPREP agreement was to assist Royal Ordnance in becoming an efficient competitor. This objective related to both the national and international markets.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 28 June, Official Report, column 682, what explosives, propellants and related end products were supplied to countries abroad under the EPREP agreement; and if he will list the relevant countries and products. [32436]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The EPREP agreement, signed on 28 July 1988, concerned the requirements of the United Kingdom armed forces. It did not cover supplies to countries abroad.

Naval Bases

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list all the foreign submarines which have visited the Faslane submarine base since 1993 and the candidates on which they visited the bas. [32488]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is as follows:

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the annual running cost of (a) RNAD Coulport and (b) CSB Faslane. [32489]

Mr. Soames: As explained in this year's "Statement on the Defence Estimates", in 1994 the Department's running cost regime was replaced by a much broader operating costs limit covering all front-line and support expenditure. The provisional outturn figures, representing total operating costs for these establishments, for financial year 1994–95 are as follows:

RNAD Coulport: £57,889,000

CSB Faslane: £107,363,000

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will provide a list of all United Kingdom and foreign submarines which have visited and the dates on which they have visited (a) Portland naval base, (b) Portsmouth naval base and (c) the naval base at Plymouth. [32491]

Mr. Soames: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32476]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Nuclear Defence Industry

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for an audit of the nuclear defence industry. [32474]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Financial and safety audit of the nuclear defence industry is a matter for the organisations concerned, together with relevant external regulatory bodies. Activities directly managed by the Ministry of Defence are additionally subject to scrutiny by the National Audit Office. There are at present no plans to augment these arrangements.

Mutual Defence Agreement

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if any information on the implementation of the 1958 Anglo-American mutual defence agreement on atomic energy matters has been withheld under sections 3(4) or 5(1) of the Public Records Act 1958. [32490]

Mr. Arbuthnot: A number of papers relating to the early years of the UK nuclear programme are closed under the Public Records Acts. It is likely that many of these involve matters relating to the 1958 UK-US mutual defence agreement, but to establish exactly what is held would involve disproportionate cost.

Trident Project (Faslane)

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how and to what extent the lessons learned from the Trident project at Faslane have been implemented. [32487]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Experience gained during the Trident works programme informed the new procedures adopted by my Department in 1990 when it was untied from the Property Services Agency for new works projects. The procedures have been reviewed in the light of experience and are reflected in guidance subsequently distributed throughout Government by the Treasury.

Firearms (Sales)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many small arms, rifles and hand guns, which were no longer of use to the armed forces, have been sold (a) in the United Kingdom and (b) overseas in each of the last 10 years. [33154]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Sales records are not available for the last 10 years. In the last three years 40,000 small arms, rifles and hand guns have been sold to firearms dealers licensed under section 5 of the Firearms Act to meet overseas orders and 700 rifles have been sold on a Government-to-Government basis.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received from chief constables on his policy for the sale of small arms no longer required by the armed forces. [33156]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I am not aware of any recent representations from chief constables about the sale of small arms no longer required by the armed forces.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his policy on (a) the sale and (b) the destruction of small arms, rifles and hand guns, no longer of use to the armed forces. [33153]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Under current policy, sales may be made direct to an acceptable overseas Government or to a firearms dealer licensed under section 5 of the Firearms Act in the United Kingdom to meet an order from an overseas customer. MOD will sell only to a UK dealer who has a firm order from an overseas purchaser which meets end user and export control requirements. Dealers are not allowed to buy for stock. Only a small number of inquiries are received each year in either of these categories. Other surpluses for which no export market exists are fragmented first by crushing into granules and subsequently smelting. The majority of surplus weapons are disposed of in this way.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many small arms which were no longer of use to the armed forces he has destroyed in each of the last 10 years. [33155]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Disposal records are not available for the last 10 years. In the last three years some 93,000 small arms have been destroyed and the current rate of destruction is about 90,000 small arms per annum.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what discussions he has had with chief constables in the United Kingdom about the sale of small arms, rifles and hand guns. [33157]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Discussions on the sale of small arms, rifles and hand guns have taken place in the past with the Home Office, who are responsible for representing the views of the chief constables. Liaison with chief constables is effected by the chief constable of the Ministry of Defence police in his operations.

Defence Statistics

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date his Department will publish the 1995 edition of "United Kingdom Defence Statistics". [33159]

Mr. Soames: On Friday 14 July 1995.

Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's aim during the negotiations for a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty. [33160]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Our aim in the negotiations of a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty is to establish an effective and verifiable treaty commanding universal adherence as soon as practicable.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of whether Britain still has a requirement to use underground testing in order to maintain the stock of nuclear weapons. [33161]

Mr. Arbuthnot: We do not have any current plans for further underground tests of nuclear weapons. However, we are still considering what activities might be necessary to ensure the safety and reliability of our nuclear weapons under a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty.

Dog Training

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 4 July, Official Report, column 183, what is the number taking part for each course for the latest year available; and what is the annual cost and the location of each course. [33282]

Mr. Soames: My noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Defence will write to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Ministry Property Sales

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information his Department holds on former MOD houses that have subsequently been resold. [33308]

Mr. Soames: My Department does not monitor what may happen to properties once they have been sold by the Ministry of Defence, except where there is a specific reason for doing so.

Contracts

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many contracts his Department has placed and to what value with (a) BT, (b) Rolls-Royce, (c) Alfred McAlpine plc, (d) Racal Electronics and (e) British Aerospace in the last five years. [33244]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Details of the number and value of contracts placed with individual defence companies are a matter of commercial confidentiality between the Ministry of Defence and those companies. The Department does, however, give broad information on contractors paid £5 million or more in table 1.16 of the annual publication "UK Defence Statistics" which is placed in the Library. The 1995 edition will shortly be available and the contractors listed in the question are included in those statistics.

BMARC

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what investigations he has initiated since 18 June within his Department to locate all outstanding BMARC documents. [30520]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 29 June 1995]: The deputy chief constable of the MOD police ordered a thorough re-sort of the seized property held by them and is now satisfied that all outstanding documents which were seized by the MOD police from Astra holdings and its subsidiaries, during the course of an investigation into corruption involving those companies, have been located and have been returned to their rightful owners.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 4 April, Official Report, column 1098, what investigations his Department undertook to determine which documents had been returned to the receivers of Astra in June 1993. [30050]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 22 June 1995]: The documents returned to the receivers of Astra in June 1993 were listed on the seized property forms which related to them and these are the record of the seized property which was returned at that time.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how additional documents were located by his Department's police relating to the arms companies BMARC and Astra. [30051]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 22 June 1995]: I have nothing to add to my answer of 19 June, Official Report, column 31, to the hon. Member.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the action taken in connection with the files referred to in Detective Inspector Berry's letter to Cork Gully of 27 January 1993. [30103]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 27 June 1995]: No reply was received from Cork Gully by Detective Inspector Berry to his letter of 27 January 1993. After a further letter from Detective Inspector Berry, dated 15 June 1993, and subsequent telephone conversations, a large number of documents were delivered to Cork Gully. It was believed at the time that these were all of the property seized by the Ministry of Defence police from Astra holdings and its subsidiaries, during the course of an investigation into corruption involving those companies.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on which occasions Ministers in his Department communicated with Ministry of Defence police concerning the letter from Detective Inspector Berry to Cork Gully of 27 January 1993. [30105]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 27 June 1995]: None before it was sent.

Portland Naval Base

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will set out the level of expenditure over the last three financial years on (a) the Ward room, (b) tennis courts and (c) medical and dental centres at Portland naval base and HMS Osprey. [31542]

Mr. Soames [holding answer 3 July 1995]: The information requested is as follows:

	1992–93 £	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Wardroom	96,290	101,550	95,020
Tennis Courts	nil	nil	nil
Medical Centre[1]	17,000	5,200	3,860
Dental Centre[2]	2,000	2,000	2,000

[1] Reducing costs reflect the rundown of the existing medical centre[2] Approximate average costs for minor maintenance items which are not recorded separately.

Royal Ordnance

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 29 June, Official Report, columns 751–52, (1) what factors underlay the recent research in relation to export licences; if the research that uncovered the fact that Singapore Technologies was a consignee of exports from Royal Ordnance was conducted on pre-1992 records; and if he will make a statement on exports from Royal Ordnance to which he refers; [32912]

(2) what inquiries he has made regarding the onward re-export and final use of munitions exported by Royal Ordnance to Singapore since 1980; [33025]

(3) if he has anything further to add to his answer on Royal Ordnance and Iran to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark), of 14 January, Official Report, columns 345–46. [33177]

Mr. Arbuthnot [holding answer 6 July 1995]: I have nothing to add to the answer given to the hon. Member for Workington (Mr. Campbell-Savours) on 4 July, Official Report, column 180, except to confirm that the research underlying the answer to the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent on 29 June, Official Report, columns 751–52, as it relates to Royal Ordnance was based on DTI computerised records which date from 1992.

Arms Embargoes

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many representations his Department has made to overseas companies based in the European Union which have breached export embargoes on military equipment and weapons agreed by the European Union. [32877]

Mr. David Davis: I have been asked to reply.

It is not our policy to make representations to overseas companies. If we were concerned at the activities of an overseas company an approach would be made to the Government of the country in which the company was based.

No such approaches have been made.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Rents

26. Mr. Flynn: To ask the right hon. Member for Selby, as representing the Church Commissioners what new proposals he has to increase rents from Church lands. [31464]

Mr. Alison: We have no new proposals to increase rents from our agricultural land.

Current practice on rental increases flows from the commissioners' ownership of good agricultural land, the provision of the fixed equipment needed for profitable farming and a constructive relationship with our tenants. There are no proposals to depart from this policy.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, following his oral answer to the hon. Member for Linlithgow of 3 July, Official Report, column 15, if the civil servant in question was on paid or unpaid leave. [33297]

Mr. Freeman: The gentleman in question was on paid leave.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33425]

Mr. Horam: This information is not held centrally.

Chessington Computer Centre

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what targets have been set for the Chessington Computer Centre trading fund for the current financial year. [33220]

Mr. Horam: I have set the following targets for Chessington Computer Centre in 1995–96:

(1) to achieve an operating surplus of £1.137 million;

(2) to increase pay clerk productivity by 7 per cent. over 1994–95 performance;

(3) to increase use of the on-line data capture system (SPIRE) to 85 per cent.;

(4) to maintain the minimum on line service availability at 98.5 per cent.;

(5) to improve the range of services available to customers, in particular, to meet their needs on pay delegation.

Written Answers to Questions

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Repossessions

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) proceedings were commenced to repossess homes and (b) homes were repossessed in (i) Darlington and (ii) each county in northern England in each year since 1990. [33783]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked him to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 11 July 1995:

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to your Question about repossession proceedings.

The following charts show the total number of mortgage possession actions commenced in Darlington County Court, and the county courts in the counties of Cleveland, Cumbria, Durham, Northumberland and Tyne and Wear, since 1990. As not all orders result in repossession, I am unable to tell you how many properties were repossessed in this period. I have therefore included in the tables the number of possession orders made. I should add that the figures for 1994 are provisional and are consequently liable to revision to take account of any late amendments.

Darlington County Court

Year	Actions commenced	Orders made
1990	411	214
1991	565	471
1992	431	390
1993	313	302
1994	396	286

County Courts in Cleveland

Year	Actions commenced	Orders made
1990	1,149	824
1991	1,578	1,347
1992	1,377	1,254
1993	1,086	1,094
1994	796	832

County Courts in Cumbria

Year	Actions commenced	Orders made
1990	700	535
1991	965	745
1992	848	969
1993	670	676
1994	506	589

County Courts in Durham

Year	Actions commenced	Orders made
1990	1,165	727
1991	1,661	1,504
1992	1,187	1,173
1993	920	791
1994	918	659

County Courts in Northumberland

Year	Actions commenced	Orders made
1990	219	157
1991	413	261
1992	250	210
1993	208	210
1994	128	159

County Courts in Tyne and Wear

Year	Actions commenced	Orders made
1990	1,710	1,303
1991	2,300	1,703
1992	2,378	2,672
1993	1,755	2,266
1994	1,394	1,903

In some years the number of orders made was greater than the number of action commenced. This is because:

(a) some orders were made on cases which commenced in the previous year

(b) a number of cases were adjourned in the previous year but restored in the current year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Fees Office (Computer Breakdown)

Mr. Redmond: To ask the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed, as representing the House of Commons Commission what was the cause of the House of Commons Fees Office computer breakdown; how many (a) staff, and (b) right hon. and hon. Members did not receive their June salaries on the correct date; when the fault was rectified and payments made; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Beith: I understand that the failure to make June salary payments on time was caused by operator procedural error in the Fees Office in producing the relevant disc for clearance by bankers automated clearing service, and not by a computer breakdown. The error affected 644 hon. Members, but did not affect any staff.

Non-payment was identified on Monday 3 July and remedial action was taken immediately to credit hon. Members' accounts on 5 July. Investigations are currently being held within the Fees Office and I am assured that all possible steps are being taken to prevent a repetition of the error, which the Fees Office greatly regrets.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Road Accidents (Police Vehicles)

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what policies his Department has to reduce the number of road accidents involving police patrol vehicles. [32923]

Mr. Maclean: Action by police forces to reduce the number of police vehicle accidents is an operational matter for individual chief officers of police, but the incidence of such accidents is closely monitored by Her Majesty's inspectorate of constabulary, HMIC. We are working with HMIC and the traffic committee of the Association of Chief Police Officers to find ways in which to achieve a reduction.

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what investigations his Department makes into the prior driving convictions of police officers involved in road traffic accidents while driving police vehicles. [32924]

Mr. Maclean: None. Consideration of police officers' driving records, and investigations relating to driving offences and convictions which occurred after entry to the police service, are the responsibility of individual chief officers of police.

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice he gives to chief constables and deputy chief constables in permitting police officers to return to driving police vehicles after they have caused a fatal accident due to careless driving while carrying out police duties. [32926]

Mr. Maclean: All decisions on the allocations of police driving duties, including action taken following an accident, are a matter for individual chief officers.

Book Signings

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the cost of the police operation at the book signings held at (a) Hatchards, Piccadilly on 12 June, (b) Harrods on 13 June, (c) W. H. Smith, Holborn on 14 June and (d) Selfridges, Oxford street, on 14 June; and if any contribution towards costs is to be made by the book publishers. [33283]

Mr. Maclean: It is a long-standing practice not to reveal the costs of security operations.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Churchill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the change in asylum seekers to the United Kingdom, excluding dependants, in 1994; what has been the change in such applications in (a) Denmark, (b) Finland, (c) Germany, (d) Norway and (e) Sweden; and if he will make a statement. [33152]

Mr. Nicholas Baker [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The available information on asylum applications in western European countries for 1993 and 1994 is given in the table. The number of applications for asylum in the United Kingdom, excluding dependants, rose from 22,400 in 1993 to 32,800 in 1994, an increase of 45 per cent.

The figures in the table show that asylum applications to this country have been rising when most of our European Union partners have been experiencing reductions. The United Kingdom has a duty under the 1951 United Nations convention on refugees to consider asylum applications made on our territory, but it has no obligation to encourage would-be asylum seekers from around the world to come here. I can confirm that the Government are considering taking measures, in addition to the major increase in resources for the asylum determination system and wider use of powers to curtail leave announced in my right hon. and learned Friend's written answer on 15 February, Official Report, column 693, to enable us to deal more effectively with the growing number of undeserving and abusive asylum applications and reduce the factors which may attract such applicants to this country.

Applications received for asylum in selected European countries, including dependants[1], 1993 and 1994

	1993	1994	Difference	Percentage Increase
Belgium	26,900	14,300	−12,600	−45
Denmark	14,400	6,600	−7,800	−55
Finland	2,000	800	−1,200	−60
France	27,600	26,000	−1,600	−5
Germany	322,600	127,200	−195,400	−60
Italy	1,300	1,800	+500	+40
Netherlands	35,400	52,600	+17,200	+50
Norway	12,900	3,400	−9,500	−75
Spain	12,600	10,200	−2,400	−20
Sweden	37,600	18,600	−19,000	−50
Switzerland	24,700	16,100	−8,600	−35
United Kingdom	28,000	42,200	+14,200	+50

[1] Except for Spain which excludes dependants, and France which excludes minor dependants.

Shotgun Certificates

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children aged under 16 years have held shotgun certificates in each of the past five years. [33245]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Firearms

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded crimes involved the use of (a) replica firearms and (b) reactivated firearms in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [33248]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The available information relates to recorded notifiable offences in which imitation firearms, including replicas, were used.

Notifiable offences recorded by the police in England and Wales where an imitation firearm was reported to have been used:

1989: 365

1990: 420

The information recorded by the police about offences in which firearms were used does not identify reactivated weapons. Some information is available, however, on the weapons used in shooting incidents and I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 6 July 1995, Official Report, column 349.

Special Constables

Mr. Churchill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 3 July, Official Report, column 29, when the advertisements aimed at recruiting 30,000 special constables were first placed; when the first responses were received; and how many have thus far been recruited. [33242]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 10 July 1995]: A pilot exercise was undertaken in the Granada region in April 1994, and the campaign was launched nationally in October. Advertisements first appeared on television and in the local press on 27 October 1994 and there was an immediate response. In the first two days—27 and 28 October—1,839 inquiries were received and more than 38,500 inquiries have been made to date. Feedback from police forces on the number of special constables recruited as a result of the advertising is incomplete and we are currently considering what steps need to be taken to improve our information. I shall write again as soon as I have the numbers.

Drugs Prevention Initiative

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish a report on the progress of his Department's drugs prevention initiative. [34125]

Mr. Maclean: We are today publishing the drugs prevention initiative's fifth annual progress report, which records encouraging progress in developing a range of drugs prevention work in various local communities in the nine months from 1 July 1994 to 31 March 1995. As part of "Tackling Drugs Together", the Government's new drugs strategy, the drugs prevention initiative is now expanding its operations in England for a further four years. I have placed a copy of the report in the Library.

Mentally Ill Prisoners

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 92, what percentage of the total prison population was judged to be mentally ill in each of the past 10 years; and of these what percentage (a) had been diagnosed as mentally ill before arrest, (b) had been homeless before arrest, (c) was imprisoned for serious offences, (d) was subject to the care programme approach and (e) was sent to private hospitals. [31222]

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 27 June 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 11 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about mentally ill prisoners.

Information is not available centrally on the nature of the offences committed by prisoners who are in receipt of care and treatment for mental health problems. Neither is information available about whether such prisoners were subject to the Care Programme Approach or on their histories before arrest.

The information which is available is as follows. From December 1991, Prison Service establishments have carried out regular medical monitoring exercises. To monitor the assessed needs of mentally disordered prisoners, of whom the mentally ill form one category, information is centrally collected on a periodic basis. On a given day prisoners who are considered by prison doctors to need some form of mental health care are categorised as follows:

(a) prisoners requiring removal or transfer to a psychiatric hospital under Mental Health Act provisions and who are awaiting such transfer. This figure includes remand prisoners awaiting disposal by the court;

(b) prisoners who are sufficiently ill to be occupying in-patient beds in prison health care centre.

(c) prisoners requiring some form of mental health care but not removal/transfer to psychiatric hospital or in-patient treatment in a prison health care centre.

These single day surveys can be used to calculate a figure for the average number of prisoners requiring transfer to a psychiatric hospital or some other form of mental health care on any one day in the years 1992, 1993 and 1994. This gives the following results, expressed as a percentage of the average prison population, including those in police cells:

1992—5.4 per cent.

1994—5.6 per cent.

Prisoners transferred to hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 cannot be taken directly from prison to a private psychiatric hospital. Arrangements can, however, be made for prisoners to be transferred on to such hospitals immediately after they have first been taken to a National Health Service hospital. information on transfers to hospital in 1994 is still provisional and subject to revision. The current provisional total number of transfers from prison to psychiatric hospital under sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983 is now 792, which is greater than the provisional figure included in the table enclosed with my letter to your of 18 April. The provisional figure for transfers to private hospitals for 1994 is 57, which represents 7.2 per cent. of the total. This particular information was not collected centrally before 1994.

Scarman Inquiry

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total cost of the local inquiry, established in 1981 pursuant to section 32 of the Police Act 1964, to investigate the Brixton disorders; how long the inquiry took from being established to reporting; and what criteria persuaded the then Home Secretary to appoint such an inquiry. [33294]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 10 July 1995:] Home Office records show that disbursements of about £207,000, at 1981 prices, were made in association with the Scarman inquiry. They include administrative and legal costs, but do not include the staff costs of the secretariat of the inquiry or the costs of the Metropolitan police. The inquiry commenced in April 1981 and reported in November 1981. The factors that persuaded the then Home Secretary to establish the inquiry would have included the extent, seriousness and duration of the disturbances.

Mr. D. B. Guisso

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the hon. Member's letters dated 22 March, 24 April and 31 May concerning her constituent, Mr. D. B. Guisso. [33596]

Mr. Nicholas Baker [holding answer 10 July 1995]: I replied on 5 July.

Farm Thefts

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what was the number of burglaries on farms and farm outbuildings in England and Wales for each of the past 10 years; [33138]

(2) what was the number of cases of thefts of produce from fields in England and Wales for each of the past 10 years; [33137]

(3) what was the number of cases of livestock theft in England and Wales for each of the past 10 years. [33136]

Mr. Maclean: This information is not collected centrally.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures are being taken to reduce burglaries from farms and farm outbuildings; and what reports his Department has produced. [33139]

Mr. Maclean: Decisions about policing priorities are matters for chief officers of police. They attach a high priority to measures aimed at tackling burglary and many initiatives are successfully reducing the number of burglaries. There are, for instance, over 500 farm watch schemes across the country.

The Home Office has no plans to produce a report on farm burglaries but will continue to support the police through its crime prevention training, publicity and research programmes.

Criminal Records (Care Workers)

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to make it easier for prospective employers to check the criminal records of those seeking employment caring for vulnerable groups. [33222]

Mr. Maclean: We will be setting out our proposals in a White Paper on new arrangements for access to criminal records, which is to be published later this year.

Non-European Community Students

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are the charges made by the police for the registration of non-EC students and visitors for the (a) London, (b) Birmingham, (c) Manchester, (d) Cambridge and (e) Northumbria areas; and what service is provided in exchange for the charge. [33165]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The fee, which is set nationally, is £30. It covers the cost of administering the scheme.

Prostitution

Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of children, under the age of 16 years, charged with prostitution in each of the past five years. [33104]

Mr. Maclean: As detailed information on the number of persons charged is not collected centrally, cautioning and court data are given in the table:

Total number of females aged 10 to under 16 years cautioned and prosecuted for prostitution offences under Section 1 of the Street Offences Act 1959[1] 1989–1993

Age	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993

HEALTH

Rights of the Child Convention

Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures he has taken to promote the United Nations convention on the rights of the child. [33105]

Mr. Bowis: Copies of the convention were sent to local authorities, health authorities and major voluntary child care organisations in England and Wales.

AIDS

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what considerations led his Department to decide not to provide any funding for the Europe against AIDS summer campaign 1995; and if he will make available funding for the 1996 and 1997 summer campaigns. [33099]

Mr. Sackville: Ministers were originally approached to support the Europe against AIDS summer campaign in 1994. At that time, some Governments, including ours, decided that they did not wish their health promotion agencies to be involved in the work. The reasons included a view that the campaign image itself was inappropriate and that a range of domestically funded campaigns such as the travelsafe initiative and the Health Education Authority's summer travel campaigns were already in existence. The reasons underlying the decision remain the same.

Primary Care Centres

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will fund the establishment of primary health care centres at strategic locations to deal with out-of-work calls by patients for medical advice and assistance; and if he will make a statement. [32999]

Mr. Malone: We recently offered a package of proposals designed to encourage family doctors to organise together to provide their out-of-hours care. As part of this package, we offered to make available an extra £45 million to support general practitioners' out-of-hours services, including primary care centres. Discussions with the profession are continuing.

General Practitioner Fundholding

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take action to ensure that general practitioner fundholders (a) hold regular meetings in public, (b) consult the public on their purchasing intentions, (c) submit their contracts to quality monitoring at least as rigorous as for health authorities and (d) establish relationships with community health councils comparable to those already existing with other purchasers and providers; and if he will make a statement. [33000]

Mr. Malone: The Accountability Framework for GP fundholding requires general practitioner fundholders to make their plans and performance reports available for public scrutiny by sending them to community health councils, making them available to patients at the practice and involving patients in service planning. GP fundholders are also required, as part of the process for monitoring and reviewing performance, to submit to the health authority an annual report of their performance including quality improvements achieved.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will withdraw his Department's decision to amend the funding formula for health authorities and implement a system of capitation-based funding for GP fundholding practices at the earliest opportunity; if he will base budget allocation on an equitable allocation of resources between the patients of fundholding and non-fundholding practices; and if he will make a statement. [33002]

Mr. Malone: The fair allocation of resources is a fundamental principle of budget setting in the national health service. This applies irrespective of whether practices are fundholding or not.

Copies of EL(94)79, "Developing NHS purchasing and GP fundholding", EL(94)84, "General Practice Fundholding: guidance on setting budgets for 1995–96" and FDL(94)68, "Revenue allocations 1995–96" are available in the Library.

Children's Nurses

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to increase the number of registered sick children's nurses training places and ensure that local plans for children's services within the national health service are effectively implemented; and if he will make a statement. [33001]

Mr. Bowis: Training commissions for registered sick children's nurses have increased from 776 in 1989–90 to 1,612 in 1993–94—an increase of 108 per cent. This indicates the commitment of health authorities and trusts to trained children's nurses.

Privatisation

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33460]

Mr. Sackville: No part of the Department of Health or its agencies has been privatised since 1980.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contracts his Department has had with consultants; and what has been the total cost in each of the past five years. [33563]

Mr. Sackville: The Department of Health and its agencies have spent the following amounts from running costs on consultancy.

1990–91: £18,398.000
1991–92: £24,258,000
1992–93: £18,399,000
1993–94: £15,933,037
1994–95: £18,479,405

Information on the number of contracts the Department has had with consultants over the past five years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Practitioners' Premises

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will during the current revision of the Community Health Council Regulations ensure that CHCs are given the right to monitor those services provided on general practitioners' premises; and if he will make a statement. [33667]

Mr. Malone: We have no present plans to extend the statutory role of community health councils to monitor services provided on general practitioners' premises.

Specialised Care

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will fund centrally the cost of extensive funding for individual patients needing specialised care; and if he will make a statement. [33673]

Mr. Sackville: It is generally for purchasing authorities to buy health care for their local residents. Central funding is, however, provided under the supra-regional service arrangements for a small number of services which, to be clinically effective, need to be concentrated in a limited number of centres.

Tower Hamlets

Ms Gordon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will give a breakdown of population in Tower Hamlets by the age groups up to four, five to 10, 11 to 16, 17 and 18, 19 to 21, 22 to 30, 31 to 60-65 and 60-65 and over by enumeration district. [33654]

Mr. Sackville: The latest resident population estimates which are available relate to mid-1993. The figures for Tower Hamlets, which allow for under-enumeration in the census as well as for changes since 1991, are as follows:

Ages	Thousands
0–4	15.0
5–10	16.9
11–16	13.9
17–18	4.2
19–21	7.8
22–30	30.2
31–64/59	57.3
65/60+	24.3
All ages	169.6

A listing of the 'all ages' populations recorded in the 1991 Census for each of the 365 enumeration districts in Tower Hamlets will be placed in the Library.

Grommets and Dilation and Curettage

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations for the insertion of grommets and for dilation and curettage have been conducted by region for each year since 1992. [32114]

Mr. Sackville: Information about the number of these operations will be placed in the Library.

Illegal Employment (Children)

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the incidence of illegal employment of young children. [31799]

Mr. Bowis: I am not aware of any significant evidence that the illegal employment of children is a widespread problem.

Nurses' Pay

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of nurses he estimates will receive a 3 per cent. pay award this year. [33162]

Mr. Malone: This is a matter for local negotiation. Nearly 80 per cent. of trusts who employ nurses have offered 3 per cent. or more. I fully expect the pattern of offers yet to come to be along similar lines.

Human Embryos

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many living human embryos are currently held in stock by licensees of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority; in how many of those cases the parent of those embryos is no longer known; if he will give a breakdown of the number of such embryos by their age in years since fertilisation; if he will indicate the maximum age beyond which storage of such embryos becomes illegal; how many such embryos will reach that age in each of the next three years for which figures are available; what means will be authorised for the killing of those embryos which are not used by that date; what plans he has to bring forward proposals for allowing the adoption of such living human embryos; and if he will make a statement. [33796]

Mr. Sackville: Section 14(4) of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, which came into force on 1 August 1991, states that embryos may be stored for a maximum of five years unless regulations provide for a shorter storage time or specify the circumstances in which they may be stored for a longer period. The statutory five-year period for those embryos in storage on 1 August 1991 ends on 31 July 1996.

Information about the number of stored embryos is not collected by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority as a matter of routine. The number of embryos stored by individual licensed centres changes daily.

The Government are fully aware of public concern about stored embryos. The authority has been asked by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health to make a report on the issues surrounding the statutory storage period for embryos. It is understood that some information on the number of such embryos is being collected in connection with that report. When the report is received, Ministers will consider whether any action by Government is necessary.

Infertility Treatment

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if it remains his policy that payments to women for their ova for use in research or in infertility treatment should not be allowed; [33794]

(2) what plans the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority has to review the ban on payment to women for their ova for use in research or infertility treatment; and if he will make a statement; [33795]

(3) if he will list the legal provisions which regulate payments to women for their ova for use in research or infertility treatment; and if he will make a statement. [33793]

Mr. Sackville: Section 12(e) of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 states that no payment may be made for gametes or embryos except in accordance with directions. Section 23 authorises the giving of directions by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority.

The direction issued in 1991 regularised the position which prevailed when the HFEA assumed its powers. It allows payment of up to £15 per donation or benefits in the form of free treatment or sterilisation.

The authority is currently reviewing its policy regarding the payment of egg and sperm donors. It recently held a conference to discuss issues concerning payment. Licensed centres will be notified of any changes in policy as soon as the authority has considered the various arguments for and against payment.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33453]

Mr. Freeman: None.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Tourism

Mr. Pendry: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will publish the text of his Department's response to the European Commission's Green Paper on tourism. [32027]

Mr. Sproat: I have placed copies of the response in the Libraries of both Houses.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by her or ministerial colleagues in her Department, paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied her and the total cost in each case, including that of officials to public funds for each year since 1992. [32278]

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: Details are set out in the table. Total travel and subsistence costs for Ministers and accompanying private secretaries were £15,807.57 in 1993–94; £46,125.09 in 1994–95; and £4,760.84, so far, in 1995–96. Figures for 1992–93 are not available.

TREASURY

Tax Yield

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the total amount of (a) income tax, (b) capital gains tax, (c) inheritance tax and (d) corporation tax for each of the last 10 fiscal years expressed (i) at April 1995 prices and (ii) as a percentage of total Exchequer income. Seizures of Alcohol

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the number of seizures of alcohol intended for re-sale in the United Kingdom for each of the last three years at (a) Dover, (b) Folkestone, (c) Portsmouth, (d) Southampton and (e) in total; and what was the estimated value of the seizures. [32732]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: This information is retained by Customs on a collection basis rather than port by port. There are two collections involved, south-east England collection, covering Dover and Folkestone and southern England collection, covering Southampton and Portsmouth. The number and revenue value of seizures of alcohol from both the European Union and third countries for the financial years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95 are given in the table.

TRANSPORT

Forth Rail Bridge

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the Health and Safety Executive has reported on the Forth rail bridge. [31794]

Mr. Watts: The assessment is continuing.

Heavy Vehicles

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give the number of trucks over 7.5 tonnes involved in (a) fatal crashes and (b) serious injuries in each of the past five years. [33599]

Mr. Norris: Estimates based on available information to 1994 are shown in the table. Information for vehicles other than heavy goods vehicles within these weight bands is not available.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will give the number of prosecutions and convictions in each of the past five years for (a) mechanical faults and (b) hours offences in magistrates courts and sheriff courts in Scotland; [33602]

(2) how many (a) prosecutions were brought and (b) convictions were obtained in magistrates and sheriff's courts for (i) tachograph and hours offences and (ii) mechanical illegalities since 1984; [33580]

(3) how many vehicles were involved in (a) fatal, (b) serious injury and (c) minor injury crashes between the weights of (i) 3.5 tonnes and 7.5 tonnes, (ii) 7.5 tonnes and 17 tonnes and (iii) 17 tonnes plus for each of the past ten years. [33579]

Mr. Norris: The information as contained within the Home Office and Scottish Office statistical records is in the tables:

Court Action	Vehicle or part in dangerous or defective condition[1] Magistrates (England and Wales)		Work record and employment offences[2] Magistrates
	Prosecutions	Convictions	Prosecutions	Convictions

1993	87,354	62,336	28,445	19,712

[1] These offences broadly represent offences under the Road Vehicle (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986. The offences are: defective brakes; defective steering gear; defective tyres; using a vehicle in a dangerous condition; other offences relating to vehicles in a dangerous or defective condition.

[2] These figures relate to the drivers' hours and tachograph offences. The specific offences covered area: driver/employer failing to keep or produce proper records or to install and use recording equipment; failing to observe limits on hours or driving and duty, or rest requirements; other work record and employment offences (except falsification offences).

Information on offences in Scotland before 1989 is not immediately available. I will write to the hon. Member.

Inquiries

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many inquiries there have been under the Transport and Works Act 1992 procedures; and in each case how long they have taken. [33535]

Mr. Norris: Two inquiries have been completed: the River Usk Barrage Order, which took 14 weeks, and the East London Line Extension Order, which took seven weeks. A third inquiry, into the Greater Manchester (LRTS) (Airport Extension) Order, is in progress and is expected to take nine weeks.

Channel Tunnel Link (Stratford)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if the Government remain in principle in favour of an intermediate station on the channel tunnel rail link at Stratford. [33533]

Mr. Watts: The Government have an open mind on this question. They will reach a decision on whether there should be an intermediate station at Stratford in the light, inter alia, of the bids from the consortia bidding to construct the channel tunnel rail link.

Road Traffic Act 1988

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will repeal sections 157 to 159 of the Road Traffic Act 1988 to ensure that road traffic users are not charged for treatment following accidents. [33661]

Mr. Norris: These sections of the Road Traffic Act are the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Health.

I understand that there are no plans to repeal them.

Travel Facilities (Railway Workers)

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the protection of residential and leisure travel facilities on the rail network for employees and former employees of the National Freight company, Freightliner, the British Rail hotel group and other existing and former subsidiary companies of British Rail, who currently enjoy such rights. [33678]

Mr. Watts: The Government have given a clear assurance that residential and leisure travel facilities for those employees and former employees of the railway industry who currently enjoy such rights will be safeguarded.

Contracts of employment provide the protection for such entitlements as a condition of service. Franchised rail service operators will be obliged, through the terms of the contracts that they will have with the franchising director, to provide travel facilities on their services for entitled staff.

The benefits and obligations of agreements which the British Railways Board has with the employers of such staff will be transferred to a company, Rail Staff Travel Ltd., specifically established for the purpose of maintaining residential and leisure travel facilities to all those entitled.

Night Flights (Heathrow)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many flight landings and take-offs there have been at Heathrow airport between the hours of midnight and 6 am since 1 January. [32858]

Mr. Norris: Flight movements are monitored during the night quota period, 11.30 pm to 6 am. From 1 January to 1 July there were 2,862 movements, including exemptions and dispensations.

Railtrack

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what is his estimate of the proportion of Railtrack's current access charges that reflects the cost of depreciation and the amount in pounds that this represents; and if he will give his estimate by train operating unit for the current financial year; [32686]

(2) what is the intended relationship between depreciation of Railtrack's assets as measured by the modern equivalent asset value convention and future replacement expenditure plans; and if he will place in the Library the written guidance given to Railtrack on that relationship. [32682]

Mr. Watts: Railtrack's access charges are subject to the approval of the rail regulator. The way in which they were set is explained in the policy statements on charges he issued earlier this year.

It is not possible to disaggregate the amount allowed in access charges for asset renewals between train operating companies.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his estimate for the financial years 1994–95 and 1995–96 of the proportion of total subsidy to the train operating companies returning to Railtrack as track access charges, and the amount of pounds that this represents. [32683]

Mr. Watts: Grant from the franchising director to the train operating companies in respect of services provided in 1994–95 was £1,748 million. It is estimated that the grant will be £1,610 million in 1995–96. This represents just one of the sources of revenue with which train operating companies cover their costs, including track access charges levied by Railtrack.

Track access charges levied by Railtrack in 1994–95 were £1,923 million. Final access charges for 1995–96 have yet to be approved.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what categories of asset have been excluded from valuation under the modern equivalent asset valuation convention employed in determining depreciation costs for Railtrack; and what is the current market value of those assets. [32684]

Mr. Watts: The estimate of current cost depreciation used by the rail regulator when he set Railtrack's access charges took account of the accounting policies adopted by the British Railways Board. These policies are set out in BR's published accounts for 1993–94.

M5 (Resurfacing)

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is the maximum tailback, resulting from the resurfacing of the M5 between junctions 16 and 18; what steps he is taking to shorten it; and on what grounds the planned timing of these roadworks was decided. [31851]

Mr. Watts [holding answer 30 June 1995]: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency.

I have asked the chief executive to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. Anthony Steen, dated 11 July 1995:

As you know, the Minister for Railways and Roads, Mr John Watts, has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking the Secretary of State for Transport, what is the maximum tailback resulting from the resurfacing of the M5 between junctions 16 and 18; what steps he is taking to shorten it; and on what grounds the planned timing of these roadworks was decided.

The Agency does not keep detailed records of tailbacks resulting from roadworks.

All possible action to minimise the delays caused to motorists was taken. Instead of the more normal contraflow layout which has 2 lanes of traffic in each direction this scheme included an extra lane through the works area making a total of 5 lanes open to traffic. The contract was of the Lane Rental type whereby the contractor is given an incentive to complete early and penalised for poor performance.

The work was carefully itemised. It was started after the Easter Bank Holiday. Restrictions were removed completely for the Late May Bank Holiday and scheduled for completion by 30 June, before the school holidays. I am pleased to confirm that the contract finished on time.

Signalling (Rail)

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his estimate of the cost of replacing a typical semaphore signalling system with a replacement system with the same service capability, allowing for any differences both in the quality of the output and in operating costs. [32681]

Mr. Watts: I have made no such estimate. It would be for Railtrack to decide whether such a comparison were necessary.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Land Mines

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals were put forward by the United Kingdom to the United Nations conference on land mine clearance in Geneva, on 5 to 7 July; and if he will make a statement on the outcome of the meeting. [33059]

Sir Nicholas Bonsor [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The proposals made by the United Kingdom include:

strengthening of the 1981 UN weaponry convention, particularly its protocol II on the use of land mines;

the introduction of measures to complement a strengthened weaponry convention, in particular the UK–US proposal for an anti-personal land mine control programme; improved co-ordination of international support for mine clearance programmes; and the promotion of research into mine detection techniques.

The meeting was a pledging conference and raised more than US $20 million for the UN voluntary trust fund for assistance in mine clearance.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Bermingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what advice he is giving to United Kingdom citizens in respect of visits to Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [33354]

Mr. Hanley [holding answer 10 June 1995]: The current travel advice for Sri Lanka is as follows:

> Peace talks between Sri Lankan Government and the Tamil Tigers broke down on 19 April. There has been subsequent fighting in the north and east. Do not visit these areas. The south and centre, including all the main tourist areas and the cultural triangle, remain for the most part unaffected. There was an attempted major car bomb attack, almost certainly by the LTTE, near the arrivals terminal of Katunayake airport late on 5 June, followed by a threat of further attacks on KIA. Security at the airport and elsewhere has been greatly increased. This may result in delays. The recent small bomb explosions in Colombo were not thought to target foreign visitors but exercise caution in public places as there is a risk of further bomb attacks. Visitors may contact the British High Commission in Colombo, tel 437336, fax 430308, for further information.

UNESCO

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consideration has been given by Her Majesty's Government to rejoining UNESCO; and what plans he has for the United Kingdom to rejoin during 1995. [33704]

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: We are continuing to keep this issue under review.

Miss O. A. Bamgbose

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the report from the Home Office immigration officer at Becket house on Miss O. A. Bamgbose was received by the entry clearance officer in Lagos, Nigeria. [33597]

Mr. Hanley: I have asked the embassy at Lagos for details and will arrange for the hon. Member to receive a substantive reply from the migration and visa correspondence unit as soon as possible.

Ascension Island

Sir David Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will cause the ordinance of 18 May 1990 concerning Ascension Island to be amended to add to the categories of people exempt from entry permit requirements those EU citizens awaiting onward travel to St. Helena and similarly on their return. [33538]

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: Immigration legislation on Ascension Island is the responsibility of the Governor of St. Helena. There are no plans to instruct the Governor to amend existing legislation.

PRIME MINISTER

Staff Shareholdings

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Prime Minister how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, including the companies concerned. [33428]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my office is part of the Cabinet Office, Office of Public Service. I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Public Service and Science on 10 July.

Oil Platforms (Disposal)

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Prime Minister if he will transfer responsibility for the approval of the disposal of disused oil platforms at sea from the Department of Trade and Industry to the Department of the Environment, the Welsh Office and the Scottish Office. [31692]

The Prime Minister: No. The Department of Trade and Industry consults relevant Government Departments on all abandonment proposals.

Engagements

Sir Peter Tapsell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Tuesday 11 July. [32188]

Mr. Harry Greenway: to ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Tuesday 11 July. [32189]

The Prime Minister: This morning I had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. In addition to my duties in this House I shall be having further meetings later today.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister what is the salary of the Deputy Prime Minister. [33684]

The Prime Minister: The Ministerial salary of the First Secretary and Deputy Prime Minister is £42,834, in addition to his reduced parliamentary salary.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister which Cabinet sub-committees the Deputy Prime Minister has been asked to chair. [33685]

The Prime Minister: The First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister will be chairing a number of Cabinet committees. The revised composition and terms of reference of such committees will be published shortly.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister how many civil servants are employed in the Deputy Prime Minister's Department. [33686]

The Prime Minister: The First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister is supported by the Cabinet Office (Office of Public Service). The competitiveness and deregulation division of DTI transferred to the Cabinet Office on 5 July and the Office of Science and Technology transferred to DTI on the same day. The transfers are still being finalised but the total number of civil servants in the Office of Public Service is likely to be about 1,000.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Prime Minister, if he will list the responsibilities and terms of reference of the Deputy

Prime Minister, the number of staff for which he is responsible, the location of his office and that of his staff and the proposed budget of his office. [33792]

The Prime Minister: The First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister will assist generally and have specific responsibility for the competitiveness agenda, the working of Government and the presentation of policies. He will chair a number of Cabinet committees and will be an ex-officio member of Cabinet committees generally. He will have ministerial responsibility for the Cabinet Office (Office of Public Service). His office is located in the Cabinet Office, 70 Whitehall. The total budget of the Cabinet Office (Office of Public Service), including those functions transferred from the DTI, will be approximately £80 million.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister, what are the (a) parliamentary and (b) other duties of the Deputy Prime Minister [33683]

The Prime Minister: The First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister will answer in Parliament for the responsibilities of the Cabinet Office (Office of Public Service), and undertake any other parliamentary duties as appropriate. On his duties more generally, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today to the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger).

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Prime Minister if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33462]

The Prime Minister: None.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Chisholm: To ask the Prime Minister how many post cards he has received from the national post card campaign for breast cancer launched on 7 June. [33784]

The Prime Minister: I have received a number of representations in connection with this campaign.

SCOTLAND

Road Safety

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to improve road safety in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [30959]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Good progress has already been made towards achieving the Government's target of reducing casualties by one third by 2000, compared with the 1981–85 average. At the end of 1993, total casualties had fallen by 17 per cent. and fatal and serious casualties were 46 per cent. less. The Scottish Office is taking forward a number of road safety initiatives covering engineering, education, publicity and enforcement, which are designed to make further contributions towards achievement of the Government's target. These include measures to reduce vehicle speeds, to encourage more responsible driving and to lessen the accident risk to vulnerable road users.

Health Care International

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what were the terms on which a Scottish Enterprise employee was given leave of absence to become director of international marketing for Health Care International in Clydebank; and when the employee subsequently left HCI. [31346]

Mr. Kynoch: The terms of employment of individual members of their staff are an operational matter for Scottish Enterprise. I have asked the chairman to reply to the hon. Member.

Electro-Shock Weapons

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action his Department has taken to follow up allegations made in January in relation to the illegal and unauthorised production, export and arrangement of sale of electro-shock weapons and equipment; what legal action has been and is being undertaken in consequence of such investigations; and if he will make a statement. [31031]

Mr. Kynoch [holding answer 29 June 1995:] The Scottish Office has conducted extensive investigation and is satisfied that the allegations made against the Department by the Channel 4 "Dispatches" programme are unsubstantiated.

The investigation by Strathclyde police into matters arising from the programme is not yet concluded.

Scottish Ferries (Rebate Subsidy)

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the current percentage rate of tariff rebate subsidy for cars and passengers on (a) northbound voyages and (b) southbound voyages between Orkney, Shetland and the Scottish mainland on P&O Scottish Ferries; and if he will indicate what changes have taken place in subsidy rates since 30 April. [32689]

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 5 July 1995]: There have been no changes in passenger and accompanied car subsidy rates since 30 April 1995. The table sets out the rates that have applied since 1 April 1995, and the previous subsidy rates that applied up 31 March 1995.

Crown Office

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the current establishment of the Crown Office; and how many posts are vacant. [32664]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The current establishment of the Crown Office is 136.5 and there is one administrative vacancy.

Advocates Depute

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the current terms of engagement and remuneration of advocates depute. [32665]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Advocates depute are commissioned by the Lord Advocate and generally serve for a period of about three years. The salary of the home advocate depute is £45,956 and of the other 12 advocates depute £42,384.

Temporary Classrooms

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list by region the number of primary and secondary schools providing temporary classroom accommodation. [33298]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: The information requested is not collected centrally.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Offshore Oil and Gas Licensing

Mr. Ainger: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will place in the library a copy of the advice he received from the Joint Nature Conservation Committee on offshore blocks 106/3, 106/4, 106/8, 106/9, 106/24, 106/25, and 106/30A. [33790]

Mr. Page: Consultation with the Joint Nature Conservation Committee over blocks to be offered in the 16th round of offshore oil and gas licensing took place on the understanding that the information provided would be treated in confidence. This is our established practice with regard to blocks offered for licensing.

I can inform the hon. Member, however, that JNCC did not object to the inclusion of blocks 106/3, 106/4, 106/8, 106/9, 106/24, 106/25 and 106/30a in the 16th round offer and also agreed the licence conditions attached to these blocks to protect the environmental sensitivities in the areas concerned.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the specific conditions to protect the environment on blocks 106/3, 106/4, 106/8, 106/9, 106/24, 106/25 and 106/30A licensed in the 16th offshore licensing round. [33791]

Mr. Eggar: The conditions to protect environmental sensitivities in blocks 106/3, 106/4, 106/8, 106/9, 106/24, 106/25 and 106/30a have been deposited in the Library of the House.

Mr. Bennett: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many export license applications for each country were approved in 1994 for the export of goods defined in group 1 of part III or schedule 1 of S.I. 1992, No. 3092, as (a) of ML1 to ML11, ML13 to ML18, ML20, ML23, ML24, and ML26 and (b) each of PL5001, PL5002, PL5006, PL5014, PL5017, PL5018, PL5020, PL5021, PL5027, PL5028 and PL5029. [32733]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The hon. Gentleman will appreciate that his question involves a very large quantity of statistical information. I shall provide the information he has asked for, to the extent that it is available on my Department's databases. However, the task involved in gathering and collating the data is a considerable one. I shall therefore send the information, in tabular form, to the hon. Gentleman. I shall also arrange to have copies placed in the Library of the House.

Military Exports

Mr. Bennett: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list all countries for which military list export licences have been granted in each of the last five years. [29849]

Seconded Staff

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many staff from small and medium-sized enterprises were seconded to his Department in 1994. [32269]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 4 July 1995]: During 1994 there were a total of 186 people seconded to the Department from business. A list of companies providing secondees has been published in the 1994 departmental report, a copy of which is in the Library of the House. To provide the breakdown of the number of staff from small and medium-sized companies could be completed only at disproportionate cost.

Brent Spar

Mr. Dafis: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on his current policy on bringing the Brent Spar inshore to be disposed of. [31693]

Mr. Eggar: Our policy is to consider every proposal on a case-by-case basis to seek the best practicable environmental option. I await a further application in respect of the Brent Spar.

Mr. Dafis: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what lessons he draws from the case of the Brent Spar for the decommissioning of nuclear power stations. [31695]

Mr. Eggar: There are no parallels between the case of the Brent Spar and the decommissioning of nuclear power stations.

Oil Platforms (Disposal)

Mr. Dafis: To ask the President of the Board of Trade in what year his Department or the Department of Energy began to consider options for the disposal of disused oil platforms. [31694]

Mr. Eggar: My Department has been considering options since the early days of North sea development.

Mr. Dafis: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if his Department's procedures for considering applications for licences for the exploration and extraction of oil in Cardigan Bay will include an assessment of options for the disposal of disused oil platforms. [31698]

Mr. Eggar: No. The model clauses incorporated into each offshore production licence provide that no licensee may develop a field for production without the prior consent of the Secretary of State. The Petroleum Act 1987 applies to the abandonment of installations and pipelines. It is therefore not appropriate to consider abandonment options at the application stage.

Executive Pay Increases

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to restrict the pay increases awarded to senior executives. [31797]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Pay awards for all employees in the private sector are for the private sector to determine. It is not for Government to dictate how much companies should pay their employees.

Genetic Engineering

Mr. Morley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list those United Kingdom patents that have been (a) granted and (b) applied for in respect of genetically engineered animals and processes for creating such animals. [33637]

Mr. Ian Taylor: There have been a total of 11 patent applications filed under the Patents Act 1977 and subsequently published relating to genetically engineered animals and/or processes for preparing them. Of these, eight have claims for both animals and processes and three have been granted. Two have claims for animals only and one of these has been granted. One has process claims only and has not yet been granted.

The eight with claims for animals and processes are GB2282139, GB2272440, GB2247023, GB2233655, GB2229440, GB2228487, GB2227243 and GB2223755. The two with claims for animals only are GB2280186 and GB2236753 and the one with only process claims is GB2265909.

Those granted are GB22336753, GB2233655, GB2228487 and GB2227243.

Mr. Morley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps he is taking to ensure that United Kingdom patents are not granted in respect of genetically engineered animals and processes for creating such animals where the genetic engineering leads, or is likely to lead, to suffering or physical harm for the animals involved. [33638]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Patents are granted when the requirements of the Patents Act 1977 are met. The Act prohibits the grant of a patent for an invention which would be generally expected to encourage offensive, immoral or anti-social behaviour. Such an objection would be raised only in a clear case. Decisions of the comptroller on the application of the Act are subject to appeal to the patents court.

Astra Holdings

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, further to his inquiry into Astra Holdings, how many shares were brought by each of the executive and non-executive directors of Astra Holdings in each of the three major rights issues before the company was declared insolvent; how many fully paid up shares each held before the first rights issue; how many share options were subsequently granted to each and how many were exercised and at what price; and how many shares were sold by each, at what date, and at what price. [33106]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: These are not matters which were covered in the inspector's report.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the directors of Astra Holdings listed in his inspector's report as unfit to hold office in a public company. [33093]

Mr. Evans: The inspector's report was critical of certain directors. As a result proceedings under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 have been instituted against former directors, John Anderson, Martin Guest, Christopher Gumbley, Gerald James, Laurence Kingswood and James Miller. It is for the court to determine whether their conduct was unfitted such that they should be disqualified from acting as a director or take part in the management of a limited company.

Companies Inspector's Reports

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is his Department's policy regarding the publication of inspectors' reports relating to (a) public and (b) private companies. [33922]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Where inspectors are appointed under the Companies Act 1985 on terms that their report may be published, the normal practice is for my Department to publish such reports in respect of public companies as being matters of public interest, but not to publish reports in respect of private companies unless there is a particular public interest.

Internal Market Advisory Committee

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the complaints against the United Kingdom which have been raised at the Internal Market Advisory Committee. [31145]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 6 July 1995]: There have been no complaints against the United Kingdom raised at the Internal Market Advisory Committee since specific single market complaints were first placed on its agenda last year.

Copyright

Mr. David Porter: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement about his plans to (a) introduce, (b) amend and (c) veto new harmonised copyright laws of the European Union in this country. [33006]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 10 July 1995]: Three European directives in the copyright field await implementation into United Kingdom law: 92/100/EEC on rental and lending rights, and rights for performers, producers and broadcasting organisations; 93/98/EEC on duration of copyright; and 93/83/EEC on satellite broadcasting and cable retransmission. The Government are satisfied that the harmonisation of national laws brought by these directives is necessary to remove distortions from the internal market. The directives have all been formally adopted by the Council of Ministers, and the United Kingdom is obliged to implement their provisions in national law. This will be done by means of secondary legislation made under powers conferred by the European Communities Act 1972 and amending the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 to the extent necessary to comply with the directives. The legislation will require approval by both Houses.

The European Commission has a substantial programme for harmonisation of the copyright laws of member states, from which these three directives stem, and it is possible that further proposals may be submitted by the Commission. To the extent their purpose will be to eliminate market distortion, any new proposals will be subject to qualified majority voting, no single country having a veto. The United Kingdom will have a full opportunity in negotiations before the Council to make its views known, and to seek amendments to the content of the Commission's proposals.

Malta (Trade)

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the present balance of trade between the United Kingdom and Malta; and if he will make a statement. [32452]

Mr. Nelson: Detailed information on UK visible trade is regularly published by the Central Statistical Office in business monitor MM20, "Overseas Trade Statistics of the United Kingdom with countries outside the European Community (Extra-EC Trade)", available in the Library of the House. In 1994 the UK had a visible trade surplus with Malta of £130.4 million.

Official Receiver

Mr. Soley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what measures will be taken to ensure the continuity of work in the event of the business of the official receiver being contracted out. [32703]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Officials are exploring arrangements which would enable the transfer of existing cases at 1 April 1996 to contractors to complete their administration.

Mr. Soley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the average cost of dealing with (a) bankruptcy and (b) company liquidations. [32704]

Mr. Evans: In the light of the current contracting out exercise, this information is commercially confidential.

Mr. Soley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if, when work currently undertaken by the official receiver is contracted out and the contractor is unable to sustain a lower cost performance, the contract will be cancelled and returned to the official receiver, and if he will make a statement. [32705]

Mr. Evans: Potential providers will be asked to submit prices which would be incorporated into the terms of their contract. The Insolvency Service would have the right to terminate the contract should a provider be unable satisfactorily to maintain its terms and conditions. Contracting out to a number of contractors would enable alternate providers to be used in the event of a contract cancellation.

Net Book Agreement

Sir David Steel: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will ensure that the net book agreement will be maintained, by seeking to make statutory provision if it becomes necessary. [33144]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The net book agreement benefits from two decisions of the restrictive practices court exempting books from the general prohibition of resale price maintenance and upholding the agreement on public interest grounds. So long as those decisions remain in force, it is for the parties to decide whether to maintain the agreement. The restrictive practices court has been asked to consider whether its previous decisions stand.

Gulf States

Sir David Steel: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will provide details of the value of British exports and imports for each year since 1992 and for the first quarter of 1995 with the Arab states of the Gulf which currently have reciprocal entry visa abolition agreements with the United Kingdom. [32203]

Mr. Nelson: Information is published in Central Statistical Office business monitor MM20, available in the Library of the House.

Coal Authority Land

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will allow individuals currently leasing small sites owned by the Coal Authority to purchase that land. [32710]

Mr. Page: Land was transferred to the Coal Authority, broadly, because it was judged to form part of a prospective opencast site or because it was required for the authority's own use, for example, in connection with mine water pumping. The authority will respond to requests for rights or interests in land that it owns in accordance with its duties under the Coal Industry Act 1994.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) if he will make a statement on the new welfare standards for livestock being transported; [32726]

(2) if he will make a statement on the enforcement mechanism for the new standards for livestock being transported. [32727]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The new requirements adopted by the Council of Agriculture Ministers on 22 June represent a major step forward for the welfare of animals being transported in the European Union. Effective enforcement of the requirements will be vital, and the measure contains tough new enforcement provisions including a licensing system for transport undertakings under which offenders can be disqualified, requirements for the scrutiny of journey plans and strict enforcement obligations on member states.

The directive is for implementation by 31 December 1996, and we will consult thoroughly with all interested parties to ensure that the United Kingdom's implementation of this measure is thorough and effective.

Sheep Scab

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) if sheep scab is a notifiable disease under sections 15 and 88 of the Animal Health Act 1981; and he if he will make a statement; [32891]

(2) how many prosecutions there has been since 1 January 1993 in relation to sheep scab under the provisions of section 15(7) of the Animal Health Act 1981: and if he will make a statement; [32892]

(3) if he will make a statement concerning the purposes and utility of retaining the notifiability of sheep scab. [32893]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 10 July 1995]: Although all secondary legislation detailing the control measures for sheep scab was revoked in 1992, sheep scab remains within the meaning of "disease" in section 88 of the Animal Health Act 1981 and is therefore still technically notifiable to a police constable under section 15(1) of the Act.

A decision on whether to repeal this provision will be taken once I have reviewed what alternative options may be available for dealing with the disease.

The local authority liaison group on animal health matters and the Home Office are fully aware of the situation regarding the notifiability of sheep scab and we will take no action on reported cases unless there are welfare grounds for doing so. I am not aware of any prosecution made under article 15(7) of the Animal Health Act 1981 since 1 January 1993 in connection with sheep scab.

Common Agricultural Policy

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to the answer of 28 June, Official Report, column 635-6, what criteria for reform have been adopted when pressing for the further reform of the CAP. [32669]

Mr. Baldry: The Government believe that the CAP should be reformed so as to achieve progressive reductions in product-linked support and protection. This would lead to the eventual removal of artificial restrictions on production and the creation of a competitive and market-driven farming industry. Any remaining support should be better targeted towards environmental and other specific objectives.

Salmon Fishing

Mr. Beith: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proposals he has made to the National Rivers Authority about changes in the east coast salmon net licensing season; what consultations he held with representatives of (a) anglers and (b) net fishermen on the proposals, and what evidence he has assembled in support of his proposals. [33036]

Mr. Baldry: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Woking (Sir C. Onslow) on 28 June Official Report, column 697.

If the National Rivers Authority, after reconsidering the recommendation made in the 1991 report on salmon net fisheries that the opening date of the drift net fisheries of Northumbria and Yorkshire should be postponed until 1 May, proposes a byelaw to this effect, this will be subject to the statutory consultation procedures.

High Seas Driftnet Fishing

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement in regard to surveillance of the high seas driftnet fishery for albacore tuna in the north-east Atlantic in 1994; how many United Kingdom fisheries patrol vessels were involved in surveillance; how many patrol boats in total were involved in the surveillance; how many days were spent in surveillance; and what was the total cost to the United Kingdom [33633]

Mr. Baldry: Last year, during the summer tuna fishery, the long-standing conflict between Spanish and French fishermen spilled over and embroiled UK vessels. Such harassment of British fishing vessels ceased following the arrival of the Royal Navy in the tuna fishery.

There are a total of nine vessels in the Royal Navy fisheries protection squadron, of which three or four vessels are normally on task to the Ministry at any one time and one to the Scottish Fisheries Protection Agency. The Royal Navy sent two vessels to patrol the tuna fishery for a total of 112 patrol days during 1994 at a cost of some £0.6 million to the Ministry and the Welsh Office.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the total catch of albacore tuna by United Kingdom vessels in the high seas drifnet fishery in the north-east Atlantic in 1994; what was its value; and where was the main market for this tuna. [33634]

Mr. Baldry: UK vessels using nets in the north-east Atlantic landed 576 tonnes of albacore tuna in 1994, with a total value of £879,000. Some 426 tonnes of the total were landed in the UK, the main port of landing and first sale being Newlyn.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what monitoring has been conducted of the bycatch of unwanted fish, sharks, dolphins and other wildlife in the high seas driftnet fishery for albacore tuna in the north-east Atlantic; and what contribution to this bycatch is made by the United Kingdom driftnet fleet. [33636]

Mr. Baldry: In 1992 and 1993, there was a study of the bycatch of the French driftnet fleet, which is the largest in the north-east Atlantic tuna fishery. The Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has commissioned the sea mammals research unit to monitor the bycatch of the United Kingdom tuna driftnet fleet in 1995 and 1996.

Fisheries Protection Vessels

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the total cost of United Kingdom fisheries protection vessels in 1994. [33635]

Mr. Baldry: Fisheries surveillance operations in the UK are undertaken by vessels of the Royal Navy fishery protection squadron and vessels owned and operated by the Scottish Fisheries Protection Agency and the Department of Agriculture in Northern Ireland. The operational costs for 1994 were some £13.8 million.

WALES

Countryside Council For Wales

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will review his predecessor's announcement of 5 May in relation to the future role, responsibilities and staffing of the Countryside Council for Wales.

Mr. Hague [holding answer 30 June 1995]: No, the action plan published on 5 May stands and the discussion then instituted about its implementation will continue.

Farming Unions

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what consultations he has had with each of the farming unions in 1995; and if he will make a statement. [32938]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I have had several meetings in 1995 with the National Farmers Union and the Farmers Union of Wales.

Connahs Quay

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what measures he will take to modify the impact upon residents in Kelsterton road, Connahs quay, Deeside, of the building of (a) the new River Dee crossing and (b) the PowerGen power station at Connahs quay; and if he will make a statement. [32940]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Clwyd county council is responsible for the new River Dee crossing. Following consultations, the Department of Trade and Industry attached a number of conditions to the consent for the power station development to protect local residents, including those in Kelsterton road.

River Dee Crossing

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of (a) the number of jobs created by the building of the River Dee crossing and (b) the financial cost incurred in building the River Dee crossing; and if he will make a statement. [32941]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Clwyd county council is responsible for the new River Dee crossing. The scheme is estimated to cost £61 million.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the impact upon Kelsterton Farm, Kelsterton, Clwyd, of plans for and the construction of the new River Dee crossing, and if he will make a statement. [32939]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Clwyd county council is responsible for the new River Dee crossing.

Landfill Sites

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list landfill sites in Wales which receive waste from the nuclear industry. [32708]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Radioactive waste from the nuclear power industry in Wales is not disposed of to any landfill sites in Wales: it goes to authorised landfill sites in England.

Women's Aid Groups (Funding)

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what funding he has given to women's aid groups over the last five years. [32935]

Mr. Richards: The answer is as follows:

1991–92: £703,140
1992–93: £664,742
1993–94: £752,333
1994–95: £704,597
1995–96: £611,628

These figures include core funding for Welsh Women's Aid and project funding for individual refugees, advice centres and outreach workers.

Upper Limb Disorder

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement concerning work-related upper limb disorder. [33015]

Mr. Richards: I understand that the extent and nature of this condition continues to be a source of debate. Although the Medical Research Council is not currently supporting studies of work-related upper limb disorder, it is always willing to consider scientifically based, sound proposals for research.

Physiotherapists

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the number of physiotherapists in training. [33017]

Mr. Richards: At the end of May, there were 97 student physiotherapists being centrally funded for training in Wales.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the average pay of physiotherapists in the NHS in Wales, and if he will make a statement. [33019]

Mr. Richards: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of his annual funding for physiotherapists in the NHS in Wales. [33018]

Mr. Richards: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many physiotherapists work in each of the health authorities in Wales. [33016]

Mr. Richards: Due to the use of local pay scales, information for Pembrokeshire NHS trust is not available centrally. Information for the other health authority areas is given in the table. Staff employed by NHS trusts are included in the area in which they are situated.

Health Authority	Physiotherapists in post at 31 March 1995 (whole-time equivalent)
Clwyd	91
East Dyfed	52
Gwent	100
Gwynedd	66
Mid Glamorgan	85
Powys	36
South Glamorgan	150
West Glamorgan	89
Welsh Health Common Services authority	2

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what proposals he has to increase funding for physiotherapists in Wales. [33020]

Mr. Richards: None. Any increases in funding for physiotherapists in Wales would be negotiated by health authorities through their contracts with service providers.

Housing

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State of Wales what new finance he proposes to implement the White Paper. "Our Future Homes," and if he will make a statement. [33513]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: "Our Future Homes" highlighted several initiatives to encourage further private sector investment in housing. Government provision for this year's housing programme was announced in "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1995–96 to 1997–98. Departmental Report by the Welsh Office and the Office of Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Schools in Wales." Support for future years will, of course, be determined later in the year as part of the annual public expenditure review.

Bloodbags

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what consultations he has had with the director of the National Blood Transfusion Service (Wales) concerning the withdrawal of blood contained in Tuta bloodbags; and what assessment he has made of the impact of the withdrawal on the number of operations cancelled or postponed in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [33543]

Mr. Hague: The managing director of the National Blood Transfusion Service (Wales) has kept my officials fully informed of the situation and there has been no need to cancel or postpone any planned surgery within Wales as a result of this incident.

NHS Trusts' Pay

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answers of 4 July Official Report, column 200 and 5 July, Official Report, column 241, if he will give details of the mechanism by which trusts having no executive or non-executive directors other than the appointed chairman can make 1995–96 pay offers to their nursing staff. [33598]

Mr. Hague: Trusts having no executive or non-executive directors have been advised to make offers subject to ratification by the trust board when appointed.

In-patient Activity

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the comparative objective accuracy of deaths and discharges and finished consultant episodes as measures of clinical in-patient and day case activity in hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [33544]

Mr. Hague: Finished consultant episodes and discharges and deaths seek to measure different concepts of hospital in-patient activity. Both concepts can be measured accurately but data quality depends on the reliability of local arrangements for the collection and return of data.

In Wales, data on both measures of activity have been collected since 1991–92 and published. Published statistics of overall in-patient activity are based on discharges and deaths as these are more complete than consultant episode figures and are comparable with earlier years.

Welsh Correspondence

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his policy on signing correspondence written in Welsh. [33788]

Mr. Hague: I am happy to sign correspondence written in Welsh.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Unemployment (Lancashire)

13. Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment by how much unemployment in Lancashire has changed since April 1992. [31795]

Mr. Paice: Unadjusted claimant unemployment in Lancashire has fallen by 14,921 since April 1992.

EU Employment and Social Issues Council

14. Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment when is the next meeting of the EU Employment and Social Issues Council; and if she will make a statement on the agenda. [31796]

Mr. Forth: The next meeting of the Social Affairs Council is on 5 October. The agenda has not yet been settled.

Take-home Pay

15. Mr. Devlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what recent evidence she has to show how take-home pay in the United Kingdom compares with that in other EC countries. [31798]

Mr. Page: Independent research shows that British workers' average take-home pay is among the best in the European Union, better than France, Italy or Denmark, and comparable with western Germany.

Labour Statistics

16. Mr. John Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what is the expected number of school leavers who will join the labour market in July.

Mr. Squire: Latest forecasts suggest that, in England, 145,000 16-year-olds will leave full-time education during the summer. Almost all are expected to join the labour market.

Employment (Terms and Conditions)

17. Mr. Jacques Arnold: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what discussions she has had with her EU counterparts on terms and conditions of employment. [31801]

Mr. Page: In discussions with her EC counterparts, my hon. Friend, the Member for Maidstone (Miss Widdecombe) consistently argued that attempts to regulate terms and conditions of employment at EU level are unnecessary and likely to lead to more unemployment across Europe.

I and my colleagues intend to continue to advance the benefits of the United Kingdom's policies.

Unemployment (Over-50s)

18. Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what initiatives her Department has undertaken to reduce unemployment rates amongst the over-50 age group. [31802]

Mrs. Gillan: It is the Government's sound economic policy, and growth at a sustainable pace, which is producing jobs and reductions in the unemployment rates. The campaign for older workers, which was taken forward with commitment and determination by my predecessor, my hon. Friend, the Member for Maidstone (Miss Widdecombe), is adding to this. I shall continue the campaign to eliminate age discrimination in employment.

Training Allowance

19. Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how much the training allowance was when it was introduced and how much it is now. [31803]

Mr. Forth: The youth training allowance, introduced in 1978, was £19.50 per week and is now a minimum of £29.50 for 16-year-olds and £35 for those aged 17 and over participating in youth training. The adults' training allowance, introduced in 1987, is based on the benefit received prior to commencing training plus a premium of £10 per week.

Low Pay

20. Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what steps she is taking to tackle the problem of low pay. [31804]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Government's commitment to sound economic and labour market policies has resulted in significant increases in real take-home pay for the lowest paid since 1979.

Long-term Unemployment

21. Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans she has to commission research into the cost to public funds of long-term unemployment on family stability and physical and mental health. [31806]

Mr. Forth: The relationship between unemployment, family stability and physical and mental health has been the subject of studies by a number of researchers. There are no plans for the Department to commission additional research in this area.

Third Age Challenge Trust

22. Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what support her Department is giving to the Third Age Challenge Trust; and if she will make a statement. [31807]

Mrs. Gillan: My predecessor, my hon. Friend the Member for Maidstone (Miss Widdecombe), supported the work of the Third Age Challenge Trust, endorsing its voluntary code of practice to employers. Its work complements key elements of the Government's campaign for older workers. As the Minister now responsible for the campaign, I commend the work of the Third Age Challenge Trust. Ageism makes no economic sense for individual employers or for the nation.

Vacancies-unemployed Ratio (Wolverhampton)

23. Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what is the vacancies to unemployed ratio in the Wolverhampton travel-to-work area. [31808]

Mr. Robin Squire: In May 1995, and on the unadjusted basis, there were 15,175 claimants unemployed in the Wolverhampton travel-to-work area and 857 unfilled jobcentre vacancies. The ratio between the two figures is misleading because jobcentre vacancies represent only a proportion of the total vacancies available in the area.

Job Opportunities

24. Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what new proposals she has to increase job opportunities for those recently made redundant. [31809]

Mr. Paice: We will continue with the policies and measures that have enabled businesses to create nearly 300,000 new jobs in the past year and reduced redundancies to half the level of a year ago.

Unemployment Benefit Claims (Bradford, West)

25. Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many people aged under 25 years living in Bradford, West are claiming unemployment benefit. [31810]

Mr. Paice: In April 1995, on the unadjusted basis, there were 2,061 under-25-year-olds claiming unemployment-related benefits in Bradford, West, which is 11 per cent. less than the year before.

Nursery Voucher Scheme

Mr. William O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is her assessment of the number of four-year-olds in the Normanton constituency who would qualify for consideration under the nursery vouchers plan. [33639]

Mr. Robin Squire: The parents of all four-year-olds in the Normanton constituency will be given a voucher that can be exchanged for good quality pre-school education.

Mr. O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what provision will be made for nursery places in the Normanton constituency when the nursery voucher scheme is introduced. [33640]

Mr. Squire: My right hon. Friend has invited local authorities to volunteer their areas for phase 1 of the nursery voucher scheme. Parents of every four-year-old in local education authorities that are selected for phase 1 will receive a voucher for pre-school education which they will be able to use from April 1996. Full implementation will be from April 1997.

Teachers' Pensions

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what plans she has to privatise the teachers' pension fund.

Mr. Robin Squire: My right hon. Friend has no such plans. In my announcement of 7 June, Official Report, columns 205-7, I said that, whether or not we let a contract to administer the teachers' superannuation scheme, the scheme itself will stay in the public sector, on its current statutory basis. The scheme is unfunded.

Teachers' Pay

Sir John Hannam: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will make a statement about teachers' pay in 1995–96. [34088]

Mrs. Gillian Shephard: I am today laying before Parliament a pay and conditions order bringing the provisions of the school teachers' pay and conditions document 1995 into force from 1 September 1995. Copies of the order are being sent to local education authorities, the chairmen of governors of grant-maintained schools and the teachers' and employers' associations. I have already implemented the 2.7 per cent. pay award for teachers by a first pay and conditions order in April.

The school teachers' pay and conditions document 1995 was published on 28 June, following detailed consultation with the teachers' and employers' associations and representatives of the governors of voluntary schools and grant-maintained schools. The document sets out the statutory pay and conditions of service for teachers in maintained schools in England and Wales.

Disabled Students

Sir John Hannam: To ask the Secretary of State for Education when the interim report of the further and higher education review programme announced on 27 March 1995 will be available. [34089]

Mrs. Gillian Shephard: The Government announced on 27 March 1995 details of a review of the effectiveness of further and higher education legislation in meeting the needs of students with learning difficulties and disabilities.

The review has offered the Government the chance to work with the funding councils, representative bodies for higher education and organisations for the disabled to ensure that the legislative framework continues to meet the needs of students with disabilities.

Copies of the interim report have been placed in the House of Commons Library today.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Further Education (Buildings)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what standards set by which bodies further education college buildings are obliged to meet; and to what extent they meet their criteria. [32905]

Mr. Ancram: Existing further education buildings would have been subject to the building regulations in force at the time they were provided. The Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1994 apply to all new college buildings. The Department of Education for Northern Ireland does not prescribe specific standards, but it offers advice and guidance on the design and provision of such buildings.

Human Rights

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to produce a discussion or consultation paper on human rights in Northern Ireland, and what assessment he has made of the political contribution of such a paper to the peace process. [323691]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: The Government stand ready to produce papers on a range of issues likely to arise in future political talks—including human rights—if requested to do so by the participants.

I also hope that the parties to the talks will be ready to set out their own ideas for developing, in ways appropriate under a new political settlement, the extensive existing range of safeguards for human rights.

Higher Education

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if it is his policy that a higher proportion of students from within Northern Ireland than from outside the Province should be able to find a higher education place within the Province; and what is his target figure for each category. [32907]

Mr. Ancram: It is for the higher education institutions themselves to determine admissions policy. In 1993–94, some 82.1 per cent. of full-time undergraduate new entrants to higher education courses in Northern Ireland were of Northern Ireland domicile.

Higher Education (Springvale)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he has now completed his study of the feasibility of establishing a university campus at Springvale; and if he will make the conclusions public. [32909]

Mr. Ancram: The economic appraisal commissioned by my right hon. and learned Friend to consider the university of Ulster's proposal to establish a campus a Springvale is nearing completion. The Secretary of State will wish to consider the findings, alongside other advice, before making his conclusions public in due course.

Nursery Education

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how child care provision and its financing in Northern Ireland will be affected by the Government's proposals for voucher schemes in nursery education; [33826]

(2) how his proposals for nursery education in Northern Ireland will differ from those announced by the Secretary of State for Education. [33825]

Mr. Ancram: The aim in Northern Ireland, as in the rest of the United Kingdom, will be to ensure that all four-year-olds have access to good-quality education. In implementing the initiative here, the Government have to take account of the distinctive features of the Northern Ireland education system—in particular, the different arrangements for compulsory school age. In Northern Ireland, any child whose fourth birthday falls on or before 1 July in a given year starts compulsory primary education in September of that same year. This is different from the position in England, and pre-school arrangements need to take this into account.

The initiative will be based on a system of vouchers for pre-school provision which will give purchasing power to parents and promote consumer choice. More specifically, the parents of four-year-olds who are not statutorily required to attend primary school will be entitled to a voucher for pre-school provision to cover the period from the beginning of the term after their fourth birthday until they reach compulsory school age; the voucher can be used for nursery education, reception class provision, private nurseries or playgroups; it will be exchangeable for a part-time place in a nursery school or private nursery or a full-time place in a playgroup or reception class and its value will be capable of being topped up by parents to meet the costs of a greater level of provision, if they wish it, in either the private or voluntary sectors; and it will be capable of being redeemed only if the provision offered is of a satisfactory educational standard. There will be inspections to ensure that that is so.

As all children begin compulsory schooling in Northern Ireland at the start of the relevant school year, the number of terms of pre-school education will vary depending on when the child's fourth birthday falls. Parents in Northern Ireland will therefore be issued with a voucher which reflects their child's entitlement.

I would stress that these are the entitlements that are conferred by this initiative. It will be open to nursery schools, for example, to offer additional provision where places are available and, of course, it will be open to parents to pay for additional provision in the voluntary or private sectors if they so wish.

I plan that the scheme will be introduced into Northern Ireland in 1997 in line with the proposals for England. Before then there will be consultation with all interested parties on the details of how the initiative will be implemented, including such matters as the standards that must be achieved by those institutions that will be allowed to redeem vouchers, and the inspection arrangements which will apply.

In conclusion, I would stress that this is a major initiative in pre-school education in Northern Ireland. At present, almost half the four-year-olds in Northern Ireland either have no pre-school provision or their parents have to pay for such provision in the private or voluntary sectors. This initiative will for the first time provide the opportunity for all four-year-olds who do not start primary school in the term following their fourth birthday to avail themselves of pre-school education, which will be guaranteed to be of real educational value to them. Importantly, this is being achieved not by cutting back on existing education budgets but by an injection of new money—over £8 million in a full year—to cover the costs. I am sure this will be welcomed by all those interested in the welfare and education of our children as the most significant single initiative we have ever undertaken at this vital stage in our children's development.

Disruptive Pupils

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) research he has conducted into the scale of the problem of disruptive pupils in Northern Ireland, (b) guidance he has given to education and library boards about remedies and (c) cross-board initiatives he has planned. [33827]

Mr. Ancram: While no specific research has been conducted into the scale of the problem of disruptive pupils in Northern Ireland, the Department of Education is aware from reports from the inspectorate of the general standards of behaviour in schools throughout the Province. A pilot project aimed at developing strategies to help them improve standards of discipline has been operating in a number of primary and secondary schools in Belfast during the past three years. The department will discuss with the education and library boards and other interested parties what more might be done to support schools and how the strategies developed in the pilot project might be disseminated to all schools in Northern Ireland.

Class Sizes

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland by how much average class sizes have risen in colleges of further education in the past five years. [33786]

Mr. Ancram: The average class sizes over the past five years are set out in the list:

1989–90: 15.2

1990–91: 16.2

1991–92: 15.5

1992–93: 15.3

1993–94: 15.2

Mobile Classrooms

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has for a structured programme for the replacement of mobile classrooms at Northern Ireland's schools. [33824]

Mr. Ancram: The replacement of mobile classrooms by permanent accommodation has a high priority in my Department's capital programme and will continue to be addressed within the confines of capital resources at my disposal.

Lecturing Staff

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information he has about the number of full-time and part-time lecturing staff in colleges of further education in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [33785]

Mr. Ancram: The information is as follows:

	Full-time lecturers	Part-time lecturers
1990–91	2,192	2,827
1991–92	2,174	2,375
1992–93	2,186	2,346
1993–94	2,199	2,562
1994–95	2,153	3,205

National Vocational Qualification System

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what mechanisms exist for the external verification of the NVQ system in Northern Ireland; how many staff are employed in this matter; and how they are deployed. [33787]

Mr. Ancram: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Training and Employment Agency under its chief executive, Mr. J. S. Crozier. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from J. S. Crozier to Mr. Tony Worthington, dated 7 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked me, as Chief Executive of the Agency, to reply to your question about which mechanisms exist for the external verification fo the NVtion system in Northern Ireland; how many staff are employed in this matter; and how they are deployed.

As in England and Wales, the overall responsibility for the quality assurance of the NVQ system in Northern Ireland rests with the National Council or Vocational Qualifications (NCVQ). However, at operational level, NCVQ works with, and through, Awarding Bodies such as BTEC, City & Guilds, RSA etc who are required to have a process by which they can continuously monitor the consistency and quality of the NVQ assessment system and its support structures.

Awarding Bodies are responsible for verifying that assessment is carried out systematically, validly and to national standards. This is achieved through the use of External Verifiers appointed by the Awarding Body.

Awarding Bodies are required to review the reports of their External Verifiers and to prepare annual consolidated reports which are then made available to NCVQ.

Information on the number of staff who are employed in External Verification and how they are deployed is not available to the Agency, but is a matter for each Awarding Body.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Pensions

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the pension, on retirement, of an average earner in each member state of the European Union, expressed as a percentage of final earnings. [31869]

Mr. Heald: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the average income of pensioners, on retirement, in each member state of the European Union, expressed as a percentage of final earnings. [31868]

Mr. Heald: The information is not available in the required format.

However, recent independent research[1] comparing 11 countries—including eight EU member states—shows the UK has one of the lowest proportions of older people with incomes below 40 per cent. of average income. The UK has a more equal distribution of income among its older population, and a more effective benefit safety net than many other major industrial countries.

[1]Incomes and living standards of older people: a comparative analysis by Peter Whiteford and Steven Kennedy, Social Policy Research Unit, University of York, published as DSS Research Report no 34, 1995.

Social Fund

Mr. Brandreth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he intends to publish his annual report on the social fund for 1994–95 and the social fund commissioner's annual report; and if he will make a statement. [34126]

Mr. Roger Evans: The Secretary of State's annual report on the social fund for 1994–95—CM 2885—was published today and has been laid before Parliament. The report records that the gross budget allocated to the discretionary part of the fund at 1 April 1994 was £353 million, and that a further £15 million was allocated to the discretionary loans budget during the course of the year. Total gross expenditure in 1994–95 was £451 million, £9 million higher than in 1993–94 and was the highest annual level of expenditure since the fund was set up in 1988. This included 1.9 million non-repayable grants and interest-free loans worth £366 million and funeral, maternity and cold weather payments worth £85 million.

For the current year, we have increased the gross discretionary budget to £406 million, an increase of £53 million since 1 April 1994. Cold weather payments will also increase from £7 to £8.50 from 1 November 1995.

The cost of funeral payments has risen dramatically in the last five years. Proposals to limit social fund funeral payments to £875 were considered by the Social Security Advisory Committee. On the basis of the recommendations in its report, the Secretary of State introduced a new social fund funeral payment scheme from 5 June 1995 which places a ceiling on the amount payable for specified funeral directors' services but which ensures that the reasonable costs of other necessary disbursements, such as the cost of cremation or burial, will be met in full. These new arrangements mean that funeral payments, especially in the case of burials, could still exceed £1,000.

The social fund commissioner's annual report has also been published today and copies placed in the Library.

Mr. William O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment he has made of the consistency of the local social fund guidance with his Department's guidance; and if he will make a statement. [33688]

Mr. Evans: In January this year, the Benefits Agency issued a bulletin to its district offices about local social fund guidance. This emphasised the need for local guidance to be as consistent as possible with the Secretary of State's guidance, while reflecting local factors, and contained advice on how guidance should be drawn up. The Benefits Agency will be evaluating the impact of this revised local guidance. I understand that the Wakefield district has revised its guidance following issue of the bulletin.

Mortgage Interest

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if interest loans taken out for the purposes of energy conservation to a dwelling occupied as the home will be eligible for payment through income support under the Social Security (Income Support and Claims and Payments) Amendment Regulations 1995; and if he will make a statement. [32925]

Mr. Roger Evans: I will write to the hon. Member shortly.

Income Support

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many recipients of income support in each region and as a percentage of the total had reductions made from their benefit for (a) poll tax arrears, (b) fuel bills and (c) social fund loan repayments in each year since 1990. [32927]

Mr. Roger Evans: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Darlington (Mr. Milburn) on 1 May, Official Report columns 100-111.

Income-related Benefit Recipients

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was (a) the number of children, and (b) the number of children as a proportion of all families that were living in families dependent on income-related benefits for each year since 1979 for each region. [32928]

Mr. Roger Evans: Information is not available on a consistent basis for all benefits or prior to 1991. The information that is available is set out in the tables. Data on population are not yet available for 1994.

DEFENCE

Former Yugoslavia

Mr. Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent progress has been made concerning the setting up of a rapid reaction force for former Yugoslavia. [32730]

Mr. Soames: The formation of UNPROFOR's rapid reaction force is continuing. The multi-national brigade, which includes a British battalion group, is assembling in Bosnia, and initial support elements of 24 Airmobile Brigade deployed to theatre last weekend. Other components of the brigade will follow, in a phased deployment, over the next few weeks.

Australasia 95

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which Royal Navy ships are taking part in Australasia 95; which ports the ships are designated to visit on which dates; and what equipment is being carried on the ship for demonstration to potential overseas buyers. [33024]

Mr. Soames: HMS Monmouth, HMS Sheffield and RFA Brambleleaf are taking part in the Australasia 95 deployment. HMS Trenchant, HMS Plover and RFA Diligence are participating with the Australasia 95 ships in some visits and exercises. Between them, the ships are visiting some 25 ports in almost 20 countries. No additional equipment is being carried for sales demonstrations, although appropriate opportunities are being taken to show potential buyers the excellence of Royal Navy ships and equipment.

Iran-Iraq War

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has held with his Chinese counterpart in regard to the provision of munitions to the combatants during the Iran-Iraq war by factories based in China but funded by N.M. Rothschild Bank. [32888]

Mr. Arbuthnot [holding answer 6 July 1995]: I am aware of no such discussions.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what further reports his Department has received to indicate that British arms firms sold arms to Iran via Singapore during the Iran-Iraq arms embargo; if he will list those companies involved; and if he will make a statement. [29465]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 20 June 1995]: Following the statement by the President of the Board of Trade on BMARC, Departments have, as a prudent measure, started to research some associated areas of defence exports to Singapore. It is too early to draw even tentative conclusions. Any evidence of illegal activity will of course be brought immediately to the attention of Customs and Excise, the independent prosecuting authority, for its consideration.

Sexual Harassment

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints of sexual harassment have been filed by service women in the Army, Navy and RAF in the last 10 years; in how many cases disciplinary proceedings were instituted; and what were the results of these proceedings. [32667]

Mr. Soames: My noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State will write to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the procedure followed when a complaint is received from a service woman of sexual harassment. [32668]

Mr. Soames: The policy of the armed forces is that sexual harassment will not be tolerated and complaints are taken very seriously. Complaints are to be investigated sensitively and as quickly as possible. An informal complaint may be made and resolved at unit level. Formal complaints can be made through the redress of complaint procedure established under the Service Discipline Acts. Normally a complaint would be dealt with by the commanding officer, but if it cannot be resolved at that level or the complainant is dissatisfied, it may be referred up the chain of command and ultimately to the Admiralty, Army or Air Force Board. In addition, officers may ask for a service board's decision to be referred to the Sovereign. Following an amendment to the Sex Discrimination Act 1975, service personnel have since 1 February 1995 been able to make complaints direct to an industrial tribunal with a three-month time limit, in line with the provision for civilian employees. If complaints are upheld, appropriate disciplinary or administrative action would be taken against those found responsible.

Portland Naval Base

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what undertakings have been given by his Department regarding future liability for environmental pollution at Portland naval base; and if he will make a statement. [32956]

Mr. Soames: No undertakings regarding future liability for environmental pollution of Her Majesty's naval base Portland have been given by my Department.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if a clause has been inserted in the sale contract for Portland naval base allowing his Department to obtain a share of any future development gain; and if he will make a statement. [32957]

Mr. Soames: A clause has been inserted in the sale contract to protect the interests of my Department and the taxpayer against any future development gains.

Surplus Land and Property

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those personnel who have left his Department in the last five years to join organisations subsequently involved in the purchase of surplus MoD property; and if he will make a statement. [32962]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is not available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the surplus land and buildings that have been on sale for over three years; if he will give the date when they were first proposed for sale; if he will give the current position over their disposal; and if he will make a statement. [32958]

Mr. Soames: Two sites, at RAF Northolt and Tern Hill in Shropshire, have been the subject of discussions on their sale to the highway authorities for more than three years. A number of other sites have not been sold, more than three years after being identified for disposal, for a variety of reasons such as the resolution of planning applications or the adoption of utilities services. These sites have not been on sale throughout that period.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 225, if he will list those estate agents and other specialists known to him to have advised his Department on the disposal of surplus land and buildings. [32959]

Mr. Soames: I have nothing to add to the reply that I gave the hon. Member on 18 April, Official Report, column 225.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if a list of estate agents and other specialists called in to advise the Defence Land Agency on the disposal has now been compiled, as foreshadowed in his answer to the hon. Member for Romsey and Waterside, (Mr. Colvin) on 27 October 1993, Official Report, column 701. [32960]

Mr. Soames: The then Under-Secretary of State for Defence wrote to the hon. Member for Romsey and Waterside (Mr. Colvin) on 8 November 1993 and a copy of his letter was placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many estate agents and other specialists called in to advise his Department on the sale of surplus property over the last five years have subsequently purchased MOD property themselves; if he will list the transactions; and if he will make a statement. [32961]

Mr. Soames: Records are not maintained in the form requested and the information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 15 May, on applications from DESO to work in the private sector, Official Report, column 51, if he will name the civil sector company involved. [32965]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The individual concerned was given approval to accept a non-executive directorship in a small steel group with no defence or defence-related interests.

Royal Dockyards

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if a clause will be inserted in the sale contracts for the Royal Naval dockyards to allow his Department a share in any future development gain; and if he will make a statement. [32964]

Mr. Arbuthnot: No decision to sell either royal dockyard has been taken. Should either transaction proceed, appropriate provision will be made for my Department to share in future development gain.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the progress of the sale of the Devonport and Rosyth royal naval dockyards. [32963]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I refer the hon. Member to the opening paragraphs of the answer that was given to the hon. Member for Dunfermline, West (Ms Squire) on 3 July, Official Report, columns 84-90.

Northumberland and National Park

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what construction work has taken place as a consequence of his Department's decision to train with artillery system 90 and multiple launch rocket system guns in Northumberland national park at (a) Catterick, (b) the Otterburn training area and (c) other locations. [33357]

Mr. Soames: None.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenditure has been incurred by his Department on military installations and infrastructure as a consequence of his Department's decision to train with artillery system 90 and multiple launch rocket systems gun in Northumberland national park at (a) Catterick, (b) the Otterburn training area and (c) other locations. [33358]

Mr. Soames: None.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of (a) the method to be employed for transporting the artillery system 90 and multiple launch rocket system guns from their bases to the Otterburn training area and (b) the cost of any facilitating engineering work needed. [33359]

Mr. Soames: The movement implications have been addressed in the environmental impact assessment. The only practical means of moving artillery system 90 and multiple launch rocket system guns from their bases to the Otterburn training area is by use of military tank transporters or civilian low loaders. Vehicles can, however, travel on their own tracks for short journeys of less than 50 miles.

The cost of facilitating works cannot be calculated until our notice of proposed development has been considered by the Northumberland national park authority and, assuming planning consent is granted, any conditions applied to the approval have been properly costed.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he has made a decision in principle to fire the artillery system 90 and multiple launch rocket system guns at Otterburn training area in Northumberland national park. [33363]

Mr. Soames: Yes, subject to planning clearance for the necessary infrastructure developments.

Environmental Policy

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the environmental implications of "Options for Change"; and if he will make a statement. [33360]

Mr. Soames: "Options for Change" involved reductions and changes in the structures of the armed forces. Where these changes involved major developments or intensification of use of the defence estate the environmental implications would normally have been considered on a case by case basis.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the environmental implications for the practices of his Department of the Secretary of State for the Environment's guidance document, "Policy Appraisal and the Environment". [33361]

Mr. Soames: In line with Government policy and guidance contained in such documents as the Department of the Environment's "Policy Appraisal and the Environment", my Department seeks to identify, assess and where practicable minimise the environmental impacts of its current and planned activities. The senior environmental forum within my Department, which is chaired by the Green Minister, seeks to ensure that environmental considerations are integrated into all aspects of our policy formulation.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to produce environmental statements for all defence-related infrastructure projects where national security would not be jeopardised by doing so. [33362]

Mr. Soames: My Department is already committed to conducting environmental impact assessments for all major projects and where new, renewed or intensified use is to be made of training areas.

Water Supplies

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) for which sites vacated in the last 10 years his Department continue to incur the cost of supplying water; and if he will state the costs involved for each site; [33367]

(2) what has been the annual cost of supplying water to sites owned by his Department in each of the last 10 years; and what volume of water has been supplied to such sites in each year; [33366]

(3) how many (a) people and (b) properties otherwise unassociated with his Department have been permitted to connect into his Department's water supply network in each of the last 10 years; and what volume of water has been thus consumed in each of the last 10 years; [33368]

(4) what has been the cost to his Department in each of the last 10 years of connecting into his Department's water supply network properties otherwise unassociated with his Department; what financial return his Department has received; and what water provision is made by his Department for such properties in the event of the closure of the related site; [33364]

(5) what has been the cost of (a) repairing and (b) ensuring the potability of his Department's water supply network in each of the last 10 years; and by whom are the activities cited in (a) and (b) conducted. [33365]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

British Products

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of British-made defence products his Department purchases. [33355]

Mr. Arbuthnot: As recorded in figure 13 of the "Statement on the Defence Estimates 1995", Cm 2800, we estimate that over the last five years 91 per cent. of my Department's equipment expenditure has been direct with United Kingdom prime contractors—79 per cent.—or on collaborative projects—12 per cent.—where UK industry's work share will generally correspond with my Department's expenditure.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what assessment he has made of the percentage of United Kingdom industry's (a) aerospace output, (b) shipbuilding output, (c) electronics output and (d) ordnance output purchased by his Department. [33356]

Mr. Arbuthnot: My Department does not regularly monitor the total output of these industrial sectors. However, it has been estimated that, in 1991, the proportion of the output of these sectors which comprised both sales to my Department and defence exports was as follows:

(a) aerospace: 40 per cent.
(b) shipbuilding: 50 per cent.
(c) electronics: 13 per cent.
(d) ordnance: 90 per cent.

Horses

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the annual cost of horse training for the armed forces; where horse training is undertaken; and how many horses are trained each year. [33780]

Mr. Soames: The annual cost of horse training for the armed forces is less than £350,000. Horse training is initially carried out at the defence animal centre at Melton Mowbray. Further training is carried out by the Household Cavalry Mounted Regiment at Knightsbridge and Windsor and the King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery at St. John's Wood. An average of 40 horses are trained each year.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the annual cost of (a) maintaining armed forces horses and (b) equipment for armed forces horses. [33781]

Mr. Soames: The annual cost of maintaining armed forces horses is approximately £825,000, including the purchase of food, bedding, medical supplies and shoeing. The cost of equipment for armed forces horses is approximately £160,000 per annum. This figure excludes ceremonial equipment, the costs of which are not recorded centrally and could be identified only at disproportionate cost.

Official Cars

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on new cars for senior members of the armed forces in each of the last five years; what makes of cars have been acquired; and which grades of officers and how many in each grade qualify to use them. [33782]

Mr. Soames: The number of vehicles purchased and the amount spent in each of the last five financial years on staff cars for senior officers is as follows:

1991–92: nil
1992–93: 131 at a cost of £1.7 million
1993–94: 7 at a cost of £0.1 million
1994–95: nil
1995–96: nil

The make of vehicle procured in 1992–93 and 1993–94 was the Rover 825D.

At present, the number and grades of officers who qualify for dedicated staff cars are as follows: two at five star level; 16 at four star; 18 at three star; 65 at two star; and two at one star. In addition senior officers not entitled to a dedicated staff car can call on a pool of vehicles which are available for official use.

Military Exports

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the countries to which the United Kingdom has sold military arms or equipment with Government support during the last three years. [32674]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The Defence Export Services Organisation within my Department exists to help United Kingdom defence industries to export. DESO assistance has been an important factor in the achievement of military export orders worth on average some £4.5 billion in each of the last five years. The presence and degree of such assistance, however, varies from contract to contract and it would not be practical to produce a list of countries to which UK military exports had been made with assistance from DESO.

Bulldog Aircraft

Mr. John Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to replace the Bulldog aircraft currently in service with the Royal Air Force. [33110]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The British Aerospace Bulldog aircraft has served the Royal Air Force well for over 20 years. The current principal users of the Bulldog are the university air squadrons, and the aircraft is planned to remain in service until at least the year 2010. The Royal Air Force is currently investigating a number of options bearing on the future of the Bulldog fleet and delivery of flying to university air squadrons and air experience flights. As the then Minister said in debate on the Royal Air Force on 4 May 1995, Official Report, column 455, we shall carefully examine the economics of replacing the Bulldog compared with those of other options. If, as a result, a recommendation is made that the Bulldog fleet should be replaced before 2010 then a full competition would be needed to select the most suitable replacement.

ENVIRONMENT

Ministerial Visits

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by him, or ministerial colleagues in his Department, paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied him and the total cost in each case, including that of officials, to public funds for each year since 1992. [32260]

Mr. Gummer: The information available, which relates to the period since I became Secretary of State, is set out in the table. Information concerning the officials attending is not held centrally, although the costs shown include any costs incurred by private secretaries accompanying Ministers. I should like to thank Ministers and civil servants who have represented the UK so effectively on these occasions and contributed to making us the world leader in environmental protection and a major exporter of environmentally friendly technology. I hope that, in the coming year, we shall be able to do even more to promote British business and British interests in the rest of Europe and abroad.

Parishes

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he will announce his decision on the recommendations of the Local Government Commission to grant parish council status to the city of Salisbury. [32096]

Sir Paul Beresford [holding answer Monday 3 July 1995]: In the light of the commission's recommendations and the representations my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment has received, he has decided that the following areas should be parished:

County	Name of proposed parish
Berkshire	Newbury
Cornwall	St. Germans
	Seaton and Downderry
Devon	Exmouth
County Durham	Haswell
	South Hetton
East Sussex	Rottingdean
Essex	Loughton
	Buckhurst Hill
	Chigwell
	Great Burstead and South Green
	Little Burstead
	Ramsden Bellhouse
	Ramsden Crays
	Billericay
	Leigh on Sea
	Rayleigh
Gloucestershire	Charlton Kings
Hampshire	Bishopstoke
	Sarisbury
	Warsash
Hereford and Worcester	Malvern
Kent	Deal
	Dover
	Great Mongeham
	Walmer
	Herne and Broomfield
Leicestershire	Great Bowden
	Earl Shilton
Northumberland	Ulgham
	Widdrington Station and Stobswood
Nottinghamshire	Ollerton and Boughton

The commission also recommended the creation of a number of large parishes. My right hon. Friend has carefully considered the advantages of giving these communities the opportunity to exercise the powers enjoyed by parish councils, balances against the potential for conflict between such large parishes and the existing districts or new unitary authorities, and the greater likelihood that larger parishes would fail to reflect small, distinctive and recognisable communities. He has concluded that the following recommendations by the Local Government Commission should be rejected:

County	Name of proposed parish
Buckinghamshire	Aylesbury
	High Wycombe
Dorset	Christchurch
Kent	Folkestone
Oxfordshire	Banbury
Somerset	Bridgwater
Wiltshire	Salisbury

My right hon. Friend now proposes to undertake a review of the guidance on the size of parishes which is set out in Department of Environment circular 121/77. As part of that review, he will consider what other criteria should be taken into account in deciding whether parishes should be created, and the weight that those criteria should be given. Subject to the outcome of that review, he will decide then whether to direct the commission to proceed with the further parish reviews it has proposed.

In the light of the representations received about the commission's recommendations for new parishes in the district of Havant in Hampshire and in Surrey, my right hon. Friend will also ask the commission to look again at parishing arrangements in those areas in due course.

My right hon. Friend has also agreed the following minor transfers of land between parishes which were recommended by the commission:

County	Transfer
Lincolnshire Swinderby and Swinethorpe	Transfer of land between parishes.
North Yorkshire Sciven and Farnham	Transfer of land between parishes.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he will announce his decisions about the Local Government Commission's recommendations for the creation of new parishes. [34284]

Mr. Gummer: In the light of the commission's recommendations and the representations I have received, I have decided that the following areas should be parished:

County	Name of proposed parish
Berkshire	Newbury
Cornwall	St. Germans
	Seaton and Downderry
Devon	Exmouth
County Durham	HaswellSouth Hetton
East Sussex	Rottingdean
Essex	Loughton

	Walmer
	Herne and Broomfield
Leicestershire	Great Bowden
	Earl Shilton
Northumberland	Ulgham
	Widdrington Station and Stobswood
Nottinghamshire	Ollerton and Boughton

The commission also recommended the creation of a number of larger parishes. I have carefully considered the advantages of giving these communities the opportunity to exercise the powers enjoyed by parish councils, balanced against the potential for conflict between such large parishes and the existing districts or new unitary authorities, and the greater likelihood that larger parishes would fail to reflect small, distinctive and recognisable communities. I have concluded that the following recommendations by the Local Government Commission should be rejected:

County	Name of proposed parish
Buckinghamshire	Aylesbury

I now propose to undertake a review of the guidance on the size of parishes which is set out in Department of the Environment circular 121/77. As part of that review I shall consider what other criteria should be taken into account in deciding whether parishes should be created, and the weight those criteria should be given. Subject to the outcome of that review I will decide then whether or not to direct the commission to proceed with the further parish reviews it has proposed.

In the light of the representations received about the commission's recommendations for new parishes in the district of Havant in Hampshire and in Surrey, I will also ask the commission to look again at parishing arrangements in those areas in due course.

Air Quality

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) if he will implement the recommendation of the first report of the quality of urban air review group in respect of an enhanced urban network monitoring station for Coventry; [32807]

(2) if all the sites identified in the first report of the quality of urban air review group have or will have an enhanced urban network monitoring station; [32805]

(3) if he will reimburse Coventry the running costs of Coventry's OPSIS system to monitor air quality pending the installation of an enhanced urban network monitoring station; [32809]

(4) when Coventry will have an enhanced urban network monitoring station. [32806]

Mr. Clappison: Of the 24 towns and cities identified in the first report of the quality of urban air review group, QUARG, as priorities for air quality monitoring, 22 have, or will have, a Department of the Environment funded automatic urban monitoring station by the end of 1996. The location of two further sites will be announced later this year.

Meanwhile, the Government have announced their intention to integrate 35 local authority sites into a harmonised national network. The decision on the location of the two new centrally funded sites will therefore also take account of the results of consultation on which such sites should be integrated.

The Government have made no commitment to reimburse local authorities for the costs of any air quality monitoring which they may themselves already have introduced.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what advice he gives to Coventry in the absence of an enhanced urban network monitoring station in the respect of the monitoring of air quality. [32808]

Mr. Clappison: The Government published "Air Quality—Meeting the Challenge" on 19 January 1995, setting out their strategic proposals for assessing and managing air quality in the UK. The Government have introduced amendments to the Environment Bill to implement their proposals. The amendments provide for a national strategy for air quality and a new system of local air qualify management under which local authorities will assess air quality in their area and, where it falls short of targets, declare air quality management areas and produce a remedial plan. The Government intend to issue guidance to all local authorities, including Coventry, on how to undertake such an assessment at around the end of this year.

The Government are proceeding at the same time with expansion of UK air quality monitoring networks, including the integration of 35 local authority monitoring sites. In addition, the Department of the Environment will fund 13 new automatic urban monitoring stations to be set up by the end of 1996. The location of 11 of these sites has already been determined. The locations of the other two will be announced later this year.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement as to the progress being made to improve air quality if Coventry and the west midlands. [32810]

Mr. Clappison: The Government have introduced amendments to the Environment Bill to implement a new framework for air quality management and expect to publish later this year their draft strategy for improving air quality throughout the United Kingdom.

Secondary Liquid Fuels

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what discussions he has had with the Health and Safety Executive concerning the burning of waste products as fuels for cement kilns; and if he will make a statement. [33095]

Mr. Clappison: Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution has consulted the Health and Safety Executive on the permanent burning of secondary liquid fuels in cement plants at Clitheroe and Barrington. It will do so for other plants where an application for permanent burning is received.

Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the consequences of burning waste products as fuels for cement kilns for communities near cement factories. [33094]

Mr. Clappison: The burning of substitute fuels based on waste products in cement kilns is currently allowed by Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution for short-term trials only. This is being done under a strict regime of controls and extensive monitoring as announced by the Minister for the Environment and Countryside in answer to a parliamentary question of 23 June 1994. HMIP will not allow the permanent burning of substitute fuels if there is any net adverse environmental effect.

Rent-to-mortgage Scheme

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to his answer of 6 December 1994, Official Report, column 131, how many rent-to-mortgage sales have now been completed. [33240]

Mr. Clappison: Local authorities in England reported 11 completed sales under rent-to-mortgage by the end of March 1995.

Staff Shareholdings

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the past five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33417]

Sir Paul Beresford: Ten officers have declared shareholdings further to the rules set out in my Department's staff handbook. The companies were:

Tarmac
Thames Water (3)
Anglian Water
Severn Trent Water
Yorkshire Water
South West Water
WRC plc
SERCO

Two of these were advised to dispose of their holdings. The companies concerned were Tarmac and WRC plc.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) how many contracts his Department has had with consultants; and what has been the total cost in each of the past five years; [33571]

(2) if he will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from his Department (a) by number of contracts and (b) monetary value in the last five years for which figures are available. [33438]

Sir Paul Beresford: The information requested is not held centrally by my Department and is obtainable only at disproportionate cost.

Cleveland

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what decision he has reached on the recommendation of the Local Government Commission that the county of Cleveland should be abolished and its area divided, for ceremonial and related purposes, between the historic counties of Durham and Yorkshire. [33838]

Mr. Gummer: In my answer of 18 January 1994 to the hon. Member for Langbaurgh (Mr. Bates), Official Report, column 581–82, I said that I had accepted in principle that the county of Cleveland should be abolished, but deferred a final decision until I had reached decisions on the commission's recommendations for Durham and North Yorkshire. In the light of my decisions on those two counties, and following consultation, I am now able to confirm my decision that the county of Cleveland should be abolished. I have also decided that, for ceremonial and related purposes, the county area north of the River Tees should be associated with County Durham, and the area south of the River Tees with North Yorkshire, restoring the traditional boundary between Durham and Yorkshire.

Offshore Industry (Environmental Impacts)

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make funds available for marine biologists to carry out independent assessments of the environmental impacts of the offshore oil and gas industry, separate to those commissioned by the industry itself. [31696]

Mr. Clappison: The offshore industry is required to carry out various environmental studies as part of the processes for approval of offshore activities. Information from such studies is reviewed by marine scientists at the relevant fisheries departments responsible for assessing the impact of the offshore industry on the marine environment.

Environment Council

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will place in the Library a full set of English translations of the documents discussed at the EU Environment Council on 22 and 23 June; and on what date he expects to be able to do so. [31697]

Mr. Clappison: The documents discussed at the Council were Council working documents and are not depositable. However, some documents were made available to the Select Committee on European Legislation on an informal basis to assist with scrutiny procedures, as no recent depositable texts were available. Of these documents, the French version of one text had earlier been attached to an unnumbered explanatory memorandum for the same reason. The English translation of this text will be submitted to the House under cover of an addendum to the memorandum.

Inspectors

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many full-time Health and Safety Executive inspectors were employed in Scotland in each year since 1990–91. [33542]

Sir Paul Beresford: The table shows the number of full-time health and safety inspectors based in the Health and Safety Executive's field operations division area offices in Scotland:

Year (1 April)	Number
1990	79
1991	92
1992	98
1993	104
1994	106
1995	97

The figures comprise factory inspectors, agricultural inspectors, specialist inspectors, quarries inspectors and railway inspectors.

Welsh Correspondence

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his policy on signing correspondence written in Welsh. [33789]

Mr. Gummer: The hon. Gentleman has to the best of my knowledge never sent a communication to me in Welsh. Were he to do so I should be happy to reply in Welsh, but the hon. Gentleman may feel it best to forward a translation into English of his constituent's letter so that there is no misunderstanding between us as to the points raised.

Direct Labour and Service Organisations

Mr. Deva: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what further action he proposes to take against those local authorities whose direct labour and direct service organisations failed to meet their statutory financial objectives in 1993–94. [34236]

Sir Paul Beresford: On 11 April this year, 36 statutory notices were served on 25 local authorities concerning the failure of their direct labour and service organisations (DLOs/DSOs) to meet the required financial objective in 1993–94. My right hon. Friend has now considered the responses to those notices, and has today given directions to Carrick district council sports and leisure management; Cleveland county council, grounds maintenance; Croydon London borough council, grounds maintenance, sports and leisure management; Haringey London borough council, other catering; Kettering borough council, building maintenance; Leicestershire county council, grounds maintenance; Runnymede borough council, sports and leisure management; Scunthorpe borough council, refuse collection; South Lakeland district council, building maintenance and Watford borough council, other catering.

The directions take three different forms:

requiring the authority to retender all or part of the work, and to seek the Secretary of State's prior consent should they wish to award the work in-house. The work would need to be retendered or a new contract would need to have been awarded by specific dates: Carrick, sports and leisure management; Cleveland, grounds maintenance; Croydon London borough council, sports and leisure management; Haringey other catering; Leicestershire, grounds maintenance; Runnymede, sports and leisure management and Watford, other catering.

preventing the authority from carrying out the work if it fails to meet the required financial objective in 1995–96: South Lakeland, building maintenance.

requiring the authority to retender the work if it fails to meet the required financial objective in a specified financial year or years, and to seek the Secretary of State's prior consent where the work has to be retendered and where the authority subsequently wish to award the work in-house:

1995–96: Croydon, grounds maintenance; Scunthorpe, refuse collection.

1995–96 and 1996–97: Kettering, building maintenance.

The Secretary of State has also decided to take no further statutory action in respect of financial failure in 1993–94 by Avon, grounds maintenance; Barnsley, sports and leisure management; Derby, building cleaning, sports and leisure management; Doncaster, grounds maintenance; Ealing, other catering; Easington, grounds maintenance, highways and sewers, new construction over £50,000, other catering, other cleaning; Greenwich, building maintenance, Halton, building maintenance, grounds maintenance, other catering; North Hertfordshire, other cleaning; Reigate and Banstead, grounds maintenance; Stafford, building maintenance, other catering, other cleaning; Thanet, other catering; Walsall, highways and sewers and Wyre, building maintenance.

Decisions on Lincolnshire county council's failure to meet the financial objective for highways and sewers work, and Walsall metropolitan borough council's failure to meet the financial objective for other catering have been deferred and will be announced at a later date.

Eco-management and Audit Scheme

Mr. Booth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress has been made on registrations under the EC eco-management and audit scheme. [34285]

Mr. Gummer: I am delighted to be able to tell the hon. Gentleman that the National Accreditation Council for Certification Bodies has accredited the first three verifiers for the EC's eco-management and audit scheme. I congratulate the new verifiers, and I look forward to receiving the first applications for EMAS registration very shortly.

EMAS is an important initiative which provides a powerful voluntary framework for securing environmental improvements. I hope that businesses in the United Kingdom will respond positively and will be among the leaders in Europe in demonstrating a proactive approach to environmental issues.

Departmental Review

Sir Kenneth Carlisle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when the report of the review of the Department of the Environment will be issued. [34294]

Mr. Gummer: The report of the review of my Department is being issued today. It makes a number of recommendations concerning the structure, organisation and working methods of the Department. I have arranged for copies of the report to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

HEALTH

Administration Costs

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the cost of administration in the NHS within (a) trusts, (b) district health authorities, regional health authorities and family health service authorities and (c) in total, in real terms and as a percentage of total NHS expenditure in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1990–91. [30434]

Mr. Malone: The figures for administrative support in hospital departments, in trusts and at other levels, are regarded as operational expenditure and are not separately identifiable.

Changes over the years in the roles and responsibilities of FPCs, which became family health services authorities, in 1990, and RHAs and DHAs which started to transfer provider functions to NHS trusts in 1991–92, and together with changes in accounting policies, particularly the inclusion of capital charges in health authorities' administration and purchasing expenditure, mean that the following figures are not comparable. Additionally, there were differences in management practices, geographical size and the numbers of DHAs, FPCs/FHSAs within regions.

In 1990–91, the cost of administration in district health authorities, regional health authorities, and family practitioner committees, was £854,571,000, equivalent to £973,284,000 adjusted to 1993–94 prices; in 1993–94 the figure was £1,045,084,000. For an explanation of these figures, I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Darlington (Mr. Milburn) on 16 December 1994, columns 833–34. In 1990–91, revenue expenditure for the national health service was £19,826,937,000 equivalent to £22,581,196,000 adjusted to 1993–94 prices; in 1993–94, the figure was £27,627,018,000. In 1990–91, administration accounted for 4.31 per cent. of revenue expenditure and in 1993–94, 3.78 per cent.

Continuing Care

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he has taken to produce a seamless service between health authorities and social service departments in respect of the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990; if he will help set up a working party to (a) advise on best practice in working relationships between (i) community health councils, (ii) district health authorities and (iii) social services departments, (b) consider the benefits of introducing a unified purchaser organisation fully accountable to the public and (c) examine how the statutory remit of community health councils can be extended to enable them to monitor care in the community services provided by local authorities, and if he will make a statement. [32995]

Mr. Bowis: Local authority and health authority collaboration is crucial for the implementation of the community care arrangements. Local authorities have been required to reach agreements with health authorities on their respective responsibilities for long-term care and procedures for hospital discharge.

A multi-disciplinary working group looking at joint commissioning between local authorities and health authorities published two documents recently, "An introduction to joint commissioning" and "Practical guidance on joint commissioning for project leaders", copies of which are available in the Library.

We have no plans to establish a working party on collaboration between community health councils, district health authorities and social services departments.

Single integrated health authorities are being introduced from 1 April 1996. Codes of conduct and accountability were published last year and are mandatory for all NHS boards. Compliance is a condition of appointment for all board members, both executive and non-executive.

We have no plans to extend the role of CHCs to monitor mental health care in the community services provided by local authorities.

Guidance issued in January 1994, EL(94)4, acknowledged that the community care arrangements would require health and local authorities to work closely together in the planning and delivery of care services. As such, the guidance pointed out that CHCs may find it useful to discuss with local authority social services departments the role that they play in joint health and social services arrangements.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will withdraw his Department's publication in respect of guidance on NHS continuing care and issue a revised publication consistent with the principles of a comprehensive national health service free at the point of delivery and available on the basis of clinical need; and if he will make a statement. [33035]

Mr. Bowis: No. Once implemented, this guidance should lead to a substantial improvement in the provision of a full range of continuing health care services. As well as continuing in-patient care for people who need it, this includes specialist national health service support for people to meet their medical, nursing or other clinical needs, no matter where they live.

Eye Tests

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of restoring free eye tests to pensioners. [33142]

Mr. Malone: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave to the right hon. Member for Derby, South (Mrs. Beckett) on 19 January at column 638.

Prescriptions

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will guarantee the rights of rural general practitioners to dispense prescriptions irrespective of the opening of pharmacies in their locality. [33660]

Mr. Malone: The conditions which govern the rights of general practitioners to dispense medicines and appliances are contained in the National Health Service (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 1992, copies of which are available in the Library.

Leg Ulcers

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration his Department has given to making available on prescription the four-layer bandage system for the treatment of leg ulcers. [33076]

Mr. Sackville: No applications have been received for the prescribing of a product which incorporates the four types of item used within this system. The community health service may purchase any of the dressings, which can be used as individual components of the system, as well as a combined pack of four particular items.

Cardiologists

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his latest estimate of the number of specialist cardiologists in post in the NHS in England; and if he will list the numbers for each of the previous five years. [33325]

Mr. Malone: The available information is shown in the table.

Year	Consultant
1988	117.4
1989	127.3
1990	135.6
1991	147.8
1992	162.1
1993	180.3

Children Act 1989

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what percentage of standard spending assessment is earmarked to assist local authorities to implement the Children Act 1989; [33062]

(2) what representations he has received regarding the funding to councils to implement the Children Act 1989. [33063]

Mr. Bowis: Standard spending assessments are not earmarked for particular Acts. It is for local authorities to decide how to divide the overall resources at their disposal between individual services. Between 1990–91—the last full year before implementation of the Act—and 1992–93—the first full year after implementation—the standard spending assessment for children's services grew by 15 per cent. in real terms.

Residual Estate

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what has happened to properties and assets not vested by NHS trusts. [33935]

Mr. Sackville: Property and other assets not transferred to national health service trusts remain in the ownership of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State.

NHS Appointees

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what investigations his Department or the NHS executive has undertaken into conflicts of interest involving either trust board or health authority members. [33938]

Mr. Malone: None. Under the codes of conduct and accountability, chairmen and directors of national health service authorities and trusts are required to declare any private interests that are potentially material and relevant to NHS business and to have those interests recorded in board minutes and entered into a register.

Information Division

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the budget for staff and running costs, excluding expenditure on publicity, in the information division in his Department in each of the last 10 years. [33694]

Mr. Sackville: The available information, which excludes expenditure on publicity campaigns, is shown in the table. The information division now includes a public inquiry office and a central print unit which provides the Department with services for print and paper procurement and storage and distribution. The figures are therefore not comparable over the years.

Year	Manpower and running costs £ million
1989–90	0.890

Information for the years 1986–87 to 1988–89 is not available in form requested.

Departmental Staff

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the numbers and salaries of persons employed in the private offices of each of the Ministers, including the Secretary of State, in his Department. [33695]

Mr. Sackville: The number of staff employed in the private offices of Ministers of the Department of Health, including the office of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State, is 27.

The analysis of their salaries is:

Number of staff	Salary band £
12	10,000—14,999
10	15,000—19,999
3	20,000—24,999
2	40,000—49,999

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many accident and emergency departments have been temporarily closed in each of the last 24 months for (a) blue light admissions and (b) walking wounded cases; and if he will make a statement on (i) staff shortages and (ii) other causes of these incidents. [33696]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

Private Health Care

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 4 July, Official Report, column 105, if he will list for each NHS trust, the expenditure on the purchase of health care from non-NHS bodies, in each of the past four years. [33709]

Mr. Sackville: The latest available figures are for the financial year 1993–94. Figures for 1991–92, 1992–93, and 1993–94 will be placed in the Library.

Leaving Care

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what research his Department has carried out into the types of accommodation which young people go into on leaving care; [33834]

(2) what research his Department has carried out into the value and availability of leaving care grants. [33835]

Mr. Bowis: The Department commissioned a four-year study by Leeds university leaving care research team into schemes available to young people leaving care. This study was published on the 30 June 1995. Copies of the study will be placed in the Library.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33886]

Mr. Sackville: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33874]

Mr. Sackville: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The daily rates charged by firms of consultants would vary according to the number of consultants assigned to individual projects.

Clinical Negligence Claims

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 6 July, Official Report, column 340, if he will provide such information as is available on clinical negligence claims by trust. [33939]

Mr. Malone: Information about clinical negligence claims by trust is not available centrally.

Patient Care

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will institute an inquiry into the death of the patient from Slough who received cardiac surgery at the University hospital of Wales, Cardiff on Friday 7 July, into the shortage of intensive care beds allied with open heart surgery facilities and into the lack of a hospital to hospital information on bed availability. [33837]

Mr. Sackville: I have no plans to institute such an inquiry.

A study commissioned by the Department of Health from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine has shown that demand for intensive care beds can very and in some instances, beds are being used inappropriately.

The need for guidelines on admission to, and discharge from, intensive care is being considered by the Department of Health, together with representatives of the medical profession.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33868]

Mr. John M. Taylor: For the period 1 July 1994 to 30 June 1995, certain key elements of work completed under six external consultancy contracts were paid for at a daily rate exceeding £1,000.

The firms in question are:

Binder, Hamlyn and Fry

Ernst and Young

Kinsley Lord

KPMG

Office of Public Management

Price Waterhouse

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33865]

Mr. Taylor: The chief executives of the Land Registry and the Public Records Office will respond on behalf of their agencies. The chief executives of the Public Trust Office and Court Service will also respond on behalf of their agencies for expenditure from 1 July 1994 and 3 April 1995 respectively. Expenditure on computer consultancy for the remainder of the Department for the 1994–95 financial year was £387,574—see footnote. The information for earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Future expenditure on computer consultancy will be considered as the need arises.

Letter from Elizabeth Hallam Smith to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 12 July 1995:

EXPENDITURE ON COMPUTER CONSULTANCY

I have been asked by the Lord Chancellor's Parliamentary Secretary, in the absence on leave of the Chief Executive of the Public Record Office, to reply to your question about expenditure on computer consultancy.

The Public Record Office has spent the following sums on computer consultancy over the last five years:

1990–91: £45,743

1991–92: £150,861

1992–93: £442,151

1993–94: £240,703

1994–95: £63,325

Expected expenditure over the next five years is approximately £828,000.

Letter from Michael Huebner to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 12 July 1995:

COMPUTER CONSULTANCY

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to the above Question concerning the cost of computer consultancy.

I should first explain that the Court Service became an Executive Agency on 3 April this year. Information about the amount spent in the last financial year will therefore be provided by the Parliamentary Secretary. I understand that figures for previous years are not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The anticipated cost of computer consultancy for the Court Service in the current and following three financial years is as follows:

1995–96: £707,544

1996–97: £1,363,900

1997–98: £1,264,900

1998–99: £1,133,100

The requirements beyond these financial years are not yet known.

Letter from Julia C. Lomas to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 12 July 1995:

The Parliamentary Secretary has asked me to reply to you as part of the Lord Chancellor's Department's response to your Parliamentary Question. listed on 7 July 1995, regarding the spending on computer consultancy in the last five years and the expected expenditure over the next five years.

The Public Trust Office has spent no money on computer consultancy in the last five years. This year, however, we intend carrying out an Information System Strategy Study with the aid of consultants although it is not possible to forecast expenditure on this study at this stage.

Letter from John Manthorpe to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 12 July 1995:

I have been asked by the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department to reply to your recent question about the amount spent by this Agency on computer consultancy in the last five years, and the expected expenditure over the next five years. The details are as follows:-

1990–91: £11,403

1991–92: £40,803

1992–93: £33,547

1993–94: £29,023

1994–95: £45,261

Expected Expenditure:

1995–96: £151,000

1996–97: £147,000

1997–98: £150,000

1998–99: £115,000

1999–2000: £115,000

The increase in planned expenditure over previous years is due to three major new initiatives. These are the proposed outsourcing of the management of data communications for our Direct Access Service, the development of a business application for a National Land Information Service, and the development of a computer mapping system.

I do hope that this answers the points raised with the Parliamentary Secretary, but please contact me if I can be of any further assistance.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33897]

Mr. Taylor: The chief executives of the Land Registry and the Public Records Office will respond on behalf of their agencies. The chief executive of the Public Trust Office will also respond as appropriate on behalf of this agency for expenditure from 1 July 1994.

The firms which have been awarded computer consultancy contracts from the remainder of my Department during the 1994–95 financial year are shown on the table—see footnote.

Information for earlier financial year could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mental Incapacity

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department who is serving upon the Lord Chancellor's interdepartmental working party which is working on the Government's response to the Law Commission report on mental incapacity; which Departments they represent; and if he will list those court decisions which have found advance directives legally binding and which form the basis of policy in this area. [33976]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The working group is made up of officials from the Lord Chancellor's Department, the Department of Health, the Home Office, the Department of Social Security, the Welsh Office and the Treasury.

Certain forms of advance directive already have full legal effect at common law. The dicta in Re T (Adult Refusal of Treatment) [1993] Fam 95 together with those in Airedale Trust v. Bland [1993] AC 789 in both the Court of Appeal and the House of Lords indicate that an advance refusal which is "clearly established" and "applicable in the circumstances" may be as effective as the decision of a capable adult. The case of Re C (Adult Refusal of Treatment) [1994] 1 WLR 290 clarified the position.

Judicial Appointments

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department (1) what is the practice of the Lord Chancellor's Department in respect of the number of names provided to the Prime Minister in respect of each senior judicial appointment; [32862]

(2) how many names were offered to the Prime Minister in respect of the appointment of the Lord Chief Justice in 1992. [32863]

Mr. John M. Taylor: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on Monday 3 July, Official Report, column 18. It is not the practice to disclose information about communications between Ministers.

Small Claims Limit

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to raise the small claims limit; what is the proposed time scale; and what plans he has for a consultation period. [32706]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The small claims limit fell within the scope of the first stage of Lord Woolf's review of access to justice. During this review, Lord Woolf himself conducted an extensive consultation exercise including a programme of public seminars. A list of the individuals and organisations who contributed to the inquiry is annexed to the interim report, which was published last month. In view of that wide-ranging consultation, the Lord Chancellor does not intend to undertake further public consultation on the question of whether he should implement Lord Woolf's recommendation that the limit for small claims, other than those for personal injury, should be raised to £3,000. The power to make the necessary amendments rests with the county court rules committee which, as part of its consideration of the matter, will consult interested parties. No timetable has yet been set for the laying of a statutory instrument before the House.

Statutes

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will give the numbers and percentages of statutes from (a) 1990 and earlier, (b) 1985 and earlier and (c) 1980 and earlier whose provisions are not fully in force. [32942]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Of some 3,300 public general Acts which were enacted before the end of 1990, and remain on the statute book, approximately 100—3 per cent.—have not been brought fully into force. The figures for 1985 and 1980 are respectively 60 and 2 per cent. and 40 and 1 per cent.

PRIME MINISTER

Questions of Procedure for Ministers

Dr. Wright: To ask the Prime Minister how many members of the parliamentary Conservative party, including parliamentary private secretaries, unpaid Whips and others, were subject to collective responsibilityas defined in "Questions of Procedure for Ministers" on 4 July. [33651]

The Prime Minister: The 108 Members of the Conservative party who hold ministerial office.

Nursery Education

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his oral answer of 6 July, Official Report, columns 512–13, concerning the introduction of nursery education for all four year-olds, (1) by how many he expects the number of attendances of children of this age group to increase for each year commencing September 1996 up to 2000 due to (a) a reduction in the proportion of four year-old receiving full-time nursery education and (b) a reduction in the proportion of the three year-olds receiving full-time nursery education; [33979]

(2) what is the increase in the number of nursery school places he expects to be available for this age group for each year commencing September 1996 up to 2000 arising from (a) an increase in the number of qualified nursery school teachers and (b) places made available by a reduction in the proportion of attendances by three year-olds, full or part-time. [33980]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment on 6 July, Official Report, columns 517–19. The number and type of places which become available will depend on parental demand and providers' response to it. The proposed funding method will allow local education authorities and other providers to continue to supply as many full-time places and places for three-year-olds as they do now.

TREASURY

Voluntary Organisations

Miss Hoey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many voluntary sector organisations his Department has (a) paid grants to or (b) entered into contracts with in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) 1994–95; and what was the total value of these grants and contracts. [31302]

Mrs. Angela Knight: None.

Beverage Containers (Disposal)

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that the treatment of beverage containers confiscated by HM Customs and Excise conform with the Government's waste management strategy of reuse and recovery rather than disposal. [33221]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Customs and Excise is committed to support the Government's sustainable development strategy and this is reflected in the action that it has taken on the disposal of beverage containers.

Following a consultants' report on the best environmental options for the disposal of seized goods Customs intends to let a contract, or contracts, which will cover the disposal of beverage containers. It will seek the optimum recovery of liquor and packaging—glass, aluminium, cardboard and plastics—from these contracts.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33420]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The information requested is not held centrally.

Labour Statistics (Coventry)

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list separately, by each office of his Department, the numbers and grades of casuals, fixed appointments and vacancies in the Coventry travel-to-work area. [33777]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The Treasury has no offices in the Coventry travel-to-work area.

Pensioners (Tax)

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many pensioners pay tax at 40 per cent. [32523]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 4 July 1995]: Based on the latest estimates, only 1.5 per cent.—about 150,000 of the 10 million people aged 65 or over—are expected to pay income tax at 40 per cent. in 1995–96.

Income Tax Allowances

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what would be the cost of raising the personal income tax allowance by £500; and how many people would be removed from the tax net as a result. [32532]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 5 July 1995]: The direct revenue cost would be about £3.2 billion in a full year at 1995–96 income levels and about a million taxpayers would be removed from tax.

Value Added Tax

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) VAT registrations and (b) VAT deregistrations have taken place in each county area in each (i) financial year since 1989–90- and (ii) calendar year since 1989. [32985]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Customs and Excise holds registration and deregistration information by local offices and groups these offices to form collections. The following tables, which contain the information sought, reflect changes to the VAT registration and deregistration thresholds, particularly for the significant increase of 1991 and, to a lesser extent, that of December 1993.

The tables also represent any changes to collection boundaries over the years.

Public Sector Borrowing Requirement

Mr. Pearson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the difference in money terms and what has been the percentage change between the PSBR forecast at the time of the 1994 autumn Budget and the 1995 summer economic forecast estimates; and what are the main reasons for the difference. [33116]

Mr. Waldegrave [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The summer economic forecast for the PSBR in 1995–96 is £23½ billion. This is £2 billion higher than forecast at the time of the last Budget. As a proportion of GDP, the PSBR is now forecast at 3¼ per cent., ¼ percentage point higher than in the Budget.

The main reason for this increase is the assumption that lower than expected tax receipts seen in 1994–95 will be reflected in the level of receipts in 1995–96. Control total expenditure is assumed to be the same as in the plans announced in the last Budget. The Cabinet has recently confirmed that it is the Government's intention that spending will be no higher than in the plans announced in the Budget, reinforcing the Government's commitment to sound public finances.

Tower Hamlets Residents

Ms Gordon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the economic position for members of each ethnic group in Tower Hamlets by enumeration district. [33653]

Mr. Sackville: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested has been taken from the 1991 census of population for England and Wales small area statistics and will be placed in the Library. The full ethnic breakdown of 10 categories is not available at enumeration district level.

TRANSPORT

Bull Bars

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 4 July, Official Report, columns 117–18, on bull bars, what percentage of the population this answer covers; and what factor should be used to multiply the figure in order to calculate the total figure for the United Kingdom. [33502]

Mr. Norris: The police forces which noted injury accidents involving bull bars during 1994 covered an area with a population of 29 million people. This figure represents 53 per cent. of the population of England, Scotland and Wales. These police forces covered 50 per cent. of all reported injury accidents, 57 per cent. of all fatal accidents and 53 per cent. of all serious-injury accidents. In principle, therefore, the figures for accidents involving vehicles fitted with bull bars should be approximately doubled to give an estimate for the United Kingdom; but such extrapolation should be treated with caution in view of the possibility both of under-reporting and of regional variation.

It should be noted that the number of casualties involving vehicles fitted with bull bars is not the same as the number of casualties due to bull bars, which can be determined only be analysis of the police reports of the accidents.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which police forces submitted figures on accidents involving bull bars in 1994 for his Department's study and which did not. [33832]

Mr. Norris: The two lists show those police forces which took part in the special study and those which did not.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33927]

Mr. Norris: For reasons of commercial confidentiality, the Department does not reveal information about the fees paid to individual consultants.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department or its agencies has spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33928]

Mr. Norris: Expenditure for the last five years is as follows:

1990–91: £760,000
1991–92: £452,000
1992–93: £1,019,000
1993–94: £1,005,000
1994–95: £2,548,000

Estimated expenditure and commissioned work is available only for two forward years.

1995–96: £3,111,000
1996–97: £2,469,000

Heavy Goods Vehicles

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the total number of journeys made each year by heavy goods vehicles. [33707]

Mr. Norris: In total, there are about 560 million journeys made each year by goods vehicle over 3.5 tonnes gross weight.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 3 July, Official Report, column 58, how many heavy goods vehicles were weighed by the Vehicle Inspectorate in the most recent year; and how many were found to be overweight. [33708]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Vehicle Inspectorate agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ron Oliver to Mr. John Denham, dated 12 July 1995:

WEIGHING HEAVY GOODS VEHICLES

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the number of heavy goods vehicles (HGVs) weighed and the number found to be overweight.

In 1994–95, 120,297 HGVs were weighed and 4,545 were prohibited.

Highway Engineering

Mr. Day: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport following the formation of the Highways Agency, what means are being employed to ensure highway engineering remains integrated within his Department's overall work on road safety. [33848]

Mr. Watts: The framework document which establishes the Highways Agency has an objective of contributing to the target of reducing road casualties by one third by the year 2000 compared with the annual average from 1981 to 1985. The agency's road users' charter sets out its commitment to contributing to the above target through a programme of implementing road safety schemes, providing better lighting and safety barriers between carriageways, encouraging safer driving at roadworks and developing winter maintenance practice. The enhancement of road safety is also a key objective of the programme of road improvements. The agency's performance is monitored against its business plan targets.

Travelcard

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions his Department has held with London Transport and British Rail on the future of the travelcard and the consideration of unit pricing of tickets in London. [33830]

Mr. Norris: The Government are committed to the continuation of the existing London travelcard and has taken the necessary steps to ensure its future. My Department discusses a variety of issues, including developments in ticketing, with London Transport and the rail operators as required.

Refuse (Transport)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received concerning the proposed transport of refuse by road from Westminster rather than by the use of the Thames. [33804]

Mr. Norris: I have received one representation concerning Westminster's decision to transfer its waste by road rather than by river. I understand that my ministerial colleagues in the Department of the Environment have received a further two.

A1 (Air Quality)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what monitoring is done by his Department of air quality on the A1, Archway road, in Haringey and Islington. [33813]

Mr. Norris: My Department has not conducted any monitoring of air quality on the A1 Archway road, in the London borough of Haringey or the London borough of Islington. We do not routinely monitor air quality beside existing trunk roads.

The overall responsibility for the control of air quality rest with the Department of the Environment, which in January 1995 published the Government's strategic policies for air quality management "Air Quality: Meeting the Challenge". Under this strategy, the initial responsibility for air quality would rest with local authorities, which already have considerable responsibilities. They will liaise with bodies such as the Highways Agency, when drawing up their air quality management plans.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when it first became apparent to him that the timetable he set in March 1994 for concluding the development agreement with the successful bidder for the construction of the channel tunnel rail link was likely to slip beyond mid-1995. [33534]

Mr. Watts: The then Secretary of State announced on 31 August 1994 that he hoped to conclude the process of evaluation and negotiation by mid to late 1995.

Mr. Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what transport benefits he took into account when selecting the successful first stage bidders for the channel tunnel rail link construction contract. [33532]

Mr. Watts: As the Secretary of State announced on 3 July—Official Report, columns 61-62, the ranking of bids in the first stage of the competition was based mainly on an evaluation of the level and timing of the Government contribution and the approach taken by the bidders to risk, together with a qualitative assessment of their financial proposals. Transport benefits were also taken into account, particularly non-financial benefits to international and domestic passengers on the rail link and existing network.

White Hart Roundabout, Northolt

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take measures to ensure the early completion of phased traffic lights at the White Hart roundabout, Northolt; and if he will make a statement. [33301]

Mr. Norris: This is a matter for the London borough of Ealing.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33419]

Mr. Norris: (a) In accordance with the service-wide rules, the Department's staff handbook requires staff to declare any financial interests in matters they may be called upon to deal with in the course of their official duties. In the majority of cases, such conflicts of interest are reported to, and resolved immediately by, line management. The Department does not maintain a central record of all declared shareholdings and, for this reason, it is not possible to provide the detail of information requested without a special exercise incurring disproportionate cost.

(b) There have been no cases in the last five years where staff have been formally advised to dispose of shareholdings.

Vehicle Owner Records (Disclosures)

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many disclosures from vehicle owner records at the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency were made to bailiffs in the last 12 months. [33351]

Mr. Norris: The information is not recorded separately.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what circumstances he will authorise the release of records from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in connection with offences unrelated to the actual vehicle concerned. [33353]

Mr. Norris: Information may be released in circumstances where "reasonable cause" has been demonstrated.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his definition of "good cause" in relation to the disclosure of records from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency to a firm of bailiffs. [33352]

Mr. Norris: Regulations permit the release of information from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's vehicle record in circumstances where "reasonable cause" has been demonstrated. "Reasonable cause" is not defined and each case is dealt with on its merits.

Information may also be released to local authorities for any purpose connected with the investigation of an offence or criminalised parking contravention.

Most inquiries from bailiffs are made on behalf of local authorities and the courts as a result of distress warrants and for non-payments of fines, rates and so on. Inquiries are also made in cases of outstanding debts where sight of a court judgment is required before confirmation of keeper details is provided.

Vehicle Inspectorate

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much extra resources have been provided to the Vehicle Inspectorate in the current financial year; how many additional traffic examiners and vehicle examiners will be employed as a result; and if the extra money will be provided annually. [33590]

Mr. Norris: An additional £350,000 in funding has been made available to VI for additional enforcement activities. We will be looking to sustain continued high levels of enforcement in future years. The number of additional traffic examiners and vehicle examiners to be employed as a result of extra resources is an operational matter for the chief executive of the Vehicle Inspectorate. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ron Oliver to Ms Joan Walley, dated 12 July 1995:

As Chief Executive of the Vehicle Inspectorate, I have been asked by the Secretary of State to reply to your question on how many additional traffic examiners and vehicle examiners will be employed as a result of extra resources provided to VI.

The number of additional posts being created as a result of the extra funding is 11.5 traffic examiners and 2.5 vehicle examiners.

ENVIRONMENT

Hybrid Wolves

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what advice his Department issues to local authorities about the seizure of hybrid wolves which are owned or kept as domestic pets; [33101]

(2) if he will make a statement on the application of the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 to the ownership or keeping of second or subsequent generation hybrid wolves. [33109]

Mr. Clappison: Keeping a wolf or any hybrid wolf requires a licence issued by the local authority under the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976. Local authorities may attach to any licence conditions covering accommodation or other issues. They are also empowered to seize any hybrid wolf for which a licence has not been issued or if a condition on a licence is breached. It is for the local authority to decide whether seizure is appropriate in a particular case.

EDS

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the contracts his Department has with the computer company EDS. [33170]

Sir Paul Beresford: None currently.

Waste Spreading

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what representations he has received regarding problems caused by the spreading of waste paper sludge at Thieveley Pike, Cliviger, Burnley; [33620]

(2) if he will ensure that funds are made available immediately to repair the damage caused to ecologically sensitive areas by inappropriate schemes for waste spreading; [33619]

(3) what steps he has taken to ensure waste spreading on agricultural land is done in conformity with EEC directive 91/692; [33617]

(4) what steps he proposes to take to ensure waste spreading on agricultural land complies with environmental protection requirements; [33615]

(5) if he will make it his policy to ensure that the spreading of waste on water catchment areas for rivers and reservoirs and on ecologically sensitive areas is halted immediately; [33618]

(6) how many incidents have been reported of waste spreading on agricultural land being carried out using methods harmful to the environment; and if he will make a statement. [33616]

Mr. Clappison: On 1 May 1994, the Government brought into force the waste management licensing provisions of part II of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 and the Waste Management Licensing Regulations 1994—S.I. 1994 No. 1056. The new licensing system is the main means by which the Government have transposed into national legislation the requirements of the amended EC Framework Directive on waste—Council Directive 75/442/EEC as amended by 91/156/EEC and 91/692/EEC.

It is an offence under section 33(1)(a) or (b) of the 1990 Act to deposit, recover or dispose of controlled waste without a waste management licence or contrary to the conditions of a licence exemption. It is also an offence under section 33(1)(c) of the 1990 Act to carry out these activities in a manner likely to cause pollution of the environment or harm to human health.

Article 4 of the framework directive has been transposed in paragraph 4(1)(a) of schedule 4 to the 1994 regulations. This provision makes it a relevant objective to ensure that waste is recovered or disposed of without endangering human health and without using processes or methods which could harm the environment and in particular without:

(a) risk to water, air, soil, plants or animals; or

(b) causing nuisance through noise or odours; or

(c) adversely affecting the countryside or places of special interest.

Exemptions from waste management licensing have been provided in regulation 17 of and schedule 3 to the 1994 regulations. Regulation 17(4) provides that the exemptions are valid only if the type and quantity of waste, and the method of disposal or recovery, are consistent with the need to attain the objectives set out in paragraph 4(1)(a) of schedule 4 to the 1994 regulations.

A person who purports to be carrying out an exempt activity but fails to comply with the terms and conditions of an exemption may be prosecuted under section 33(1)(a) or (b) of 1990 Act for carrying out a licensable activity without a licence; or, if appropriate, under 33(1)(c) of the 1990 Act.

Responsibility for the enforcement of waste management controls rests with waste regulation authorities and there is no requirement for incidents of the kind referred to by the hon. Member to be reported to the Department. The cost of repairing any damage arising from the inappropriate spreading of waste is a matter for the parties concerned.

In relation to the incident at Thieveley Pike, the Department has received representations from the secretary to Save The Moors From Open Cast and the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.

Audit Commission

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what pay increase has been offered to the staff of the Audit Commission. [33349]

Sir Paul Beresford: There has been no offer of an increase in basic pay to staff of the Audit Commission for 1995–96. However, individuals will be eligible for increases in pay of between 0 and 3.5 per cent., depending on their performance against set targets.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what consideration led him to agree that the commissioners of the Audit Commission should receive a pay increase of 2.5 per cent. [33350]

Sir Paul Beresford: On 9 February, Official Report, column 347, the Prime Minister announced the Government's decisions on the recommendations of the Senior Salaries Review Board, which was that the chairmen and members of public boards whose salaries are treated as SSRB consequentials may be paid an increase of 2.5 per cent. The Secretary of State decided to award a pay increase of 2.5 per cent. to the chairman and members of the board of the Audit Commission on this basis.

Education SSA (Devon)

Mr. Allison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the percentage change in real terms of the education standard spending assessment for Devon since 1989–90. [33493]

Sir Paul Beresford: Standard spending assessments were not introduced until 1 April 1990. Between 1990–91 and 1995–96, Devon county council's education standard spending assessment decreased in real terms by 0.4 per cent.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Raynsford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list by region the total amount of (a) useable and (b) set-aside capital receipts held by each local authority in England at 31 March. [33473]

Sir Paul Beresford: A list by region of the amounts of accumulated usable capital receipts and the amounts set aside as provision for credit liabilities for each English local authority at 31 March 1994 has been placed in the Library of the House.

The regional totals for these amounts are:

Amounts held as at 31 March 1994 (£ million)

Region	Usable receipts	PCL set aside
South East	1,184	2,837
South West	162	629
East Anglia	93	323
West Midlands	117	437
East Midlands	123	508
North West	142	489
Yorkshire and Humberside	79	460
Northern	65	225

The provision for credit liabilities includes amounts set aside from both capital receipts and revenue. Separate figures are not available.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the average percentage change in the rateable values list between 1990 and 1995 (a) for each region in England, (b) for Cornwall and (c) for Cornwall and Devon. [33630]

Sir Paul Beresford: The latest information shows the following average changes in rateable value between the 1990 and 1995 rating lists:

	Per cent.
(a)
Northern region	+26
North west	+32
Yorkshire and Humberside	+28
East Midlands	+22
West Midlands	+36
East Anglia	+14
South west	+13
South east	+2
Outer London	+6
Inner London	–41
(b)
Cornwall +9 per cent.	—
(c)
Cornwall and Devon +14 per cent.	—

Water Industry

Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on competition regulation in the water industry. [32132]

Mr. Clappison: We are keen to encourage direct competition where it is appropriate. The Competition and Service (Utilities) Act 1992 introduced a number of measures to facilitate it in the case of water.

On 4 July the Director General of Water Services published a paper entitled "Competition in the water industry: inset appointments and their regulation", in response to an increasing number of inquiries into the introduction of competition into the water industry.

Emergency Hostels

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many 16 and 17-year-olds are staying in emergency hostels, and what plans he has to reduce the number. [33061]

Mr. Clappison: The information requested is not available in my Department.

The Children Act 1989 requires social services departments to provide accommodation for a child in need who has reached the age of 16 and whose welfare is likely to be seriously prejudiced if they do not provide him with accommodation. Social services departments also have power to provide accommodation for any child in their area if they consider that this would safeguard and promote the child's welfare.

Young people who are homeless can approach the local housing authority for assistance under part II of the Housing Act 1985. Housing authorities and social services departments are expected to co-operate in discharging their respective duties.

Housing Corporation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what plans he has made to increase the Housing Corporation's annual development programme; [33064]

(2) what plans he has to extend the Housing Corporation's housing for rent programme. [33065]

Mr. Clappison: The budget for the Housing Corporation's approved development programme for 1995–96, including housing for rent, was announced by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Local Government, Housing and Urban Regeneration on 15 December 1994 Official Report, column 734. Details were placed in the Library of the House.

The budget for the approved development programme for 1996–97 and later years is being considered as part of the Government's annual review of public expenditure.

Housing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement about the terms of reference of the intended review of the Housing Act 1985. [33066]

Mr. Clappison: We set out our housing policies in the White Paper, "Our Future Homes", Cm 2901, which was published on 27 June 1995. The White Paper indicated that the Government were consulting on a number of proposals and described the consultation arrangements.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what powers he plans to grant to local authorities to ensure decent facilities in low-rent private accommodation. [33067]

Mr. Clappison: Local authorities have a range of statutory powers to secure improvements to properties they consider to be unfit, including privately rented accommodation. We propose to strengthen their powers to deal with houses in multiple occupation to improve the safety and amenity of this type of accommodation.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what proposals he has in respect of privately rented accommodation for poor people. [33068]

Mr. Clappison: We propose to:

legislate to make it easier for landlords to let their property to build on progress made since 1988 on increasing the supply of good quality privately rented accommodation; make it easier for people on low incomes to obtain accommodation by placing a statutory duty on local housing authorities to secure suitable advisory services, including advice on affordable private rented housing; introduce pre-tenancy determinations to enable prospective tenants and their landlords to find out how much rent will be covered by housing benefit, before signing a tenancy agreement.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he will review the effectiveness of the business expansion scheme for privately rented accommodation. [33069]

Mr. Clappison: My Department reviewed the effectiveness of the business expansion scheme in 1991–92. We concluded that the scheme was successful as a temporary measure to pump-prime investment, adding some 80,000 rental units to the private rented sector. We also concluded that the boost to the sector was likely to be shortlived and that the scheme was relatively expensive. The concession therefore ended, as planned, in 1993.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what research he has evaluated on landlords attitudes to unemployed people and those on housing benefit as tenants; and what proposals he has. [33070]

Mr. Clappison: Recent research for my Department found that landlords' attitudes to prospective tenants varied—some landlords were cautious about taking on tenants in receipt of housing benefit, others were content to do so.

Unemployed people and those on housing benefit will find it easier to obtain accommodation if landlords are confident that the rent will be paid. We have made it easier for local authorities to offer landlords rent guarantees, helping people who cannot raise a rent deposit. We propose to introduce pre-tenancy determinations to remove the uncertainty about how much rent will be covered by housing benefit, before the tenancy agreement is signed.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Social Security and local authorities to encourage people to take housing benefit or unemployed tenants by speeding up the housing benefit application process. [33071]

Mr. Clappison: My Department and the Department of Social Security work together closely with local authorities on issues affecting the operation of the housing benefit system. In 1994, nearly 80 per cent. of all housing benefit claims were paid within the statutory 15 days. About 70 per cent. of authorities achieved or exceeded this target. The introduction of pre-tenancy determinations in January should allow local authorities to improve their response times further.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what assessment he has made of the extent to which the slump in the housing market has encouraged an increase in privately rented accommodation. [33072]

Mr. Clappison: The number of households living in privately rented property has increased by [illegible],000 since 1988. The increased availability of this type of accommodation reflects a number of factors, particularly the deregulation of lettings since 1989. The current state of the housing market is, of course, another such factor.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress the Secretary of State has made in encouraging (a) the authorised housing investment trusts and (b) other bodies to invest in privately rented accommodation. [33073]

Mr. Clappison: We announced in the housing White Paper our proposal to legislate to allow housing investment trusts to be formed. The removal of rent controls in 1988 for new lettings allows landlords to make a more realistic return on their investment. Since 1988, the number of privately rented households has increased from 1.7 million to 2 million.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps he has taken to address the concerns of the financial institutions in respect of the risks of investment in privately rented accommodation. [33047]

Mr. Clappison: We propose to allow housing investment trusts to be formed so that financial institutions will be able to invest in privately rented housing without managing the properties directly and on a scale which will enable them to diversify risks. Trusts will benefit from exemption on capital gains within the trust, and a reduced rate of corporation tax.

Mr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of grants to companies to invest in privately rented accommodation; and what is his policy in respect of such grants. [33075]

Mr. Clappison: We propose to allow private sector landlords to bid for funds to building housing at below market levels for social renting, but do not propose to offer grants for housing at market rents.

Opencast Mining

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to the oral answer of 17 May to the hon. Member for Rotherham (Mr. MacShane), Official Report, column 316, when his Department will publish the findings of the research that it is currently undertaking into the problems of dust, blasting and transport caused by opencast mining. [33501]

Sir Paul Beresford: These projects are concerned with all mineral workings, not simply opencast coal. The findings on dust and blasting will be published at the end of this year and in early 1996 respectively. The results of the transport research will be available in late summer 1996.

Director General of Water Services

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the current salary of the Director General of Water Services; and what has been the salary for this post since 1990. [33552]

Mr. Clappison: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain) by my right hon. Friend the former Minister for the Environment and Countryside on 3 July 1995, Official Report, column 17.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are the criteria used to determine the salary of the Director General of Water Services. [33553]

Mr. Clappison: Mr. Byatt's salary is based on that of a grade 2 civil servant, and has been increased in line with increases awarded to senior civil servants in the light of the Government's decisions on the recommendations of the Senior Salaries Review Body.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33891]

Sir Paul Beresford: This information is available centrally only for some of the consultancy contracts. The available information for the period April 1990 to April 1995 is as follows:

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last five years have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33879]

Sir Paul Beresford: The information requested is not held centrally by my Department and is obtainable only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33860]

Sir Paul Beresford: Information is available centrally only for some of the expenditure on computer consultancies. The available total cost for each of the last five years is as follows:

1990–91: £1,427,230

1991–92: £4,029,342

1992–93: £2,742,459

1993–94: £1,794,048

1994–95: £316,045

In respect of the next five years, it is not possible centrally to disaggregate bids for computer consultancy from bids for other forms of consultancy assistance. This information is obtainable only at disproportionate cost.

Public Bodies

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the total value of quangos undertaking local government responsibilities in London, their total income and income per organisation and the names of all their members. [33940]

Sir Paul Beresford: My right hon. Friend has responsibility for the following non-departmental public bodies which exercise in London functions, some of which are the same as those exercisable by local authorities.

LONDON RESIDUARY BODY

Membership

Sir Godfrey Taylor, DL (Chairman)

Mr. Wallace Mackenzie, OBE

Mr. Michael Roberts, FCA

Mr. Jack Wolkind, CBE

At 31 March 1995—latest available annual accounts—the value of net assets was £22.5 million and total revenue income in 1994–95 was £0.4 million.

LONDON PENSIONS FUND AUTHORITY

Membership

Mr. Cholmeley Messer (Chairman)

Mr. Michael Roberts, FCA (Deputy Chairman)

Sir Nigel Althaus

Councillor Dennis Barkway

Councillor Stephen Bullock

Miss Caroline Burton

Councillor Judith Jorsling

Councillor Serge Lourie

At 31 March 1994—Latest available annual accounts—the value of the authority's superannuation fund was £2 billion and the value of the LPFA's other net assets was some £33 million. The total income in 1993–94 on the authority's management revenue account, net of recoverable payments, was around £30 million.

LONDON DOCKLANDS DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Membership

Mr. Michael Pickard (Chairman)

Lord Cocks of Hartcliffe (Deputy Chairman)

Viscountess Cobham

Sir Christopher Foster

Sir Brian Hill

Mr. William Jack

Councillor Rajan Jalal

Councillor Conor McAuley

Councillor John McTernan

Mr. Peter Mead

Mr. Eric Sorensen

Mr. Neil Spence

Mr. Ronald Spinney

At 31 March 1994—latest available annual accounts—the value of the corporation's net assets was £623 million and the total income on the consolidated income and expenditure account was £94 million.

Radioactive Waste Management

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what responses he has received to his White Paper reviewing radioactive waste management policy, Cm. 2919. [33641]

Mr. Clappison: None; the White Paper already takes account of responses received to the preliminary conclusions of the review, which were published in a consultation document last August.

Protection of Species and Habitats

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what action the United Kingdom Government propose to take to protect species and habitats within its national jurisdiction but beyond territorial limits; and what is the timetable for such action. [33849]

Mr. Clappison: The UK Government will contribute fully to the international action and timetables agreed in the ministerial declaration of the fourth North sea conference in respect of the protection of species and habitats. The 1995 joint meeting of the Oslo and Paris Commissions held on 26 to 30 June agreed to consider questions on the protection of species and habitats raised by the declaration at working group level in October.

County Hall

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what planning matters in relation to county hall, London SE1, have been considered by his Department. [33829]

Sir Paul Beresford: In recent years, the Secretary of State for the Environment has determined a number of appeals on county hall planning and listed building consent applications.

The Secretary of State dismissed appeals on 20 October 1987 for change of use of the county hall complex to hotel and residential use, but allowed a change to offices.

On 5 September 1991, the Secretary of State allowed a second set of appeals and consents to demolish all the buildings within the complex and for their replacement by new office buildings, apart from the listed riverside building. Consent was given for the riverside building to be refurbished and altered to provide hotel and conference facilities and some 300 residential flats.

Packaging Waste

Mr. William O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) if he will give up-to-date details on the response he has received to each of the six packaging schemes listed in his consultation paper on packaging and packaging waste; [33692]

(2) how many (a) written and (b) oral representations his Department has received to the consultation paper on the shared producers responsibility scheme (i) from industry and (ii) from trade associations and companies; [33689]

(3) how many (a) written and (b) oral representations his Department has received on the suggested V-WRAG scheme on shared producers responsibility for packaging waste scheme (i) in favour of the V-WRAG scheme and (ii) against the scheme; [33690]

(4) if he will consider including the V-WRAG suggested scheme as an addition in his consultation paper, "Shared Producers Responsibility for Packaging Waste Scheme"; and if he will make a statement. [33691]

Mr. Clappison [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The Department has received approximately 200 letters from businesses and trade associations, largely in the food and drink and packaging manufacturing sectors, in support of a document entitled "Shared Producer Responsibility for Packaging Waste" which was submitted to Government by the VALPAK—Working Representative Advisory Group (V—WRAG) on 13 June. There have also been a number of oral expressions of support.

The previous Minister for the Environment and Countryside wrote to the chairman of V-WRAG explaining that, in their present form, these proposals fall well short of meeting the criteria for an effective legal obligation to support the recovery and recycling of packaging waste. These criteria were published by the Government on 2 February, Official Report, column 763-64. I have placed copies of the correspondence in the library.

The Government published their consultation paper on "Producer Responsibility for Packaging Waste" on 25 May, copies of which are in the library. Consultation closes on 18 August. The paper sets out six options for legislation on the recovery and recycling of packaging waste, all of which have been worked up by representatives of businesses in the packaging industry or who manufacture or supply packaged goods. At this stage, very few responses on the relative merits of the various options have been received.

Leasehold Exchange Scheme

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish an analysis of the leasehold exchange scheme, indicating the cash sum received by a local authority and the net effect on a local authority's (a) capital receipts and (b) total borrowing and the new mortgage required by the leaseholder utilising the leasehold exchange scheme if the original leasehold property were (i) valued at £30,000 and sold with full discount in 1986 and (ii) valued at £20,000 and sold with full discount in 1982, and the new leasehold property is currently (1) a flat valued at £40,000 and (2) a house valued at £50,000, on the same assumptions as (i) if the original property now has a nil market value. [30789]

Mr. Clappison [holding answer 26 June 1995]: An illustrative analysis based on the examples would be as follows:

	Example (i)
Surrendered flat:
Value of flat when purchased in 1986:	30,000
Maximum discount (60 per cent.):	18,000
Right to buy purchase price:	12,000
Exchange property:	example (1)	example (2)

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many contracts his Department has had with consultants; and what has been the total cost in each of the last five years. [33570]

Mr. Hanley: There are three categories of consultants as defined by the Cabinet Office Efficiency Scrutiny. These are:

> "Investigating problems; providing analysis or advice; and assisting with the development of new systems, new structures or new capabilities within the organisation."

For the year 1994–95, the diplomatic wing had 13 contracts with management consultants at a total cost of £76,887; 523 contracts for estate and building works consultants at a cost of £8,625,000 and 187 contracts for information technology consultants at a cost of £4,984,000.

The aid wing had 15 contracts with management consultants at a total cost of £847,545 and 1,060 contracts with consultants involved in the aid programme overseas at a total cost of £199,221,375.

Similar information for the periods 1990–91, 1991–92, 1992–93 and 1993–94 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from his Departments by (a) number of contracts and (b) monetary value in the last five years for which figures are available. [33439]

Mr. Hanley: The information required could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33459]

Mr. Hanley: The cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, including the ODA, since 1980 is £326,890.94.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33881]

Mr. Hanley: The following management consultants employed by the diplomatic wing have been paid more than £1,000 per day in the last year:

Psychometric Research Development
Kinsley Lord

Other consultancies within the diplomatic wing and ODA are not necessarily charged on a daily basis and such figures could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many contracts and for what total sum were let out by his Department and agencies for which it is responsible to (a) Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries, (b) Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries, (c) Ernst and Young and its subsidiaries, (d) Arthur Andersen and its subsidiaries, (e) Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries, (f) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries and (i) Pannell Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries for privatisation, market testing, management advice, accounting, audit, consultancy and other services in 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33916]

Mr. Hanley: The table sets out the number of contracts and the total costs paid to the firms mentioned.

The figures cover both the diplomatic wing and the ODA and include contracts let under the aid programme.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33416]

Mr. Hanley: None.

Sex Tourism

Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what was the last date that the subject of British sex tourists was raised with the Government of Cambodia; and what were the results of that discussion. [33706]

Mr. Hanley: We have not raised the subject of sex tourism with the Cambodian Government. However, the British embassy in Phnom Penh monitors this question closely and maintains contacts with NGOs in Cambodia, which are involved in tackling child prostitution.

Land Mines

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with fellow members of the European Union as to a joint policy banning the selling of landmines; and if he will make a statement. [33488]

Mr. David Davis: On 12 May 1995, the Foreign Affairs Council adopted a European Union joint action on anti-personnel landmines. This comprises a European Union-wide moratorium on the export of anti-personnel landmines, identical in scope to our own national moratorium; joint efforts to strengthen the 1981 United Nations weaponry convention at a review conference due to take place in September; and support for demining.

Kurdish People

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings and discussions have been held with representatives of the Kurdish people of (a) Iraq, (b) Iran and (c) Turkey; and if he will make a statement on Her Majesty's Government's policy in respect of Kurdish demands. [33800]

Mr. David Davis: We are in frequent contact with representatives of the Iraqi Kurdish people. We have no contact with representatives of the Iranian Kurdish people. In Turkey, we maintain a broad range of contacts with people of Kurdish origin in public life, including those arguing for Kurdish autonomy.

We frequently make clear to the Turkish Government our view that the conflict in the south-east of Turkey must be settled within the rule of law and with due respect for human rights; we encourage Turkey to seek a political rather than a military solution.

The Iraqi Kurds are aware of the Government's support for the territorial integrity of Iraq.

We support Iraqi Kurdish demands that Iraq cease repression of its people as required by UN Security Council resolution 688.

Myanmar

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions representatives of Her Majesty's Government have held with representatives of political parties in Myanmar; and if he will make a statement. [33801]

Mr. Hanley: The British embassy in Rangoon has consistently maintained contact with representatives of the Burmese pro-democracy groups. The British chargé d'affaires, in company with other diplomats, took part in a meeting with Daw Aung San Suu Kyi and members of the National League for Democracy on 11 July.

We warmly welcome the SLORC's decision to lift the restrictions from Daw Aung San Suu Kyi. We hope that, as she said in her statement on 11 July, Daw Aung San Suu Kyi and the State Law and Order Restoration Council will be able to work together in the spirit of reconciliation and co-operation to achieve a prosperous and democratic Burma.

Ireland

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State of Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what indications he has received from the Irish Government as to when the Irish Parliament will ratify the appropriate convention to receive sentenced prisoners in the Irish Republic; and if he will make a statement. [33945]

Mr. Rifkind: I understand that a Bill to ratify the Council of Europe convention on the transfer of sentenced persons completed its passage through the Irish Parliament on 7 July and should shortly come into effect.

China

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations have been made to the Government of China concerning human rights and the use of child labour. [33831]

Mr. Hanley: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Member for Eddisbury (Mr. Goodlad) gave on 23 February 1995, Official Report, column 279.

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, the right hon. Member for Witney (Mr. Hurd), discussed human rights in China with Chinese Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister Qian Qichen in New York on 18 April.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which of his ministerial colleagues is responsible for consular matters relating to the Indian sub-continent; which ministerial colleague will be responsible for the migration and visa correspondence unit; and if he will make a statement. [33973]

Mr. Hanley: I have the honour to be the Minister responsible for consular matters in the Indian sub-continent and for the migration and visa correspondence unit.

Nigeria

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what help his Department intends to give to Nigeria in drawing up a new electoral register. [33037]

Mr. Hanley: We have received no request from the Nigerian authorities for such assistance.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he received a copy of the report of the national constitutional conference in Nigeria and if he will make a statement explaining his policy in regard to steps which might be taken to encourage its implementation. [33038]

Mr. Hanley: We have not yet received a copy of the report, despite repeated requests. As my right hon. Friend the the Foreign Secretary made clear in a statement on 28 June, it is in Nigeria's own interests that there should be an accelerated and credible timetable for a transition to civilian democratic rule.

Kenya

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what ways his policy on Kenya has changed and developed over the past year. [33797]

Mr. Hanley [holding answer 11 July 1995]: There has been no change in our approach. Kenya remains an important partner for Britain and we have continued to develop closer relations. As part of that process, we have given encouragement and support to the Government of Kenya to promote economic reform, good government and the development of a pluralist democracy.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Terrorist Prisoners

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received concerning the contribution to the Irish peace process that could be made by a phased release from Her Majesty's prisons of those convicted of terrorist-related crimes; and if he will make a statement. [33941]

Mr. Howard: I have received a small number of representations from Members of the House, members of the public and others arguing for and against the early release of terrorist prisoners. The Government's position is clear. There will be no amnesty for prisoners convicted of terrorist offences. They should expect to serve their sentences in accordance with the law.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when he expects to release prisoners convicted of terrorist-related crimes from her Majesty's prisons; when he expects such prisoners to be told of their release dates; and if he will make a statement; [33942]

(2) how many republican prisoners in Her Majesty's prisons, who have served sentences of more than 20 years, have not yet been informed of their release date; and when he intends to tell these prisoners when they can expect to be released. [33943]

Miss Widdecombe: The release of prisoners, irrespective of their offence, is considered in accordance with the Criminal Justice Act 1991 and its associated procedures. I have no knowledge of the release date of any prisoner until, in each individual case, the proper procedures have been completed.

Two prisoners convicted of terrorist offences have served sentences of more than 20 years. A further three such prisoners will have been detained for more than 20 years by the end of July 1995. All five are discretionary life sentence prisoners and they have each been told that the period to be served for retribution and deterrence is 20 years. Their release will be a matter for a discretionary lifer panel of the Parole Board.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33895]

Mr. Howard: My Department has let 595 contracts for computer consultancy to 164 companies, over the five years from 1990–91 to 1994–95, as follows:

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33882]

Mr. Howard: A number of consultancy contracts would include some rates at more than £1,000 per day, but typically the average rates charged would be less than £1,000. An exhaustive list of all commissions where the daily rate might exceed £1,000 per day could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33852]

Mr. Howard: My Department has spent in each of the last five years the following amounts:

1990–91: £4,820,000
1991–92: £6,000,000
1992–93: £4,210,000
1993–94: £3,500,000
1994–95: £2,730,000

Expenditure in future years will depend on need and affordability within overall financial provision, but is likely to be of the order of £4 million to £5 million per year.

Teenage Prisoners

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the current average time a teenager is held in prison awaiting trial. [33809]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 12 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the current average time a teenage is held in prison awaiting trial.

The latest available provisional information is for time spent in custody before conviction and time spent in custody after conviction before sentence in 1994. It is given in the attached table.

Estimated average time spent in custody for untried and convicted unsentenced prisoners, aged 15–19, in Prison Service establishments in 1994[1]

Type of custody	Receptions in 1994	Estimated average number of days in custody[4]
Untried[2]	13,056	44
Convicted unsentenced[3]	8,052	33

[1] Provisional figures.
[2] Time spent in custody before conviction.
[3] Time spent in custody after conviction before sentence.
[4] Estimated from the number of receptions and population in 1994, as measured by population on 30 June.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the cost to public funds of keeping a 15 or 16-year-old in prison for each day they await trial. [33814]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 12 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the daily cost of keeping a 15 or 16 year old in prison while awaiting trial.

In 1993–94 the average daily cost of holding a prisoner in a young offender remand establishment was £55.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to phase out the use of prison custody for teenagers. [33808]

Miss Widdecombe: We are committed to ending the remanding of 15 and 16-year-olds boys to Prison Service establishments as soon as there are sufficient secure local authority places to accommodate them. A building programme of 170 new secure places in under way. We expect the majority of these places to be finished in 1996. Prison Service accommodation is not used for other remanded juveniles. We have no plans to phase out the use of Prison Service accommodation for sentenced juveniles.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many deaths of 15 and 16-year-olds awaiting trial in prison have occurred in the last 10 years, in which prisons and on what dates. [33810]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 12 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about suicides among fifteen and sixteen year olds in prison during the last ten years.

Between June 1985 and June 1995 there was one self-inflicted death of a fifteen or sixteen year old at a Prison Service establishment who was awaiting trial. This occurred on 13 July 1990 at Swansea prison.

Mrs Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in which adult prisons 15 and 16-year-olds are currently held; and how many are held in each prison. [33812]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 12 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question asking in which adult prisons 15 to 16 year olds are currently held; and how many are held in each prison.

The information requested is given in the attached table.

Charitable Funds

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what rules or guidance his Department has issued about how trusts or health authorities can invest moneys held in trust. [33936]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The Charity Commission, which is responsible for providing advice to health service bodies on the administration of their charitable funds, has produced a guide for them which includes guidance on their duties towards the selection of investments for, and management of, these funds. The guide has been sent to all regional, district and special health authorities, Special trustees, NHS trusts and trustees appointed for NHS trusts in England and Wales which hold charitable funds.

Immigration (Removal Procedures)

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home department what further action has taken place since the issue of the report of the joint Home Office and police review of removal procedures in immigration cases involving the police; and if he will make a statement. [34427]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Following detailed discussions between officials in the immigration department and senior police officers, a Home Office circular has been issued. This follows up the recommendations of the review, which were accepted by my right hon. and learned Friend. A copy of the circular is being placed in the Library.

Sex Tourism

Mr. Alison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department is he will make a statement about his plans for dealing with the problem of sex tourism [34513]

Mr Howard: The Government share the abhorrence felt by the vast majority of people about the sexual exploitation abroad of young children. The introduction, by Lord Hylton of his Sexual Offences (Amendment) Bill has done much to highlight the issue and we have listened very carefully to all that has been said both inside Parliament and more generally We are anxious that effective action should be taken to deal with this problem. That must involve action by the foreign governments concerned, but that alone is not enough. We must also do all that we can.

Despite its admirable aim, Lord Hylton's Bill is, in the Government's view, seriously flawed and does not provide a workable or effective solution to the problems posed by sex tourism. The Government cannot therefore support it.

We are, however, urgently examining the scope of the law in each of the United Kingdom jurisdictions to see what steps could be taken to deal with those who in this country conspire or incite others to commit offences abroad. This would enable us to deal with those who organise sex tours or encourage others to travel abroad for the purpose of sexually exploiting children.

Any legislation which might be brought forward to achieve this aim would need careful thought to ensure that it would be effective. We would hope to have proposals for legislation ready as soon as the details can be satisfactorily resolved.

Car Crime

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list by police force the budgets allocated for preventing car crime for each of the last five years. [33578]

Mr. Maclean: This information is not held centrally. The allocation of available resources within each force area is a matter for the chief officer of police.

Prisoners (HIV)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the breakdown of his Department's budget for use in the treatment of prison inmates suffering from the HIV virus and the AIDS infection; and if he will make a statement. [33485]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison

Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 12 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the budget treatment of inmates suffering from the HIV virus and AIDS infection.

The Prison Service budget for health care is not broken down into treatment costs for individuals or for particular diseases. The policy on treatment of prison inmates generally is that the Prison Service pays for or provides treatment which is carried out within the prison setting and the National Health Service provides for the treatment of inmates who go to outside hospitals to receive specialist care or in-patient treatment.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is his Department's response to each of the 11 recommendations of the Animal Procedures Committee report to the Home Secretary on regulatory toxicity of March 1994; what has been the reason for the delay in responding; what action he now proposes to take which will reduce unnecessary animal experiments; and how many fewer such experiments he estimates will now occur. [33525]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The report was published in July 1994 as a basis for public consultation. We are now preparing, in discussion with colleagues, a response to the committee, taking into account the comments we have received. This should be available shortly and I will send the hon. Member a copy.

National Lottery

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many poverty-related projects have been submitted for consideration for proceeds arising from the national lottery; how many have been approved; and what was the total value of funds approved. [33658]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The National Lottery Charities Board began accepting applications for its first round of grants on 15 May 1995. It is accepting applications up to 1 August, and it is too early to specify the numbers and types of applications received. The board hopes to announce details of its first grants in October. Decisions on individual applications are a matter for the board.

Asylum Seekers (Kenya)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people from Kenya have sought refugee status in each of the past five years and in each month of this year. [33039]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Information on asylum applications from Kenyan nationals for the years 1990 to 1994 is published in table 2.1 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin "Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 1994", issue 15/95. A copy of this publication is available in the Library.

Information on applications during January to May 1995 is given in the table.

20–21 June 1995: Home Secretary; Justice and Home Affairs Council, Luxembourg.

For 1993–94 the cost of ministerial visits, excluding private secretaries and other accompanying officials, was £39,891. On the same basis the cost for 1994–95 was £40,440 and £13,191 for the same period April to June 1995.

The only figures available for 1992–93 relate to visits by Ministers and senior officials. The costs of these amounted to £131,792. The figures cannot be compared with those for later years since they are on a different basis.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Madden: To ask the First Secretary of State if he will list his responsibilities upon which he is prepared to answer written parliamentary questions, and the arrangements for right hon. and hon. Members to ask him oral parliamentary question on a regular basis at other times than when he is deputising for the Prime Minister. [33974]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I propose to answer questions on my responsibilities for all Office of Public Service matters. I will be assisted on all business by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, to whom questions on Duchy matters should be addressed. Further announcements will be made in due course on the rota for answering oral parliamentary questions.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Madden: To ask the First Secretary of State where his office is located; how many staff are directly responsible to him; what is the total number of staff he expects will be responsible to him; if he has a separate departmental budget; and if he will make a statement about the role of his office. [33975]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the hon. Members for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) and for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 11 July 1995 Official Report, columns 496-97.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by him, or ministerial colleagues in his Department, paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied him and the total cost in each case, including that of officials to public funds for each year since 1992. [32259]

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

China

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the assistance given by the United Nations Population Fund in helping China organise censuses and demographic surveys; and if the data acquired from such activities have been or can be used for targeting areas for population control. [32020]

Mr. Hanley: The United Nations Population Fund, UNFPA, assisted with China's 1980 and 1990 censuses, providing equipment, technical advice on data tabulation and analysis and training abroad at places such as the United States Bureau of Census. Census data in China, as in all other countries, are used as the basis for the Government's development plans. UNFPA's assistance is a basis for encouraging the development of humane population policies in China. It is not provided with the intention of supporting or sanctioning any particular aspect of current Chinese population policy, or its interpretation.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when delegations from Her Majesty's Government have investigated Chinese population policies since 1979; and what conclusions were reached. [32015]

Mr. Hanley: Lord Howe led an official delegation to China in December 1992 to look at human rights issues. The mission noted the growing attention paid by the Chinese authorities to international concerns about human rights and welcomed their willingness to continue the dialogue on human rights issues with any subsequent missions.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the number of individual associations within the Chinese family planning association; and what figures exist for the number of household links established by the CFPA. [32011]

Mr. Hanley: We understand from the International Planned Parenthood Federation that the China Family Planning Association, CFPA, consists of about 915,000 individual associations. We do not have reliable information on the number of household links established by the CFPA.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the date at which it first became obligatory under Chinese law to have intrauterine devices inserted after a first child; and what estimates he has on the number of IUD insertions since that date. [32019]

Mr. Hanley: We understand that there is no Chinese national law making it obligatory to insert IUDs after a first child. Information provided by the United Nations Population Fund suggests that approximately 40 per cent. of all female contraceptive acceptors are using the IUD.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the system of birth permits in China; how the system operates; whether he interprets it as coercive; and what statement regarding birth permits have been made by the IPPF and the UNFPA. [32013]

Mr. Hanley: We are aware that local authorities in China have attempted to influence fertility rates by approving which women may give birth in a given community in any year. Both the United Nations Population Fund, and the International Planned Parenthood Federation, have repeatedly made it clear that women and men should be able to choose freely the number and spacing of their children and have expressed their abhorrence of coercion in any form. The Chinese Government are aware that the UNFPA will fund activities that take place in provinces only where systems of birth permits, quotas and targets do not exist.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the number of UNFPA employees based in China since 1979; and how many have been seconded to, attached to or worked in association with the Chinese State Family Planning Commission. [32021]

Mr. Hanley: The United Nations Population Fund's staffing in China has varied depending on the size of its programme. In mid-1994, there were eight international staff, 10 full-time Chinese staff and two part-time Chinese staff. There has always been one country director co-ordinating the work of UNFPA. The present one is its sixth since 1979. At no time has any UNFPA staff member been assigned to work for the State Family Planning Commission.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the links between the Chinese State Family Planning Commission and the Chinese Family Planning Association with the Chinese national family planning journal and Chinese provincial family planning reports; if his Department receives copies of the journal and reports; and what information he has on the prevalence of recommendations for coercive methods of population control in both sources since 1990. [32009]

Mr. Hanley: We do not receive copies of these publications, and cannot comment on their content or links with the Chinese State Family Planning Commission and the China Family Planning Association.

Indonesia

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many current or former Indonesian police officers who received any form of training paid for by his Department served with the riot police, Sabhara unit of the Indonesian national police (a) before such training, (b) during such training and (c) after such training; if he will give the name of each such officer, the dates of his training and the dates of his service with the riot police. [31757]

Mr. Hanley: According to the Indonesian national police, no officer who has received training support under the police project has served with the Sabhara unit.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 3 March, Official Report, column 727, if he will name the Indonesian police officers who have been trained, for whatever length of time, under the police management training project since it began, in each case specifying the officer's rank and the date of commencement and of completion of the training. [31705]

Mr. Hanley: Since the national police management training project began in June 1990 we have provided UK training for the following:

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his answer of 30 June, Official Report, column 802, what were the "relevant quarters" from which advice was sought on the police management training project in Indonesia; what advice was given on the issue of human rights; and at what Departmental level the project was approved. [33033]

Mr. Hanley: I have nothing to add to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Banbury (Mr. Baldry) on 30 June. Official advice to Ministers is given in confidence.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his answer of 12 June, Official Report, column 381, if he will make a statement on the term "appropriate appraisals"; if he will define the term "full appraisal" in the letter of the Minister for Overseas Development of 20 January; and what is the difference between the two forms of appraisal. [33032]

Mr. Hanley: In a statement made on 17 June 1993 by the Under-Secretary for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, the House was informed of the future of the aid and trade provision, ATP, following a review of the programme. This included specific measures to improve the effectiveness of ATP. Appraisal procedures were brought into line with those applied to other bilateral aid projects to provide the same level of assurance concerning their soundness and sustainability.

The new procedures came into effect on 17 June 1993.

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to monitor the post-training careers of Indonesian police officers who have received any form of training paid for by his Department for the purpose of evaluating the effectiveness of the training in improving the officers respect for human rights. [31759]

Mr. Hanley [holding reply 30 June 1995]: The project, including training, is monitored on an annual basis.

Burma

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will review the current restrictions on non-governmental organisation funding in Burma to allow a greater availability of funding for long-term community development projects implemented by NGOs. [32429]

Mr. Hanley: United Kingdom assistance to Burma is currently available only for funding of humanitarian projects by NGOs. The policy is kept under review.

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will support the continuation of the work of the United Nations Development Programme in Burma, implementing a programme based on direct assistance to communities, when the governing council reviews the agency's mandate. [32428]

Mr. Hanley: We have supported the UNDP's approach so far and will consider maintaining this position when the Burma country programme is next reviewed in the UNDP executive board.

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the level of international assistance currently devoted to aid projects helping Burmese communities; and if he will make a statement on future United Kingdom aid plans for Burma. [32430]

Mr. Hanley: We have not undertaken an assessment of the level of international assistance currently devoted to aid projects helping Burmese communities. Other than funding of certain humanitarian projects by non-governmental organisations, there are no plans to provide official development aid to Burma at present. This policy has been agreed with our EU partners.

Joint Funding Scheme

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the number of joint funding scheme contracts issued by country and region in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95.

Mr. Hanley: Details of the numbers of joint funding scheme contracts issued by country and region in 1993–94 and 1994–95 are shown in the tables.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what was the size of the joint funding scheme budget in (a) 1993–94, (b) 1994–95, and (c) 1995–96. [33264]

Mr. Hanley: The joint funding scheme budget was £29 million in 1993–94 and £33 million in 1994–95. The budget for 1995–96 has risen to £34.85 million.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many applications were made to the joint funding scheme in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95; and how many were successful. [33263]

Mr. Hanley: A total of 241 applications were made to the joint funding scheme for funding in 1993–94, 108 of which were successful; 291 applications were made for funding in 1994–95, 150 of which were successful.

Central Africa

Mr. Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the impact of the International Monetary Fund-sponsored good government initiative, on the economies of central Africa, with particular reference to the impact of the initiative on training and development and on the indigenous co-operative movements in central Africa. [32428]

Mr. Hanley: We are not aware of any such initiative.

El Salvador

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the activities of the Commonwealth Development Corporation in El Salvador. [33267]

Mr. Hanley: The Commonwealth Development Corporation, CDC, received approval to operate in El Salvador from my right hon. and noble Friend the Minister for Overseas Development in September 1994. As yet, the CDC has made no investments or commitments there, but it is currently looking at opportunities in tourism, manufacturing and industry.

Kenya

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who will be leading the British team at the donors' meeting with the Government of Kenya on 24 July; what undertakings the British Government will be seeking from the Government of Kenya; which human rights issues he will be raising with the Government of Kenya; and if he will raise the trial of Koigi Wa Wamwere and other issues related to the conduct of justice in Kenya. [33046]

Mr. Hanley: The British team will be led by the head of the British development division in east Africa. Democracy, good government and human rights, as well as economic issues, are likely to be discussed. Whilst there has been good progress in some respects, we shall be pressing the Kenyan authorities to maintain their efforts on all aspects of the reform process.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance the Government of Kenya have sought or been offered to help in the development of a better justice system. [33798]

Mr. Hanley [holding reply 11 July 1995]: We have discussed a number of possible areas of assistance with the Government of Kenya, including support for the office of the Attorney-General and for the Kenya police force. We have conducted institutional appraisals of both organisations, and expect to sign shortly a senior command and human rights awareness police training programme. We are also considering support for non-governmental organisations providing legal aid.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Alan Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what guidance and training is being given to staff concerning the treatment of people who are appealing against a decision that they are capable of work but are signing on as unemployed pending their appeal. [32042]

Mr. Burt: This is a matter for Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member with such information as is available.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Alan Howarth, dated 11 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary question about the guidance and training given to staff concerning the treatment of people who appeal against a decision that they are capable of work but are signing on as unemployed pending their appeal.

General advice to staff dealing with incapacity benefits and customers found capable of work has not changed with the introduction of Incapacity Benefit (IB). Customers are advised to claim Unemployment Benefit and or Income Support until their appeal is heard. Guidance is given in standing instructions which were amended to take account of the introduction of IB.

Training material was issued to Income Support staff at Benefits Agency offices in January 1995 and was followed by a comprehensive procedures circular issued in March 1995; both documents reminded staff of existing procedures.

Benefit Agency staff are acutely aware of the sensitivities in dealing with customers who appeal against a decision that they are capable of work.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Social Fund

Mr. William O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list those Benefits Agency offices which achieved targets for community care grants decisions between 1 April 1994 and 31 March 1995. [33687]

Mr. Roger Evans: The administration of the social fund is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. William O'Brien, dated 11 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about listing those Benefits Agency (BA) offices which achieved their targets for Community Care Grants (CCG) between 1st April 1994 and 31st March 1995.

At present, Social Fund performance is measured against a standard time for processing each type of application. This is based on the time it takes to clear the more straightforward cases. For CCG applications the aim is to process 65 per cent. in the standard time of seven days. To ensure proper emphasis is given to the remaining applications, a secondary measure is set which is 95 per cent. in 20 days.

I have provided, at Annex A, details of the CCG performance of all BA Districts for 1994/95. I am pleased to state that all BA Districts met the primary CCG target.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

[1] BA Districts which did not meet the secondary target of 95 per cent., clearance in 20 days.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people were successful in gaining an exceptional needs payment in the last year of operation of the scheme; and how many people were granted similar payments from the social fund in the last year for which figures are available. [32832]

Mr. Roger Evans: There were 1.1 million exceptional needs payments made in 1979–80, the last year of the scheme. There were 1.9 million awards from the discretionary social fund made in 1994–95.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how may (a) claimants and (b) organisations have made representations about difficulty experienced in the repayment of social security loans. [32830]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information requested is not available.

Mortgage Interest

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what response he has made to representations from the mortgage insurance industry about the availability of private mortgage insurance for poor families. [32834]

Mr. Roger Evans: I have had no such specific representations from the mortgage insurance industry about the availability of private mortgage insurance for poor families. However, the Association of British Insurers takes the view that if a person qualifies for a mortgage then there is no reason why they should not also qualify for insurance.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what are the implications of his proposals for cuts in mortgage interest payments for the 1991 agreement in respect of Council of Mortgage Lenders. [32835]

Mr. Roger Evans: From October this year, we expect the 1991 agreement to apply to cases where we continue to meet the full interest payments. In cases where the 1991 agreement no longer applies we would not expect to see an increase in arrears or repossessions as most borrowers will take out insurance.

We believe that it is important that lenders make clear to their borrowers their practice in relation to arrears, and that borrowers fully understand their obligations when entering into a mortgage contract. We are working closely with the council of Mortgage Lenders to develop a leaflet which sets out details of benefit entitlement and borrowers' rights and responsibilities in relation to lenders and insurers.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what representations he has received alleging that inadequacy of income support in respect of mortgage interest payments is resulting in claimants going into rented accommodation and claiming the higher rate of housing benefit. [32836]

Mr. Roger Evans: I have had no such representations.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what has been the cost in housing benefit in the last year of claimants formerly receiving income support in respect of mortgage interest payments and subsequently going into rented accommodation. [32837]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information requested is not available.

Funeral Expenses

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what his estimated savings will be (a) in restricting social fund funeral expenses towards the cost of embalming the body for a journey in excess of 25 miles, (b) by limiting social fund funeral expenses towards the cost of floral tributes to £25 and (c) by the alteration of the definition of close relative and partner in relation to the social fund payments of funeral expenses. [32707]

Mr. Roger Evans: We estimate the savings will be in the order of: (a) £2 million; (b) £2 million; (c) £1.3 million.

Social Security Expenditure

Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total annual spending on social security in (a) 1990–91, (b) 1991–92, (c) 1992–93 and (d) 1993–94; and if he will list the total (i) in real and (ii) in percentage terms of gross domestic product. [32951]

Mr. Burt: The information requested is in the table.

Social Security expenditure:

	1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94
Cash terms	£59,713 million	£69,878 million	£79,342 million	£86,896 million
Real terms (93–94 prices)	£68,012 million	£74,884 million	£81,770 million	£86,896 million
As percentage of GDP	11 per cent.	12 per cent.	13 per cent.	14 per cent.

The figures have been taken from the 1995 Social Security Departmental Report and include administrative costs as well as additional local authority expenditure on housing and community charge\council tax benefits.

Income Support

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 6 July, Official Report, column 359, what information on severe hardship claims and awards is available other than national figures. [33937]

Mr. Roger Evans: Information is available from 1988 by Department of Social Security region, monthly on a national basis, broken down into successful and unsuccessful applications. A monthly breakdown by Benefits Agency territory is available from 1992. Since April 1993 information has been collected monthly by district offices in the categories new, repeat or continuous application; and whether successful or unsuccessful.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33859]

Mr. Burt: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33890]

Mr. Burt: The information is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33878]

Mr. Burt: The information requested is not available.

Habitual Residence Test

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the cost of administration of the habitual residence test and of the appeal system; and what proportion of the money saved by non-payment is spent on administration. [33799]

Mr. Roger Evans: The cost of administering the habitual residence test for 1995–96 is estimated at £3.3 million. The allocation to the Independent Tribunal Service for administering the appeal system as a whole in 1995–96 is £48.6 million. It is not possible to apportion the costs of appeals against the habitual residence test. The estimated saving from introducing the habitual residence test is £30 million annually.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claimants have been refused benefit, per month, since the introduction of the habitual residence test; of these, how many have appealed; and how many appeals have been upheld. [33803]

Mr. Roger Evans: I refer the hon. Member to the replies that I gave to the hon. Member for Newham, North-East (Mr. Timms) on 18 April, Official Report, column 43, on 21 April, Official Report, column 314, on 1 May, Official Report, column 7 and on 10 July, Official Report, columns 449–50.

Numbers of claimants who have been refused housing benefit and council tax benefit because of the habitual residence test are being recorded from the 1995–96 tax year and will be available in December 1996.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what representations he has received concerning the future of the habitual residence test; and what plans he has to make changes in its operation. [33805]

Mr. Roger Evans: I have received a number of letters from Members of Parliament and the public. I have no current plans to change the test.

Pensions

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the cumulative sums saved by the Exchequer and his Department by the departure and domicile of those qualified for United Kingdom old age pensions, by virtue of their exemption from uprating, for the decade 1985–95, in (a) Australia, (b) Canada, (c) New Zealand and (d) South Africa, stating for each the increased sums in sterling to which each as a basic pension would receive for a pension first paid in 1985. [33047]

Mr. Heald: It is estimated that the cumulative cost[1] to the Social Security budget of paying all upratings of retirement pension from November 1985 to April 1994[2] to UK pensioners in the countries specified would have been (a) Australia £500 million, (b) Canada £275 million, (c) New Zealand £175 million, (d) South Africa £100 million.

The rate of basic pension payable to any individual depends on that person's national insurance contribution record. In November 1985, the rate payable to a person who fully satisfied the contribution conditions for a basic pension was £38.30. It is currently £58.85. Where the contribution conditions are not fully satisfied, a reduced pro rata pension is payable at rates varying from 98 per cent. to 25 per cent. of the full basic rate.

Note:

[1] The cost figures are estimates rounded to the nearest £25 million.

[2] The estimated cost of paying the April 1995 uprating to pensioners in countries where UK pensions are not uprated is not yet available.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to the answer of 3 July, Official Report, column 79, if he will estimate the percentage of pensioners retiring on an income between 75 per cent. and 100 per cent. of average earnings; and what figure has been used as average earnings. [33710]

Mr. Heald: It is estimated that 12 per cent. of recently retired pensioner units have an income between 75 and 100 per cent. of average earnings. The average earnings figure used for the reply is £304.60 per week.

Source:

Family Expenditure Survey 1992.

Employment Gazette, February 1995.

Notes:

1. Average earnings are based on full time employees on adult rate in all industries and services for 1992.

2. Recently retired pensioner units are defined as single pensioner units and married couples where the individual or head of the household is less than five years over state pension age.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to the answer of 3 July, Official Report, column 79, if he will estimate the expenditure on rebates to members of contracted out money purchase schemes in (a) 2010, (b) 2020 and (c) 2030; and what estimate he has made of the number of members of (i) APPS and (ii) COMPS in each of those three years. [33711]

Mr. Heald: The estimated expenditure on the rebate for contracted-out money purchase schemes and the estimated numbers of members of appropriate personal pensions and COMPS are shown in the table. The level of the rebate will be reviewed regularly under the terms of the Pensions Bill 1995.

Year	APP numbers 000s	COMPS numbers 000s	COMPS rebates £ billion
2010	4,200	400	0.2
2020	3,600	400	0.3
2030	2,800	400	0.3

(Figures based on the assumptions detailed in the Government Actuary's report on the Pensions Bill 1995 CM 2714).

WALES

EDS

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the contracts his Department has with the computer company EDS. [33171]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The Welsh Office has no contracts with the computer company EDS.

Local Government Reorganisation

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement concerning local government reorganisation and job security of council employees. [33496]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The new authorities are responsible for deciding their staffing structures, including the number and grade of posts.

I wrote to the chairman of the Staff Commission for Wales in January, setting out our view that, in the first instance, it is for each new authority, in consultation with its predecessors, to decide which staff—over and above those covered by the TUPE regulations—should be transferred to it.

The decisions which councils reach will be reflected in the staff transfer order. We aim to publish the order for consultation in November 1995.

This process should reassure staff who are covered by the order about their immediate future, but it is for the new councils to decide what security of employment they wish to offer them beyond April 1996.

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with local government leaders concerning job security for employees when local government reorganisation takes place, and if he will make a statement. [33497]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: My right hon. Friend has had no such discussions since taking up his appointment.

Capital Receipts

Mr. Raynsford: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the total amount of (a) usable and (b) set-aside capital receipts held by each local authority in Wales on 31 March. [33472]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The latest available information is given in the following table:

Independent Schools

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many school-age pupils resident in each local education authority areas attend independent schools. [33494]

Mr. Richards: Information about the place of residence of pupils attending independent schools is not collected centrally. Total pupil numbers at independent schools, tabulated according to the local authority area in which the schools are located, are shown in table 1.06 of "Statistics of Education and Training in Wales: Schools No. 3 1995", a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

NHS Trust Members

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the members appointed to, and the vacancies that exist in, (a) the Clwydian trust, (b) the Wrexham Maelor trust and (c) Glan Clwyd trust; and if he will list the salaries concerned. [33498]

Mr. Richards: The members appointed together with their remunerations are as follows:

[1] Those appointed as chairmen or non-executive directors are not salaried, but are entitled to receive a flat rate taxable remuneration.
[2] Ms Brierley has accepted an invitation to become a non-executive director. The Secretary of State will shortly be writing to confirm the appointment. Once confirmed there will be no vacancies on the above trusts.

Modern Apprenticeships

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the total spending in each Welsh county on modern apprenticeships in the past year; what were the amounts of under or overspendings; and what new subjects have now been added to the original courses offered. [33285]

Mr. Richards: The information requested on expenditure in 1994–95 is not available centrally on a county basis.

The development of modern apprenticeships is fundamental to creating the competitive edge that Welsh industry needs to compete in world markets. In 1994–95, the first year of modern apprenticeships, manufacturing engineering was made a priority and 550 trainees embarked on apprenticeships in this field. In 1995–96, support for modern and accelerated modern apprenticeships is being extended to other key occupational areas needed by Welsh businesses, as shown in the following table; and it is expected that a further 3,400 young people will start apprenticeship training during the course of the year.

Modern apprenticeships frameworks are still being developed in many areas like accountancy, banking, insurance, amenity horticulture etc. Non specified places are to allow these to be introduced as they are developed.

Cardiologists

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his latest estimate of the number of specialist cardiologists in post in the NHS in Wales; and if he will list the numbers for each of the previous five years. [33330]

Mr. Richards: The information, which relates to the whole-time equivalent number of consultant cardiologists in post at 30 September, is given in the following list:

1989: 3.1
1990: 4.6
1991: 4.6
1992: 6.1
1993: 9.1
1994: 9.0

Cardiac Mortality

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the cardiac mortality rate for each year since 1989; and if he will provide a breakdown by health authority area in Wales. [33329]

Mr. Richards: The available information is in the following table:

Cardiac mortality (ICD 390–429) per 100,000 residents

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33867]

Mr. Hague: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33866]

Mr. Hague: Details of the information technology consultants employed in the financial years 1992–93, 1993–94, 1994–95 and expenditure to date this financial year are given as follows. Information relating to the periods prior to 1992–93 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

1992–93: £380,799
1993–94: £521,094
1994–95: £591,007
1995–96: £97,364

Estimated expenditure on consultancies over the next five years is some £1,215,000.

Grant-maintained Schools

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many ballots for schools to become grant-maintained have been held in the last 12 months; and what was the result in each case. [33828]

Mr. Richards: Six ballots were held, all of which resulted in a vote against seeking grant-maintained status.

Welsh Correspondence

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make it his policy to sign official letters from his office which are in the Welsh language. [33712]

Mr. Hague: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Caerphilly (Mr. Davies) on Tuesday 11 July 1995, Official Report, column 514.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Public Bodies

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which members of (a) the Advisory Committee on Novel Foods, (b) the Advisory Committee on Pesticides and (c) the Food Advisory Committee receive any form of grant from his Department or private companies. [32420]

Mr. Boswell: No members of any of these non-departmental public bodies receive any grants from my Department but they are paid travel and subsistence expenses and daily fees for attendance. Some members receive remuneration from private companies and details of these interests are published in the committees' annual reports, copies of which are deposited in the House of Commons Library.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his department, their purpose and their cost. [32485]

Mr. Boswell: Comprehensive information in the form requested is not readily available.

In common with other Government Departments MAFF does not spend directly with advertising agencies. Any advertising forming part of a publicity campaign is placed via the Central Office of Information. Major advertising campaigns since 1990–91 are:

Rabies Prevention;

Joint Imports (prevention of plant and animal diseases being brought into the UK);

Foodsense (promoting safe and healthy eating);

Animal Health and Welfare Issues;

Balance in the Countryside.

Other smaller campaigns have promoted the various schemes available to farmers.

The value of all forms of advertising commissioned through the COI since 1990–91 is as follows:

1990–91: £107,846
1991–92: £342,896
1992–93: £663,460
1993–94: £637,953
1994–95: £703,928

(All figures are exclusive of VAT).

Farming (New Entrants)

Mr. Tredinnick: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps are being taken to help new entrants to farming; and if he will make a statement. [32729]

Mr. Baldry: The quota schemes which currently operate in the beef and sheep sectors include special arrangements which allow new entrants access to quota from the sheep and suckler cow scheme national reserves. Milk quotas pose a special problem; the Department has in the past looked at ways of attempting to assist new entrants but there are fundamental difficulties to be overcome. However, the Government are ready to consider proposals from the dairy industry for an industry-run scheme.

The introduction of farm business tenancies will help to ensure that more land is available for new entrants to rent. The Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors has estimated that within two years more than 300,000 hectares of extra land will be offered for rent as a result of the flexibility provided by the new arrangements.

An extensive range of courses are available to prospective new entrants through agricultural colleges. New entrants can also take advantage of the extensive range of training courses available through ATB–Landbase and other training providers.

Banks provide general business start up and planning advice that would meet most of the requirements of new entrants for general information. We are also working, through our contact with ATB–Landbase, to raise awareness of skills gaps and deficiencies and the benefits, both to new and established business, of strategic business planning and training. Training and enterprise councils also have a role to play through business start up activities and business links will be an important contact point for new entrants seeking advice on business set up and development matters.

Set-aside Land

Mr. Cox: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the acreage of the largest single holding of land in England and Wales that was in set-aside as of 1 June. [33021]

Mr. Baldry: As we have given an undertaking to claimants under the arable area payments scheme that all information regarding their claim is held in confidence, specific information on single claims cannot be published.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the total acreage of land in England and Wales in set aside as of 1 June. [33014]

Mr. Baldry: The total area of land in set aside in England and Wales at 1 June 1995 is not yet available. I will write to the hon. Member when this information is known.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what are the 10 largest sums paid in set-aside payments since the inception of the scheme; and to whom were they paid. [33117]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 11 July 1995]: We have given an undertaking to claimants under the arable area payments scheme that all information regarding their claim is held in confidence. Specific information on individual claims cannot, therefore, be published. However, in 1993–94 there were seven claims in excess of £500,000 in 1994–95 there were 15 such claims.

Shareholdings

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33484]

Mr. Boswell: The Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food and its agencies do not hold information centrally about declared company shareholdings. Each declaration is, however, scrutinised carefully to guard against potential conflicts of interest.

Environmental Protection

Ms Quin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many people were employed in environmental protection in each of the last ten years. [32900]

Mr. Boswell [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The protection and enhancement of the rural and marine environment is an important aim of the Ministry. It is pursued through a number of programmes and the resources associated with each programme, including administration costs, are given in chapter 3 of the annual report, a copy of which is lodged in the Library of the House. Records are not kept of staff numbers associated with specific aims and programmes.

Fraud

Dr. Strang: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many serious irregularities in the intervention regimes are currently under investigation in the United Kingdom for each agricultural commodity. [32387]

Mr. Douglas Hogg [pursuant to the reply 5 July, Official Report, c. 307]: I am now able to provide the number of serious irregularities in the intervention regimes which are currently under investigation in the United Kingdom. The information is as follows:

NORTHERN IRELAND

Arms Decommissioning

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the outcome of the talks between the British and Irish Prime Ministers in Cannes, with particular reference to (a) decommissioning of arms and (b) the terms of remission for prisoners. [32910]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and the Taoiseach had a constructive meeting on 27 June. They discussed a whole range of subjects. It was announced after the meeting that the Prime Ministers had commissioned a joint report on the decommissioning of weapons and explosives.

Farm Burglaries

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what was the number of burglaries on farms and farm out-buildings for each of the last 10 years; [33135]

(2) what was the number of cases of livestock theft for each of the last 10 years. [33133]

Sir John Wheeler: The information is as follows:

Offences on Farms in Northern Ireland 1987–1994

	Burglary offences[1]	Thefts of animals[2]
1987	105	24
1988	94	92

[1] Includes attempts and going equipped to steal/going equipped for burglary etc.
[2] May include thefts of domestic and wild animals from farms/farm premises as well as thefts of livestock.
Figures are not available before 1987.

Leadhill School

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many pupils were enrolled at Leadhill primary school, Castlereagh in each of the past five years; how many pupils were enrolled in each class this year at Leadhill school; what capital investment there was at this school in each of the past five years; what proposals there are to improve accommodation at the school; and if he will make a statement. [32993]

Mr. Ancram: The information is as follows:

Total pupils enrolled

Year	Number
1990	175
1991	172
1992	179
1993	187
1994	201

Year	Amount £
1990–91	802
1991–92	1,381
1992–93	15,092
1993–94	3,178
1994–95	1,209

The South Eastern education and library board has no proposal at present to improve accommodation at the school but will continue to keep the matter under review.

Security

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what consideration he is giving to the removal of (a) the security tower at Rosemount in Londonderry and (b) vehicle checkpoints near the Donegal border of Northern Ireland as a consequence of the ceasefire. [33043]

Sir John Wheeler: At present the RUC advise that these security installations remain operationally necessary, but the requirements to retain these, and similar structures, is kept under constant review.

University of Ulster

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what procedures, sources of funding and timescales are being followed in consideration of the Springvale campus proposal by the University of Ulster. [33041]

Mr. Ancram: Following the announcement by the University of Ulster of its proposal to establish a campus at Springvale, my right hon. and learned Friend commissioned a full economic appraisal of the scheme. In addition, I commissioned a report from the Northern Ireland Higher Education Council specifically to consider the educational aspects of the proposal. The economic appraisal is nearing completion, and the Secretary of State will wish to give full consideration to its findings, including the costs involved, and to the NIHEC report before taking a decision on the Springvale campus proposal.

Land Bank

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which parts of Northern Ireland currently have inadequate publicly owned land banks to respond to the needs of incoming investors; and what he proposes to do about this. [33045]

Mr. Ancram: The Industrial Development Board for Northern Ireland has a land bank of over 1,100 acres, which, is adequate to meet the needs of incoming investors in most cases. Additional land is currently being acquired at Ballycastle, Banbridge, Belfast, Castlereagh, Downpatrick, Dungannon, Enniskillen, Londonderry and Omagh.

Support Programme

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what are the contents of the special support programme for peace and reconciliation which has recently been submitted to the European Commission. [33040]

Sir John Wheeler: The guidelines for the special support programme makes provision for a range of measures under the five priorities of employment, urban and rural regeneration, cross-border development, social inclusion and industrial development/productive investment. It is expected that the programme will mirror this provision. As the submitted draft is still being negotiated between the member states concerned and the European Commission, it is not possible to give definitive details of the content.

Theft (Fields)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the number of cases of theft of produce from fields for each of the least 10 years. [33124]

Sir John Wheeler: Data on theft of produce from fields are not available.

Fish Kills

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many fish kills have been reported on Kellswater, County Antrim, in the 12 months ended 30 June; what was the location and cause of each fish kill; on how many occasions prosecutions have taken place in respect of the above fish kills and on how many occasions (a) the chief executive of the fisheries Conservancy Board (NI) has recommended no prosecution to the Fisheries Conservancy Board; how many reported incidents of failure to protect fish with special reference to smolts in Northern Ireland, have resulted in (a) prosecution and (b) no prosecution; and if all reported fish kills are brought to the attention of the Fisheries Conservancy Board (NI) by the chief executive of the Fisheries Conservancy Board. [33269]

Mr. Ancram: In the 12 month period ended 30 June 1995 two reports of fish kills on the Kellswater river, Co Antrim, were received and investigated by the Fisheries Conservancy Board.

The first fish kill occurred between Wiggleton weir and Shankbridge. No discharge was detected at the time of investigation. However, the source is believed to be an industrial discharge, coupled with unusually high water temperatures and low oxygen levels in the river.

The second fish kill occurred below Shankbridge and is under investigation. In the first case the chief executive did not pursue prosecutions due to insufficient evidence. Statutory water samples have been taken in the second case with a view to prosecution. Prosecutions are recommended in those cases where water samples have been taken and the analysis supports prosecution.

During the last year the Fisheries Conservancy Board issued 29 warning letters for failures by persons or organisations to protect fish with special reference to smolts in Northern Ireland under the provisions of section 659 of the Fisheries Act (NI) 1966. Of these 15 have applied for or have been granted an exemption by the Department of Agriculture from the requirements of section 59 of the Act, four are now complying with the Act, four are being considered for prosecution, three are still within the three-month warning period during which they must take action to comply and three are under further investigation.

The board has records of a further five cases where files have been prepared for prosecution. One of these cases has been successfully prosecuted, two have subsequently complied with the Act and two are awaiting prosecution.

The chief executive of the Fisheries Conservancy Board advises the board of all fish kills and resulting action from investigations.

Specialist Cardiologists

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his latest estimate of specialist cardiologists in post in the NHS in Northern Ireland; and if he will provide figures for each of the previous five years. [33331]

Mr. Moss: The information at 30 September of each year is as follows:

Year	Number
1994[1]	18
1993	17
1991	16
1992	15
1990	14
1989	14

[1] Latest dates for which figures are available centrally.

Cardiac Mortality

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the cardiac mortality rate for each year since 1989 giving the figures for each health authority area in Northern Ireland. [33332]

Mr. Moss: The mortality rate per 1,000 population was as follows:

	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994[1]
Eastern Health and Social Services Board	3.6	3.4	3.3	3.3	3.3	3.1
Northern Health and Social Services Board	3.3	2.9	2.8	3.0	3.0	2.9
Southern Health and Social Services Board	3.2	3.1	3.0	3.0	3.0	3.0
Western Health and Social Services Board	2.8	3.1	3.0	3.0	2.7	2.7

[1] 1994 figures are provisional.

Consultancies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33889]

Sir John Wheeler: Details of firms awarded information technology consultancy contracts and the number of contracts awarded to each firm are as follows:

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33877]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33857]

Sir John Wheeler: The total amount paid to consultants for information technology is as follows:

1990–91: £1,690,000
1991–92: £1,300,982
1992–93: £1,100,867
1993–94: £520,892
1994–95: £1,151,501

Details of expenditure over the next five years is not available.

Investigators

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the revised statutory code of practice in respect of authorised investigators to come into operation. [34491]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: I have today laid before Parliament a revised draft code of practice in connection with the exercise by authorised investigators of the powers conferred by schedule 5 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991, as I am required to do by paragraph 7(3) of that schedule. I intend also to make an order which will bring the code into operation on 1 August 1995. The revised code was published for consultation on 3 April 1995 and takes account of a change to the 1991 Act which relaxes the law by permitting authorised investigators to obtain information in writing rather than requiring individuals to attend for interview and produce documents.

The draft code provides guidance to authorised investigators on how they should exercise their powers and contains a number of valuable safeguards for those who may be interviewed by them.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Metric Measures

9. Sir Michael Neubert: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what recent representations he has received on the subject of compulsory metric measures. [32125]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: I have received a number of letters about recent press coverage of the compulsory use of metric units for certain products from 1 October 1995.

Beer

19. Mr. Galloway: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what further representations he has had from the Campaign for Real Ale about consumers having to pay for the frothy head on beer. [32139]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: I have received no further representations from the Campaign for Real Ale.

Oil Installations (Recycling)

20. Mr. Macdonald: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what support he intends to give to British yards bidding for work recycling redundant oil installations from the North sea. [32140]

Mr. Eggar: My oil and gas projects and supplies office is already helping UK industry to compete for this type of work.

Post Offices

21. Mr. McFall: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what proposals he has to maintain a nationwide network of post offices. [32142]

Mr. Lang: The Government are committed to the improvement of the network's commercial prospects by the introduction of technology and by allowing Post Office Counters Ltd. greater freedom to take on new clients.

29. Mr. Rooker: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the future of Crown post offices. [32150]

Mr. Lang: I refer the hon. Member to the oral answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Heeley (Mr. Michie) earlier today.

Manufacturing Output

22. Mr. Eastham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the current figures for manufacturing output. [32143]

Mr. Lang: Manufacturing output rose by 2.6 per cent. in the 12 months to May.

27. Mr. Hutton: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the current figures for manufacturing output. [32148]

Mr. Lang: I refer the hon. Member to the earlier answer I gave to the hon. Member for Manchester, Blackley (Mr. Eastham).

Gas Supply (Kent)

23. Mr. Jacques Arnold: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment he has made of the potential effect on domestic consumers of the introduction of competition into gas supply in Kent. [32144]

Mr. Eggar: Competition in domestic gas supply is expected to lead to generally lower gas bills. British Gas competitors anticipate average price reductions of around 10 per cent. It will allow customers to choose the mix of price and service that best meets their particular requirements.

Unethical Sales Practices

24. Dr. Goodson-Wickes: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what consultations he has had with London trading standards about unethical sales practices. [32145]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: In December 1994, my Department issued a consultation document to trading standards departments and others on the powers of the Director General of Fair Trading to act against traders whose practices are unfair to consumers. A number of responses have been received from London boroughs' trading standards departments.

Over-regulation

25. Mrs. Gorman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to urge other EU states to relieve small and medium enterprises of the burden of over-regulation. [32146]

Mr. Page: Increasingly, other member states of the European Union are recognising the importance of small and medium-sized enterprises for job creation, and of their particular sensitivity to poor regulation. This is reflected in the Cannes European Council's conclusions, and also in the work of the Commission's small firms directorate on disseminating best regulatory practice for small business. I believe that member states can benefit from our "think small first" approach to new legislation and our small firms litmus test. We are working closely on this with other member states.

Privatised Utilities

26. Mr. Keith Hill: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the estimated value, potential value and past profit of privatised utilities, directors and senior executives' share option schemes. [32147]

Mr. Eggar: The details of share options schemes and the value of awards made under the schemes are matters for the companies concerned.

28. Mr. Hoon: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the change in the pay of the executives of privatised utilities since privatisation. [32149]

Mr. Eggar: Pay in the private sector is a matter for the companies concerned and for their shareholders.

31. Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to review the current system of regulations of the privatised utilities. [32152]

Mr. Eggar: The ways in which the systems of regulation of the privatised utilities develop is a matter of continuing interest, and the regulators and the Government always welcome practical suggestion for improvements to the current system.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the current salary of the Director General of Telecommunications; and what has been the salary for this post since 1990. [33550]

Mr. Ian Taylor: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 26 June 1995, Official Report, columns 448–50 by my right hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, North (Mr. Eggar) to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain).

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the current salary of the Director General of Electricity Supply; and what has been the salary for this post for each year since 1990. [33549]

Mr. Eggar: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain), whose similar question was answered on 26 June 1995, Official Report, columns 448–50.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the criteria used to determine the salaries of director generals of electricity supply, gas supply and telecommunications. [33551]

Mr. Eggar: The remuneration of the director generals of electricity supply, of gas supply and of telecommunications is determined by the Secretary of State, with the approval of the Minister with responsibility for the civil service, and salaries are set at the rate necessary to recruit and retain the best candidates.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the current salary of the Director General of Gas Supply; and what has been the salary of this post since 1990. [33557]

Mr. Eggar: Details of the current salary of the Director General of Gas Supply and the salary of this post since 1990, were given to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Hain) on 26 June 1995, Official Report, columns 448–50.

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on employment prospects in the utilities. [32190]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 11 July 1995]: Employment prospects in the utilities are subject to the commercial judgment of their management and the needs of their customers.

Exports

30. Mr. Amess: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the trend in United Kingdom exports. [32151]

Mr. Nelson: The outlook for exports in 1995 is excellent. In the three months to April, the volume of United Kingdom exports, excluding oil and erratics was 9.5 per cent. higher than a year earlier. The CBI reports that export order books are growing faster than ever before and that optimism among exporters is at its highest for a generation.

Inward Investment

32. Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on inward investment. [32153]

Mr. Eggar: Inward investment is a UK success story. I announced only last week that in 1994–95, a record number of 434 inward investment decisions were notified to the Invest in Britain Bureau, expecting to create nearly 37,000 new jobs. Almost 57 per cent of these decisions were by foreign investors already established here, a tremendous vote of confidence in the strength of the UK economy.

Firework Injuries

33. Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps he is taking to reduce the number of firework injuries. [32154]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Legislation is in place to control the supply of unsafe fireworks and to prohibit the supply of fireworks to persons under 16 years of age.

To complement these measures, an annual firework campaign is undertaken to inform retailers and users of the necessary precautions to be taken when fireworks are supplied and used. The 1995 firework campaign will concentrate upon the age group nine to 13 years and garden firework parties which were associated with most of the firework accidents in 1994.

Nuclear Industry

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans the Government have to remove non-leviable status from the nuclear industry once it is privatised; and in what way they will then seek to recognise the benefits of pure renewable forms of energy. [32639]

Mr. Eggar: The Government are considering the future of non-leviable status, and expect to announce their conclusions before the privatisation of the nuclear generating stations.

Pallion Engineering Ltd.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations his departmental officials including regional officials have received from Appledore, Devon regarding Pallion Engineering Ltd., Sunderland. [33765]

Mr. Eggar: My officials have not received any representations from Appledore Ltd. about Pallion Engineering Ltd. of Sunderland.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) when he last discussed the future of Pallion Engineering Ltd. with the European Commissioner responsible for competition; [33763]

(2) when his Department's officials last met representatives of the European Commissioner responsible for competition to discuss Pallion Engineering Ltd., Sunderland. [33762]

Mr. Eggar: My right hon. Friend the then Minister for Industry, corresponded with the European Commissioner responsible for competition about the future of Pallion Engineering in July 1994. A number of meetings have taken place since then between officials of my Department and those of the Directorate General for Competition to discuss the shipbuilding industry generally and those officials discussed Pallion most recently by telephone on 4 July 1995.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many representations he has received regarding Pallion Engineering Ltd., Sunderland; and if he will make a statement. [33764]

Mr. Eggar: Ministers and officials have received approximately 15 representations about Pallion Engineering since July 1994. I have agreed to meet a delegation of hon. Members to discuss the constraints imposed on Pallion Engineering by the European Community's seventh shipbuilding directive.

European Commissioner (Competition)

Mr. Etherington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when he will next meet the European Commissioner responsible for competition; and what matters will be discussed. [33766]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: My right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade meets the European Commissioner responsible for competition from time to time but has no specific plans to do so in the immediate future.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when he last met the European Commissioner responsible for competition; and what matters were discussed. [33767]

Mr. Evans: My right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade last met the European Commissioner responsible for competition on Monday 3 April 1995. Their discussions covered state aids issues and the liberalisation and privatisation of the energy and telecoms sectors.

Directory Inquiry Services

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what discussions he has had with the Director General of Telecommunications, as to standards of directory inquiry services; and if he will make a statement. [32457]

Mr. Ian Taylor: None. The standard of directory inquiry services is a matter for the Director General of Telecommunications. I invite my hon. Friend to inform the director or myself of any specific concerns.

Biodiesel

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what was the total amount of biodiesel (a) imported into the United Kingdom and (b) produced in the United Kingdom last year. [32717]

Mr. Nelson: A small amount of biodiesel was produced in the UK last year for trial purposes only. Exact quantities produced and import figures are not available.

Asbestos

Mr. McCartney: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the quantities of asbestos imported into the United Kingdom in each of the last five years. [32864]

Mr. Nelson: The information is published by the Central Statistical Office in the overseas trade statistics of the United Kingdom, which is available in the Library of the House.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many asbestos slates have been imported into the United Kingdom in each of the last five years; what was their cost; and what is the cost of their United Kingdom—made substitutes. [32865]

Mr. Nelson: The information is not available.

Jaguar

Mr. Mills: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress has been made in establishing support for the location of Jaguar's new model investment in the midlands; and if he will make a statement. [33625]

Mr. Eggar: DTI Ministers and officials have been working very closely with Ford and Jaguar to maximise the prospects of Jaguar's new X200 saloon car being built in the west midlands. The DTI, in association with English Partnerships and local agencies, working through the Government offices in the west midlands, is putting together a substantial package of support, including site improvements and training.

Company Inspections

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when inspectors were appointed in relation to (a) Pennine Commercial Holdings plc, (b) British Anzani plc and (c) International Signal and Control Group plc; and if he will list in each case the reasons for the appointment of inspectors, the names of the inspectors and their business connections, the cost of the investigation together with details of the way in which it has been disbursed to each inspector, including the basis of disbursement, the number of hours for which each inspector has billed his Department, including the hourly rate, the date of completion and publication of the report and the action taken by the Department against the parties criticised in the report, the parties who have seen the report and under what section and statute. [33923]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: Elizabeth Appleby QC and Peter Wilfred Foss FCA, a partner of Moores Rowland, were appointed inspectors of Pennine Commercial Holdings plc on 4 October 1983 and also of British Anzani plc on 11 March 1983—a related investigation.—both appointments being under the provisions of section 165(1)(b) of the Companies Act 1948—now section 432 of the Companies Act 1985—following concern over a number of matters and in particular the conduct of certain of its directors. They completed their report on British Anzani plc on 28 November 1986. The inspectors are reviewing their interim report on Pennine Commercial Holdings plc with a view to submitting a final report, following the conclusion in April 1995 of appeals against criminal convictios. When the inspectors have submitted their completed report on Pennine Commercial Holdings, publication of the reports will be considered. The cost of the inspection of British Anzani plc and related investigations to date, excluding Pennine Commercial Holdings, is £745,600. The cost of the investigation of Pennine Commercial Holdings plc to date is £391,000 of which £355,00 and £36,000, respectively, relate to the accountant and legal inspector. The hours billed and the hourly rate are confidential. Appropriate disclosure has been made within the criminal proceedings and to regulatory bodies.

Inspectors have not been appointed to International Signal and Control Group plc.

Copyright Law

Mr. Sims: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to introduce legislation to incorporate a transmission right into the existing copyright law. [33307]

Mr. Ian Taylor: United Kingdom legislation—the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988—already provides copyright owners with exclusive rights to prohibit or to authorise transmission of their works. Broadcasting of copyright material and its inclusion in a cable programme service, which covers digital on-line services, both require authorisation of the copyright owner.

My Department has established close links with industry on issues which may be affected by advances in information and communication technology, including copyright. A sub-committee of my multi-media industry advisory group is considering these matters at present. We are keeping matters under review, not only in the United Kingdom, but, since transmissions cross territorial boundaries, within the European Union and other international forums.

Mr. David Porter: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) what assessment he has made on the impact on mass market sales of classic paperback reprints of European Union proposals to harmonise copyright laws; and if he will make a statement; [33007]

(2) What assessment he has made on the impact on British printers of European Union proposals to harmonise copyright laws; and if he will make a statement. [33008]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 10 July 1995]: Effects on the sale of paperback reprints may arise from directive 93/98/EEC, which was adopted by the Council of Ministers in October 1993. This requires that copyright should expire 70 years after the death of the author and will mean that the duration of copyright in the United Kingdom will have to be increased from its present duration of 50 years, to 70 years after death, and that certain works on which copyright has ceased will have their copyright revived for up to 20 years. However, the directive provides that publication of works prior to revival of copyright will not be regarded as infringement, and enables member states to introduce safeguards to protect those who are in the process of publishing works on the assumption that they are in the public domain.

My Department has recently circulated a consultative draft of legislation to implement the directive. This draft proposes extensive safeguards which, for example, will allow publishers to make and to sell copies made as a result of commitments entered into before 1 January 1995, and to sell any copy made before 1 July 1995, without liability to owners of revived rights. Furthermore, the draft legislation proposes that any publisher who wishes to make a new edition—that is, one which is not covered by the safeguards mentioned above—will be able to do so, and that this cannot be prevented by the owner of revived rights.

I understand that royalty rates for paperback editions are generally around 7 per cent. of the publishers' selling price to the trade. Given the safeguards we propose to introduce, the effects of implementing this directive on the market for classic books would not appear to be substantial, especially since the directive will be of practical significance to only a relatively small number of books,—that is, those which remain popular more than 50 years after their authors' deaths. Classics whose authors have been dead for more than 70 years will not be affected.

As part of the consultation exercise, views as to costs or benefits of the directive have been sought from businesses and others directly affected. A compliance cost assessment will be produced in due course.

The effect of this directive on the United Kingdom printing industry can be expected to be marginal since there is no reason to believe that the directive will affect overall activity in the industry.

Export Credits Guarantee Advisory Service

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will update the list of members of the Export Credits Guarantee Advisory Service given in his answer of 20 January 1994, Official Report, columns 748–50, indicating the reason for any departure of members. [33163]

Mr. Nelson: Since 20 January 1994, two members have left the Export Guarantees Advisory Council—Mr. Gormly retired at the end of his term of office and Mr. Smallwood resigned due to business commitments. No new members have been appointed.

Telecommunications Companies

Mr. Spellar: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress has been made in obtaining access for British telecommunications companies in the United States market. [32817]

Mr. Ian Taylor: There has been improvement in the access of UK companies to the United States market, particularly since international simple resale of telecommunications between the UK and the US was authorised in October 1994. My Department has now licensed 33 companies to provide ISR to the US, as well as to Australia, Canada and Sweden.

The Government have been following closely the regulatory and legislative proposals currently being considered in the US on foreign ownership and access to the US market, with a view to improving UK companies' position in the US. We have also urged US officials to avoid any measures which may cause difficulty with a successful outcome of the World Trade Organisation negotiations on basic telecommunications, due to end in April 1996.

Ceramics and Porcelain Quotas

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) what was his policy in respect of the proposal to abolish quotas for the importation of tableware and ornamentalware at the 113 Committee of the European Commission and Council of Ministers; and if he will make a statement; [33225]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on employment in north Staffordshire of abolishing tableware and ornamentalware quotas. [33239]

Mr. Eggar: The European Commission is reviewing the quotas on all non-textile imports from China, including ceramics and porcelain, and will report to the Council of Ministers later in the year. The Government consider that protection should continue only if clear economic justification can be shown. Evidence from the UK ceramics industry, including on employment aspects, will be among the factors considered in establishing the Government's response.

Buses

Mr. Spellar: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many buses were produced in the United Kingdom in 1994; and how many buses were imported and exported. [32813]

Mr. Nelson: The available information is set out in the table. Care is required in interpreting these figures as production and trade are recorded under different classifications; in particular, the treatment of minibuses may differ between the two.

UK production, imports and exports of buses in 1994

	Number
Production[1]	1,585
Imports[2]	1,005
Exports[2]	785

Manufacturers (Imports and Exports)

Mr. Spellar: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what was the value of imports and exports of manufactures in each of the main manufacturing countries in 1994. [32827]

Mr. Nelson: The available information is given in the table.

Main manufacturing countries trade in manufactures[1]—1994

Coal Authority

Ms Walley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the individual plots of land currently owned by the Coal Authority in the Stoke on Trent, North constituency. [32709]

Mr. Page: This is a matter for the Coal Authority. I have asked the authority to write to the hon. Member.

Competitiveness

Mr. Waterson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what representations he has received about his latest White Paper on competitiveness. [32141]

Mr. Lang: I refer my hon. Friend to the oral answer that I gave the hon. Member for Colchester, North (Mr. Jenkin) earlier this afternoon.

Iraq (Arms)

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the answer to the hon. Member for Redcar (Ms Quin) from the then Minister for Trade, the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood), on export licensing of 13 November 1989, Official Report, column 1. [32969]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 6 July 1995]: The matters referred to in the question by the hon. Member for Wokingham, answered on 13 November 1989, are under investigation by the Scott inquiry. It would be inappropriate for me to comment before Sir Richard has completed his report.

Royal Ordnance (Exports)

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list all exports of munitions by Royal Ordnance since 1980 to (a) Singapore Technologies and (b) Chartered Chemical Industries plc. [32890]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 6 July 1995]: This question could be answered only at disproportionate cost. Following the recent statement on BMARC by my right hon. Friend the then President of the Board of Trade, 13 June, Official Report, column 595, and the subsequent decision of the Trade and Industry Select Committee to undertake an inquiry into this area, Departments are now carrying out research into some associated areas in relation to defence exports to Singapore. I shall consider what information it might be appropriate to disclose, and which might be relevant to the Select Committee's inquiry, after that research work has been completed.

Mr. Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the export licences (a) applied for and (b) granted to Allivane for military equipment and materials destined for Singapore Technologies since 1980. [33058]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 10 July 1995]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today in response to his questions on exports by Royal Ordnance.

Mr. Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the export licences (a) applied for and (b) granted to Royal Ordnance for military equipment and materials destined for Chartered Chemical Industries Pte Ltd. of Singapore, since 1980. [33026]

Mr. Nelson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today on this issue.

British Nuclear Fuels Ltd.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade for what purpose staff from BNFL were seconded to his Department. [33278]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The staff on secondment to the Department of BNFL are filling posts that have been identified as benefiting from their particular skills and experience. They are part of the continuing programme of interchange of staff between the Department and industry.

BMARC

Mr. Byers: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer of 28 June, Official Report, column 671, on what date in April information was first sent to HM Customs and Excise, and on what date in June the final information was sent concerning BMARC export licences. [32527]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 4 July 1995]: I am afraid that the answer given by the Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Technology on 28 June should have read early April, rather than late April. The first occasion this year on which my Department provided information to HM Customs in connection with BMARC was on or soon after 3 April. The first occasion prior to the statement by my right hon. Friend the former President of the Board of Trade was on 7 June.

Export Promotion Advice

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the export promotion advice for small service businesses and the appropriate level of charges for this advice, and if he will make a statement. [33274]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 10 July 1995]: The effectiveness of export promotion advice for all companies, including small service sector firms, is currently measured through data collected on companies' satisfaction with the services and information provided.

These services are currently either free or charged at a heavily subsidised price. Charging has not deterred the serious exporter as is evidenced by the continuing growth in the use of the charged services.

SCOTLAND

Forestry

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many times Government grants have been awarded to private forestry firms over the past five years; and what was the total value for each year. [30441]

Mr. Kynoch: Some 24,000 woodland grant scheme applications were approved in Great Britain in the five years to 31 March 1995, of which about one-quarter were from companies; private forestry companies are not recorded separately.

Total payments under the woodland grant scheme, and other Forestry Commission grant schemes which are now closed, were as follows:

Year ended 31 March	Payments (£ million)
1991	16.5
1992	17.2
1993	21.8
1994	29.8
1995	32.8

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the name of the principal recipients of Government grants for private forest schemes in Scotland over the past five years. [30443]

Mr. Kynoch: The Forestry Commission has no management reason to keep a record of cumulative payments made to each owner. To provide the information requested would require a manual search through a very large number of individual grant scheme files. This could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the criteria for Government grants being awarded to private forestry, and what restrictions there are on foreign-owned forestry in Scotland. [30445]

Mr. Kynoch: Applications for grant aid have to satisfy the aims of the woodland grant scheme and meet the silvicultural and environmental standards set out in guidelines published by the Forestry Commission. There are no restrictions on nationality; applicants must be the legal occupiers of the land.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many jobs he estimates have been created by privately owned forestry in Scotland over the past five years. [30442]

Mr. Kynoch: The Forestry Commission carried out a sample survey of forestry employment in 1988–89. The results were published in the Commission's Occasional Paper 27, a copy of which is in the Library. The Commission carried out another sample survey in 1993–94, and it is currently analysing the results of this. I shall send the hon. Member a copy of the survey report when it is published, and I shall also place a copy in the Library.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many hectares of (a) new native pinewoods and (b) new broadleaved woods were grant aided in (i) Scotland and (ii) Argyll and Bute for 1994–95 [30444]

Mr. Kynoch: The information is as follows:

	Area of new planting (hectares)
	Scotland	Argyle and Bute
Native pinewoods (including associated broadleaves)	2,400	60
Broadleaved woods (excluding broadleaves in native pinewoods)	3,900	160

Rabies

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of rabies there were in each year since 1967. [32289]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: There have been no cases of rabies recorded in Scotland in the years in question.

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of bovine spongiform encephalopathy occurred in each year since 1985. [32373]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: The number of confirmed cases of bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) in Scotland is as follows:

1986: 0
1987: 7
1988: 54
1989: 208
1990: 486
1991: 808
1992: 1,850
1993: 2,208
1994: 1,324
1995[1]: 253

[1] To 30 June.

BSE was first identified in November 1986 and information on the incidence of the disease prior to that date is not available.

Animal Diseases

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Soctland how many cases of peste des petits ruminants occurred in each year since 1985. [32286]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: There have been no cases of peste des petits ruminants in Scotland since 1985.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of contagious equine metritis occurred in each year since 1985. [32304]

Mr. Robertson: There has been only one case of contagious equine metritis recorded in Scotland since 1985. This occurred in 1990.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will show, by type, the number of cases of fowl pest in each year since 1985. [3 292]

Mr. Robertson: No cases of fowl pest—avian influenza or Newcastle disease—have been reported in Scotland since 1985.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of epizootic haemorrhagic virus disease occurred in each year since 1985. [32283]

Mr. Robertson: No cases of epizootic haemorrhagic virus disease have been recorded in Scotland since 1985.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of African horse sickness occurred in each year since 1985. [32301]

Mr. Robertson: African horse sickness has never been reported in Scotland.

A74

Mr. Maxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if the Government has changed the penalties to be applied for failing to meet contractual obligations on the contract to upgrade the A74 between Eaglesfield and Kirkpatrick Fleming to motorway standard. [32713]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The application of liquidated damages, which are not penalties, are being applied strictly in accordance with their purpose in the contract.

The liquidated damages provisions relate to two parts of the works. Those provisions related to the southern section, which can be open to traffic as and when it is ready, remain unchanged. Those related to the northern section, which cannot be open to traffic until the adjacent contract is complete, are now no longer relevant. Their purpose was to cover the Secretary of State against any claim by the adjacent contractor for delay in handing over the northern section which is necessary to provide access for him to construct his adjacent section. The adjacent contractor has now waived all such claims against the Secretary of State as he is now acting as sub-contractor to Castelli-Girola for the northern section. Consequently, there is now no justification for the application of liquidation damages against Castelli-Girola by the Secretary of State for the northern section.

Mr. Maxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the progress of the project to upgrade the A74 between Eaglesfield and Kirkpatrick Fleming to motorway standard; and what penalties have been applied to Castelli-Girola for failing to meet their contractual obligations on this project. [32712]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The southern section of the works that should have been open to traffic at the end of last year has now been granted a partial substantial completion certificate and is open to traffic. This section of the works is subject to the deduction of liquidated damages for failure to deliver the road in due time. The extent of the damages will be determined by the contract and will be subject to any contractually agreed extensions of time.

Mr. Maxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the costs to public funds of the delays in the work to upgrade the A74 between Eaglesfield and Kirkpatrick to motorway standard. [32714]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The delays in completing the upgrade of the A74 Eaglesfield to Kirkpatrick Fleming section to motorway standard has not caused any additional public expenditure; nor have public funds suffered any loss.

Citylink Development

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on public funds provided to Citylink Developments since 1980; and if he will list the conditions attached to such funding. [32855]

Mr. Kynoch: Citylink Developments received assistance from the Scottish Development Agency. The provision of that assistance is now an operational matter for Scottish Enterprise. I have asked the chairman of Scottish Enterprise to write to the hon. Member.

Constituency Boundaries

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to his answer of 22 November, Official Report, columns 112–13, if he is now in a position to list the names for the 72 Scottish parliamentary constituencies as proposed by the boundary commission and the names of the new local authority areas which each constituency will be part of from April 1996. [33705]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information is as follows:

Cardiac Mortality

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the cardiac mortality rate for each year since 1989; and if he will provide a breakdown by health authority area in Scotland. [33327]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is given in the table.

Death rates for heart disease[1] per 100,000 population for each health board area, 1989–94

	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994[2]

Home Office Road Traffic Forms

Ms Roseanna Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the number of forms HORT-1 issued for the years (a) 1993 and (b) 1994; and if he will provide a breakdown by individual police force in Scotland. [33369]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: This information is not available.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33873]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information requested is currently not held centrally and is therefore not available. Steps are, however, being taken to establish a central record of such information.

Cupar Sheriff Court

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary for Scotland (1) what sums have been spent in maintenance and refurbishment of Cupar sheriff court in each of the last 10 years for which information is available; [32661]

(2) when a review was last carried out of the existing facilities at Cupar sheriff court; and what proposals there are for upgrading them. [32662]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The subject of the question relates to matters undertaken by the Scottish court service. I have asked its chief executive, Michael Ewart, to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Michael Ewart to Mr. Menzies Campbell, dated 12 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Scotland has asked me to reply to your questions about how much was spent in the last 10 years on maintenance and refurbishment at Cupar Sheriff Court; when a review was last carried out of the facilities there; and what proposals there are for upgrading them.

Responsibility for arranging maintenance and refurbishment of courthouses prior to 1 April 1992 lay with the Property Services Agency and I regret that we do not have detailed expenditure figures readily available before that date. However, expenditure at Cupar since then was as follows:

1992–93: £15,000

1994–95: £20,000

The facilities at all Courthouses are constantly kept under review. Projects are initiated to solve particular problems as resources allow. We recently improved the prisoner interview and toilet facilities at Cupar to assist the local police and we do not have further major plans to develop the facilities at Cupar at this stage.

Court Services Salaries

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the current salaries of (a) sheriffs, (b) sheriffs principal, (c) senators of the College of Justice, (d) the Lord Justice General and Lord President of the Court of Session and (e) the Lord Justice Clerk. [32666]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The current annual salaries are (a) £72,524, (b) £85,241, (c) £98,957 (outer house) and £110,137 (inner house), (d) £114,874 and (e) £114,137.

Farming Employment

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people were employed in Scottish farming in each of the years 1990–91, 1991–92, 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33539]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The figures requested are set out in the table.

Year	Number employed in Scottish farming
1990	62,650
1991	61,061
1992	60,146
1993	58,778
1994	59,942

The figures are obtained from the annual June agricultural census and relate to main holdings. The numbers include total regular staff full and part-time, casual staff, occupiers working on farms and occupiers' spouses also working on farms. Figures for 1995 are not yet available.

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) how many fatalities there have been among those employed in Scottish farming in each of the years 1990–91, 1991–92, 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; [33541]

(2) how many people employed in Scottish farming have been injured in each of the years 1990–91, 1991–92, 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33540]

Mr. Robertson [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The information on injuries and fatalities among those employed in Scottish farming as reported to the Health and Safety Executive is set out in the table.

Year	Number of injuries	Number of fatalities
1990–91	216	9
1991–92	195	6
1992–93	223	4
1993–94	193	8

Note:
The table shows injuries and fatalities reported to the HSE and to local authorities covering agriculture and horticulture. The HSE gets to know of virtually all workplace deaths but it is known that non-fatal injuries are subject to under-reporting; the extent of under-reporting may be considerable so the figures need to be interpreted in this light. Figures for 1994–95 are not yet available.

Road Accidents (Children)

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list by region the number of school children killed or injured on roads in the latest available year. [33309]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The information requested is given in the following table.

Child casualties of school age (five to 16 years), by region and severity, 1994

Region	Fatal	Serious	Slight	Total
Borders	1	15	77	93

Sewerage Services

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what subsidy will be provided to each of the three new Scottish sewerage authorities to cover the costs of sewerage services in the years 1996–97, 1997–98 and 1998–99. [33312]

Mr. Kynoch [holding answer 11 July 1995]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Ayr (Mr. Gallie) on 15 June, Official Report, column 679. The new public water and sewerage authorities will not receive a subsidy as such from the Government for the services they provide. In recognition of the change in financing of domestic sewerage, however, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will make regulations to reduce charges for domestic sewerage in 1996–97. He will give grant to the authorities to compensate for the income forgone. The amount of grant will be determined later this year, and the full charges will be phased in over a period of time.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Training for Work

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will publish a breakdown by TEC administrative area showing the amount of spending on training for work as a percentage of TEC spending as a whole. [32365]

Mr. Paice: Information on Training and Enterprise Council spend, by programme, is not held centrally. Information is available on what the Department has paid to TECs under their contract. However, this does not equate to TEC spend; TECs may also spend funds obtained from sources other than the Department contract and from their own reserve.

Workstart

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many of the people who participated in the original workstart pilot programme started in 1993 currently (a) employed with the original employer, (b) employed with another employer, (c) in training or education and (d) unemployed. [32366]

Mr. Forth: Approximately one third of the participants in the original workstart pilots are still on programme and therefore employed with the original employer. Destinations of participants who have left the programme will be obtained from a follow-up survey which is due to report in November 1995.

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what obligation lies on employers in the second phase of workstart pilot schemes to provide training for people taken on. [32368]

Mr. Forth: Employers receiving a workstart subsidy are not required to offer training.

The evaluation of the initial workstart pilots found that nearly two thirds of employers felt new workstart recruits had the necessary skills to undertake the job adequately and they required no more help than would have been otherwise offered to new recruits.

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many (a) pamphlets and (b) mailings have been issued by (i) the Funding Agency for Schools and (ii) the Grant Maintained Schools Foundation since 22 June. [33608]

Mr. Squire: There are matters for the funding agency and the Grant Maintained Schools Foundation respectively. I have asked the chairman of the funding agency to write to the hon. Member.

English Tests

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) what assessment she has made of the external marking and assessment of English tests for 14–year–olds; and if she will make a statement; [33607]

(2) what assessment she has made of the external marking of the key stage two English tests. [33605]

Mr. Forth: The Schools Curriculum and Assessment Authority is carrying out a thorough review of external marking for key stages 2 and 3 and will report when its review is complete. The full external marking process is not due to finish until the end of September.

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) what has been the cost of the external marking and assessment of English tests for 14–year–olds; [33606]

(2) what has been the cost of the external assessment and marking of English tests in key stage 2. [33604]

Mr. Forth: The estimated cost of the external marking process is estimated to be £19 million for this year's tests for 11 and 14–year–olds. It is not possible to identify separately the costs either for each age group or for individual subjects.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from her Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33887]

Mr. Robin Squire: The following firms have been awarded computer consultancy contracts by the Department and its agencies in each of the last five years:

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which firms of consultants employed by her Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33875]

Mr. Squire: Over the last year, instances of the Department paying more than £1,000 per day for individual representatives are restricted to the following firms:

Baring Brothers
Coopers and Lybrand
Ernst and Young
Hay Management Consultants
KPMG

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much her Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33856]

Mr. Squire: The value of computer consultancy contracts awarded by the Department and its agencies in each of the last five years is as follows:

Year	Value of contracts £
1990	448,000
1991	590,000
1992	380,000
1993	657,000
1994	691,000
1995	262,000

There is no projection of expenditure over the next five years.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many contracts her Department has had with consultants; and what has been the total cost in each of the last five years. [33561]

Mr. Squire: The information requested is listed in the following table.

Year	Number of contracts	Value £
1990	47	974,000
1991	84	1,517,000
1992	39	1,994,000
1993	69	1,629,000
1994	96	1,800,000

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which her Department has been engaged since 1980. [33456]

Mr. Squire: Between 1980 and the end of the last financial year, the Department—when it had responsibility for science—spent some £627,000 on privatisation of the Plant Breeding Institute.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from her Department (a) by number contacts and (b) monetary value in the last five years for which figures are available. [33447]

Mr. Squire: The information requested for each of the last five years is as follows:

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many contracts and for what total sum were let by her Department and agencies for which it is responsible to (a) Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries, (b) Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries, (c) Ernst and Young and its subsidiaries, (d) Arthur Andersen and it subsidiaries, (e) Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries. (f) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries, (i) Pannell Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries for privatisation, market testing, management advice, accounting, audit, consultancy and other services in 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33915]

Mr. Squire: The number of contracts and their total sum awarded to each of the consultants and their subsidiaries during financial years 1993–94 and 1994–95 are as follows:

Testing Costs

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what were the estimated costs of testing at (a) key stage 1, (b) key stage 2 and (c) key stage 3 in the current year. [33802]

Mr. Forth: A comprehensive breakdown of costs by each key stage is not available. The Schools Curriculum and Assessment Authority estimates the costs of developing national tests and tasks and supporting consistency in assessment to be some £34 million in the financial year 1995–96. In addition, the Department is supporting 60 per cent. of the estimated £8 million costs of auditing the marking of the tasks and tests for key stage 1 and 60 per cent. of the estimated £15 million costs of providing supply cover for teachers administering the tasks and tests at key stage 1 and the tasks only at key stages 2 and 3.

Educational Achievements

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what research her Department has carried out into the educational achievements of young people who have left care. [33833]

Mr. Forth: The Department has not commissioned research on the educational achievements of young people after they left local authority care. A special study of the educational difficulties and needs of young people while in care was undertaken by HM inspectorate and the social services inspectorate jointly in 1994[1], whose emerging findings informed joint Department for Education-Department of Health guidance[2] on good practice in this field. Copies of these publications may be found in the Library.

Dance Education (Discretionary Awards)

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will make a statement on the future of discretionary awards for dance education. [33815]

Mr. Forth: The Government are aware of the difficulties faced by some potential students of dance in obtaining discretionary award support from their local authorities. My officials are currently considering, together with officials from the Department of National Heritage, whether anything might be done to help. No decisions have yet been taken.

Grant-maintained Schools

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many-grant maintained schools there are in each of the London borough council areas. [33486]

Mr. Robin Squire: The information requested is set out in the table.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many staff in her Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33418]

Mr. Squire: In the last five years, no member of staff has declared any company shareholdings. Staff are required to declare where they could be involved in a decision which could affect the value of shareholdings, such as through the award of a contract.

Teacher-pupil Ratio, Devon

Mr. Allason: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the teacher to pupil ratio in Devon in 1989–90 and latest year for which figures are available. [33491]

Mr. Robin Squire: The information is shown in the table.

Pupil: Teacher ratios in maintained primary and secondary schools in Devon local education authority area in 1990 and 1994

	Primary	Secondary
1989	22.3	16.1
1994	22.9	16.4

Departmental Staff (Coventry)

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will list separately, by each office of her Department, the numbers and grades of casuals, fixed appointments and vacancies in the Coventry travel-to-work area. [33778]

Mr. Robin Squire: In the Coventry travel-to-work area, there are four casual administrative officers. Two are based at Bankfield House unemployment benefit office, one at Park court jobcentre and one at Tile Hill jobcentre, all in Coventry.

There are no fixed appointments or vacancies in the Coventry travel-to-work area.

School Governors

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations she has received on the impact on school governor training of the introduction of school effectiveness grants.

Mr. Robin Squire: The Department has had formal and informal discussions with a range of organisations about the school effectiveness activity within the grants for education support and training programme. The activity gives school governing bodies discretion to decide, in co-operation with the head teacher and school staff, how to spend the funds allocated to them in order to promote their school's effectiveness. That includes deciding what part of the funds to spend on governor training and support, so the impact of the activity will vary depending on the decisions taken by individual schools.

Nursery Vouchers

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what estimates have been made for (a) the administrative cost and (b) the total cost of providing nursery vouchers to the parents of all four-year-olds.

Mr. Robin Squire: The total cost of the voucher scheme for four-year-olds which my right hon. Friend has just announced is estimated at £730 million for full implementation in England. Administrative costs will be determined by the tendering process used to select a contractor to administer the scheme, but are expected to be up to 1.5 per cent. of the total cost of the scheme.

Sex Education

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what monitoring arrangements her Department has in place to record the number of children being withdrawn from sex education in secondary schools.

Mr. Forth: The new statutory requirements for sex education, under the Education Act 1993, including the statutory parental right to withdraw their children, came into force on 1 September 1994. The Office for Standards in Education, as part of its regular programmes of inspections, will be monitoring schools' implementation of the full range of new arrangements.

Standard Spending Assessment

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) if she will list the components of the standard spending assessment which account for differences in the standard spending assessment between London and Cheshire, other than the area cost adjustment; and if she will make a statement on the reasons for this differentiation; [33056]

(2) if she will list the components of the standard spending assessment which account for differences in the standard spending assessment between Manchester and Cheshire, other than the area cost adjustment; and if she will make a statement on the reasons for this differentiation; [33055]

(3) if she will list the average standard spending assessment per pupil in (a) London, (b) Manchester and (c) Cheshire, broken down into (i) total, (ii) additional educational needs and (iii) area cost adjustment. [33009]

Mr. Robin Squire: Within the education standard spending assessment methodology, there are three cost adjustments, apart from the area cost adjustment, which reflect variations between authorities in the cost of providing a standard level of service: (i) additional educational needs; (ii) sparsity; and (iii) free school meals.

The table sets out how much of the overall education SSA per pupil for London, Manchester and Cheshire is attributable to the allowance for additional educational needs and the area cost adjustment. The figures are based on the primary sub-block of education SSAs but similar differentials apply to the secondary sub-block.

Education SSA per 5–10 year-old

LEA

	Overall SSA £	Attributable to AEN £	Attributable to ACA £
London	2,451	510	378
Manchester	2,258	673	0
Cheshire	1,817	253	0

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what plans she has to reassess the calculation of the standard spending assessment for pupils in secondary and primary schools; [33012]

(2) what plans she has to exclude pupils in independent schools from the calculation of the population receiving secondary and primary education, as part of the standard spending assessment; [33010]

(3) if she will list the percentage of pupils in (a) state schools and (b) independent schools in (i) London (ii) Oxfordshire and (iii) Cheshire. [33011]

Mr. Squire: We are consulting the local authority associations about the possibility of excluding from that part of the education standard spending assessment methodology that relates to resident population pupils in independent schools. All representations will be carefully considered before we decide whether changes should be made.

The table sets out the number of pupils in state schools and the number of children in independent schools as a percentage of resident population aged five to 18. A residual proportion of authorities' population is in neither state nor independent schools.

	Proportion of population in state schools	Proportion of population in independent schools
London	73.4	8.9
Oxfordshire	69.6	12.4
Cheshire	77.9	4.3

Returning to Teaching Guide

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the cost of (a) publishing and (b) distribution of her Department's publication "Returning to Teaching—A guide to distance learning materials"; to whom it was distributed; and pursuant to page 1 of the document what is contained in it which does not have the approval of the Secretary of State. [32715]

Mr. Forth: The cost of producing "Returners to Teaching—a Guide to Distance Learning Materials" was some £120,000.

The cost of initial distribution of the guide to schools, teacher training institutions and local education authorities in England was some £33,500.

The guide, now the responsibility of the Teacher Training Agency, gave details of material available from a wide variety of sources, likely to be of interest to qualified teachers contemplating returning to teaching. The disclaimer explained that while the list of material had been carefully selected, neither the Secretary of State nor the Teacher Training Agency had approved the contents of the individual items.

Grammar Schools

Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many children are currently educated in grammar schools. [32946]

Mr. Robin Squire: In January 1994, the latest date for which information is available, 116,193 pupils attended maintained grammar schools in England.

School Transport

Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much is currently spent from public funds on school transport.

Mr. Robin Squire: LEA expenditure in England on home to school transport for pre-primary, primary, secondary and special school pupils was £288 million in 1993–94, the latest year for which figures are available.

Selective Education

Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which European states have selective education.

Mr. Robin Squire: Three EU/EEA states operate selective entry to secondary school at age 11 or 12; Belgium, Germany and the Netherlands. All other states provide comprehensive systems of lower education, although at upper secondary level—age 15+—vocational and general education is offered in many different types of schools.

Pre-school Provision

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education, pursuant to her answer of 14 June, Official Report, column 521, what was the number and percentage of all four-year-olds, including the rising-fours and rising-fives, in (a) maintained nursery schools and nursery classes, (b) reception classes in primary schools, (c) private or voluntary sector provision and (d) pre-school provision overall, at the latest available date. [32065]

Mr. Forth: My earlier answer provided estimates of four-year-olds in maintained schools or some form of private or voluntary provision in England in January 1994. A more detailed breakdown is not available. From January 1996, the Department will collect information about rising fours—that is, children aged three in August whose fourth birthday falls between September and December. It is normal practice to exclude the rising fives—that is, children aged four in August whose fifth birthday falls between September and December—because they are of compulsory school age in January.

DEFENCE

Gurkhas (Brunei)

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if Gurkas will continue to be stationed in Brunei; and if he will make a statement. [34403]

Mr. Soames: On 19 June 1995, the Prime Minister and the Sultan of Brunei Darussalam signed an agreement that will extend the stationing of a Gurkha battalion in the Sultanate for a further five years from 29 September 1998. This reflects the close defence relations between our two countries.

Logistic Information Systems Agency

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about key targets for the Army's Logistic Information Systems Agency for 1995–96. [34404]

Mr. Soames: The Logistic Information Systems Agency was established as a Defence agency on 21 November 1994. The role of the agency is to enhance the logistic effectiveness of the Army in peace and war by providing information systems, services and support.

The chief executive has been set the following targets for the second year of operation:

Key Target 1: Meet performance levels laid down by the Quartermaster General for the timeliness, cost and planning effectiveness of information system projects.

95 per cent. on time.

95 per cent. within costs

80 per cent not adjusted for time or cost.

Key Target 2: By 31 March 1996 increase overall customer satisfaction with the services provided by LISA. Achieve a 70 per cent. satisfaction rating and at least a 40 per cent. return of surveys dispatched.

Key Target 3: Introduce dummy invoicing for all chargeable services provided by LISA by 31 March 1996.

Key Target 4: Initiate the selected partnership with the private sector or develop a plan for the implementation of an alternative "Competing for Quality" initiative.

Key Target 5: Fully implement IT support to LISA Finance and Business Systems by 31 March 1996.

Key Target 6: Achieve EN ISO 9001 certification for LISA by 31 March 1996.

Key Target 7: Continue to improve the efficiency by LISA's operations to meet the consolidated efficiency target of £676,000 defined in the owner's management plan.

Recruitment Costs

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the cost of recruitment to the armed forces in the last year for which figures are available. [32825]

Mr. Soames: Total expenditure on recruitment to the armed forces in financial year 1994–95 was £93,427,000.

Annual Reports

Mr. Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 20 June, Official Report, column 236, if he will list the four inspecting grades of his departmental police who were awarded Box 4 assessments for their overall performance between 1990 and 1994, together with the appointments they held when given this assessment and the marks awarded in each category of part 3—aspect of performance—of their annual staff report. [32722]

Mr. Soames: The number of inspecting grades to receive box 4 assessments was in fact six; an incorrect figure which resulted from a computer error was unfortunately given in my answer of 20 June, Official Report, column 236. Disciplinary action was not initiated against either of the two further officers as in both cases they responded to the advice, training and support given and were subsequently graded as meeting the requirements of the rank. It is not my Department's policy to provide more personal information of the type requested in this question.

HS800 Aircraft

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many HS800 twin-engined jet executive aircraft military and civilian versions are in service with (a) Her Majesty's Government and (b) the Ministry of Defence. [33097]

Mr. Soames: None.

Careers Information Office, Torquay

Mr. Allason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the site occupied until recently by the Army careers information office in Union street, Torquay. [33492]

Mr. Soames: The careers information office in Torquay is at present with the local Defence land agent for disposal action. Tenders are being invited for the appointment of selling agents.

Armed Forces Administration Facilities (Scotland)

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what facilities for (a) home defence and (b) the wartime administration of the armed forces have been provided within the Kincardine district of Scotland since 1980; and what were the costs of establishing or maintaining such facilities; [33313]

(2) what facilities for (a) home defence and (b) the wartime administration of the armed forces have been provided at the Inverbervie in the Montrose district of Scotland since 1980; and what were the costs of establishing or maintaining such facilities. [33315]

Mr. Soames: The only defence/wartime administration facility within the Kincardine district is at Inverbervie; there is no facility in Montrose. These facilities consist of a below-ground command centre. Maintenance costs have averaged £200 per annum since the MOD took over responsibility for its maintenance from the Property Services Agency. Receipts to the value of £2,500 per annum are received from a local farmer, for grazing rights, and Grampian regional council. Up until August 1992, a caretaker was employed for 30 hours per week at a cost of £7,359 annually. Between August 1992 and July 1993, the requirement was reduced to six hours per week at a cost of £1,322 annually. The caretaker post was subsequently cancelled.

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what facilities for (a) home defence and (b) the wartime administration of the armed forces have been provided within the Lanark district of Scotland since 1980; and what were the costs of establishing or maintaining such facilities. [33314]

Mr. Soames: There are no home defence/wartime administration facilities within Lanark district.

Service Personnel

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service men have been reinstated in (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force following a conviction and a term of imprisonment for (i) murder, (ii) manslaughter, (iii) culpable homicide, (iv) sexual assault or rape and (v) offences involving homosexual activities in each of the past 15 years; and if he will make a statement. [33621]

Mr. Soames: No central record of this information is maintained and it would involve disproportionate cost to carry out a physical check of my Department's records over the past 15 years. It is, however, normal practice for service personnel to be discharged if they are sentenced to a term of imprisonment by a civil court, although in exceptional circumstances there is discretion to retain individuals in service.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those Governments which have been invited to the DESO exhibition in Aldershot in September. [33238]

Mr. Arbuthnot: It has been the consistent practice of successive administrations not to release details of invitations to attend British forces equipment exhibitions. Invitations are issued on a confidential basis and it would be a breach of trust to disclose details.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department or its agencies over the last five years, indicating the number of contracts per firm; [33932]

(2) how much his Department or its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the anticipated expenditure over the next five years. [33934]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from his Department (a) by number of contracts and (b) monetary value in the last five years for which figures are available; [33446]

(2) which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33933]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Avocet Explosive Waste Incineration, Shoeburyness

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to permit the burning of munitions waste on open ground or a beach in the vicinity of the mid-Essex coast. [33987]

Mr. Arbuthnot: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Ms Joan Ruddock, dated 12 July 1995:

1. Your priority written question to the Secretary of State for Defence about plans for burning munitions waste on open ground or beaches in the vicinity of the mid Essex coast, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, has included the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO) Ranges at Shoeburyness, Essex.

2. Currently conventional munitions are disposed of by a number of means on the Shoeburyness range area in Essex. These munitions are mainly those which have arisen from wartime clearance operations or munitions which are no longer safe for service. No chemical munitions are disposed of at Shoeburyness. Hitherto munitions had been disposed of by deep sea dumping but this was banned in 1993. The method chosen for disposal depends largely on the nature of the munitions, the size of the explosive component and safety of and environmental considerations.

3. One method employed is to burn the munitions in preference to detonating them with allthe noise problems involved. The preferred method of burning is to incinerate the munitions in an explosive waste incinerator, code named "AVOCET", with a complex pollution control system which reduces the pollution emissions to levels below the EC and HMP permitted levels.

4. Some munitions, notably those which are extremely sensitive or with too high an explosive content for Avocet processing, are burned in the open both on the tidal and flats and on the land. The temperatures achieved when these munitions burn are well in excess of 800 degrees centigrade and at these temperatures volatile organic compounds are destroyed. The residues of these burns are immediately removed for disposal by a commercial waste disposal company under the terms of the 1990 Environmental Protection Act.

5. I hope this information is helpful.

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what grounds Shoeburyness was chosen for the siting of the Avocet explosive waste incineration system. [33988]

Mr. Arbuthnot: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Ms Joan Ruddock, dated 12 July 1995:

1. Your priority written question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking why Shoeburyness was chosen for the siting of the AVOCET explosive waste incineration system, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, has included the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO) Ranges at Shoeburyness, Essex.

2. With the end of the Cold War and the resultant stockpiles of surplus or unsafe munitions, combined with the international ban on the deep sea dumping in 1993, large amounts of unserviceable munitions are currently awaiting disposal. There is also a considerable annual requirement to dispose of unexploded wartime munitions found in this country. Shoeburyness was chosen in 1993 as the UK focus for munitions disposal based on a number of factors:

It is a large range area (over 7000 acres plus tidal sands of 35,000 acres) and as such it has the area required for the safe disposal of items with a large explosive content. There is no other site in the UK which can offer similar facilities.

It also has the experienced Army Ammunition Technicians competent to safely and efficiently dispose of such munitions.

It has the storage facilities required for safe and secure holding of munitions whilst awaiting disposal.

It also has the means to receive munitions by sea. In some cases the munitions are not cleared for movement by overland means and the alternative is to land them over the beach from specialist military shipping without a danger to the public.

In essence, Shoeburyness was carefully chosen as the most suitable and safest place to carry out the MOD duty of care to dispose of unwanted or unserviceable munitions without risk to the public.

3. The AVOCET explosive waste incineration system is one of the most advanced methods of munitions disposal systems available in the world today. Its development was a direct response to the need for a more environmentally friendly system of disposing of unwanted ammunition and it is favoured as a method for disposal over burning, burying and detonation of unwanted ammunition each of which have drawbacks.

4. I hope this is helpful

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the quantity of ammunition to be incinerated in the Avocet explosive waste incineration system at Shoeburyness and over what period. [33989]

Mr. Arbuthnot: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm, to Ms Joan Ruddock, dated 12 July 1995:

1. Your priority written question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the quantity of ammunition to be incinerated in the AVOCET explosive waste incineration system and over what period, has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, has included the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO) Ranges at Shoeburyness, Essex.

2. In the current year the AVOCET facility is programmed to accept 500 tonnes (All Up Weight) of conventional munitions. In subsequent years the system is programmed for 1500–20000 (All UP Weight) per year for up to 10 years (based on current predictions of UK ammunition disposal requirements).

3. The AVOCET facility is licensed by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Pollution (HMIP). It is not used for the disposal of chemical weapons nor is it used for disposing of anything containing radioactive traces.

4. I hope this information is helpful.

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to incinerate ammunition imported into Britain at the Avocet explosive waste incineration system in Shoeburyness. [33990]

Mr. Arbuthnot: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Ms Joan Ruddock, dated 12 July 1995:

1. Your priority written question to the Secretary of State for Defence about plans to incinerate ammunition imported into Britain at the AVOCET waste incinerator system at Shoeburyness has been passed to me to reply as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) which, since April, has included the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO) Ranges at Shoeburyness, Essex.

2. The AVOCET explosive waste disposal incinerator is based on United States rotary kiln furnace technology which has been integrated and enhanced with a UK designed and manufactured pollution control system which enables the safest and most environmentally sound means of disposing of conventional ammunition currently available. Emission levels from the incinerator are well below current and projected Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Pollution (HMIP) and European Commission levels making the system a world leader.

3. The primary purpose of the AVOCET Explosive Waste Incinerator is to dispose of the UK arisings of surplus ammunition and ammunition found in Explosive Ordnance Disposal operations. These items are part of the UK duty of care to dispose of our explosive waste.

4. There are currently no plans to import ammunition from other countries as there is only sufficient capacity in AVOCET for the UK requirement. In the future, if sufficient capacity existed in the system, arisings from elsewhere may be considered but only after all the factors had been considered including the nature of the munitions, the country of origin and manufacture, and the safety and environmental implications of both transport an disposal.

5. I hope this information is helpful.

RAF Fylingdale

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reasons underlie the decision not to uphold byelaws at RAF Fylingdales with particular reference to byelaw 2b on persons entering the applicable area. [33963]

Mr. Soames: No such decision has been made.

Menwith Hill Station

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to renew the American security of tenure at Menwith Hill Station when it expires in May 1997; and whether any proposal to renew the lease will be brought to the House for approval. [33948]

Mr. Soames: The United States forces, who are in the United Kingdom pursuant to the NATO status of forces agreement of 1951, use Menwith Hill Station under confidential administrative arrangements between the Governments of the United Kingdom and the United States of America. It is not our practice to comment on the details of such arrangements. No lease has ever been granted.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many injunctions are currently in force to prevent intrusions at Mentwith Hill Station; and if he will name those against whom injunctions have been obtained. [33961]

Mr. Soames: One injunction is in place against Ms Percy.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many injunction proceedings have been started against people who have trespassed at the American National Security Agency base at Menwith Hill Station since the one brought against Ms Lindis Percy in October 1991. [33954]

Mr. Soames: None. However, we reserve the right to bring injunctions against any persons who persist in trespassing on Ministry of Defence property where they have no right to be.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to give powers to the National Security Agency of America to be a lawful user of Menwith Hill Station in relation to the proposed byelaws; how long his legal department has been working on the drafting of new byelaws; and at what total cost. [33959]

Mr. Soames: The National Security Agency of America is already in lawful occupation of the Menwith Hill Station site under the terms of the confidential administrative arrangements between the Governments of the United Kingdom and the United States of America, and will continue to be a "lawful user" of the site in relation to the proposed byelaws. Work on a review of byelaws has been in progress for approximately two years, involving staff from several areas of the Department; the costs involved could be calculated only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have been arrested and prosecuted for aggravated trespass under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 at the America National Security Agency base at Menwith Hill. [33956]

Mr. Soames: One person has been arrested under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 at Menwith Hill Station. The question of prosecution is still under consideration.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who at Menwith Hill Station will be required to sign the proposed byelaws for the purpose of enforcement of byelaws. [33962]

Mr. Soames: The byelaws, when made, will be signed by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence. As with all other Ministry of Defence sites, the authorisation for purposes of enforcement of byelaws will be signed by the senior United Kingdom officer with security responsibilities at the establishment concerned; at Menwith Hill Station this is at present the chief inspector, Ministry of Defence police.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish or place in the Library the precise wording of the security of tenure document regarding the leasing of Menwith Hill Station to the National Security Agency of America. [33947]

Mr. Soames: This is a confidential administrative arrangements between Her Majesty's Government and the Government of the United States. It would therefore not be appropriate to publish or to comment on the details of such arrangements.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what grounds it is necessary to introduce new byelaws at Menwith Hill Station in addition to existing criminal and civil remedies to deter intruders. [33960]

Mr. Soames: The Menwith Hill Station byelaws are the first set in a complete revision of byelaws for all establishments which we consider require them. They are intended to provide protection for all MOD establishments where other criminal or civil law does not provide sufficient remedy.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have appealed against their convictions under the HMS Forest Moor and Menwith Hill Station Byelaws 1986 since they were declared defective on their face in the High Court in July 1992; how many of these appeals were contested; and how many were (a) upheld and (b) dismissed. [33953]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is not held by my Department.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the United States Army handed control of Menwith Hill Station to the USAF/NSA electronic surveillance group; for what reasons the transfer of control was made; what parliamentary procedures applied; if the change of control fell within the remit of the terms of the War Office/USAF agreement on 11 December 1951 under which the USAF were given the right to occupy and control RAF bases in Britain; and whether this agreement extends to non-Royal Air Force bases. [33949]

Mr. Soames: In 1966, with the agreement of Her Majesty's Government, Menwith Hill Station became a field element of the National Security Agency. United States forces use Menwith Hill Station under confidential arrangements between the Governments of the United Kingdom and the United States of America. It is not our policy to comment on the details of such arrangements.

US Forces

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times, when and by whom the ambassadors' agreement regarding American occupation of British Royal Air Force bases has been subjected to periodic review; and if he will place a copy of this agreement in the Library. [33950]

Mr. Soames: It is not our policy to comment on the detail of confidential arrangements between the Governments of the United Kingdom and the United States of America; the basis on which United States forces are stationed in the United Kingdom is contained in the NATO status of forces agreement of 1951.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what agreement exists between Her Majesty's Government and the United States Government, in their respective Defence Departments, to allow American personnel who are occupying and controlling British bases to employ psychological operations units against British subjects either inside or outside of these bases. [33958]

Mr. Soames: No such operations are undertaken in this country by the US forces against British subjects.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British RAF bases are occupied and controlled by the US Department of Defense; if he will list those bases by name; how many non-RAF bases are similarly occupied and controlled; if he will list those bases; how many of those RAF and non-RAF bases employ members of the National Security Agency of America; and if he will list such bases. [33951]

Mr. Soames: As of 1 July 1995, bases and facilities were made available to the United States Department of Defence at the following locations:

Main Operating Bases
RAF Lakenheath
RAF Mildenhall
Standby Deployment Base
RAF Fairford
Storage/Support Facilities
RAF Alconbury
RAF Brawdy
Chilwell
RAF Daws Hill
Eastcote
Framlingham
RAF Hythe
London USN Europe HQ
RAF Molesworth
RAF Northwood
Oakington
RAF Spadeadam
RAF Watton
RAF Welford

RAF Croughton
RAF Daventry
RAF Dunkirk
RAF Edzell
RAF Feltwell
Menwith Hill Station
RAF Oakhanger
RAF St Mawgan
RAF Swingate
RAF Uxbridge
NATO Armaments Depot
Glen Douglas

While these have been made available for use by United States visiting forces, Her Majesty's Government retain legal possession of the sites and control over the use that is made of them and their facilities. It is not our policy to comment in further detail on operational matters.

US Communication Centres

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many US Department of Defense communication centres operate from British soil; and if he will list them and the agencies by which their workers are employed. [33952]

Mr. Soames: As of 1 July 1995, there were 18 United States Department of Defense communications facilities in the UK as follows:

RAF Barford St John
RAF Barkway
Botley Hill
Bovingdon
RAF Chelveston
RAF Chicksands
Christmas Common
Coldblow
RAF Croughton
RAF Daventry
RAF Dunkirk
RAF Edzell
RAF Feltwell
Menwith Hill Station
RAF Oakhangar
RAF St Mawgan
RAF Swingate
RAF Uxbridge

It is not our policy to give details of personnel assignment.

Public Interest Immunity Certificates

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many public interest immunity certificates he has issued during the last five years; and if he will list them. [33955]

Mr. Soames: I have nothing to add to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark) on 3 July 1995, Official Report, column 92.

National Security Agency of America

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the National Security Agency of America operates from (a) RAF Croughton and (b) RAF Chicksands. [33957]

Mr. Soames: RAF Croughton and RAF Chicksands are US Department of Defense communications centres managed by the United States Air Force. It is not our policy to comment further on operational matters.

Market Testing

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a further statement on market testing in respect of Royal Air Force establishments. [33098]

Mr. Soames: Further to my answer of 18 May to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark) Official Report, column 303, about Royal Air Force activities which have been market tested, listed below are those Royal Air Force establishments and functions where exposure to the "Competing for Quality" process has commenced or is planned to begin in the current financial year:

RAF Machrihanish
RAF Hospital Wegberg
VIP helicopters
Flight Simulators and Synthetic Trainers Maintenance
RAF Stornoway
RAF Lyneham
RAF High Wycombe
Target Facilities engineering support, 100 Squadron
RAF Ascension
RAF Northolt

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Paper Week Exhibition (Upper Waiting Hall)

Sir Roger Moate: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee if he has considered an application for an exhibition relating to paper week to be displayed in the Upper Waiting Hall.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: I understand that, under procedures agreed by the Administration Committee, arrangements have been made for the exhibition to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall from Monday 30 October to Friday 3 November 1995.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Rainbow Warrior (French Attack)

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the French Government about the attack on the Rainbow Warrior, and if he will make a statement on his Department's policy in respect of this incident. [34156]

Mr. David Davis: No representations have been made to the French Government about the Rainbow Warrior action. We have however reminded the French authorities of their obligations in respect of any UK nationals who might be detained.

Common Agricultural Policy

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects the intergovernmental conference reflections group to discuss the reform of the common agricultural policy. [33609]

Mr. David Davis: The IGC study group has not yet discussed the common agricultural policy, and may not do so in any details. The 1992 MacSharry reforms demonstrated that the problems of the CAP stem less from the provisions of the treaty than from the policy which has been developed on the basis of those provisions. We shall continue to work for reform of the CAP in the appropriate fora.

Embassies (Vehicles)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 6 July, Official Report, column 326, if he will provide a breakdown of the figures for vehicles bought for posts abroad, specifying where possible the post and type of vehicle. [34290]

Mr. Hanley: I shall arrange for the information requested to be placed in the Library of the House shortly.

Consulates and Embassies (South Pacific)

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the United Kingdom consulates and embassies in the south Pacific region, indicating the number of diplomatic staff employed at each location (a) currently and (b) 10 years ago. [34186]

Mr. Hanley: The number of UK-based staff slots at each post in the south Pacific region is as follows:

Post	1995	1985
Canberra	28	48
Sydney	4	4
Perth	2	2
Melbourne	2	2
Wellington	14	15
Auckland	2	4
Port Moresby	4	4
Suva	4	6
Nuku'Alofa	2	2
Vila	2	2
Honiara	2	2
Tarawa	0	1

Mrs. Quereshi Bibi

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the answer of the Secretary of State for the Home Department of 29 June, Official Report, column 765, when a decision is to be taken by the post in Islamabad, in the case of Mrs. Quereshi Bibi—ref. BV100/25109; and if he will make a statement. [34319]

Mr. Hanley: I have asked the high commission at Islamabad for details and will arrange for the hon. Member to receive a substantive reply from the migration and visa correspondence unit as soon as possible.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33893]

Mr. Hanley [holding answer 12 July 1995]: The FCO is involved in a number of strategic projects to develop and enhance its communications and information handling facilities. As such, it has dealt with many different software suppliers and consultants. The information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33862]

Mr. Hanley [holding answer 12 July 1995]: The FCO spend on computer consultancy over the last five years was:

1990–91: £3,985,000
1991–92: £4,074,000
1992–93: £4,527,000
1993–94: £5,076,000
1994–95: £4,984,000
1995–96: £6,300,000
1996–97: £6,100,000
1997–98: £5,700,000
1998–99: £5,700,000
1999–2000: £6,000,000

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Land Registry

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what was the outcome of the triennial review of Her Majesty's Land Registry. [34822]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Her Majesty's Land Registry, a separate department of Government since 1862, was established as an executive agency in July 1990 and a Government trading fund in April 1993. Under its statutory powers it guarantees and grants legal title to property rights in England and Wales and provides the statutory machinery for the creation and transfer of these secured rights. The department, wholly financed from fees paid by those using its services, makes no call on public funds.

An evaluation report, the results of which were made known to the House on 14 July 1994, concluded that the Land Registry had benefited considerably from its move to agency status. It had been a major enabling factor in promoting sound public sector management. By the achievement of progressively improving performance targets and a successful computerisation programme, the Land Registry has made a major contribution to the simplification of conveyancing in England and Wales, particularly through the development of faster and easier access to the public land register. It reduced fees by 10.6 per cent. in October 1994.

In order to supplement this evaluation, consultants were appointed to carry out a "prior options" review to consider a range of options for involving the private sector in delivering the services provided by the Land Registry. They confirmed that the present status arrangements would ensure the continuing credibility of the Land Registry consistent with a cost effective, high-quality service likely to result in lower land registration fees to the public.

The consultants identified scope for private sector partnerships in a number of important Land Registry initiatives. This includes further development of electronic access to the public land register, taking forward the national land information system promoted by the citizen's charter, and the potential conversion of the title plans of England and Wales to computer format. Consultants also saw scope for the Land Registry, in partnership, providing specialist advice to those overseas Governments seeking to establish stable private property rights, secured lending and inexpensive systems of property transfer.

The Lord Chancellor has concluded that it is right for Her Majesty's Land Registry to continue as an executive agency and trading fund. The Land Registry will concentrate on its existing plans to further simplify and reduce the cost of conveyancing in England and Wales by meeting the financial, productivity and developmental targets set for the next five years and by continuing its full market testing programme, all set out in its corporate and efficiency plans. The registry will also actively pursue private sector partnerships for the important initiatives identified. It will continue to capitalise on the scope for contracting out where this contributes to its strategic aims and objectives. A new framework document is being drawn up to cover the next five years and on completion will be placed in the Library of the House.

Legal Aid

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how much he estimates it will cost to extend legal aid to qualifying persons bringing personal injury claims up to the value of £10,000 on the proposed civil litigation fasttrack. [34245]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Until there has been an opportunity for the Lord Chancellor to consider the proposals in greater detail, it will not be possible to make an assessment of the potential cost or savings to the legal aid fund.

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how much he expects the Legal Aid Board to save if children are no longer able to be parties to legal actions brought on their behalf against the decisions of local education authorities. [34242]

Mr. Taylor: No estimate has been made.

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what factors led to the delay in the Legal Aid Board sanctioning of funds for the appeal to the High Court in the case of Emma Van de Velde v. Special Needs Tribunal. [34246]

Mr. Taylor: The administration of civil legal aid is the responsibility of the Legal Aid Board. However, I understand that both of Miss Van de Velde's applications were dealt with promptly by the board; the first within 12 working days, and the second, for an emergency certificate, within 24 hours.

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to (a) estimate and (b) publish the potential cost savings to the legal aid fund to be made from raising the upper limit on small claims from £1,000 to £3,000. [34243]

Mr. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor has announced his intention to implement Lord Woolf's recommendations that the small claims limit should be raised to £3,000 for all claims except those for personal injury. Lord Woolf's recommendations is based on the desirability of making the less formal and more affordable small claims procedure available to more litigants. There are likely to be some small savings to the legal aid fund from increasing the limit. The level of such savings is still being assessed. I will write to the hon. Member when this work is completed.

Civil Justice Reform

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what estimate he has made of the cost of implementing Lord Woolf's proposals for civil justice reform, with particular reference to (a) those relating to the greater use of information technology by judges and the Court Service, (b) a greater case management role for judges, (c) the appointment of a head of civil justice and (d) enhanced judicial training. [34244]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Until there has been an opportunity for the Lord Chancellor to consider the proposals in greater detail, it will not be possible to provide any cost estimates.

Courts Agency

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what was the average time his Department took to respond to a letter from an hon. Member before the establishment of the Courts Agency; and what is the average time taken by the agency to respond to a letter from an hon. Member in the first three months of its operation. [33166]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The information requested in the first part of the question could not be provided without disproportionate cost. However I refer the hon. Member to the Official Report for 18 April 1995, column 22 in which the Under-Secretary of State at the Office of Public Service and Science, replying to a question from the hon. Member for Chorley (Mr. Dover) said that in 1994, my Department replied to 83 per cent. of correspondence from right hon. and hon. Members within its 20 working day target. The second part of the question, concerning the average time taken by the Court Service to respond to a letter from an hon. Member, concerns a specific operational question upon which the chief executive of the court service is best placed to reply. I have accordingly asked him to do so.

Letter from Michael Huebner to Mr. Chris Mullin, dated 13 July 1995:

RESPONSES TO MP'S CORRESPONDENCE

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to the above Question concerning the time taken to reply to correspondence from Members of Parliament.

From the latest information available I am able to let you know that the average time taken to reply to a letter from a Member of Parliament was 22 days. I understand that a separate response is being provided by the Parliamentary Secretary about correspondence dealt with by his office.

LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Staff Shareholdings

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Lord President of the Council how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned.

Mr. Newton: The answer in both cases is none.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Lord President of the Council what will be the involvement of the Deputy Prime Minister in the work of his office.

Mr. Newton: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 11 July, Official Report, column 496–97.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by him, or ministerial colleagues in his Department, paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied him and the total cost in each case, including that of officials, to public funds for each year since 1992.

Mr. Newton: I visited Australia, New Zealand and Hong Kong from 5 to 24 September 1992. The principal purpose of the visits to Australia and New Zealand was to meet my counterparts and to exchange experience in the field of procedural reforms, preparation and scrutiny of legislation etc. The principal purpose of the visit to Hong Kong was to study measures against drug misuse, in the context of my chairmanship of the Ministerial Committee on Drug Misuse; this visit was however curtailed by the recall of Parliament that year. The only official accompanying me was a private secretary. The cost to public funds was £20,904.

My right hon. and noble Friend Lord Wakeham, when Lord Privy Seal, visited Dubai from 24 to 26 April 1994 to open the "Britain in the Gulf" exhibition. The only official accompanying him was a private secretary. The cost to public funds was £2,619.

My right hon. and noble Friend the Lord Privy Seal accompanied His Royal Highness the Duke of York to the French Government's 50th anniversary commemoration of the liberation of southern France from 13 to 15 August 1994. The only official accompanying him was a private secretary. Travel was in an aircraft of the queen's flight. There was no further cost to public funds.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Commodity Exchanges

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance has been given by (a) his Department and (b) EU aid to establish or develop commodity exchanges for cocoa, coffee or sugar in developing countries; and if he will list the date, location and value of any aid projects of this type approved by his Department or the EU in the past five years. [34301]

Mr. Hanley: We have supported a number of commodity-based projects in developing countries, bilaterally, through the EC and through the common fund for commodities. The objectives have included assistance with production, diversification and marketing, but the development of commodity exchanges in developing countries has not, to date, been one of our principal aims.

A list of bilateral projects and those supported through the command fund for commodities in the field is being placed in the Library of the House. We are investigating whether a similar list exists for EC-funded projects.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Sex Shops and Cinemas

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list all legislation under which unauthorised sex shops and sex cinemas can be prosecuted; and how many prosecutions under each provision there have been in the last five years. [32966]

Mr. Maclean: The legislation under which unauthorised sex shops and sex cinemas can be prosecuted is the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1982. The relevant provisions are as follows:

Schedule 3, paragraph 20(a), (b), (c) and (d)—offences relating to operating a sex establishment without or in contravention of the terms of a licence.

Schedule 3, paragraph 21—making a false statement in a connection with the application, renewal or transfer of a licence.

Under Schedule 3, paragraph 22(1), a person guilty of an offence under paragraphs 20 or 21 shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £20,000.

Under schedule 3, paragraph 22(2) a person who fails to comply with paragraph 14(1) (display of copy of licence and standard conditions) shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale.

Schedule 3, paragraph 23—offences relating to the admission or employment of persons under 18. A person guilty of an offence under this paragraph shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £20,000.

Schedule 3, paragraph 24(6)—refusal to permit a constable or authorised local authority officer to exercise powers provided under paragraph 24. For every such refusal a person shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale.

In 1989, there was one prosecution under schedule 3 paragraph 20(a) of the Act. However it should be noted that statistics of court proceedings are based on returns made by the police to the Home Office and although these include offences where there has been no police involvement, such as those prosecutions instigated by Government Departments, local authorities, as in this case, and private organisations and individuals, the reporting of these types of offences is known to be incomplete.

Information collected from 1990 onwards does not identify individual offences committed under this specific Act from other summary offences.

Money Laundering

Mrs. Barbara Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many officers in each police service are devoted to investigating reports from banks of possible money laundering. [33119]

(2) how many reports the National Criminal Intelligence Service received from banks about possible money laundering in each of the last three years; [33120]

(3) what has been the average length of time taken over the last year (a) for NCIS to respond to reports of banks' suspicions of money laundering and pass the information on to individual police forces and (b) for individual police forces to investigate such reports; [33121]

(4) how many staff at NCIS are currently employed in responding to banks' suspicions of money laundering; [33122]

(5) what resources NCIS has invested in investigating money laundering in each of the last three years. [33123]

Mr. Maclean: Investigation of possible cases of money laundering is a matter primarily for the police and HM Customs and Excise. The role of the financial intelligence and money laundering section of the National Criminal Intelligence Service is to research and develop disclosures made to it and to enhance their intelligence value before dissemination to the appropriate law enforcement agency. The cost of the section is estimated as:

1993–94: £450,000

1994–95: £460,000

1995–96: £530,000 (estimated)

As at 1 July 1995, there were 13 staff employed in the section.

The number of disclosures received by NCIS from banks and other financial institutions in each of the last three years is as follows:

1992: 11,542

1993: 12,736

1994: 15,007

It is estimated that the average time taken by the NCIS to process financial disclosures during 1994 was 12 weeks. This has now been reduced to 20 working days.

Information with regard to the average time taken by police forces to process such reports is not collected.

I understand that there are about 360 trained financial investigation officers in police forces in England and Wales. Other officers will be involved in financial investigations at different times.

Transport of Prisoners (Securicor)

Mrs. Barbara Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what has been the total time by which court proceedings have been delayed because of late delivery of prisoners by Securicor to courts in London; [32536]

(2) what has been the cost to public funds of delays to court proceedings caused by late delivery of prisoners by Securicor to courts in London; [32538]

(3) what sanctions he has in respect of Securicor's failure to deliver prisoners to the Court of Appeal on time; and what action he plans to take; [32540]

(4) how many prisoners Securicor has escorted to court since the service was contracted out; and how many of these have been delivered to court late, or within so little time to spare that court proceedings have been delayed. [32542]

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 6 July 1995]: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 13 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Questions about the delivery of prisoners to courts in London by Securicor Custodial Services Ltd.

Between the start of the contract on 27 June 1994 and 31 May 1995 Securicor escorted 52,422 prisoners to court. Of this total 1,520 prisoners (2.9%) were delivered late for reasons within Securicor's control. Prisoners may also be delivered late to court for reasons that are outside Securicor's control. Under the terms of the contract, a late delivery occurs if a prisoner arrives at a court less than 30 minutes before the court starts sitting.

Securicor is meeting the performance target set out in the contract for delivering prisoners to court. If they fail to do so, default notices may be issued and financial remedies applied if performance does not improve. Ultimately, as with all contracts, the contract may be terminated. Since 20 June the latest time prisoners arrived at the Court of Appeal was 9.07 am. The contractual requirement is that they arrive by 9.30 am.

It is not possible to say by how much court proceedings have been delayed as a result of prisoners arriving late at court or how much any such delays may have cost. Not all cases at court involving prisoners begin at the same time and not all courts hear custody cases first.

You may be interested to know that in a recent survey, 86% of customers (the courts, the police and the prisons in London) were either satisfied or very satisfied with Securicor's punctuality and flexibility. In addition, 97% of court staff felt that Securicor were providing an equal (28%) or better (69%) service than they received before.

Overseas Domestic Workers

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what action he has taken to monitor the workings of the new undertaking employers are required to sign when bringing their overseas domestic workers into the United Kingdom; [33991]

(2) what action he has taken to monitor the workings of the new undertaking employers are required to sign when bringing their overseas domestic workers into Scotland. [33992]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Employers are required to sign an undertaking to maintain and accommodate their domestic workers satisfactorily, including the provision of a separate bedroom, when applications for entry clearance are made. In the case of domestic workers who come for longer than a visit, when applications for further leave to remain are made, inquiries are made that the conditions of the scheme, including adequate maintenance and accommodation, continue to be met.

Firearms

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 6 July, Official Report, columns 349–50 if he will give details of each of the incidents involving a reactivated firearm. [34238]

Mr. Maclean: I am now aware of 20 incidents since the beginning of 1993. I understand that two were murders, seven others resulted in a non-fatal injury and four involved shots being fired, apparently without causing injury, in the course of crime. In the remaining seven incidents, there was no injury or evidence that they were associated with any other crime. Twelve of the incidents are reported as having taken place in the Greater Manchester police force area, two each in Mersyside, West Yorkshire and the West Midlands and one each in Lancashire and the Metropolitan police district.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many homicides involving (a) shotguns and (b) other firearms have taken place in each police force area in each of the last five years; and how many of the victims in each case were women; [34157]

(2) how many thefts of (a) shotguns and (b) other firearms took place in each of the last five years, (i) from domestic premises and (ii) from other premises in each police force area. [34158]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is not immediately available and I will write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Goodson-Wickes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, when he will lay before Parliament the sixth annual report of the Firearms Consultative Committee. [34716]

Mr. Howard: I have today placed a copy of the annual report of the Firearms Consultative Committee in the Library.

Mrs. Rehana Fiaz

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the United Kingdom post in Islamabad asked the Home Office to arrange for the sponsor of Mrs. Rehana Fiaz (Ref.GV 100/27227) to be interviewed; where and when the interview is to take place; and if he will make a statement. [34300]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The request from the British high commission in Islamabad for an interview of Mrs. Rehana Fiaz's sponsor was received by the Home Office on 15 December 1994. Arrangements have been made to interview the sponsor on 8 August at the immigration office at Leeds/Bradford airport.

Pre-trial Procedures (High Court)

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposals the Government have to improve pre-trial procedures in the Crown Court. [34715]

Mr. Howard: The Government share the view of the Royal Commission on criminal justice that further measures are needed to improve the effectiveness of pre-trial hearings in the Crown Court, to enable issues to be clarified and resolved in advance of the trial.

To achieve this, we propose providing for a power for judges to make binding rulings before the start of the trial, and for an extension of the existing system of preparatory hearings, currently held in serious fraud cases, to other potentially long or complex cases. These proposals are contained in a consultation paper on improving the effectiveness of pre-trial hearings in the Crown Court—which we are publishing today.

Stolen Vehicles

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures his Department are undertaking to limit the number of vehicles stolen. [33577]

Mr. Maclean: Vehicle crime decreased by almost 2 per cent. in 1993 and by 10 per cent. in 1994. This downward trend is encouraging and it would appear that the measures taken by the Department are having an effect.

The Department is addressing vehicle crime in a number of ways, and the following are just a few examples of the work being done by the Home Office.

The prevention of car crime was a central feature of our 1992 car crime prevention year campaign which showed what could be done if car owners, the police, motor manufacturers, the insurance industry, motoring organisations and car park operators made a concerted effort to tackle the problem together.

The Home Office public relations branch produces a range of crime prevention advice leaflets covering crimes committed against different types of vehicles.

Home Office Ministers have asked manufacturers to introduce effective immobilisation systems, deadlocking, and visible vehicle identification numbers; and the Home Office police scientific and development branch has provided free technical advice to manufacturers on how to do this.

The Home Office has worked closely with the Department of Transport to ensure that the British standards on vehicle security we wanted were incorporated into the compulsory EC directive 74/61.

The Department supports the work of SOLD SECURE, an Association of Chief Police Officers-backed organisation which tests the effectiveness of vehicle security devices for older cars and publicises details of approved products; and also the Vehicle Security Installation Board, which publishes lists of approved installers of security products.

The Home Office also supports schemes designed to prevent young people turning to crime, and a great deal is being done in this area through motor projects and other diversionary schemes.

The Home Office has already taken action to deal with offenders. The Aggravated Vehicle-Taking Act 1992 demonstrates our determination to deal with the menace posed by those who take cars and cause damage, injury or death.

Work to reduce vehicle crime is informed by regular Home Office research; and is taken forward by the vehicle crime prevention group whose members are drawn from the police, motor manufacturers, dealers, the insurance industry, motoring organisations and Government Departments.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many vehicles were stolen in the United Kingdom for each of the last 10 years. [33576]

Mr. Maclean: The available information relates to offences of theft of a motor vehicle recorded by the police in England and Wales. This information is published in table 2.19 of "Criminal Statistics, England and Wales, 1993" (Cm 2680) and in table 6 of Home Office statistical bulletin 5/95; copies of both these publications are in the Library. Information on Scotland and Northern Ireland are matters for the Secretary of State for each Department.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many asylum seekers have committed suicide in prisons or detention centres in each of the last three calendar years and in the current year to date; [33347]

(2) how many asylum seekers are recorded as having committed suicide when not in detention, but after rejection of their asylum applications, in each of the last three calendar years and in the current year to date. [33348]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No person who had sought asylum has committed suicide in a prison or detention centre in the last three calendar years or in the current year to date. Information is not available about people who have committed suicide after an application for asylum has been refused and who are not detained.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what method was used to monitor the results of the "No Self-Completion Questionnaire" exercise undertaken by the asylum division of his Department in recent months; what were the results of the exercise as regards time taken to process decisions and the quality of those decisions compared to cases dealt with under normal procedures; how many of the cases decided have been finally determined after appeals brought to the Immigration Appeals Authority; and if he will deposit a record on the exercise in the Library. [33346]

Mr. Baker: I am placing in the Library a brief report on this exercise; which includes details of the monitoring arrangements used. It produced a direct saving in the screening process for applications of between four and six weeks. All six appeals against refusal heard during the period of the exercise were dismissed: a further analysis will be carried out when more appeals have been heard.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33461]

Mr. Howard: Expenditure incurred on employing consultants was £2,160,000, excluding value added tax, in respect of the privatisation of National Transcommunications Ltd. and £784,000, excluding value added tax, in respect of the privatisation of DTELS—formerly the Home Office Directorate of Telecommunications.

Police Driver Training

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total amount spent on driver training by each police force area in England and Wales for each year since 1990. [33487]

Mr. Maclean: Information collected centrally is related to the number of days spent on all aspects of driver and traffic training, which includes training in matters such as traffic law, road safety, speed enforcement and accident investigation as well as driving courses. Details are set out in the table. Information about training costs is also given but is incomplete.

Trucks (Policing)

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff are employed with the police (a) full time and (b) as part of their other duties to train traffic policemen in truck enforcement work. [33588]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is not available. Training for traffic officers concerned with the enforcement of legislation on goods vehicle safety is generally provided by police officers acting as instructors. We are not aware that any officers are employed solely for the purpose of providing this particular training.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces have traffic officers or special units dedicated to enforcing truck safety; and what are the numbers of police staff who are dedicated in this way (a) in total and (b) in each of the past 10 years. [33583]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is not available. Police officers assigned to traffic work are involved in many aspects of traffic law enforcement not solely the enforcement of goods vehicle safety legislation.

Deaths in Custody

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will define a "properly interested person" in cases involving deaths in custody. [33341]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No. Under the present law, the determination of a "properly interested person" under the Coroners Rules 1984 for the purposes of any inquest is a matter for the coroner. The circumstances in which persons may be interested in a particular case vary so considerably that I do not think that further definition is practicable.

Immigration Service

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to compare the performance of the Immigration Service at the different ports of entry to the United Kingdom. [33840]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The National Audit Office report. "Entry into the United Kingdom"—HC204—made a number of recommendations about the development of an indicator system to compare the performance of the Immigration Service at individual ports of entry. All the recommendations are being carefully considered and as a first step the Immigration Service has made significant revisions to its management information system to facilitate better use and easier comparisons of performance indicators. Further work is continuing.

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he is taking to improve passenger clearance times at ports of entry. [33839]

Mr. Baker: The Immigration Service has published service standards for passenger queuing times at all ports and airports, and monitoring exercises have shown that these standards have generally been achieved. Consistent with the need to apply effectively the immigration rules as set down by Parliament, the service seeks to introduce measures aimed at further improving this aspect of its work—often in co-operation with port operators and carrying companies. Recent initiatives include:

the introduction of new shift arrangements at certain ports to help match staff deployment more closely to predicted weight of arriving traffic, particularly during the early morning;

the development of fast track facilities at Heathrow terminals 3 and 4; increased on-board coach clearance at Dover; and special arrangements for tour groups at Heathrow terminal 4.

Foundation for Business Responsibilities

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many staff were allocated to the charity commissioners' second inquiry into the Foundation for Business Responsibilities; how long they spent making their inquiries; and what was the total number of man hours put into the investigation; [32057]

(2) pursuant to his answer of 18 May, Official Report, column 369, how much money the charity commissioners found had been improperly paid to Marketforce Communications by the Foundation for Business Responsibilities; who was the individual responsible for these payments; and how much money this individual repaid to the charity; [32067]

(3) pursuant to his answer of 18 May, Official Report, column 369, on what grounds the charity commissioners decided that some payments to Marketforce Communications by the Foundation for Business Responsibilities had been improper; [32066]

(4) which donors to the Foundation for Business Responsibilities were interviewed or corresponded with during the charity commissioners' second inquiry into the charity; and if he will place copies of this correspondence in the Library; [32056]

(5) how many witnesses were interviewed by the charity commission during its second investigation into the Foundation for Business Responsibilities; and if he will list them. [32058]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Details of persons written to or interviewed by the Charity Commission during an investigation are a matter for the Charity Commission. The commission's correspondence files are confidential, particularly those relating to investigations cases where disclosure may discourage third parties from providing information to the commission. Correspondence will not usually be disclosed without the authority of an order of the court or the consent of the correspondent.

The commission's second inquiry was conducted by one member of staff who, over a period of four and a half months, spent a total of 22¼ hours on it. The investigator was supported at times by senior staff. The duration of this support was not recorded.

During the course of the commission's investigation, the trustees of the Foundation for Business Responsibilities themselves acknowledged that some of the payments made by the foundation to Marketforce Communications were not justified having regard to the services provided by marketforce to the foundation. The commission was not party to any consideration of the factors leading to the trustees' decision.

During the course of the commission's first inquiry, £98,987.96 was identified as being improperly paid to Marketforce Communications. The former director of the foundation, Michael Ivens, authorised the payments. He repaid the money to the charity.

Prison Governors (Bonus Scheme)

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement outlining how the bonds scheme for prison governors works. [32251]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. George Howarth, dated 13 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about how the bonus scheme for prison governors works.

The Special Bonus Scheme applies to all staff in the Prison Service and Home Office, including governor grades. Special bonuses are used as an exceptional measure to give prompt and tangible recognition for outstanding performance in particularly demanding tasks or situations which may arise during periods of exceptional pressure. In the financial year 1994/95 fourteen such awards were given to prison governors.

More usually, governor grades earn performance related pay based on movement up an agreed scale on the basis of the annual performance assessment by their line manager.

Prisoners (Home Leave Refusals)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the number of home leaves of prison inmates that have been refused due to the fact that victims object to such home leave; and if he will make a statement. [31373]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 13 July 1993:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the number of home leaves of prison inmates that have been refused due to the fact that the victims object to such home leave.

Last November the Home Secretary announced new arrangements to replace the existing home leave and temporary release schemes for prisoners. The new system of release on temporary licence came into effect on 25 April followi..g changes made to the Prison Rules. A new system of data collection is being established to monitor the operation of the new system but information about victim concerns will not be recorded centrally because, in most cases any decision to refuse an application would be based on a variety of factors and not solely because of victim representations. Under the new arrangements, governors are required, within the risk assessment process for considering applications for release on temporary licence, to take full account of any concern expressed by victims. However, victims do not generally have any power to veto the release of prisoners on temporary licence, except where the victim is in the home and their wishes must be respected.

The Victims Helpline which opened last December had received 186 calls by 29 June, of which 73 were enquiries and 113 were representations. These were passed to the appropriate prison for consideration. Information about the nature of the individual representations and whether they led to a refusal of release on temporary licence is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) how many disability living allowance appeals were received by his Department concerning (a) a review requested within three months of the original decision and (b) a review requested at any time; and in each case, how many appeals were successful, in each of the years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; [33031]

(2) how many claims for disability living allowance were received by his Department in each of the years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; [33027]

(3) how many requests for a review within three months of a refusal to award disability living allowance were received by his Department in each of the years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; how many of these requests were refused; and how many of the reviews resulted in the original decision being revised; [33029]

(4) how many requests for a review made at any time concerning refusal of an award of disability living allowance were received by his Department in each of theyears 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; how many of these requests were refused; and how many of the reviews resulted in the original decision being revised; [33030]

(5) how many awards of disability living allowance were made in each of the years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33028]

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: The information is not available in the format requested for all the questions. Available information is in the tables.

Social Fund

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many (a) loans and (b) grants had been made in each region by the social fund in the last year for which figures are available. [32829]

Mr. Roger Evans: The administration of the social fund is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mr. Ian Magee to Mr. Jim Cunningham dated 12 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the number of Social Fund loans and grants made in each region in the last year for which figures are available.

With the creation of the Benefits Agency in April 1991, offices were grouped into Districts. These were then grouped into Area Directorates within three Territorial Directorates.

I have therefore provides, at Annex A, the information requested by Area Directorate for the financial year 1994–95.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Information Technology Services Agency Data Centres

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the value of each of the bids received for the four ITSA data centres. [33164]

Mr. Burt: It is not normal practice for commercially sensitive information to be made available in this manner.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if the EDS bids for lots E and F were the lowest; and if he will make a statement. [33167]

Mr. Burt: All suppliers' bid for lots E and F were evaluated in accordance with an approved process covering financial and non-financial aspects. The EDS bids for the lots were the lowest bids received.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment he has made as to whether the purchase by EDS of all four DSS computer centres threatens security of supply and on-going competition; and if he will make a statement. [33168]

Mr. Burt: The decision to award all data centre services work to EDS was made after a rigorous technical, financial and business evaluation in full accord with EC services directive 92/50/EEC. The contractual agreement allows the Department of Social Security to market test any segment of the awarded business if, in its judgment, competitive prices are not being maintained. In those circumstances, the Department may award business to another supplier.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the contracts his Department has with the computer company EDS. [33176]

Mr. Burt: The following contracts are currently held with EDS: area computer centre facilities management—a contract to manage the area computer centre at Norcross, Blackpool; Child Support Agency, technical services agreement—development of Child Support Agency computer system; Child Support Agency live support—maintenance of child support agency computer system; framework agreement for computer and related services—consultancy support; Focus' 95—outsourcing contract for data centre services elements of ITSA's service delivery. This includes management of the area computer centre at Norcross, Blackpool.

TRANSPORT

Long-distance Haulage Industry

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the value to Britain's invisible exports of the long-distance haulage industry. [32570]

Mr. Norris: In 1994, it is estimated that UK road hauliers contributed £520 million to UK invisible exports.

A3 Trunk Road Works

Mr. David Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when he now expects the A3 trunk road works in the region of Guildford to be completed; what penalty clauses are in operation for time overruns; and what compensation will be paid to those businesses which have suffered a prolonged downturn in custom as a result of the roadworks and consequent delays; [33643]

(2) what studies he has made of the traffic delays caused during 1995 by the A3 roadwork operations in the Guildford region; what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the conduct of the contactors with the local authorities and with the signposting and provision of information to motorists; and if he will make a statement. [33642]

Mr. Watts: These are operational matters for the highways agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to my right hon. Friend.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. David Howell, dated 17 July 1995:

The Minister for Railways and Roads, Mr John Watts, has asked me to write to you in reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about roadwork on the A3 at Guildford.

No studies as such, have been made of the traffic delays caused during 1995 by these roadwork. Traffic conditions are, of course, being watched closely by operational staff supervising the contract.

Our agents, Surrey County Council, are monitoring carefully, the performance and conduct of the contractor as part of their contract supervision role. It would not be appropriate to comment further on this prior to the completion and final settlement of the contract.

We are satisfied with the adequacy of the signposting which extends from the M3 at Winchester to the M25 junction at Wisley. Information to the public has been given a high priority. A full press briefing was held before the start of works and frequent television and local radio interviews have been held as works have progressed.

Provided no unavoidable delays occur, the works are expected to be completed by the end of July. The contract is of the lane rental type which provides for the contractor to be charged £20,000 for every day he overruns the contract completion date, as adjusted for any delays caused by factors outside his control. The contract also provides for the payment to the contractor of a bonus for early completion.

There is no provision at law for compensation for loss of business because of changes in traffic arising from roadworks.

Rail Services (Support Payments)

Mr. McLeish: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each train operation unit or company, the support payments made to the Director of Passenger Rail Franchising to British Rail, under section 52 of the Railways Act 1993. [34207]

Mr. Watts: The Director of Passenger Rail Franchising is currently negotiating with the British Railways Board the level of support for passenger rail services, under section 52 of the Railways Act 1993, appropriate of reach train operating unit or company in the current financial year. I will write to the hon. Member when the level of support has been agreed and will place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Four-wheel Drive Off-road Vehicles

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what are the main conclusions of his Department's research collating figures involving four-wheel drive off-road vehicles with particular reference to (a) the period of survey and (b) the total number of accidents in which such vehicles were involved, indicating the proportion of total accidents constituted by this figure. [34040]

Mr. Norris: Personal injury road accident data obtained by the police and reported to the Department using the STATS19 accident report form show that in 1994, four-wheel off-road vehicles were known to be involved in approximately 3,400 accidents, a figure which constitutes 1.5 per cent. of the total number of accidents.

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the four-wheel drive off-road vehicles involved in accidents collated in his Department's research were fitted with bull-bars; how many pedestrian-only accidents involving (a) children and (b) adults were recorded, indicating the vehicle's speed at the time of the accident; how many involved pedestrian deaths in respect of (a) and (b); and if he will indicate the numbers of (i) cars and (ii) light commercial vehicles involved. [34041]

Mr. Norris: The information requested is not available. The Transport Research Laboratory is currently analysing the accidents identified by the police during 1994 which involved a vehicle fitted with a bull bar. Its report is expected to answer questions as far as possible.

British Rail (Catering Products)

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which companies have been shortlisted to supply British Rail with catering products; and if he will make a statement on what the contract is worth and what it entails. [34084]

Mr. Watts: The supply of catering products to British Rail and the details of any relevant contractual arrangements are commercial matters for the British Railways Board.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if it remains his policy that the channel tunnel rail link will be built only within the route and limits of deviation specified in the Channel Tunnel Rail Link Bill and in the documents listed in that Bill. [34134]

Mr. Watts: Yes. Construction of the route on the lands defined in the hybrid Bill is a minimum requirement of the competition.

Unsafe Vehicles

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) coaches and (b) heavy goods vehicles have been found to be unsafe in each of the last five years; and how many prosecutions have taken place as a consequence. [34142]

Mr. Norris: Information relating to numbers of prosecutions is contained in Home Office and Scottish Office statistics. The statistics show the number of offences and not the number of vehicles found unsafe. Consequently, the information does not distinguish between road vehicle types.

	England and Wales		Scotland
Year	Offences[1]	Offences prosecuted in Magistrates court	Offences[2]	Offences Prosecuted
1989	389,043	97,351	48,179	10,797
1990	383,715	89,419	47,477	9,897
1991	382,078	91,890	46,765	8,839
1992	381,232	93,504	47,775	7,980
1993	383,382	87,354	51,387	6,557

[1] These figures relate to circumstances where a vehicle or vehicle part has been found to be in a dangerous or defective condition including brakes, steering gear, tyres. They also include offences of using a vehicle in a dangerous condition and other related offences. The action taken includes prosecutions (shown separately), vehicle defect rectification notices issued, written warnings and fixed penalty notices issued.

[2] The offences covered are offences under the Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986 and the Road Vehicles Lighting Regulations 1989.

Bus and Coach Safety

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to expand the work of the Vehicle Inspectorate to achieve higher standards of bus and coach following the Operation Tourist crackdown; and if he will make a statement. [34083]

Mr. Norris: We are committed to increasing compliance with the safety standards for buses and coaches through an effective enforcement regime. The joint Vehicle Inspectorate and police Operation Tourist crackdown—which involved staff targeting tourist coaches suspected of having safety defects on holiday routes in the south and west on 8 July—demonstrates that commitment.

Regular roadside enforcement checks and checks of vehicles at operators' premises are an essential tool for increasing compliance with safety standards. Special roadside enforcement exercises such as Operation Tourist provide an opportunity to target one specific vehicle type. Moreover, an additional £100,000 has recently been made available to the Vehicle Inspectorate for enforcement work in relation to buses and coaches this financial year.

Transport Supplementary Grant

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which highway authorities in England had three or more new schemes approved for transport supplementary grant in his approvals for (a) 1994–95 and (b) 1995–96. [34133]

Mr. Norris: No authority had three or more new schemes approved for transport supplementary grant in either of these years.

Railways (Noise Insulation Regulations)

Mr. Jacques Arnold: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will publish the draft Noise Insulation Regulations for New Railway Lines; and if he will make a statement. [34569]

Mr. Watts: The Draft Noise Insulation Regulations for New Railway Lines and associated technical memorandum have been laid before Parliament today. The regulations are intended to provide equity of treatment as between those living alongside new railway lines and those living alongside new roads, who are protected by existing noise insulation regulations.

Although I fully expect developers of new railway lines to take all practical measures to reduce railway noise at source, there will inevitably be instances where this may not be possible or cost-effective.

The new regulations will create a duty, in the case of new lines and additional tracks constructed alongside existing lines, to provide insulation, or a grant for the costs of carrying out insulation works, when noise exceeds certain levels. They also give a discretionary power to offer insulation in the case of certain alterations to existing railway lines.

With a number of new railway projects either planned or under construction, it is only fair and proper that people who live alongside these lines should have a similar degree of statutory noise protection that their neighbours living near new roads have benefited from over the last 20 years.

In the case of existing railway lines, which now carry new channel tunnel rail traffic, noise mitigation schemes have been agreed between BR/Railfreight Distribution and Kent and Surrey county councils and the London borough of Bromley. Under these schemes, acoustic barriers are being erected at affected locations alongside existing lines to and from the channel tunnel. They are being jointly funded by the organisations involved, with Government assistance.

I would like to see BR/Railfreight Distribution actively entering into similar agreements with other local authorities whose areas might be similarly affected in future.

North Downs Line (International Freight)

Mr. Carrington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consideration he has given to the use of the North Downs line as a route for international freight trains avoiding London. [34435]

Mr. Watts: In August 1994, Railtrack reported to me that the North Downs line was not a commercially viable alternative route. I asked officials to report to me whether there was likely to be any environmental benefits which could justify the development of the North Downs line at public expense. They have concluded that there are not. I have today placed a copy of their report in the Library of the House.

Coastguard Agency

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the Coastguard Agency has implemented efficiency savings; to what extent; and what further changes he intends to make before April 1996. [34028]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Coastguard Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from C. J. Harris to Ms Joan Walley, dated 13 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question as the question deals with an operational matter, for which I have responsibility as Chief Executive.

PO 2343/94/95 We were successful in meeting our 3% running costs efficiency target by means of:
—rationalising the accommodation and common services provision in HQ;
—reductions in administrative staff, following a staff inspection, leading to a more effective HQ support organisation;
—reducing property maintenance cost;
—reducing IT maintenance costs;
—reducing administrative costs.

Further efficiency measures for 1995–96 are detailed in our Business Plan and are currently under consideration.

Vehicle Inspectorate

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what was the annual basic pay for traffic examiners, senior traffic examiners and vehicle examiners in each year since 1984; [33586]

(2) what were the numbers of immediate and delayed prohibitions imposed by the Vehicle Inspectorate on trucks for each year since 1984; [33582]

(3) how many hours were lost in Vehicle Inspectorate enforcement for each year since 1984 because police resources could not be provided; [33584]

(4) how many staff are employed within the Vehicle Inspectorate (a) full time and (b) as part of their other duties to train (i) traffic examiners and (ii) vehicle examiners; [33587]

(5) how many senior traffic examiners were employed for each year since 1984; [33585]

(6) what targets the Vehicle Inspectorate has had regarding enforcement for each year since 1984; [33589]

(7) how much was spent on vehicle examiners and traffic examiners, not including testing station staff, for each year since 1984. [33581]

Mr. Norris: These are operational matters for the Vehicle Inspectorate agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ron Oliver to Ms Joan Walley, dated 13 July 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions on our enforcement activities.

The number of immediate and delayed prohibitions on HGVs since 1984 is shown in the attached Annex A. Early information about the number of unproductive hours (attendance hours) resulting from unexpected withdrawal of police resources was provided in my reply to PQ 482/94/95 on 18 January. Discussions with police are continuing over delivery of support throughout the country and how this should continue to be monitored.

Details of the Vehicle Inspectorate's targets are published each year in its Business Plan and are available from the House of Commons library. These have been issued since 1989.

The additional £350,000 funding which has been made available to VI, together with other decisions on additional work, means that we are currently recruiting more traffic and vehicle examiners. My reply to you of 26 June (ref PQ 1939/94/95) gave general details of the number of traffic and vehicle examiners being recruited across the Vehicle Inspectorate to increase complement, cover anticipated retirements and substantially fill current temporary posts.

There are 4 full and 8 part time trainers involved with internal training from VI staff. A proportion but not all of their work would be devoted to traffic and vehicle examiner training.

Annex B provides details of pay ranges for traffic examiners, senior traffic examiners and vehicle examiners for the past 3 years. There is no basic rate of pay; progression through the pay spine is related to performance markings in the annual staff reports. We do not hold details of pay ranges prior to 1991.

Annex C provides details of the number of senior traffic examiners for the last 4 years. The Vehicle Inspectorate did not take on traffic enforcement activities until 1991.

Annex A: Immediate and delayed prohibitions issued to heavy goods vehicles for roadworthiness defects

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33449]

Mr. Norris: Gross voted expenditure since 1980 by the Department on the employment of consultants on privatisation programmes involving the Department, and other costs associated with these privatisations, has been some £122 million.

Aviation (Safety Recommendations)

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 31 March, Official Report, columns 830–31, if he will make a statement on the outcome of the discussions between the Civil Aviation Authority and the joint aviation authorities at the meeting which was due to be held in April on the issue of the lack of an existing system whereby the joint aviation authorities can respond as a body to safety recommendations raised by national investigating authorities. [31642]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 3 July 1995]: It was agreed that the existing International Civil Aviation Organisation system for receiving and responding to safety recommendations remains appropriate and effective. Under ICAO, responsibility for continue airworthiness rests with the state of design. This remains the case where certification is against a Joint Aviation Authorities harmonised code adopted by that state. Should the recommendation affect a JAA code, the state of design would normally refer the issue to the JAA; the JAA would close their action by confirming any resultant change made to the code.

Midland Metro

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 6 March 1995, column 57, what assessment he has made of how much more local funding is necessary before the Government release the funding they have promised for the midland metro line; how many jobs will be created by the new line; what other such rail lines are planned for the west midlands; and what percentage of funding for the midland metro line will come from the local area, and how much will come from the Government.

Mr. Norris: After considering proposals for funding from local authorities in the west midlands, I am pleased to announce that we are now satisfied with the level of local funding being provided for this project. I can therefore confirm that the Government will provide £80 million of funding, as requested by the local authorities. Together with the local contribution and the funding expected to be provided by the European regional development fund, this provides sufficient funding for the scheme to go ahead.

Midland metro line one is excellent news for travellers in the west midlands; it will be good for the environment and provide motorists with an alternative form of transport in a congested corridor.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Sunderland, South (Mr. Mullins) of 23 May, Official Report, column 534, if he will define the nature of behavioural conditions that can be applied to civil servants. [34205]

Mr. Horam: The business appointment rules for Crown servants make provision for applications by civil servants to take up new employment after they leave the service to be approved subject to behavioural conditions, which may include an absolute or qualified ban on involvement of the applicant in dealing between the prospective employer and the Government, or a ban on involvement by the applicant in dealings between the prospective employer and a named competitor or competitors of that employer. If a behavioural condition is considered necessary, it will be tailored to meet the particular circumstances of the case.

Prime Minister's Questions

Mr. Winnick: To ask the First Secretary of State if he will be answering questions on behalf of the Prime Minister when the latter is absent from the House. [34292]

The Deputy Prime Minster: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him today by the Prime Minister.

Ministerial Duties

Mr. Winnick: To ask the First Secretary of State (1) what involvement he will have in Departments of state; and if he will specify the Departments; [34293]

(2) if he will list his responsibilities with particular reference to those he undertakes as Deputy Prime Minister. [34288]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave to the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 11 July. Official Report, column 496-97.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the First Secretary of State if he will list all the duties to be undertaken by the Deputy Prime Minister; and if he will make a statement. [34031]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the replies which my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave to the hon. Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) and for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 11 July 1995, Official Report columns 496-97.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Mr. Winnick: To ask the First Secretary of State how he intends to account to the House for his ministerial responsibilities. [34038]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave to the hon. Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 11 July, Official Report, column 496.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Winnick: To ask the First Secretary of State what is the number of staff who will be directly responsible to him; and if he will list their duties. [34289]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the hon. Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 11 July 1995 Official Report, column 496.

Ministerial Accommodation

Mr. Winnick: To ask the First Secretary of State what ministerial accommodation he has now; and if he will also state the total amount of accommodation used by the staff directly accountable to him. [34287]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the hon. Member for Gordon (Mr. Bruce), given today.

Information Leaks

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many leak inquiries in Government Departments there have been since 1990; what is the estimated cost of these inquiries; and how many individuals have been reprimanded or prosecuted as a result of these inquiries. [34253]

Mr. Freeman: It is not the practice of the Government to give information on such matters.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer of 28 June, Official Report, column 713, what considerations led to his refusal to supply the requested information in relation to Government leak inquiries; and if he will make a statement. [34352]

Mr. Freeman: It has not been the practice of the Government to disclose the details of leak inquiries.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

School Pupils (Expenditure)

Sir Harold Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what was the unit cost per pupil in each local education authority in 1993–94 for (a) nursery/primary and (b) secondary pupils. [34328]

Mr. Robin Squire: The table sets out for each LEA in England the net institutional expenditure per pupil in LEA-maintained nursery/primary and secondary schools.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what will be the involvement of the Deputy Prime Minister in the work of her Department. [34035]

Mrs. Gillian Shephard: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the Prime Minister gave to the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger), on 11 July, Official Report, columns 496–97.

Departmental Ministers and Their Responsibilities

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment, if she will list the members of her Front-Bench team and their responsibilities. [34039]

Mrs. Gillian Shephard: Ministerial responsibilities within the Department for Education and Employment are as follows:

Secretary of State Gillian Shephard has overall responsibility for the Department and its policies. In particular, she will have responsibility for the public expenditure survey and pay in the education sector.

Minister of State Eric Forth is responsible for the jobseeker's allowance; employment policy and benefit issues; labour market statistics; higher education: including content and quality, structure and funding, building programmes, and Higher Education Funding Council matters; the private finance initiative in higher education; student support, overseas students, and other student issues; European Union and international issues and the careers service/education.

Minister of State Lord Henley is responsible for the school curriculum and assessment; examinations and qualifications including GCSE, GCE A-Level, NVQs GNVQs and the review of 16 to 19 qualifications; performance tables; the Employment Service; education-industry links; special education in schools; people with disabilities; special needs training; and school transport. He is designated departmental Minister responsible for the citizen's charter; next steps; general legal questions and departmental purchasing.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State Robin Squire is responsible for pre-school education; grant-maintained schools borrowing legislation; school effectiveness and action on failing schools; the common funding formula and the national funding formula; the private finance initiative in schools; local management of schools and school governor matters; teacher matters including training and supply, teachers' misconduct, the Teacher Training Agency, appraisal, pensions and the Teachers' Pensions Agency. He is also responsible for grants for education support and training; truancy, discipline and attendance; IT in schools and new technologies; departmental management issues; environmental and energy issues and research.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State James Paice has responsibility for post-16 issues including post-16 school organisation; further education, including content and quality, structure and funding, building programmes, and Further Education Funding Council matters; the Youth Service; adult learning/training; the private finance initiative in FE; training strategy and infrastructure and training and enterprise councils. He also has responsibility for regional government offices; regional and urban policy; inner cities and the single regeneration budget and section 11 matters.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State Cheryl Gillian has responsibility for the development and implementation of the policy of choice and diversity in schools; GM school casework; five to 16 school reorganisations and admissions policies; city technology colleges; technology colleges and other specialist schools; independent schools; the assisted places schemes; school meals and schools capital issues. She also has responsibility for women's issues, older workers and equal opportunities.

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment which of the former Department of Employment's responsibilities her Department has now taken on; and which Minister is in charge of each area of responsibility. [34044]

Mrs. Shephard: Ministerial responsibilities within the Department for Education and Employment are as follows. Those areas of work which were previously the responsibility of the former Department of Employment are shown in bold type.

Secretary of State Gillian Shephard has overall responsibility for the Department and its policies. In particular she will have responsibility for the public expenditure survey and pay in the education sector.

Minister of State Eric Forth is responsible for the Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA); employment policy and benefit issues; labour market statistics; higher education, including content and quality, structure and funding, building programmes, and Higher Education Funding Council matters; the private finance initiative in higher education; student support, overseas students, and other student issues; European Union and international issues and the Careers service/education.

Minister of State Lord Henley is responsible for the school curriculum and assessment; examinations and qualifications including GCSE, GCE A-Level, NVQs, GNVQs and the review of 16 to 19 qualifications; performance tables; the Employment Service; education-industry links; special education in schools; people with disabilities; special needs training; and school transport. He is designated departmental Minister responsible for the citizens charter; next steps; general legal questions and departmental purchasing.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State Robin Squire is responsible for pre-school education; grant-maintained schools borrowing legislation; school effectiveness and action on failing schools; the common funding formula and the national funding formula; the private finance initiative in schools; local management of schools and school governor matters; teacher matters including training and supply, teachers' misconduct, the Teacher Training Agency, appraisal, pensions and the Teachers' Pensions Agency. He is also responsible for grants for education support and training; truancy, discipline and attendance; IT in schools and new technologies; departmental management issues; environmental and energy issues and research.

Pariliamentary Under-Secretary of State James Paice Paice has responsibility for post-16 issues including post-16 school organisation; further education, including content and quality, structure and funding, building programmes, and Further Education Funding Council matters; the Youth Service; adult learning/training; the private finance initiative in FE; training strategy and infrastructure and training and enterprise councils. He also has responsibility for regional Government offices; regional and urban policy; inner cities and the single regeneration budget and section 11 matters.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State Cheryl Gillan has responsibility for the development and implementation of the policy of choice and diversity in schools; GM school casework; five to 16 school reorganisations and admissions policies; city technology colleges; technology colleges and other specialist schools; independent schools; the assisted places scheme; school meals and schools capital issues. She also has responsibility for women's issues, older workers and equal opportunities.

I am taking steps to ensure the effective integration of functions within the new Department as quickly as possible. I have today written to education and training organisations inviting comments on an initial statement of aims and objectives for the new Department. This will provide a framework for bringing together all the policies and programmes designed to educate and train young people and adults and help unemployed people into work.

I have also invited urgent comments on proposals for the grouping of work within the Department, so that a top management structure can be put in place within the next few weeks.

I have placed a copy of my letter to education and training bodies, with the statement of aims and objectives and the proposed top management structure, in the Library of the House.

Special Needs (Legal Action)

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment on what authority the Treasury Counsel in the case of Emma Van de Velde v. Special Needs Tribunal—case number C01670/95—are seeking to establish that children should no longer be allowed to be parties to legal actions brought on their behalf against the decisions of local education authorities. [34247]

Mr. Forth: Appeals against decisions of the special educational needs tribunal are governed by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992. That Act requires that the only persons who can appeal against a decision of the tribunal are the parties before the tribunal. The Education Act 1993, and the Special Educational Needs Tribunal Regulations 1994, make it clear that the parties before the tribunal are the parent and the local education authority.

Hackney Downs School

Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will make a statement about Hackney Downs school. [34838]

Mr. Robin Squire: Hackney Downs school was inspected and found to be failing to provide an acceptable standard of education in August 1994. Hackney education authority then announced its intention to publish notices to cease to maintain the school from the end of July 1995. However, the authority voted at a full council meeting on 28 June 1995, against the professional advice of its officers, to withdraw these notices.

The resulting uncertainty has further weakened the school's position. The last Ofsted monitoring report noted that, although there had been some progress, GCSE results remained well below local and national levels, the standards achieved in lessons were inconsistent, pupil attendance was poor and a significant number of pupils displayed an unsatisfactory attitude to work. Meanwhile, pupil numbers have fallen to below 250.

In these circumstances, my right hon. Friend is concerned that the LEA and governors may not be able to implement their action plans effectively. She has, therefore, today sent a letter to the director of education of Hackney education authority and the chairman of governors of Hackney Downs school stating that she is minded to create an education association and to transfer control of the school to that education association with effect from 1 September 1995.

My right hon. Friend has invited comments on this proposal by Monday 24 July and will announce their decision shortly after that.

Speech Therapy

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what is the cost to each local authority in the United Kingdom of speech therapy services to children in schools; [33505]

(2) which local authorities in the United Kingdom make a contribution towards the cost of speech therapy services to school children; [33507]

(3) how many speech therapy posts providing services to school children are being supported by each local authority in England and Wales. [33508]

Mr. Paice: This information is not collected centrally.

The code of practice on the identification and assessment of special educational needs provides guidance to schools and local authorities in England and Wales. It explains that the prime responsibility for the provision of speech therapy services to children rests with the NHS, and states that schools, LEAs and the NHS should co-operate closely in meeting the needs of children with communication problems.

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what surveys have been undertaken by her Department, associated bodies or sponsored organisations into the incidence of difficulties with speech in the case of children in each county in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Paice: Neither this Department nor any associated body has undertaken or funded such a survey. The Department, in collaboration with the Department of Health, is, however, funding the National Foundation for Educational Research to look at examples of good practice in the delivery of speech therapy to children.

Technology Grants

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list the schools that have been awarded technology grants since the scheme was introduced together with the amount awarded. [32470]

Mr. Robin Squire: The technology colleges scheme was launched in September 1993, with the first schools designated to start operating as technology colleges from September 1994. The 85 schools which have been designated as technology colleges are in the following list. Each school receives a one-off capital grant of £100,000, plus additional recurrent annual funding of £100 per pupil to help implement its development plan. Capital and recurrent support awarded to these schools in 1994–95 and 1995–96 totals some £20 million. The schools are also benefiting from private and charitable sector sponsorship totalling over £8 million.

Internet

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assistance her Department has made available to (a) local assistance authorities, (b) individual schools within the local education authority system and (c) grant-maintained schools to enable them to obtain the necessary computer hardware and software to have access to the Internet. [32860]

Mrs. Gillan: The Department provides support for information technology in schools through grants for education support and training and in the case of grant-maintained schools through special purpose grant (development). These initiatives have enabled the provision of substantial numbers of computers which could be connected to the Internet. It is, however, for individual schools to decide whether to invest in such connections. A number of pilot projects are exploring the educational value of the Internet and the National Council for Educational Technology has published guidance on the Internet for schools.

Employment Issues (TUC Meetings)

Mr. Macshane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment when she plans to meet representatives of the TUC to discuss employment issues. [33521]

Mr. Forth: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State does not have any current plans to meet representatives of the TUC to discuss employment issues. However, in her new role as Secretary of State for Education and Employment, she is likely to meet representatives from many organisations, representing both employers and employees and discuss a wide range of labour market issues with them.

International Labour Organisation (Departmental Responsibility)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if her Department will have responsibility for ILO matters. [33520]

Mr. Forth: Yes. Responsibility for the functions previously delivered within the Employment Department in this area will pass to the new Department for Education and Employment.

Mr. Padraig Flynn

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment when she next expects to meet Mr. Padraig Flynn, European Social Affairs Commissioner. [33518]

Mr. Forth: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State looks forward to renewing her acquaintance with Mr. Flynn at the next meeting of the Social Affairs Council in October, if not sooner.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33611]

Mr. Robin Squire: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the then Minister for State of Employment on 19 May 1994, Official Report, column 243. There has been no further expenditure on employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes.

ENVIRONMENT

Building Access (Disabled People)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what plans his Department has made in respect of surveying consumer satisfaction regarding the impact of part M accessibility; and if he will make a statement. [33769]

Mr. Clappison: My officials are in discussion with representatives of the Access Committee for England on the possibility of it undertaking a study in the current financial year into how part M of the building regulations is working in practice in providing access to buildings for disabled people.

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when his Department will publish further guidance regarding planning policy in respect of disabled access.

Sir Paul Beresford: Some guidance on the provision of access for people with disabilities was contained in "planning policy guidance No. 1: General Policy and Principles". Further guidance is included in DOE circular 11/95, Welsh Office Circular 35/95: "The Use of Conditions in Planning Permissions", to be published on 20 July.

Sheep Dips

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the cost of the Health and Safety Executive's contract research report No. 74/1995 on the neurological effects of sheep dips. [33773]

Sir Paul Beresford: The cost of the research project on the neuropsychological and neurological effects of sheep dips was £212,222.51p.

Sewerage Infrastructure

Mrs. Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if the maintenance costs of the water sewerage infrastructure transfers to the statutory undertaker at no cost to the resident where estates transfer out of Government administration. [33970]

Mr. Clappison: It is open to any householder to seek to have private sewers adopted by the sewerage undertaker for the area. However, the maintenance of drains between the house and public sewer and of water supply pipes between the house and the stopcock remains the householder's responsibility.

Houses in Multiple Occupation

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on his reasons for deciding not to introduce a national licensing scheme for houses in multiple occupation. [34062]

Mr. Clappison: We have reviewed the arguments for and against introducing licensing for houses in multiple occupation. My Department announced last week new proposals to deal with HMOs. These will build on local authorities' existing powers. Full-scale licensing would be more bureaucratic and less flexible for local authorities.

Urban Developments Corporations (Grants)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much grant in aid has been made available to each urban development corporation since 1981 (a) at current prices and (b) at 1987 prices. [34140]

Sir Paul Beresford: The amount of grant in aid made available to each urban development corporation between April 1981 and March 1995, (a) at current prices and (b) at 1987 prices, is set out in the table.

£ millions

Urban Development Corporations	At current prices	At 1987 prices
London Docklands	2,175.4	1,478.2
Merseyside	465.9	316.6
Teesside	308.9	209.9
Black Country	334.7	227.4
Trafford Park	204.0	138.6
Tyne and Wear	299.2	203.3
Bristol	87.8	59.7
Sheffield	97.6	66.3
Central Manchester	86.8	59.0
Leeds	64.6	43.9
Birmingham Heartlands	24.3	16.5
Plymouth	16.6	11.3

Actual grant in aid paid to urban development corporations has been adjusted in line with her Majesty's Treasury's GDP deflator indices. Current prices are 1995–96 prices.

Recycled Aggregate

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to his answer of 26 June, Official Report, column 535, what guidance he has given to public sector clients to promote the use of recycled materials in the construction industry. [34329]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Government look to local authorities to examine how they can contribute to greater efficiency of use in construction contracts for which they are responsible. The guidance in minerals planning guidance note 6 asks planning authorities to identify alternative potential sources of suitable fill for trunk road schemes and asks highways authorities to make greater use of waste and recycled materials in their road construction projects. Department of Transport specifications already permit the use of certain waste materials in road construction and my Department has recently let a research contract to look at the scope for increasing such use. The reports on two further research projects into recycling of aggregates have just been published and provide some guidance to the construction industry on recycling possibilities. The Department proposes to establish an aggregates advisory service on a trial basis to draw on the results of the research and experience and to give advice to the construction industry and others on the recycling opportunities in order to reduce the demand for primary aggregates.

Health and Safety Directives

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his policy with respect to qualified majority voting on EU health and safety directives; and if he will make a statement. [34184]

Sir Paul Beresford: Qualified majority voting has applied to health and safety matters brought forward under article 118a since the Single European Act, which was signed in 1986, came into effect on 1 July 1987.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment on what date or dates United Kingdom Ministers or officials sought to persuade the European Commission to agree a derogation for Sikh turban wearers from the Personal Protective Equipment at Work Regulations 1992. [34182]

Sir Paul Beresford: During the negotiations leading up to the adoption of the directive on the use of Personal Protective Equipment at Work on 30 November 1989, a number of representations were made seeking agreement to a derogation for Sikh turban wearers.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment on what dates United Kingdom representatives attempted to secure a European Council minutes statement concerning a derogation for Sikh turban wearers from the Personal Protective Equipment at Work Regulations; what external legal advice has been obtained in respect of the legal force of the unilateral minutes statement entered by the United Kingdom; if he will place a copy of the relevant documents in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [34185]

Sir Paul Beresford: An attempt was made to secure a minutes statement from the Council and the Commission on 15 November 1989 but this was not successful. A unilateral minutes statement was entered by the United Kingdom at the Labour and Social Affairs Council on 30 November 1989; details are recorded in the Official Journal. Our legal advice however, is that a unilateral minute statement, as opposed to one agreed by the Council or the Commission, would provide no defence to a challenge to any exemption for Sikhs.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment on what date or dates United Kingdom representatives sought to amend the personal protective equipment at work directive in the European Parliament; and if he will list how each EU country, including the UK, voted in each relevant vote. [34183]

Sir Paul Beresford: UK representatives sought to amend the directive on the use of personal protective equipment at work when it was considered by the European Parliament Committee on Social Affairs, Employment and the Working Environment in August 1989. A further attempt was made when it was considered by the European Parliament on 13 September 1989. Details of European Parliament proceedings are recorded in the Official Journal, which is available in the Library.

"State of the Construction Industry" Report

Mr. John Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he plans to publish another "State of the Construction Industry" report. [35116]

Mr. Gummer: The latest "State of the Construction Industry" report, produced jointly by my Department and representatives of the construction industry, has just been completed. Copies have been placed in the Library.

Planning and Guidance (Peat)

Mr. John Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he intends to publish new planning guidance on peat in England and if he will make a statement. [35117]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: We have published new planning guidance for peat in England today, in a new addition to the series of minerals planning guidance notes. This has taken account of the public consultation on the draft MPG in autumn 1994.

The guidance will ensure the conservation of important peat habitats and archaeological sites, which should be protected in development plans. Some of these habitats are areas over which the peat extraction industry has voluntarily given up valid permissions and conveyed the land to English Nature.

It spells out that any future peat extraction from new sites should be restricted to areas which have already been damaged by recent human activities and are of limited or no nature conservation value.

The guidance on the horticultural usage of peat and of alternatives sets a realistic balance based on the best current assessments. In accordance with the principles of sustainable development, the Government believe it is realistic to set a target for 40 per cent. of the total horticultural market requirements to be supplied by non-peat materials within the next 10 years. We intend to monitor—initially, over the next three years—what further progress is made in increasing the usage of alternatives such as through the greater use of recycled and waste materials.

The framework for updating old permissions for peat extraction, with particular emphasis on rehabilitation, has the support of the industry. The framework will have statutory force when the Environment Bill becomes law later this year, with the industry putting forward to mineral planning authorities updated schemes of conditions for their sites.

Copies of the new guidance note are placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Waste Incinerator (Shoeburyness)

Ms Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the permit issued by Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution in respect of DERA's explosive waste incinerator at Shoeburyness; [33981]

(2) in which exempted category in the Environmental Information Regulations 1992 data on emissions from the explosive waste incinerator plant at Shoeburyness fall; and if he will make a statement; [33982]

(3) what plans does he have to monitor the effect of emissions from the Avocet explosive waste incinerator system at Shoeburyness on the areas of special scientific interest in the Colne estuary, the Blackwater estuary, Dengie, the River Crouch marshes and Foulness; [33984]

(4) what plans he has to permit the burning of munitions waste on open ground or a beach in the vicinity of the mid-Essex coast. [33985]

Mr. Clappison [holding answer 12 July 1995]: I have today placed a copy of the authorisation and a variation notice, issued by HMIP, in the House of Commons Library.

The plant is required to meet the emission standards imposed on chemical waste incinerators. It will also have to comply with the EC directive on the burning of hazardous waste when this directive applies. Data on the emissions from the incinerator are not exempted from the provisions of the Environmental Information Regulations 1992 and will be placed on the public registers.

Prior to the granting of this authorisation, HMIP consulted English Nature, which was satisfied that the plant will not have an unacceptable effect on sites of special scientific interest in the local area.

HMIP authorisation requires the operator to carry out an environmental monitoring programme. Soil and grass samples taken from several locations around the incinerator are to be analysed for dioxins and heavy metals.

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment in what consultations his Department was involved in respect to the siting of the Avocet explosive waste incinerator system at Shoeburyness; and if he will make a statement. [33983]

Mr. Robert B. Jones [holding answer 12 July 1995]: The Secretary of State was not consulted on the location of the Avocet waste incinerator system at the Ministry of Defence testing and evaluation facility at Shoeburyness as there was no requirement under planning legislation to do so. I understand, however, that the Ministry consulted the local planning authority, Rochford district council, on the siting of the system, and obtained the necessary authorisation for its operation from Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution. A second incinerator on the site has also been the subject of consultation with Rochford district council and the application for authorisation from HMIP is expected shortly.

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment on what grounds Shoeburyness was chosen for the siting of the Avocet explosive waste incineration system. [33986]

Mr. Robert B. Jones [holding answer 12 July 1995]: This is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence.

SCOTLAND

Government Grant (Sewerage Services)

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much central Government paid to Scottish local authorities for the costs of sewerage services in 1993–94, 1994–95 and 1995–96, and if he will break these figures down by authority. [33311]

Mr. Kynoch [holding answer 11 July 1995]: No Government grant is paid towards the costs of non-domestic sewerage which are fully funded by the non-domestic sewerage rate.

Domestic sewerage is one of the range of local authority services which are supported by aggregate external finance, with the balance being met by the council tax. However, AEF is in general not hypothecated to particular services.

In addition, grant aid towards sewerage services was provided for the three-year period 1991–94 by means of the sewerage improvement grant scheme. The total amount of grant paid through this scheme to the authorities over the three-year period was £130 million and the allocation, by authority for the last year of the grant 1993–94 are given in the table.

Forestry Commission (Woodland Sales)

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list all Forestry Commission woodland sold in Scotland in 1994 by (a) property name, (b) county, (c) acreage, (d) sale price and (e) purchaser. [33756]

Mr. Kynoch: A list giving details of the areas of forest land sold by the Forestry Commission in 1994 is held in the Library of the House. The list shows the name of the purchaser and price paid where the purchaser has agreed that such information can be made public.

Wartime Administration

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what facilities for (a) home defence, (b) civil defence, (c) the wartime administration of the police or armed forces and (d) the wartime administration of Departments of central Government have been provided at Kincardine, and what were the costs of establishing or maintaining such facilities. [33316]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 12 July 1995]: There are no facilities at Kincardine on Forth established to serve any of the purposes specified in this question.

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what facilities for (a) home defence, (b) civil defence and (c) the wartime administration of the police or armed forces have been provided within the Connel Ferry; and what were the costs of establishing or maintaining such facilities since 1980. [33317]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 13 July 1995]: The Scottish Office has never been responsible for any such facilities at Connel Ferry. Premises at Connel Ferry which formed part of the Home Office's United Kingdom warning and monitoring organisation, were sold following the disbandment of that organisation in 1991. No separate figures are available in respect of the costs of establishing and maintaining that facility from 1980 until it was sold.

Cardiologists

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is his latest estimate of the number of specialist cardiologists in post in the NHS in Scotland; and if he will list the numbers for each of the previous five years. [33328]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 12 July 1995]: There are 25 consultants—23.3 whole-time equivalents—in cardiology in Scotland at 30 September 1994. The figures for the previous five years were:

Year	WTE
1989	15.7
1990	17.9
1991	18.9
1992	19.9
1993	22.5

The figures do not take account of general physicians who have a special interest in cardiology.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33885]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The number of contracts won by computer consultancy firms for work in my Department and its agencies in the last five financial years is as follows:

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much (a) health authorities and (b) trusts have spent on consultancy services in each year since 1992, by region. [34160]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is not held centrally.

Unlawful Evictions

Mr. Chisholm: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list for each of the years since 1984 for Scotland as whole and by individual sheriffdom, (a) the number of reports made to the procurator fiscal in respect of private sector landlords carrying out unlawful evictions, (b) the number of prosecutions of private landlords for carrying out unlawful eviction and (c) the number of conviction. [31132]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Assisted Places Scheme

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total cost of the assisted places scheme in each year since the scheme was introduced. [33077]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: The information requested is as follows.

£ thousands

School session	Total cost
1981–82	799
1982–83	1,718
1983–84	2,454
1984–85	3,299

1994–95	[2]10,486

[1] Provisional figures pending receipt of audited returns from a few individual schools.

[2] Estimated.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the amount paid to independent schools under the assisted places scheme to cover (a) revenue expenditure and (b) capital expenditure in each year since the scheme was introduced. [33078]

Mr. Robertson: The amounts paid to participating schools are the total cost of fees and other incidental expenses remitted to parents under the assisted places scheme. No direct funding to cover schools' revenue or capital expenditure is provided under the scheme.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many pupils are currently on an assisted places scheme; and what percentage that represents of the overall school population in (a) primary and (b) secondary education. [33079]

Mr. Robertson: In the 1994–95 school session, provisional figures indicate that 3,041 pupils received assistance under the assisted places scheme. Under the provisions of the scheme, grant is available only for those pupils undertaking wholly or mainly secondary education and this includes a small number of pupils in primary or transitory classes in some schools. The total represents 0.9 per cent. of the overall school population in secondary education, excluding special schools. The same figure represents 0.7 per cent. of the overall school population in primary education, excluding special schools.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many children in the latest year for which figures are available were on an assisted places scheme whose households were in the bottom tenth of disposable income levels. [33080]

Mr. Robertson: Information on disposable incomes is not collected for the purposes of the assisted places scheme. Entitlement to fee remission under the scheme is based on gross family income.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the amount of grant (a) per head and (b) per pupil in local authority schools, for the assisted places scheme in the latest year for which figures are available. [33083]

Mr. Robertson: The average cost of an assisted place in school session 1994–95 is provisionally estimated at £3,448 per assisted pupil. That would equate to a grant of £13.92 per pupil in local authority schools.[1]

[1] Primary and secondary schools, but excluding special schools.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the number of places in the assisted places scheme in each year since the scheme was introduced. [33084]

Mr. Robertson: The information is as follows:

School session	Number of assisted pupils
1981–82	790
1982–83	1,450
1983–84	1,900
1984–85	2,265
1985–86	2,620
1986–87	2,626
1987–88	2,680
1988–89	2,695
1989–90	2,841
1990–91	2,861
1991–92	2,911
1992–93	[1]3,038
1993–94	[1]3,058
1994–95	[1]3,041

[1] Provisional figures pending receipt of final audited claims.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much subsidy went to each school under the assisted places scheme in each year for which figures are available. [33085]

Mr. Robertson: The assisted places scheme does not provide any subsidy to participating schools. Payments by the Scottish Office to schools consist of an allocation of fee remission grant and other incidental expenses. The schools may allocate individual grants up to the total to parents whose children have qualified for assistance under the scheme. Information on the total amounts of fee remission and incidental expenses paid to participating schools is available for school sessions 1981–82 to 1994–95 inclusive.

Teacher Shortages

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what (a) current and (b) future shortages of qualified teachers he has identified and in which secondary school subjects; and if he will indicate the extent of the shortage. [33081]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: Measured at national level there are no significant shortages of qualified teache's in Scotland in either the primary or secondary sectors. At local level, individual vacancies can sometimes be hard to fill for a range of reasons. Teacher education institutions are encouraged to work closely with education authorities to match supply to demand at local level. For the secondary sector, the Scottish Office Education Department recommends that up to three quarters of the annual intake to teacher training courses should be in specific subjects which have been agreed with education authorities as priorities in supply terms. Statistical bulletin Edn/B7/1995/2, a copy of which has been placed in the Library, sets out the most recent information on demand for and supply of teachers.

Teaching Qualifications

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the number of students in each secondary school subject who achieved a teaching qualification at a Scottish teacher training establishment in (a) 1994, (b) 1989 and (c) 1984. [33082]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: The information is set out in the table.

School Boards

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many (a) secondary, (b) primary and (c) special schools have boards; and what is the percentage of the total in each category. [33286]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: The information requested is given in the table.

Pupil Expenditure

Sir Harold Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the unit cost per pupil in each Scottish local education authority for 1993–94 for (a) nursery-primary and (b) secondary pupils. [34326]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: Information on annual budgeted expenditure for each primary and secondary school in Scotland, and per pupil for each such school, is contained in reports published annually since 1993 by the audit unit of Her Majesty's inspectors of schools. A copy of the most recent report, "Scottish Schools: Costs 1993/94 and 1994/95", has been placed in the Library.

Firearms

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many thefts of (a) shotguns and (b) other firearms took place in each police force in each of the last five years from (i) domestic premises and (ii) from other premises in each police force area. [34190]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The tables detail the number of thefts in which the main firearm stolen was a shotgun or other firearm. The information is disaggregated by location of theft—domestic premises or other premises—and is provided by police force area for each of the past five years. For the purposes of this response domestic premises have been defined to be dwellings and farms and the "other" premises category includes, for example, shops, offices, factories, places of public entertainment and other locations. Thefts from motor vehicles have been excluded.

Allowances

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what data is held by (a) his Department and (b) the NHS executive on expenditure on trust board and health authority members' allowances. [34143]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Financial data for health boards and NHS trusts are submitted to the management executive in Scotland in the form of annual accounts, monthly monitoring returns and annual business reports. From these it is possible to identify total remuneration expenditure for non-executive and executive board members collectively. Remuneration of the chairman and highest paid member is identified separately. Details of remuneration for the other members are provided in bands of £5,000 starting at nil. Details of the board members' allowances, notably travel expenses, are not specifically itemised and will form part of more general accounting data.

Clinical Negligence Claims

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what have been the costs of meeting clinical negligence claims in each region in each year since 1990. [34174]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In Scotland, the regional functions of the NHS are administered by health boards. Given the small number of cases in certain health boards, it is not appropriate on the grounds of confidentiality to publish the information in the form requested. The total amounts of damages awarded and total legal costs, for all health boards and NHS trusts in Scotland for the years 1990–91 to 1994–95 are given in the table.

Executive Agencies (Annual Report and Accounts)

Mr. Gallie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the annual report and accounts of the Registers of Scotland executive agency will be published. [34717]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Copies of the annual report and accounts have today been laid before both Houses.

Mr. Gallie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the annual report and accounts of the Scottish Fisheries Protection Agency will be published. [34718]

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: Copies of the annual report and accounts of the Scottish Fisheries Protection Agency have today been laid before both Houses.

Monklands District Council

Mr. Gallie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whom he intends to appoint to conduct the inquiry into Monklands district council and if he will make a statement. [34719]

Mr. Kynoch: Under the powers conferred on him by section 211 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973 my right hon. Friend has appointed Mr. William A. Nimmo Smith QC to conduct the inquiry. The formal terms of reference will be as follows:

> "To inquire into the question whether Monklands District Council have failed to comply with the duty imposed on them under section 7 of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 to make appointments to paid office or employment on merit and to report thereon."

The recent publication of Professor Black's report attracted widespread indignation and concern about the allegations therein. In the circumstances it is hoped that everyone who has relevant information will co-operate fully with the inquiry.

Water Authorities

Mr. Gallie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will announce appointments to the new Scottish water authorities and to the Water and Sewerage Customers Council. [34876]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I can announce today the appointment of 29 members to the new public water authorities; their names are set out below. These appointments, together with those of the chairmen and chief executives already announced, bring the membership of two authorities to 12, the maximum permitted by legislation, and one to 11.

Half the appointments will go to elected councillors. Of the 14 councillors announced today, nine are independents and five are Conservatives. Five senior Labour councillors were invited to serve: all declined, in some cases publicising their decision in the press. One vacancy remains unfilled.

The rest of today's appointments bring to the authority a range of skills and experience of the water industry business or finance. The authorities are now well placed to deliver high-quality, efficient water and sewerage services and to attract additional new investment from private finance.

The three new water authorities are public sector bodies which will forge a partnership with the providers of private sector funds to produce the greatest benefit in terms of quality of service and value for money for the people of Scotland. This is a novel and imaginative approach and I expect that all involved will play their part in ensuring its success.

I can also announce today that Mr. Dick Douglas has accepted my invitation to become chairman of the new Water and Sewerage Customers Council. The rest of the membership will be appointed in the coming weeks. Mr. Douglas responded to the public advertisement for the position and as a former Member of this House is well known for his independence and vigour. I am confident that under his leadership the interests of customers will be ably championed.

Those appointed to the North of Scotland water authority are:

Denis Addly, Councillor Raymond Bisset, Councillor Joan Eastern, Councillor Nigel J. O. Graham, Andrew D. F. Lewis, Alasdair N. MacCallum, Councillor Olwyn J. Macdonald, Nicolas McAndrew, Councillor Donald I. Nicholson, David R. Paton.

Those appointed to the East of Scotland water authority are:

Disney Barlow, Robin Bell, Councillor Ian J. Berry, Councillor Ian Galloway, Councillor Tom Kerr, Councillor Pat McCafferty, Harry O'Hanlon, Sir Francis McWilliams, Roy Summers.

Those appointed to the West of Scotland water authority are:

Norman S. M. Berry, Councillor Mungo Bryson, Sir Robert Easton, John M. Goodwin, David M. Gray, Peter N. B. Kennedy, Councillor William Petrie, Councillor Robert R. Reid, Provost Leslie Rosin, Councillor Ian R. Young.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

National Physical Laboratory

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what progress he has made towards introducing private sector management into the National Physical Laboratory. [35049]

Mr. Lang: The intention to introduce private sector management to the National Physical Laboratory was announced by my right hon. Friend the Member for Henley (Mr. Heseltine) on 14 April 1994. A detailed investigation to tender was made available in December to five bidding consortia selected from among those expressing interest. In May, the Department selected two consortia as shortlisted bidders and in late June, Serco became the preferred bidder for final negotiations. These are now complete and Serco, in collaboration with AEA Technology and Loughborough university as subcontractors for particular tasks, has been selected to become the contractor to manage the laboratory and deliver the Department's measurement programmes for the next five years. Serco, which will take over on 1 October, offered better value for money than either its nearest competitor or the benchmark of NPL continuing as an agency. All but a few of the laboratory's staff will transfer to Serco, which will purchase some of the assets of the laboratory. The DTI will lease other assets together with the buildings to Serco for the duration of the contract.

The contract includes incentives on the contractor to develop the business of the laboratory and to improve efficiency. The existing management have made substantial progress in these areas during NPL's period as an agency of the Department, but I am sure that private sector management will bring additional commercial freedoms and skills to NPL's work. The contract also requires NPL to maintain its status as one of the world's greatest metrology laboratories and as a centre of excellence for all aspects of measurement. I am confident that under commercial management the laboratory will be even better able to fulfil this vital role. As part of the arrangements to ensure this, the Royal Society and the Royal Academy of Engineering have agreed to advise me on the maintenance of the long-term capability and standing of the laboratory.

London Commodity Exchange

Mr. Bayley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) if he will make a statement about the takeover bid for the London Commodity Exchange made by the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange of New York, and its implications for cocoa and coffee processing companies operating in the United Kingdom; [34317]

(2) if his Department intends to review the decision to sell the United Kingdom's share of the buffer stock of cocoa beans following the New York Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange's take-over bid for the London Commodity Exchange; [34313]

(3) what representations he has made to the Director General of Fair Trading in respect of the bid by the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange of New York to take over the London Commodity Exchange. [34318]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: If this is a qualifying merger, the relevant competition authorities will need to consider the takeover. If it falls to the UK competition authorities, the Director General of Fair Trading will advise my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade whether to refer the merger to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission. In giving his advice, the DGFT will take into account third party views and any other relevant factors.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what discussions Her Majesty's Government have had with (a) the European Commission and (b) other Governments of EU member states about the take-over bid for the London Commodity Exchange. [34314]

Mr. Evans: None. If such a takeover fell to the United Kingdom competition authorities, then any plans which a company might have to acquire the London Commodity Exchange would be a matter for discussions with the Director General of Fair Trading who has a duty under the Fair Trading Act 1973 to advise my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade on whether any qualifying mergers should be referred to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which of the former Department of Employment's responsibilities his Department has now taken on; and which Minister is in charge of each area of responsibility. [34043]

Mr. Lang: My Department has taken over the former Employment Department group's responsibilities for industrial relations policy and legislation, pay issues, redundancy payments; and sponsorship of the Advisory Conciliation and Arbitration Service and the Industrial Tribunals. My hon. Friend the Member for Brecon and Radnor (Mr. Evans) will be responsible for these matters, and will report to me.

President of the Board of Trade (Salary)

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the present annual salary of the President of the Board of Trade. [34004]

Mr. Lang: My ministerial salary as President of the Board of Trade is £42,834 per annum. In addition, I receive a reduced parliamentary salary of £24,985 per annum.

Government Regional Office

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment his Department has made of the benefits to industry of opening the Government's regional offices; and if he will make a statement. [33554]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 12 July 1995]: The Government offices for the English regions and the expanding network of business links provide single points of contact for local businesses on a range of issues.

Business Link

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer of 4 July, Official Report, column 625, in what circumstances he would relax the accreditation procedure for continued use of the Business Link brand. [33547]

Mr. Page [holding answer 12 July 1995]: In order to ensure that all businesses have access to high quality support, there will be no relaxation of the accreditation standards. However, if the reasons for failure are unlikely to affect the service received by clients, the Business Link Accreditation Board will have discretion to recommend a temporary extension of the licences to use the Business Link brand, provided that the business link has effective plans for remedying the shortfall. The implementation of those plans will be checked at the next regular surveillance visit.

Mr. Clapham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer of 4 July, Official Report, column 625, what options his Department has considered to ensure that small businesses have access to quality business advice if he accepts a recommendation from the Business Links Accreditation Board that their local business link should have its licence to use the Business Link branch withdrawn. [33548]

Mr. Page [holding answer 12 July 1995]: Should an individual business link licence be withdrawn, agreement would be sought with a neighbouring accredited business link to provide the access to high quality support services.

Inward Investment

Mr. Morgan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will give the latest regional statistics available of the share of inward investment projects coming to Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the regions of England; and what share Wales has received from the latest data available of all inward investment projects coming from (a) Japan, (b) North America and (c) Europe. [34249]

Mr. Eggar: My right hon. Friend the then President of the Board of Trade announced on 4 July 1995, Official Report, columns, 145–46 that a record number of 434 inward investment projects were notified to the Invest in Britain Bureau in 1994–95. The regional breakdown of this total is as follows:

	Number	Per cent.
Wales	50	11.5
Scotland	81	18.7
Northern Ireland	22	5.1
East	12	2.8
East Midlands	44	10.1
North East	38	8.7
North West	49	11.3
South East	37	8.5
South West	21	4.3
West Midlands	62	14.3
Yorkshire/Humberside	18	4.1

Wales's share of all projects coming from the specified countries was as follows:

	Per cent.
Japan	11.4 (5 of 44)
North America	11.8 (25 of 212)
Europe	13.6 (19 of 140)

All the above figures are based on numbers of projects notified to the Invest in Britain Bureau at the time of the decision to invest. Companies are under no obligation to notify their investment decisions and the figures take no account of subsequent developments.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33457]

Mr. Lang: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given by my right hon. Friend the First Secretary of State to his questions last year on 5 May 1994 and 16 June 1994, Official Report, column 604 and columns 428-29. The Comptroller and Auditor General has not published any additional reports on privatisations undertaken by the DTI since then.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which firms of consultants employed by his Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33880]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 12 July 1995]: The information is not collected and cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much his Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33861]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 12 July 1995]: Figures prior to 1992–93 are not readily available and cannot be provided other than at disproportionate cost. Due to the devolvement of budgets for computer consultancy, the following figures represent only the expenditure made through the central IT procurement section.

Year	Thousand
1992–93	6,212
1993–94	4,671
1994–95	4,137

It is not possible to provide expected expenditure over the next five years other than at disproportionate cost due to budget devolvement. Information available on forecast expenditure by the central computer section on consultancy support for corporate projects over the next three years is as follows—estimates are not available for the final two years:

Year	£ thousand
1995–96	1,181
1996–97	861
1997–98	824

Mr. Milburn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from his Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33892]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 12 July 1995]: This information is not held centrally and it cannot be provided other than at disproportionate cost. However, following an open tender procurement, the Department has set up framework agreements with the following companies enabling the Department's management units and agencies to call off computer consultancy support as required.

Admiral Management Services Ltd.
ASE Consulting
CMG Computer Management Group (UK) Ltd.
Coopers and Lybrand
Cray Systems Ltd.
CSS Trident Ltd.
CSC Computer Sciences Ltd.
EFD Total System Consultants Ltd.
Kermon Ltd.
KPMG Management Consulting
Logica UK Ltd.
PA Consulting Group
Parity Systems Ltd.
SEMA Group Systems Ltd.
Secure Information Systems Ltd.
Touche Ross and Co.
Triad Special Systems Ltd.

The agreements were finalised in August 1994 and cover a period of up to five years.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years indicating the companies concerned. [33422]

Mr. Lang: Each senior official and special adviser is required to make a declaration of his or her financial interests including company shareholdings. This enables the Department to prevent potential conflicts of interest arising. In the case of other officials, conflicts of interest are dealt with by their line management. Records are not kept centrally.

Aerospace (Outsourcing)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate he has made of the value of outsourcing in the United Kingdom by Japanese companies working in the aerospace sector for each year since 1990. [33768]

Mr. Eggar: No such estimate has been made.

Tunnel Boring Machines

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many United Kingdom companies manufacture tunnel boring machines of the kind capable of boring the tunnels of the proposed channel tunnel rail link. [33819]

Mr. Page: We know of a number of United Kingdom manufacturing firms which make large tunnel boring machines. The precise type of tunnelling machines suitable for the channel tunnel rail link would depend upon the type of tunnelling methods chosen by they contractor after taking into account the ground conditions.

Loan Guarantee Scheme

Sir Michael Shersby: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what has been the effect of changes to the loan guarantee scheme announced since 1992. [32576]

Mr. Page: Since the changes that took place in April 1993 and July 1993, lending under the scheme has increased considerably.

In the financial year to 31 March 1994, 3,886 scheme loans were guaranteed at a value of £155 million compared to 2,342 loans at a value of £52 million in the previous year. In the year to 31 March 1995, 6,207 loans were guaranteed to a value of £246 million. This represents the highest level of lending since the scheme began in 1981.

We are currently guaranteeing over 600 loans a month.

British Coal (Recreational Estate)

Mr. Tipping: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement about the planned transfer of British Coal's recreational estate to the Coal Industry Social Welfare Organisation and to the National Playing Fields Association. [33118]

Mr. Page [holding answer 12 July 1995]: It is the Government's objective that British Coal land currently in active use for sport and recreation is retained for those purposes.

I hope to be in a position to make a further announcement shortly.

PRIME MINISTER

West Midlands (Visit)

9. Mr. Thomason: To ask the Prime Minister what proposals he has to visit the west midlands and the Bromsgrove constituency in particular. [32466]

The Prime Minister: I have no current plans to do so.

Prime Ministerial Duties

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what proportion of his time he devoted to his duties as Prime Minister between 23 June and 4 July. [34202]

The Prime Minister: I was Prime Minister throughout the entire period in question.

Government Cars

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what make and type of Government car is allocated to the Prime Minister; and what is the cost of this vehicle to the Exchequer; including the annual cost of the chauffeur. [34014]

The Prime Minister: I have been allocated a Daimler Majestic as my official car. The annual running cost, which includes a number of security measures, is some £100,000. This also includes maintenance and the cost of a chauffeur.

French Nuclear Tests

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what representations he has received from the Governments of (a) Australia and (b) New Zealand about French nuclear tests in the Pacific; and what Commonwealth representations he proposes to make to the French Government. [34153]

The Prime Minister: We are in regular contact with both Governments and are aware of their views. The United Kingdom does not act on behalf of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will protest to the French Government against (a) the proposed French nuclear tests in the Pacific and (b) the French Government's action against the Rainbow Warrior. [34150]

The Prime Minister: No.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister on which occasions he has raised the issue of French nuclear testing within institutions of the European Union. [34152]

The Prime Minister: I have discussed nuclear testing with President Chirac on a number of occasions. I have not considered it necessary to do so within institutions of the EU.

Public Interest Immunity Certificates

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list details of the occasions during the past 30 years when public interest immunity certificates have been signed indicating the Minister concerned, the Department and the subject matter to which the certificate was related. [34116]

The Prime Minister: The information as requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Prime Minister's Questions

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Prime Minister who will be answering oral questions addressed to him when he cannot be present in the House. [34032]

The Prime Minister: The First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister will answer oral questions addressed to me when I cannot be present in the House.

Prime Ministerial Offices

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the offices in 10 Downing street available to him for his official duties, together with the size of such offices, measured in square feet. [34015]

The Prime Minister: A study is available, which measures approximately 370 sq ft. The Cabinet room and other rooms in No. 10 Downing street are used for Government business. These amount in total to 4,343 sq ft.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister, what role in the presentation and co-ordination of Government policy will be filled by the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary. [34012]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 11 July, Official Report, column 496.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what level has been set for the annual salary of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary of State. [34010]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 11 July, Official Report, column 496.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what will be the duties and responsibilities of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary. [34011]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 11 July, Official Report, column 496.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister how many rooms in the Cabinet Office have been allocated to the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary and his staff. [34009]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

Four rooms in the Cabinet Office have been allocated to the First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister and his staff.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister if he will estimate the annual cost of running the offices and department of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary, indicating (a) staff costs and (b) rentable value of accommodation occupied. [34008]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

The currently estimated annual cost of running the Cabinet Office (Office of Public Service), including the office of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary, is £80 million of which £32 million relates to staff costs and £5 million is in respect of accommodation.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the fixtures and fittings ordered for the office of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary of State with particular reference to (a) carpets and (b) pictures. [33999]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

No fixtures or fittings have been ordered for the First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister's office. The carpet and pictures were in place and the furniture came from existing stocks.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what is the size, in square feet, of the new office of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary, located in the Cabinet Office. [34000]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

The size of the First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister's office is 872 sq ft.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what refurbishment work is (a) completed, (b) under way and (c) planned for the offices of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary and his staff; and what is his estimate of the costs of such work. [34007]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

None.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister, how many (a) telephones, (b) fax machines, (c) photocopiers and (d) computers have been and will be allocated to the offices and department of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary; and what is the estimated value of the items obtained in each of the above categories. [34006]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

The following items have been allocated to the offices of the First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister and his private office staff.

	Quantity	Cost excluding VAT £
Telephones	10	590
Facsimile machines	1	1,425
Photocopiers	1	4,017 (annual hire charge)
Computers/printers	7/3	12,469

Information for the Office of Public Service and its agencies could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what will be the design features of stationery created for the office of the Deputy Prime Minister. [34001]

(2) what orders for new stationery have been placed by the offices and Department of the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary; and what the cost of such orders will be. [34002]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

The stationery for the office of the First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister features the crest used by the Cabinet Office and "Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary of State". Orders for stationery have so far been placed to an estimated value of £75.

Rose Garden Announcement

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his answer of 4 July, which of the means proposed to remunerate the public purse will be used in the particular case of the rose garden announcement of 22 June. [33291]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 10 July 1995]: My announcement on 22 June took place during the normal working hours of No. 10 Downing street. Any additional costs to the public purse were de minimis and, in accordance with long-standing practice, no charge will be levied.

HEALTH

NHS Policy Board

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, how many members of (a) the NHS policy board and (b) the private finance panel have employment in the private sector; is she will list details of such employment; and what assessment she has made of the possibility of conflicts of interest. [30437]

Mr. Malone: Membership of the national health service policy board is drawn from inside and outside the NHS and includes Ministers, senior officials, chairmen of the eight regional health authorities as well as other members who have no formal role in the NHS. No Ministers or senior officials have employment in the private sector. Like all advisory bodies in the NHS, which have no executive responsibility, the NHS policy board is non-statutory and provides advice to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State. Members of the board drawn from outside the NHS are under no obligation to declare their employment or interests. Members of the board who are regional health authority chairmen are appointed to those positions through a process requiring them to declare interests which are relevant and material to authorities of which they are a member. Registers of these interests are publicly available and a copy of the relevant entries will be placed in the Library. Membership of the private finance panel is a matter for my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, including the companies concerned. [33415]

Mr. Sackville: The Department's staff rules require that shareholdings which staff or immediate members of their families hold, and which might be influenced or affected as a result of their official position, must be declared to their line manager. Records of such declarations are not available centrally.

Speech Therapy

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent to which local authority education departments will fund speech therapy in schools in the case of non-statemented children requiring speech therapy support services. [33511]

Mr. Bowis: This is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Department of Education and Employment but we are co-funding a project which is being carried out by the National Foundation for Educational Research to identify models of good collaborative practice. Its findings should be available towards the end of this year.

Blood Bags

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice has been given by the National Blood Authority, and by his Department, to doctors and hospitals which still have Tuta blood bags in their blood stocks; how many such bags have now been destroyed; what consultations the manufacturers of these bags had with the NBA before changing the design; what compensation is being sought from the manufacturers; and if he will make a statement. [33306]

Mr. Sackville: These matters for the National Blood Authority, which is urgently investigating the problems experienced with Tuta blood bags. I understand that on 4 July the National Blood Authority advised blood centres that all Tuta blood bags be withdrawn.

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 6 July, Official Report, column 341, when he expects to announce the results of the investigation by the National Blood Authority into the problems with Tuta bags; and what estimate his Department has been given of the total cost of the exercise involved in replacing the blood stock lost through defective bags. [34305]

Mr. Sackville: I understand that the National Blood Authority's urgent investigation of these matters is continuing.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from his Department by (a) number of contracts and (b) monetary value in the last five years for which figures are available. [33440]

Mr. Sackville: Information on the total number of contracts let to consultancy firms by this Department over the past five years could be provided only at disproportionate cost. By total monetary value, since 1993, the first year that such figures exist, the five leading consultancy firms are as follows:

PA Consulting and its subsidiaries

CSS Trident plc

Touch Ross and Co

Siemens Nixdorf

C International Ltd.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much have (a) health authorities and (b) trusts spent on consultancy services in each year since 1992, by region. [34166]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contract and for what total sum were let out by his Department and agencies for which it is responsible to (a) Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries, (b) Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries, (c) Ernst and Young and its subsidiaries, (d) Arthur Andersen and its subsidiaries, (e) Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries, (f) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries and (i) Pannell Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries for privatisation, marketing testing, management advice, accounting, audit, consultancy and other services in 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33911]

Mr. Sackville: Information regarding the total number of contracts let by this Department and agencies for which it is responsible is not available centrally. The total sums paid to those firms listed in 1993–94 and 1994–95 are as follows:

	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries	426,942	387,875
Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries	240,513	259,212
Ernst and Young and its subsidiaries	106,904	35,919
Arthur Andersen and its subsidiaries	nil	nil
Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries	434,354	191,955
Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries	118	nil

	1993–94 £	1994–95 £
Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries	150	nil
Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries	nil	nil
Pannell Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries	200	400

NHS Services

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received from the Royal College of Physicians and the Prince of Wales Advisory Group on Disability on the establishment of a national standard of national health service services with regular monitoring; and if he will make a statement. [33761]

Mr. Malone: None.

Physiotherapists

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the changes in the demand for specialist physiotherapy to treat sufferers with work-related upper limb disorders; and what plans he has to increase the level of funding for this work; [33843]

(2) what has been the annual expenditure on NHS physiotherapy in each of the last five years; and what were these figures as a percentage of the total level of NHS expenditure. [33844.]

Mr. Bowis: The number of people affected by upper limb disorders, or repetitive strain injury as it is also known, is apparently increasing and we are encouraging physiotherapists working in this field to update their practice in line with current thinking and research into the condition.

In the 10-year period from 1982–83 to 1992–93, revenue expenditure on physiotherapy services in England increased by 79 per cent. to £232.4 million, as part of the general increase in funding for the NHS. The figures on the annual expenditure of NHS physiotherapy by health authorities and NHS trusts and their percentage of the total operational hospital and community health care expenditure are shown in the table.

Expenditure on physiotherapy by health authorities and NHS trusts in England and as a per cent. of total operational hospital and community health services expenditure

	Physiotherapy expenditure £000	Physiotherapy expenditure as a per cent. of total HCHS expenditure
1989–90	138,896	1.02
1990–91	147,806	1.00
1991–92	204,714	1.09
1992–93	232,393	1.16
1993–94	252,935	1.23

Notes:
1. HCHS abbreviates hospitals and community health services.
2. The figures for 1991–92 onwards are not strictly comparable with those for earlier years due to changes in accounting practice associated with the introduction of the internal market, including the introduction of capital charges.

Source:
1. The annual financial returns of regional and district health authorities and the special health authorities of the London postgraduate teaching hospitals.
2. The annual financial returns of NHS trusts.

Medical Records (Access)

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will amend the Access to Health Records Act 1990 to allow patients full access to their complete records other than in exceptional circumstances; if he will make it his policy that patients will be issued with an explanatory statement when full access is denied; and if he will make a statement. [33655]

Mr. Sackville: The Access to Health Records Act 1990 gives patients a right of access to their own health records compiled on or after 1 November 1991. If the record holder considers that access to earlier records is necessary for the later record to be understood, that also is permitted under the Act.

Access may be denied to all or part of the record if disclosure of any information in it might cause serious harm to the physical or mental health of the patient or to protect the health of another person. Access may also be denied if the record contains information which would identify a third party, other than a health professional, unless that person has consented to the disclosure.

Although the Act does not grant a general right of access to records made before 1 November 1991, questions of access to documents made before that date are matters for the judgment of the health professional primarily responsible for the patient's clinical care. However it is our policy that access be given whenever possible.

The Act does not require the record holder to inform the applicant when part of the record is withheld. It is a matter for the record holder whether to do so but our guidance does not require it and we have no plans to change the current arrangements.

Drugs

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will investigate the price differential of drugs at the hospital/primary care interface; how this affects patients who are discharged from hospital; and if he will make a statement. [33672]

Mr. Malone: Guidance on these issues was given to health authorities in EL(91)127 and EL(94)72, copies of which are available in the Library.

Infertility Treatment

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will instruct all health authorities to make in-vitro fertilisation or gamete intra-fallopian transfer treatment available to women with a clinical need. [33664]

Mr. Sackville: Decisions about the priority and resources to be given to infertility treatment services must be left to the individual health authorities, which are in the best position to determine priorities in the light of local needs and circumstances.

Patients Charter

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will allow nurses and midwives greater discretion under the patients charter in the time scale for operating home visits where this is in the best interests of patients and carers; and if he will make a statement. [33666]

Mr. Malone: The patients charter national standard on home visits by community nurses, health visitors and midwives has been set to provide a challenging but achievable level of service delivery which the national health service must aim to meet in all but exceptional cases. To weaken the standard would not be in the interests of patients.

Community Health Councils

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will allocate further funds to community health councils to enable them to raise their public profile; and if he will make a statement. [33760]

Mr. Malone: No. The working group on the future establishing arrangements for community health councils identified a need for further work in relation to equalising CHC resources after RHA functions transfer to the NHS executive in April 1996. This work will be based on our commitment to ensuring broad consistency in handling CHC affairs.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to ensure greater involvement by community health councils in the processes of needs assessment, the monitoring of performance and quality and in "Local Voices" programmes; and if he will make a statement. [33674]

Mr. Malone: Guidance issued by the National Health Service Executive in 1992 entitled "Local Voices" emphasised the need for the national health service to become truly responsive to the needs, views and preferences of local people. Community health councils have and will continue to play a significant role in this process.

This continued role is clearly acknowledged in the planning and priorities guidance for 1996–97. The guidance details the six most important national priorities for the NHS over the next three to five years, one of which is to give greater voice and influence to health service users.

Intensive Care

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy that his Department's review of intensive care facilities will (a) review the number of intensive care and high dependency beds and regional centres with particular attention to paediatrics and neurosurgery to ensure the provision of necessary support services and (b) implement as a matter of urgency a bed bureau to facilitate the immediate location of appropriate available specialist care beds in an emergency; and if he will make a statement. [33676]

Mr. Sackville: No. I have set up a working group to develop clear definitions of intensive care and high dependency; and to devise guidelines for admission to and discharge from such units.

Folic Acid (Public Awareness)

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to increase awareness of the importance of folic acid taken before conception and then in early pregnancy in the prevention of neural tube defects; and if he will make a statement. [34570]

Mr. Sackville: The Department has commissioned the Health Education Authority to conduct a large scale publicity campaign to increase awareness of the opportunity to prevent babies having spina bifida and other similar birth defects by women increasing their consumption of folates and folic acid prior to conception and in early pregnancy. We have set aside £2.3 million in England over the next three years for this purpose. The campaign will start in the autumn, focusing first on increasing professional awareness of the issues, and then broaden out early next year to reach women and older school girls. In particular, it will initially target women who are planning to become pregnant.

Health Service Commissioner (Annual Report)

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Healthy when he expects to receive the 1994–95 annual report of the Health Service Commissioner. [34720]

Mr. Sackville: The Health Service Commissioner has made his annual report on the performance of his functions in England, Scotland and Wales. My right hon. Friends, the Secretary of State for Health, the Secretary of State for Scotland and the Secretary of State for Wales presented the report to the House on 12 July. It was published today (HC 544) and copies have been placed in the Library.

Medical Negligence

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the law of medical negligence on his Department; and if he will make a statement. [33816]

Mr. Malone: The law of medical negligence has no direct effect on my Department.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will consider giving compensation to those patients who suffer permanent injuries after radiotherapy for the treatment of breast cancer; and if he will make a statement. [33817]

Mr. Sackville: Compensation by the national health service is appropriate only where there is evidence of medical negligence.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement concerning the apparent concentration in particular areas and in particular years of injuries following radiotherapy for breast cancer. [33818]

Mr. Sackville: The Department of Health is funding the Royal College of Radiologists to carry out a clinical review in nine radiotherapy centres of women thought to be damaged by radiotherapy for breast cancer. This should yield useful information about common factors in treatment which might have led to the adverse effects. The need for further studies can then be assessed.

Child Abuse Inquiry

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will give the terms of the National Commission of Inquiry into Child Abuse; if he will list the members; what is his estimate of the total costs of the inquiry; on what date the inquiry will begin; and when he anticipates it will be completed. [34250]

Mr. Bowis: The National Commission of Inquiry into Child Abuse was set up by the National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Accident and Emergency Services, West Midlands

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the provision of accident and emergency services in the west midlands; and what changes to present arrangements are planned. [34281]

Mr. Sackville: It is for health authorities to decide upon the provision of accident and emergency services. The hon. and learned Member may wish to contact Bryan Baker, chairman of West Midlands regional health authority, for further details.

City and Hackney Community NHS Trust

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the occupation and employer of the chair of City and Hackney Community NHS trust. [34179]

Mr. Malone: The chairman of City and Hackney Community NHS trust, Professor Elaine Murphy, is employed by the united medical and dental schools of Guy's and St. Thomas' hospitals. She is a professor within the division of psychiatry in the university of London.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Alan Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 23 February, Official Report, column 325, if he will give the figures on accident and emergency departments by region for 1994–95. [34206]

Mr. Sackville: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 9 June, Official Report, column 332.

Listeriosis

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department first made a full assessment of the risks to child health of pregnant mothers consuming soft cheese and other products liable to listeria; and on what date his Department's first guidance note on listeriosis was produced. [34248]

Mr. Sackville: The Department of Health issued advice to the public about listeria in soft ripened cheese, cooked-chilled meals and ready-to-eat poultry on 10 February 1989 and about pâté on 12 July 1989 and 24 August 1989. This included specific guidance to pregnant women.

It would not be appropriate to comment on the timing of the Department's assessment of the health risks associated with foodborne listeriosis which is being considered as part of a current court case.

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Ministers and which Departments were involved in the timing of the Government's decision to warn publicly of the risks of miscarriages, stillbirths and serious illnesses in new born babies from listeriosis caused by consumption of some soft cheeses, cook-chill foods, chicken or pâté. [34310]

Mr. Sackville: Health and Agriculture Ministers were involved in the decision to issue a warning about listeriosis.

Asthma

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will include asthma in the "Health of the Nation" strategy; and if he will make a statement. [34282]

Mr. Sackville: An ad hoc expert group has recently reported to the Chief Medical Officer on possible interventions and targets for asthma, so that it might be reconsidered for "Health of the Nation" key area status. The report will be considered together with others on asthma which are expected soon from specialty committees in the Department of Health.

Mr. Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions were made for the treatment of asthma, per family health service authority, for each of the last three years for which figures are available. [34283]

Mr. Malone: The available information will be placed in the Library.

GP Fundholding

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what figures (a) his Department and (b) the NHS Executive hold on the transaction costs between trust and general practitioner fundholders. [34136]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

NHS Trusts

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the average rent charged by NHS trusts to tenants in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [34251]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

NHS Staff

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the number of staff, by type, working in (a) the acute sector and (b) the community sector in each of the last three years. [34135]

Mr. Malone: The information is not available in the form requested.

Information on the national health service work force is given in "The NHS Workforce in England 1982–1992" and "Health and Personal Social Services Statistics 1994", copies of which are available in the Library.

Information on staff directly employed by local authority social services departments is given in the annual publication, "Local Authority Social Services Statistics: Staff of Local Authority Social Services Departments", copies of which are in the Library. The latest edition gives data as at 30 September 1994.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Environmental Protection Agency

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for South Down (Mr. McGrady) of 13 June, Official Report, column 465, what reasons were given for rejecting an independent environmental protection agency for Northern Ireland. [33241]

Mr. Moss: The Environment Service of the Department of the Environment in Northern Ireland provides an integrated approach to the protection and conservation of the environment. The establishment of an independent agency dealing solely with environmental protection would prejudice that holistic approach. For this reason it was considered that a next steps agency, dealing with the full range of the current responsibilities of the Environment Service, would achieve many of the benefits of a separate protection agency and could be brought into being in a much shorter timescale.

Bypasses (Dungiven and Strabane)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has for a bypass at (a) Dungiven and (b) Strabane. [33044]

Mr. Moss: Proposals for the provision of a bypass of Dungiven and for the completion of stage 2 of Strabane bypass—stage 1 is already in place—are long term and are not included in the Department's current five-year major road works programme.

Training Schemes

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the sources of information held by him on Government-sponsored training schemes. [33593]

Mr. Ancram: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Training and Employment Agency under its chief executive, Mr. J. S. Crozier. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from J. S. Crozier to Mr. Tony Worthington, dated 10 July 1995.

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked me, as chief Executive of the Training and Employment Agency, to reply to your question.

The main sources of information on Government sponsored training schemes are as follows:

The Training and Employment Agency headquarters and local office network. There are 31 local offices located across Northern Ireland.

Adult Guidance Centres of which there are 33 provide under contract to the Agency a career assessment and guidance service for adults.

A Training Organisation network consisting of 161 organisations which includes the Agency's 11 Training Centres. These organisations are contracted to deliver T&EA training programmes.

A Directory of Training Opportunities (formally known as the Directory of Training Providers) gives a comprehensive guide to training opportunities and providers in Northern Ireland. The Directory is available form the Agency on request.

The Agency also produces a Directory of Services which gives a brief description of each of the Agency's services including training schemes and is also available on request.

In addition, potential clients can be referred to the Training and Employment Agency by Social Security Offices, Citizens Advice Bureaux, Community based Jobclubs which would be able to give limited information on the training programmes available.

I hope that your find this helpful.

Sunday Observance Act

Mr. Mallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what meaning is attached by his Department to the terms (a) tradesman, (b) certificer, (c) workman, and (d) labourer as used in article 1 of the Act for the better observation of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, AD 1695; [33517]

(2) what meaning is attached by his Department to the term, works of necessity and charity, as used in article 1 of the Act for the better observation of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, AD 1695; [33515]

(3) what meaning is attached by his Department to the terms, (a) drover, (b) horse-courser, (c) waggoner, (d) carrier, (e) butcher and (f) higler as used in an Act for the better observation of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, AD 1695; [33514]

(4) what meaning is attached by his Department to the terms, (i) publickly cry (ii) shew forth, (iii) expose to sale, (iv) merchandises and (v) chattels as used in article 1 of the Act for the better observation of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, AD 1695. [33516]

Mr. Moss: The Sunday Observance Act (Ireland) 1695 is an archaic piece of legislation which is inevitably couched in language that is out of date. It is not appropriate, therefore, to attach in the abstract, particular meanings to the terms used in the Act. Such determination would be relevant and meaningful only in the context of a particular issue or case.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33427]

Sir John Wheeler: None.

Training and Work Schemes

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what devolved powers he has to run training or work schemes that are different from those run elsewhere in the United Kingdom. [33595]

Mr. Ancram: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Training and Employment Agency under its chief executive, Mr. J. S. Crozier. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from J. S. Crozier to Mr. Tony Worthington, dated 8 July 1995:

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked me as Chief Executive of the Agency to reply to your question about the devolved powers he has to run training or work schemes that are different from those run elsewhere in the United Kingdom.

Training and employment programmes and services are administered by the Training and Employment Agency which is a Next Steps Agency established by the Department of Economic Development in 1990. The Department is empowered to run training and employment schemes under the Employment and Training Act (NI) 1950 (as amended by the Employment and Training (Amendment) (Northern Ireland) Order 1988) which includes authority to "make such arrangements as it considers appropriate for the purpose of employment suitable for their ages and capacities or of assisting persons to obtain suitable employees (including partners and other business associates)". Under the arrangements which pertain during Direct Rule this authority is discharged subject to the direction and control of the Secretary of State.

Social Needs

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland in what ways the Department of Education uses its budget to fulfil the Government's policy of targeting social need in Northern Ireland. [33303]

Mr. Ancram: The formula used for distributing the annual block grant resources to the education and library boards takes account of the relative incidence of social deprivation in each board area and social need is also taken into account in determining major schools capital starts each year.

In addition, substantial resources—£6 million to date in 1995–96—are targeted at the education service within the "Making Belfast Work" and Londonderry regeneration initiatives.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland in what way each of the education and library boards enact Government policy of targeting social needs in Northern Ireland. [33304]

Mr. Ancram: Local management of schools funding arrangements require each education and library board to target social needs through allocations in respect of special needs and social deprivation. In 1994–95, £28.8 million or 6 per cent. of the aggregated schools budget was targeted at the most needy schools in this way.

In addition, over £20 million will be made available over the next three years towards a special initiative aimed at raising standards in those schools facing the greatest problems of social and educational disadvantage.

Preparatory Schools

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much Government money is used to fund private fee paying preparatory departments of schools; and how much each school receives. [33305]

Mr. Ancram: The total amount of Government grant allocated to these schools in the 1995–96 financial year is £1,488,221.

The allocation to individual schools are as follows:

Voluntary Grammar Schools
Armagh Royal School	17,126
Belfast Royal Academy	129,304
Ballymena Academy	48,382
Strathearn Grammar College	77,497

Regent House	55,049
Portadown College	23,559
Ballyclare High	20,331

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33455]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is not available prior to 1989. However, from April 1989 to March 1995, the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in the Northern Ireland Office and Northern Ireland departments was £14.8 million.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many contracts and for what total sum were let out by his Department and agencies for which it is responsible to (a) Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries, (b) Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries, (c) Ernest and Young and its subsidiaries, (d) Arthur Andersen and its subsidiaries, (e) Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries, (f) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries and (i) Pannell Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries for privatisation, market testing, management advice, accounting, audit, consultancy and other services in 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33906]

Sir John Wheeler: Details are set out in the following table, for the various categories for which information is collected.

Number of contracts per firm (including subsidiaries) per category

1993–94	General management consultancy	Information technology	Privatisation (includes market testing)	Next steps (includes prior option studies)
Coopers and Lybrand	39	2	4	0

Total amount of spend by nine listed Consultancy groups £1,282,700.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much have (a) health authorities and (b) trusts spent on consultancy services in each year since 1992, by region. [34162]

Mr. Moss: The information is not available in the exact form requested. Health and social services boards and trusts produce statements in support of their annual accounts which provide supplementary analysis of the expenditure on the accounts. The table sets out the cost of external contract staff and consultancy services.

	1992–93 £	1993–94 £
Northern Board	196,618	162,575
Southern Board	316,161	362,501
Eastern Board	520,942	252,161
Western Board	190,988	158,781
Trusts in Eastern Board Area	n/a	320,435
Trusts in Southern Board Area	n/a	125,917
Total	1,224,709	1,382,370

The first Trusts were established in Northern Ireland on 1 April 1993. Five are in the Eastern board area and one is in the Southern Board area.

Asbestos Cement Pipes

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals he has to construct an asbestos cement pipe to Belfast from the Silent Valley reservoir, which other countries in the European Union have prohibited the use of asbestos cement pipes for the flow of drinking water; and if he will make a statement on the use of asbestos cement pipes for the flow of drinking water in Northern Ireland. [33902]

Mr. Moss: Plans are now at an advanced stage for replacement of two sections of the Mourne Conduit totalling 3.8 km. The conduit conveys water from the Silent Valley reservoir to Belfast.

Tenders under consideration include a number based on the use of asbestos cement pipes. No decision has been taken on the pipe material.

Asbestos cement pipes have in the past been one of a range of pipe materials used in Northern Ireland in accordance with nationally approved standards. This is consistent with UK practice. The use of a pipe laying material by member states of the European Union is a matter for internal decision by the authorities in those states.

Students

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many students from Northern Ireland attended universities in Great Britain during the most recent academic year. [33626]

Mr. Ancram: In 1993–94, the most recent year for which figures are available, 12,225 students from Northern Ireland attended higher education courses at institutions in Great Britain.

Foreign Undergraduates

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland to what extent each of the two Northern Ireland universities seek to attract foreign undergraduates from each of the 14 member nations of the European Union; and to what extent they give priority attention to promotions in the Republic of Ireland. [33627]

Mr. Ancram: Both Northern Ireland universities provide details of their courses on European-wide computerised databases. Copies of the universities' prospectuses are also available throughout the European Union through the offices of the British Council.

The universities are also active participants in EU student mobility schemes which provide for EU students to undertake part of their course of study in Northern Ireland.

Both universities undertake promotional visits to the Republic of Ireland in response to direct requests for them to be represented at major career conventions.

Clinical Negligence Claims

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what have been the costs of meeting clinical negligence claims in each region in each year since 1990. [34171]

Mr. Moss: The cost of meeting clinical negligence cases in Northern Ireland since 1990–91 is as follows:

	Cost £
1990–91[1]	1,257,714
1991–92	2,055,628
1992–93	2,429,365
1993–94	6,106,839
1994–95	4,518,236

[1] The required information is only available for the last 6 months of 1990–91.

NHS Allowances

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is held by (a) his Department and (b) the NHS executive on expenditure on trust board and health authority members' allowances. [34145]

Mr. Moss: The Department of Health and Social Services determine the rates of travelling and other allowances payable to board members.

The annual accounts of health and social services trusts and health and social services boards are submitted to the management executive. The accounts do not separately identify expenditure on allowances paid to board members. They do, however, identify total board members remuneration and disclose since 1994–95:

total remuneration of non-executive members basic salary of executive members performance related pay of executive members pension contributions of executive members compensation paid for loss of office pensions to former directors.

WALES

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many previously arranged official meetings have been (a) cancelled, (b) postponed or (c) re-arranged since the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) resigned as Secretary of State; and if he will make a statement on the impact of these alterations. [32911]

Mr. Hague [holding answer 6 July 1995]:

(a) Five cancelled

(b) No meetings were postponed

(c) One rearranged

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33421]

Mr. Hague: None.

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many contracts his Department has had with consultants; and what has been the total cost in each of the last five years. [33575]

Mr. Hague: Details of management and other consultants engaged by the Welsh Office are as follows:

	Number of occasions	Total payments (£000)
1990–91	24	229
1991–92	38	1,109
1992–93	74	1,416
1993–94	87	1,454
1994–95	45	805

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from his Department (a) by number of contracts and (b) monetary value in the last five years for which figures are available. [33432]

Mr. Hague: This information is available only for the three years from 1992–93 to 1994–95. Over this period, the five main firms of management and other consultants engaged by the Welsh Office, by both the number and value of contracts are:

Coopers and Lybrand

Howard Humphreys and Partners

KPMG Peat Marwick

Price Waterhouse

Touche Ross

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which his Department has been engaged since 1980. [33451]

Mr. Hague: Since 1980, the Welsh Office has not incurred any expenditure on consultants in connection with privatisation programmes.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many contracts and for what total sum were let out by his Department and agencies for which it is responsible to (a) Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries, (b) Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries, (c) Ernst and Young and its subsidiaries, (d) Arthur Andersen and its subsidiaries, (e) Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries, (f) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries and (i) Pannel Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries for privatisation, market testing, management advice, accounting, audit, consultancy and other services in 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33905]

Mr. Hague: Over this period, the Welsh Office has awarded contracts to five of the firms mentioned for consultancy work. Information on the number of contracts awarded is as follows:

	1993–94	1994–95
Coopers and Lybrand	4	1
Peat Marwick	3	3
Price Waterhouse	3	1
Grant Thornton	—	1
Pannell Kerr Forster	1	–

Details of expenditure with individual firms cannot be disclosed for reasons of commercial confidentiality.

Uncollected Community Charge

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his latest estimate of uncollected community charge; and what percentage of manufacturing output was accounted for by (a) the steel industry, (b) the aerospace industry and (c) the coal industry in each of the last 10 years. [33512]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The amount of uncollected community charge as at 31 March 1995 was £32.5 million. This provisional figure includes £6.6 million written off as bad debts between 1 April 1990 and 31 March 1995 and £25.9 million of cumulative arrears at 31 March 1995. Information on the output of the steel and aerospace industries as a percentage of total manufacturing output is shown in table 1. Information on the coal industry on a comparable basis is not available, but data on the output of coal in tonnes are shown in table 2.

RAF Sealand

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he proposes to visit RAF Sealand, Deeside, Clwyd. [33495]

Mr. Hague: I have no such plans at present.

Saw-billed Ducks

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many licences to shoot saw-billed ducks have been issued by his Department in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [33334]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No licences were issued in 1992 and 1993; eight were issued in 1994.

Business Rates

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) how many appeals have been lodged by caravan and camping park owners in Wales against the revaluation of their premises carried out by district valuation officers in Wales. [33713]

(2) how many representations he has received on the issue of revaluation of caravan and camping parks in Wales following the revaluation of business premises; [33714]

(3) if he will change the criteria adopted by valuation officers in Wales in determining rateable values of caravan and camping parks, so as to take more account of the profitability of businesses in the valuation process. [33715]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Some 95 appeals had been lodged by 7 July 1995. My right hon. Friend and I have received 68 representations.

The criteria by which caravan sites are valued for business rates cover both England and Wales and are a matter for the Valuation Office agency. In the absence of appropriate rental evidence for properties such as caravan parks, the valuation method uses information which takes account of profitability. Discussions are taking place between the agency and representatives of the industry on revisions to the method used. I hope they will come to a mutually acceptable conclusion.

Prescription Pricing

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer on 15 June, Official Report, column 662, if he has set a deadline for the Prescription Pricing Authority, England to satisfy the Welsh Health

Common Services Authority that it has the legal basis to bid to supply prescription pricing services in Wales; and if he will place a copy in the Library of the relevant correspondence between the two authorities concerning confirmation or otherwise of this point. [33968]

Mr. Hague: No. These are matters for the Welsh Health Common Services Authority.

Welsh Development Agency

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to the answer of 15 June, Official Report, column 661, on what date he approached the commission for permission to place the relevant correspondence on regional development fund assistance to the Welsh Development Agency; what response has been received; and when he expects the correspondence will be placed in the Library. [33969]

Mr. Hague: I have placed a copy of the letter in the Library with the approval of the Commission.

Auditor's Remuneration

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, how much have (a) health authorities and (b) trusts spent on auditors' remuneration in each year since 1992, by region. [34163]

Mr. Richards: The information is as follows:

£ thousand

	Health authorities	NHS trusts
1992–93	1,289	70
1993–94	1,448	758

Notes:
1. 1993–94 data is provisional.
2. Auditors' remuneration consists of audit fees and other auditor's remuneration.

Clinical Negligence Claims

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what have been the costs of meeting clinical negligence claims in each region in each year since 1990–91. [34167]

Mr. Richards: The total cost of meeting clinical negligence claims in Wales in each of the financial year since 1990–91 is as follows:

£ million

1990–91	1991–92	1992–93	1993–94
3.044	2.220	3.064	[1]3.548

[1] provisional figures only.

NHS Allowances

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what information is held by (a) his Department and (b) the NHS executive on expenditure on trust board and health authority members' allowances. [34144]

Mr. Richards: The information for the health service in Wales for 1993–94 is as follows:

£ thousand

	Health authorities	NHS Trusts
Fees	808	599
Other emoluments (including pension contributions)	2,427	3,408
Total remuneration	3,235	4,007

Consultancies

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much have (a) health authorities and (b) trusts spent on consultancy services in each year since 1992, by region. [34161]

Mr. Richards: The information is as follows:

£ thousands

	Health authorities	NHS trusts
1992–93	2,427	102
1993–94	3,436	556

Notes:
1. 1993–94 data are provisional.
2. Information for family health services authorities and the Health Promotion Authority for Wales is not held centrally.

GP Fundholders

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what have been the costs of assisting general practitioner fundholders with information technology expenditure in each year since 1991–92. [34169]

Mr. Richards: Total payment in year for Wales for GP fundholders information technology since 1991–92 is as follows:

	Expenditure £000	Number of GP Fundholders
		Full	Preparatory
1991–92	588.2	7	19
1992–93	997.2	26	45
1993–94	1,282.7	71	31
1994–95	1,040.2	101	22

School Pupils (Costs)

Sir Harold Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the unit cost per pupil in each local education authority in Wales in 1993–94 for (a) nursery/primary and (b) secondary pupils. [34327]

Mr. Richards: The Welsh Office's training and education intelligence unit regularly produces an education finance bulletin, which contains unit cost figures and a copy of the bulletin is placed in the Library of the House. Figures for 1993–94 are not yet available: as soon as they become available they will be incorporated in a new issue of the bulletin and I will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Valuation Tribunals

Mr. Sweeney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what arrangements he is making for valuation tribunals in Wales following the reorganisation of local government on 1 April 1996. [34837]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: My right hon. Friend and I have carefully considered the responses to the recent consultation. We have concluded that, from 1 April 1996, there should be four tribunals covering north, west, south and east Wales. They will be served by the existing offices at Colwyn bay, Carmarthen, Cardiff and Newport. Appointments to the tribunals will be made by the new unitary authorities to take effect on 1 April 1996. Regulations will be made in the autumn giving effect to these changes and making some other amendments to the arrangements for the appointment of tribunal members and the administration of tribunals. I am writing to all Welsh Members setting out the changes more fully. I shall place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

TREASURY

Inward Investment

4. Sir David Madel: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on the economy of inward investment. [32550]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Foreign-owned firms in the UK strengthen competition and innovation, boost productive capacity and provide jobs. In the past three years, inward investment to the UK has created or safeguarded a quarter of a million jobs.

European Single Currency

13. Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the proposed single currency for the European Union. [32559]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: It is now clear, following the European Council at Cannes, that there will be no move to a European single currency in 1997. It is too early to judge whether a successful monetary union will be possible in 1999 or beyond.

Tax Reductions

15. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what sum he expects will be available for tax reductions in the next two years. [32562]

Mr. Jack: The public sector borrowing requirement is on a steady downward path. My right hon. and learned Friend has made it clear that he will cut taxes when the public finances can afford it and the economic conditions are right.

Inflation Forecasts

16. Mr. Mike O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what changes have been made in his inflation forecasts in the last year. [32563]

Mr. Waldegrave: I refer to the reply my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer gave to the hon. Member for Colne Valley (Mr. Riddick) earlier today.

Trade Figures

17. Mr. Hutton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the economic impact of the latest balance of trade figures. [32564]

Mr. Waldegrave: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Hillsborough (Mrs. Jackson).

Fiscal Policies

19. Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to change his fiscal policies following the Treasury's half-yearly forecast on economic prospects. [32566]

Mr. Waldegrave: My right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer has no plans to change fiscal policy, which is to bring the public sector borrowing requirement back towards balance over the medium term. The figures in the summer forecast demonstrate that we are on course to achieve this.

Housing Policies

20. Mr. Burden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of housing policies on the construction industry and economic performance. [32567]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The Government are delivering healthy, sustainable economic growth based on low inflation and sound public finances. Industry, including the construction industry, is expected to share fully in the benefits of rising prosperity.

Interest Rate Policy

22. Mr. Hoon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will next meet the Governor of the Bank of England to discuss interest rate policy. [32569]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The next regularly monthly meeting will be held on 27 July.

Biodiesel Duty

24. Mr. Ainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from environmental organisations about the level of duty on biodiesel.

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: None.

Tax Fraud

25. Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures his Department is taking to prevent and detect tax fraud. [32573]

Mr. Jack: The Inland Revenue's strategy is to encourage voluntary compliance and to maintain an active presence across the tax system, underpinned by statutory powers, to detect and deter tax evasion and fraud. The Inland Revenue aims to help taxpayers to comply with their tax obligations by explaining what those obligations are in clear and simple terms.

Local tax offices scrutinise taxpayers' accounts and returns, and investigate those where, for example, profits appear to be understated, to detect and put right evasion.

Specialist offices deal with larger and more complex cases, including those where prosecution may be appropriate. In addition to investigations involving taxpayers known to the Inland Revenue, resources are also allocated to the detection of those individuals who should be paying tax, but make no declarations of their income.

The Department has consistently made efforts to improve the quality of its compliance work. There has been an emphasis in recent years on larger or more high-risk cases, while the Department has maintained a presence in all areas of the tax system, and it has established an investigation quality monitoring system, which has ensured that its work in the area is extremely cost-effective—the reported yield being enhanced by the future compliance of taxpayers successfully investigated and by the deterrent effect on those who might otherwise try to evade tax.

Further details of the Inland Revenue's compliance work may be found in the chapter entitled "Compliance" in the Board of Inland Revenue's 136th annual report, which was laid before Parliament in October 1994. It gives a broad outline of the Department's compliance activities, including the detection of possible fraud. The report also contains tables that show the yield from compliance work.

Investment

26. Mr. Clapham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to encourage greater investment in British industry. [32574]

27. Mr. Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he proposes to increase the level of investment in the United Kingdom economy. [32575]

Mr. Waldegrave: I refer the hon. Members to the reply I gave earlier to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Attercliffe (Mr. Betts).

Single European Currency

Sir Wyn Roberts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will commission and publish studies of the advantages and disadvantages to the United Kingdom of a single European currency. [32565]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The panel of independent forecasters, or six wise men, published a study of the issues raised by European monetary union as part of its May 1995 report.

Negative Equity

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he expects negative equity to increase in the next financial year. [32568]

Mrs. Angela Knight: I expect there to be a modest recovery in house prices, starting in the second half of 1996. Rising house prices normally reduce negative equity.

Low Pay and Unemployment

Mr. Loyden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his assessment of the economic impact of low pay and unemployment. [32571]

Mr. Waldegrave: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave earlier to the hon. Member for Coventry, North-East (Mr. Ainsworth).

Duty on Beer

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what research has been undertaken on the revenue effect of lowering the excise duty on beer; and if he will place a copy in the Library; [33128]

(2) what research has been undertaken on the effect on the beer trade of lowering the excise duty on beer; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [33129]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Research is continuously in progress to monitor the state of excise industries. The work by the Institute for Fiscal Studies on simulating indirect tax changes continues to be the basis for the Government's view of revenue and demand/effects of indirect tax changes. A copy of the relevant IFS working paper W90/11, "The Simulation of Indirect Tax Reforms: The IFS Simulation Program for Indirect Taxation (SPIT)", has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Bank Audits

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who audited (a) the Bank of England (b) Barings in the latest applicable year. [33918]

Mrs. Angela Knight: The answer to both questions is Coopers and Lybrand.

Securities and Investments Board

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the annual report of the Securities and Investments Board to be published. [34721]

Mrs. Angela Knight: A copy of the board's report, made in accordance with section 117 of the Financial Services Act 1986, was laid before Parliament today. The report covered the period from 1 April 1994 to 31 March 1995. Copies are now available in the Library.

Entitlements

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the entitlements for 1995–96 resulting from the carry forward of underspends allowed under the end-year flexibility schemes for capital, running costs, health, Ministry of Defence operating costs and Jubilee line extension expenditure. [34722]

Mr. Waldegrave: A list of entitlements, totalling £331 million for capital expenditure, £500 million for running costs; £371 million for health expenditure, £83 million for Ministry of Defence operating costs expenditure and £49 million for expenditure on the Jubilee line extension is shown in the table.

Subject to parliamentary approval of the necessary supplementary estimates, individual cash limits and running costs limits will be increased when entitlement is taken up.

The total increase in cash limits resulting from the take-up of end-year flexibility will be charged to the reserve and will not therefore add to the planned total of public expenditure.

ECOFIN Meeting

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the recent Council meeting of the Economic and Finance Ministers of the European Union. [34723]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I represented the UK at the Economic and Finance Council—ECOFIN—of the European Union in Brussels on 10 July.

There was a public debate on the incoming Spanish presidency's work programme for ECOFIN. The Spanish programme concentrates on fighting unemployment and on preparation for economic and monetary union. I emphasised the need for the European economies to create the conditions for rising employment, for a through and wide-ranging discussion on preparation for European monetary union, for the Council to take full account of EC budgetary restraints and to recognise that value for money and fighting fraud and waste should be a top priority.

The Council agreed a number of procedural plans to ensure that the work commissioned by the Essen and Cannes European Councils on employment, EMU and the fight against fraud would be completed in time for ministerial discussion at the 27 November ECOFIN.

The Council adopted the 1995–96 broad economic guidelines which had been endorsed by the Cannes European Council.

The Council agreed, voting by a modified form of qualified majority voting, confidential recommendations to each of the member states with an excessive deficit, with a view to those member states bringing their excessive deficits to an end within a given period.

The Council reached political agreement on a regulation to introduce harmonised consumer price indices. Formal adoption will take place at a future Council once the European Parliament's opinion has been received.

The Council discussed a draft directive on cross border credit transfers. No conclusions were drawn and the dossier was remitted to the Committee of Permanent Representatives for further consideration.

The Council discussed a proposal for a reduced rate of VAT on cut flowers. There was no agreement in the Council and the presidency will undertake bilateral contacts to seek a solution.

The Council heard a progress report from the Vice-President of the European Commission, Sir Leon Brittan, on the World Trade Organisation and financial services negotiations.

Governor of the Bank of England (Meeting)

Mr. Gapes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he next plans to meet the Governor of the Bank of England to discuss prospects for the United Kingdom economy. [32560]

Mr. Waldegrave: My right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor will next meet the Governor for his regular monthly monetary discussion on 27 July.

Valuation Office Agency (Leeds)

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his future plans for the Valuation Office (Inland Revenue) accounts unit, currently located in Leeds. [33546]

Mrs. Angela Knight [holding answer 11 July 1995]: The work which the Valuation Office agency's Leeds accounts unit currently undertakes is under review as part of proposals to introduce a new accounting system into the agency next year. There is no intention to close the unit, but the range of its activities is likely to be reduced. This will not affect standards of service to the public, with whom the unit has no direct dealings. Any surplus staff will be redeployed locally on to other agency work.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

National Lottery

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will list every project which has received over £1 million from the proceeds of the national lottery; and if she will make a statement. [33677]

Mr. Sproat: Twenty five projects have benefited from lottery awards of over £1 million and are as follows:

Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what plans she has to discuss the mathematical and prize coefficients with the organisers of the national lottery. [34045]

Mr. Sproat: I have no such plans.

Television (Sporting Rights)

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how the Government propose that the BBC and ITV can meet the increasing costs of sporting rights without damaging programme-making. [34331]

Mr. Sproat: It is for the BBC and ITV companies to decide how to balance expenditure on programme making against the acquisition of programmes or sports rights from the revenues available to them.

BBC (Debt)

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for the National Heritage if it is the policy of Her Majesty's Government that the BBC should reduce its debt; and if she will make a statement. [34330]

Mr. Sproat: In the light of a report by independent consultants, Touche Ross, the Government announced on 4 November 1993, Official Report, columns 309-10, that changes in the television fee would continue to be set at the level of RPI changes for the next three years. It was considered that this would enable the BBC to channel efficiency savings into programmes and allow it steadily to reduce and largely to eliminate its annual borrowing by the end of 1996–97. This policy was reiterated in the July 1994 White Paper on the future of the BBC.

Churches (Subsidence Damage)

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will list the churches by name and location that are suffering damage from mining subsidence; what discussions she has had with the Church authorities; and if she will make a statement. [32998]

Mr. Sproat: My Department does not keep a list of such cases and has had no recent discussions on the subject. Where a building is affected by mining subsidence, the owner can claim compensation from the mine operator. In the case of an Anglican church, such a claim would normally be lodged by the incumbent and the parochial church council. I understand that the Council for the Care of Churches and individual parochial church councils discuss problems with mining operators as and when the need arises.

BBC (Transmission Services)

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage when she will announce the Government's decision on ownership of BBC transmission services. [34067]

Mr. Sproat: In due course.

Internet

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what plans she has to make departmental publications available on the Internet; and if she will give the Internet address of such documents as are available. [34070]

Mr. Sproat: The Department of National Heritage is considering the use of the Internet to distribute material. There are no plans at present to make any Departmental publications available on the Internet. Department of National Heritage press notices are available from the COI on http://www.coi.gov.uk/coi/depts/GHE/GHE.html.

FM Licences

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will lift the ban upon radio stations holding more than one FM licence in major urban areas. [33822]

Mr. Sproat: No. This measure provides an important safeguard for plurality in major urban areas.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Fish-eating Birds (Research Contracts)

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what contracts for research into the problem of predation by fish-eating birds have now been let. [32546]

Mrs. Browning: The Ministry and the Department of the Environment are in discussion with the following contractor consortia about the projects listed against their names:

Contractor	Project
Directorate of Fisheries Research, ADAS, Glasgow University, British Trust for Ornithology and the Central Science Laboratory	Assessment of the problem of fish-eating birds in inland fisheries in England and Wales
John Moores Liverpool University and Hull International Fisheries Institute	Case studies of the effect of fish-eating birds on inland fisheries in England and Wales
Central Science Laboratory, Directorate of Fisheries Research, ADAS, British Trust for Ornithology and Glasgow University	Assessment of the effectiveness of different management measures on controlling damage by fish-eating birds to inland fisheries in England and Wales
British Trust for Ornithology, Directorate of Fisheries Research, ADAS, Central Science Laboratory and Glasgow University	Population distribution and movement of fish-eating birds in Great Britain
Wildlife and Wetlands Trust, Institute of Terrestrial Ecology and Institute of Freshwater Ecology	Feeding behaviour of fish-eating birds in Great Britain

No contracts have yet been let pending the outcome of these discussions.

Animal Welfare

Sir Terrence Higgins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 104, what consideration led him to conclude that EC directive 91/628 does not apply to roll-on/roll-off ferries. [26149]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 25 May 1995]: Directive 91/628 contains various provisions which unambiguously apply to roll-on/roll-off ferries, and we have applied them.

However, with regard to the requirement for isolation pens to be provided when animals are transported by sea, the intentions of the directive in relation to roll-on/roll-off ferries are not clear. The Department concluded that isolation pens need not be provided on such ferries in the light of practical considerations and of the fact that the availability of such pens would only very rarely indeed be of benefit in animal welfare terms.

I am now reviewing the practicalities of the position to see whether there is anything more we could or should do, with the other member states involved, to improve welfare provisions on the rare occasions when animals may be found to be sick or injured during roll-on/roll-off transport.

Industrial Fishing (Denmark)

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what action his Department is taking to reduce industrial fishing by Denmark in the North sea. [32547]

Mr. Baldry: The latest available statistics show that catches by Danish vessels of sandeels and Norway pout—which are the main species of the North sea industrial fishery—were some 35 per cent. down on the previous year. None the less, the impact of industrial fishing needs to be better understood. We have been pressing for more scientific work to be done and the UK supported the recommendation of the recent North Sea Conference that there should be more research into the effects of industrial fishing. Such research will assist the European Commission to bring forward appropriate proposals for the better management of this fishery.

Bees

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what figures are available to this Department indicating what proportion of the species of single bees recorded in the United Kingdom in the 19th century are still extant in Britain; and what proposals he has to study the pollination consequences of species demise on vegetation and crops. [33296]

Mr. Boswell: I have no information about the number of species of feral bees, to which I understand the question refers, in the 19th century or now. The Government's responsibility under the Bees Act 1980 and the Bees Diseases Control Order 1982 is to ensure that beekeepers do not introduce or spread bee diseases. Although feral bees have a role to play, a healthy population of managed bees will ensure the pollination needs of insect pollinated agricultural and horticultural crops as well as for wild flowers and plants.

Waste Spreading Schemes

Mr. Pike: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food on what grounds his Ministry has designated waste spreading schemes on agricultural land, including ecologically sensitive areas, as permitted agricultural development. [33612]

Mr. Boswell: The designation of waste spreading schemes, whether as permitted agricultural development or not, is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment. Questions on that matter should therefore be addressed to him.

North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organisation

Sir Cranley Onslow: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made as to whether United Kingdom interests are adequately represented on the North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organisation. [33333]

Mr. Baldry: The European Commission represents the European Union at meetings of the North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organisation (NASCO). The United Kingdom is fully represented on the European Union delegation, and I am satisfied that our interests are adequately represented at NASCO meetings.

Common Agricultural Policy (Fraud)

Ms Quin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when the European Union Agriculture Council last discussed the question of common agricultural policy related fraud. [33610]

Mr. Baldry: Fraud against the EU budget, which includes the CAP, is more appropriate to the European Council of Finance Ministers, which discusses Community anti-fraud initiatives regularly, the last occasion being 19 June. In the Agriculture Council, reducing the scope for fraud forms an important part of the Council's consideration of all new proposals or any amendments to existing CAP legislation.

Sheep Dip

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what correspondence he has on the subject of the Veterinary Products Committee's response to the Health and Safety executive's research report (NO 74/1995) on the neurological effects of sheep dip; and if he will make a statement. [33772]

Mrs. Browning: My right hon. and learned Friend's predecessor received a letter from the chairman of the Veterinary Products Committee, submitting its advice following consideration of the report from the Institute of Occupational Health, commissioned by the Health and Safety executive. A copy of that letter, together with the committee's advice, is in the Library of the House. We have received no other correspondence on the VPC's response.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to aid the introduction of alternatives to organophosphate sheep dips. [33774]

Mrs. Browning: The development of alternatives to organophosphorus sheep dips is a commercial matter for the veterinary pharmaceutical industry. The Government have previously made it clear that the Veterinary Medicines Directorate will do all it can to complete assessments of such products expeditiously and that when they contain new active ingredients, it will also strive to speed the necessary approval of maximum residue limits through the EC Committee on Veterinary Medicinal Products. That remains the case. A number of alternatives non-organophosphorus products are now available.

Veterinary Products Committee (Minutes)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the meetings and topics discussed at each of the Veterinary Products Committee meetings for the last six months; and if he will place a copy of the agendas and minutes in the Library. [33771]

Mrs. Browning: The Veterinary Products Committee has met on the following dates during the last six months: 19 January 1995, 16 February 1995, 16 March 1995, 20 April 1995, 18 May 1995 and 15 June 1995.

In accordance with the committee's normal practice, a news release was issued after the meeting, reporting on the topics discussed. Copies are available in the Library of the House. The agenda and minutes of the committee's meetings contain commercially confidential material and cannot be made available.

Intervention Board

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he has completed the three-year review of the Intervention Board executive agency, and if he will make a statement. [34471]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: My right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland and for Wales and my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland and I have considered and approved a full evaluation of the Intervention Board executive agency, which has been operating as an executive agency since April 1990 in accordance with the Government's commitment to evaluate next steps agencies. The evaluation concluded that the agency successfully met its objectives in its first three years of operation and should continue for a further five years, at which time another evaluation will take place. I have today placed in the Library copies of the agency's evaluation and framework documents.

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how the Intervention Board performed against its targets for 1994–5; and what key performance targets Agriculture Ministers have set the agency for 1995–96. [34472]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The Intervention Board's performance against its key targets in 1994–95 was as follows:

1994–95

	Target (per cent.)	Performance (per cent.)
Percentage of claims processed within deadlines	98.5	99.9
Percentage of claims processed correctly	98.5	98.7
Cumulative running cost of efficiency gains	2.5	3.6
Improvement in index of productivity	6.0	–0.5
Ratio of disallowance to EAGGF funds handled	0.40	0.96
To maintain expenditure within vote provision cash and running cost limits	—	Met
New value for money saving in procurement of goods and services	5.0	6.7

In agreement with my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland and for Wales and my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland. I have set the following targets for 1995–96:

	Target (per cent.)
Percentage of claims processed with deadlines	98.5
Percentage of claims processed correctly	98.5
Cumulative running cost efficiency gains	2.5
Improvement in index of productivity	6.0
Ration of disallowance to EAGGF funds handled	0.40
To maintain expenditure within vote provision, cash and running cost limits
New value for money savings procurement of goods and services	6.0

Yield: cost ratio of anti-fraud activities 3.0:1.0

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the total figure of all live exports for immediate slaughter for each year from 1992 to date. [33977]

Mrs. Browning: The available information is given in the table, which excludes 1993 for which no figures were available.

Animals inspected and certified as fit for transportation prior to export from Great Britain to other member states for immediate slaughter

	1992	1994	1995 (to May)
Cattle	115	233	nil
Sheep	326,777	76,039	4,126
Pigs	691	8,762	nil
Goats	150	1	nil

London Commodity Exchange (Cocoa)

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans his Department has to review the decision to sell the United Kingdom's share of the buffer stock of cocoa beans in the light of the New York Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange's takeover bid for the London Commodity Exchange. [34312]

Mr. Baldry: None. The question of any possible future changes in the London Commodity Exchange has no bearing on the decision to liquidate the cocoa buffer stock.

DEFENCE

EDS (Departmental Contracts)

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the contracts that his Department has with the computer company EDS. [33173]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The Ministry of Defence has a number of current contracts with EDS Defence Ltd. but details of the individual contracts are a matter of commercial confidentiality between the Department and the company.

Astra Holdings (Ministerial Connections)

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if any individual occupying a ministerial position at the Ministry of Defence at any time since 1979 has had any connections or material influence on the running of Astra Holdings plc. [33919]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I know of no evidence that any hon. Member appointed to a ministerial position at the Ministry of Defence since 1979 has failed to comply with the requirements of Questions of Procedure for Ministers. I cannot answer for the activities of hon. Members before they became Ministers.

Nuclear Weapons Testing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what alternatives exist to nuclear testing; and if he proposes to hold any tests of United Kingdom nuclear weapons. [34187]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I have nothing to add to the replies given to the hon. Member for Worcester (Mr. Luff) on 4 July, Official Report, column 135 and to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark) on 10 July, Official Report, column 469.

Ministry Property Sales

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 10 July, Official Report, column 469, on how many occasions his Department has monitored what has since happened to old Ministry of Defence properties; and if he will provide details. [34291]

Mr. Soames: All houses sold at a discount through the sales to service men scheme or under alternative right-to-buy arrangements include a provision for some of the discount to be repaid in the event that they are resold within a specified period. In addition, some form of clawback arrangement may be included if houses are sold in bulk or as part of a larger sale. Although no central record is kept of such sales, my noble Friend, the then Under-Secretary of State for Defence, wrote to the hon. Member for Leeds, Central (Mr. Fatchett) on 8 June listing those completed in the previous 12 months which included a clawback arrangement. A copy of his letter was placed in the Library of the House.

Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33429]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Staff are required to report to line management any private investment in companies with which they have official dealings. No central records are maintained, but cases of doubt are referred to a central point for decision. The position on cases referred for decision in the last five years remains unchanged from the information provided in response to the hon. Member at the meeting of the Public Accounts Committee on 3 April 1995.

RAF Kinloss

Mr. MacDonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the presence of military personnel at Kinloss during the week of 19 to 23 June was connected with the disposal of the Brent Spar oil installation. [33775]

Mr. Soames: RAF Kinloss is a major military air station which, at any one time, has a substantial military presence, with personnel engaged on various activities. Responsibility for upholding the law during the Shell operation to dispose of the Brent Spar oil platform rested with the Grampian police. Military personnel would have become involved only if the police had requested this and, in the event, no such request was forthcoming. Contingency arrangements were, however, put in place in anticipation of a possible police request for service logistical assistance and a Royal Marine detachment and supporting elements were deployed to Kinloss against this contingency.

Land Mines

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the recent report by the United Nations Secretary General which calls for a total ban on the export of anti-personnel land mines. [34211]

Mr. Arbuthnot: We support international efforts to strengthen controls on the use, production, stockpiling and transfer of anti-personnel land mines, but believe that total ban at this stage would neither secure broad international agreement nor be properly implemented.

Bosnia (Troops Insurance Cover)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what insurance cover is available for British troops serving in Bosnia; and what assessment he has made of the adequacy of cover available for British troops. [34240]

Mr. Soames: British service personnel serving in Bosnia have available to them the PAXplus personal accident insurance scheme which provides cover 365 days a year 24 hours a day whether on or off duty. This scheme, started in 1989, and arranged through a commercial broker and insurance company, provides a range of benefits covering both death and disability as a result of an accident with the level of cover dependent on the number of units purchased by the service man or woman.

The PAXplus scheme was set up specifically for service personnel and provides cover for military service of any kind up to and including general war. The conditions of the policy are therefore considered satisfactory while the amount of financial cover available is a matter for individuals to assess and the number of units that an individual chooses to purchase. Service personnel are of course free to take out appropriate insurance.

Each of the three services run small voluntary life schemes which make immediate payments in the event of a death. Also there are service personnel who will be members of schemes set up prior to PAXplus which will provide accident and death benefits.

EF2000 Programme

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the German Parliament's approval of funding for EF2000. [34212]

Mr. Arbuthnot: Bundestage approval of additional funds for the reorientated development phase of the Eurofighter 2000 programme was given on 28 June. This has cleared the way for the four partner nations to sign memorandum of understanding 4 which puts into formal effect the "reorientation" of the project as agreed by Defence Ministers in December 1992.

Army Attack Helicopters

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to announce the order for the Army attack helicopters; and if he will make a statement. [34213]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made earlier today by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will specify the criteria used by his Department to decide the procurement of Army attack helicopters. [34239]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The attack helicopter contenders have been carefully assessed against the criteria of operational effectiveness, through-life costs, risk and industrial implications.

Royal Yacht Britannia

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his policy concerning the future of the royal yacht Britannia. [34210]

Mr. Soames: As announced on 23 June 1994, Official Report, column 248, HMY Britannia is to be decommissioned in 1997. We are currently examining various options for her future use after she has been withdrawn from service. We hope to find a way of enabling her to continue to serve a useful purpose for the nation, even though she will no longer go to sea. Her Majesty the Queen's views will be sought before any decision is taken on this matter.

Procurement Policy

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what response he has made to representations by his French counterpart regarding a European preference, in buying weapons, from members of a European armament agency; and if he will make a statement. [34241]

Mr. Arbuthnot: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence has received no formal representations from his French counterpart on this matter. The United Kingdom maintains a policy of seeking value for money in procurement and of open competition whenever possible.

Indonesia

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what were the provisions of the memorandum of understanding signed in November 1991 by the British and Indonesian Governments and referred to in his answer to the hon. Member for Carrick, Cumnock and Doon Valley (Mr. Foulkes) of 27 October 1992, Official Report, columns 614–15. [34316]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I have nothing to add to the answer I gave on 3 July, Official Report, column 90.

DEFENCE

Computer Suppliers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to his Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating the total value of the contracts received. [34550]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

European Procurement Collaboration

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his policy concerning European procurement collaborations. [34543]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The UK actively pursues defence equipment collaboration with our European allies when collaboration offers value for money and satisfies our military requirements.

Advisers

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his special adviser has previous connections with defence companies. [34542]

Mr. Portillo: My special adviser, Alison Broom, has been a public affairs consultant during two phases of her career. Between 1 September 1993 and 20 July 1994 one of her clients was Rolls-Royce plc.

Dr. Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if Mr. David Hart will remain as his independent adviser; and if he will make a statement. [34541]

Mr. Portillo: Yes.

BMARC

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list all the applications for export licences for military equipment made by BMARC since 1985 which were examined by his Department in conjunction with the export control office. [30524]

Mr. Nelson: I have been asked to reply.

As a matter of course, my Department circulates all export licence applications dealt with under the military list to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and to the Ministry of Defence.

BMARC made the following export licence applications from 1985 to 1990. All were dealt with under the military list.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Legal Aid

Mr. Byers: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will state for each year the gross Crown court legal aid expenditure by each regional legal aid board for the last five years. [32901]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The information cannot be provided in the form requested because Crown court legal aid expenditure is administered by the Court Service, not by the legal aid board. The table shows gross Crown court legal aid expenditure by administrative circuit for each of the last five years.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to his Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating the total value of the contracts received. [34558]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The chief executives of the Land Registry and the Public Record Office will respond on behalf of their agencies, which are separate Departments.

For my Department, including the Court Service and Public Trust Office agencies, the information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided for all five years only at disproportionate cost.

On the best information available, a list of the top 10 suppliers, and the value of computer equipment provided, is attached for the last financial year.

Letter from John Manthorpe to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 14 July 1995:

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION—SUPPLIERS OF COMPUTER EQUIPMENT

I have been asked by the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department to reply to your recent question about the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment, and the total value of the contracts received, in each of the last five years.

The Annex enclosed lists the top 10 suppliers and the total cost of computer equipment supplied during the five year period. Data for 1990/1 and 1991/92 is not held in a form which would enable full information to be provided for those years without disproportionate cost. However the largest supplier during those years has been shown, together with the annual cost of equipment. This relates to mainframe purchases to support the land registration application processing system, a major government computing installation.

I do hope that this answers the points raised with the Parliamentary Secretary, but please contact me if I can be of further assistance.

Letter from Dr. Elizabeth Hallam Smith to Mr. Alan Milburn, dated 14 July 1995:

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION: SUPPLIERS OF COMPUTER EQUIPMENT In the absence of the Chief Executive, who is on leave, I have been asked by the Lord Chancellor's Parliamentary Secretary to reply to your question about the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to the Public Record Office and the total value of the contracts.

The top 10 suppliers of computer equipment in the last five years were:

1. Logica UK
2. Bull Information Systems Ltd.
3. Dell Computer Corporation Ltd.
4. Optichrome Computer Systems Ltd.
5. Computer World
6. Equanet Ltd.
7. Technology plc

PRIME MINISTER

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what precedents he relied on for the creation of a Deputy Prime Minister; which of the previous Deputy Prime Ministers were Minsters without departmental portfolio; how many of these chaired Cabinet committees; and what committees were involved. [34204]

The Prime Minister: The following are precedents for a Minister acting as Deputy Prime Minister:

Name	Period in office
The right hon. Clement Attlee (also Secretary for the Dominions 1942–43; Lord President of the Council 1943–45)	19 February 1942 to 23 May 1945
The right hon. R. A. Butler (also First Secretary of State and Minister in charge of The Central African Office)	13 July 1962 to 18 October 1963

Name	Period in office
The right hon. (Viscount) William Whitelaw (also Home Secretary 1979–83; Lord President of the Council and Leader of the House of Lords 1983–88)	4 May 1979 to 10 January 1988
The right hon. Sir Geoffrey Howe (also Lord President of The Council and Leader of the House of Commons)	24 July 1989 to 1 November 1990

As I have previously stated, it is not the practice to release the details of Cabinet committees of previous Administrations.

Conservative Party Leadership Campaign

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what was the cost to public funds of entertainment or travel expenses incurred in his campaign for the leadership of the Conservative party. [34203]

The Prime Minister: Any additional costs to the public purse were de minimis and in accordance with long-standing practice; no charge will be levied.

World Wide Web

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the work his Department has carried out in the last 12 months in making information about his Department available to the public via the Government world wide web server known as "www.open.gov.uk" and his plans and policies to make additional and new information available electronically on the server in the next 12 months. [34683]

The Prime Minister: I refer to the hon. Member to the reply given today by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Ministerial Salaries

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Prime Minister what annual salary the Prime Minister is currently (a) entitled to and (b) drawing. [34003]

The Prime Minister: I refer to the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, North (Mr. McNamara) on 9 June 1995, Official Report, column 345.

"List of Ministerial Responsibilities"

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister which Government Minister will be responsible for publishing a revised edition of "List of Ministerial Responsibilities" taking into account the recent changes in responsibilities announced in his recent Government reshuffle. [34575]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to her by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster today.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Sports Policy

Dr. Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will make a statement on Government sports policy. [34286]

Mr. Sproat: The Government have today published a sports policy statement, "Sport: Raising the Game", which sets out our ideas for a new deal for sports at all levels. All right hon. and hon. Members have been sent a copy and copies are also available in the Vote Office.

Sport is important because it is part of our heritage. It teaches us lessons for life such as team spirit and sportsmanship and playing within rules. It is also vital as a means of introducing young people to a healthy way of life.

It is, therefore, the Government's objective to expand the opportunities to take part in sport, particularly for the young, and to provide the means for people of all abilities and ages to fulfil their sporting potential. The Government believe the time is right for this initiative because, from 1 January 1996, the new United Kingdom and English sports councils will replace the Great Britain Sports Council to work alongside those which already exist in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland and to help to deliver our objectives. British sport will also be one of the biggest winners in the national lottery: 440 sports projects across the UK have already been awarded £74,262,000 of lottery money.

I should confirm that my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland will be launching today his document entitled "Scotland's Sporting Future: A New Start" setting out proposals geared to raising the profile of sport in schools and beyond in the light of Scotland's needs and circumstances. Copies of his document are being sent to all Scottish Members.

Schools

"Raising the Game" sets out a four-point plan, which starts in schools. It is in school that lessons can be learnt about sport's potential for enjoyment, health and the development of social skills.

The new national curriculum ensures that physical education continues to be one of only five subjects which pupils of all abilities must study throughout their school life. It also gives an enhanced position to competitive sport, including team games. However, the Government believe that school sport should go well beyond what is required by the national curriculum. The recent curriculum review has freed more time for schools to use at their discretion, and the Government now wish to see two hours of formal lesson time devoted to PE and sport in all schools.

Schools must also provide opportunities for sport outside formal curriculum time, be it in lunchtimes, in the afternoons and evenings or at weekends and in the holidays. It should form a continuum with the formal PE curriculum, and there should be a clear expectation that all pupils who want to are able to play games outside school hours.

The Government also believe it is important for parents to know what is available from individual schools and how they measure up to the best. We will require schools to include details in their annual prospectuses of their sporting aims and provision for sport, and to record in their governors' annual report these aims and their sporting achievements during the year. Schools and others with an interest will be consulted on what information will be most useful to parents and the community.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Employment has asked the Office for Standards in Education to carry out more detailed inspections of the quality and range of games both in and out of the curriculum. Her Majesty's chief inspector of schools has also been asked to report annually in future, specifically on the state of PE and sport in schools.

In order to recognise those schools which have good sporting provision, the Government will be establishing a sportsmark scheme for schools which have effective policies for promoting sport. For the most innovative schools, there will be an additional award, a gold star for outstanding achievement. A consultation paper on the criteria for sportsmark is being issued today to schools and sporting organisations.

In order for schools to improve their delivery of sport, it is vital that there are sufficient numbers of qualified and competent teachers. The recent overhaul of the teacher training system will ensure that new PE specialists have the skills to deliver the strengthened system set out in the policy statement. But the Government intend to go beyond this by introducing a comprehensive programme of action on coaching. Through this, all training and serving teachers, whatever their academic discipline, and competent volunteers, will have the opportunity to acquire coaching qualifications.

Clubs

Schools provide the basis for a lifetime of sporting enjoyment but they cannot operate alone. The Government wish to see schools and clubs forming links to share facilities and resources for their mutual benefit. In order to promote such links, the Sports Council will establish a challenge fund of £2 million. All schools and clubs will be able to apply to the fund which will be available for projects such as specialist coaching for pupils and coach training for teachers.

The council will also require governing bodies of sports played in schools to include provision for effective school-club links in their business plans. The Sports Council's regional offices will also have an important part to play by using their local knowledge to assist clubs and schools in establishing links.

The national lottery provides schools and clubs with an unprecedented opportunity to forge links by making funds available for improving existing facilities, building new facilities and purchasing equipment. The Government have set themselves the target that by the year 2000 all young people will have access to quality facilities, including playing fields. The national lottery provides a means of achieving that goal.

Action must also be taken to stop the loss of playing fields, which has occurred over many years. We will therefore shortly consult on a proposal that the Sports Council should be given the status of a statutory consultee on planning proposals affecting all playing fields.

The private sector also has an important part to play in the provision of sport in the clubs and schools. The Government wish to encourage business sponsorship of sport in schools and have asked the Sports Council to make this a priority. The private sector can help sport in a number of ways such as sponsoring a school team, adopting a sporting facility or sponsoring coaches to work in the schools.

Further and higher education

Many colleges and universities already have good-quality sporting facilities and offer students the chance to take part in sport both within the institution and in inter-college or university competitions. However, a more detailed picture of provision for sport and sports facilities in further and higher education institutions is needed if we are to know what more might be done. The Further Education Funding Council has therefore agreed to draw up a comprehensive analysis of sporting provision and facilities in the further education sector and report to us with recommendations for action. The FEFC will update its information annually and will require institutions to publish details of their sporting provision.

The Committee of Vice Chancellors and Principals and the Standing Conference of Principals have agreed to provide similar information for the higher education sector. They have also agreed to recommend to their members that potential students have available, through the prospectus or a similar document, information on the sports provision they offer.

To allow as many sportsmen and women to train and compete at the highest level while studying for higher education qualifications, a number of universities have established systems of sports scholarships. These universities provide a number of services to their sports scholars such as flexible study times and bursaries to provide for training and travel costs. To encourage the wider spread of best practice in university sports scholarships, and to encourage further private sector sponsorship, the Government are setting up a working group to look at the whole question of sport scholarships at university, and related matters of sport for students. I am pleased to announce that Sir Roger Bannister has agreed to serve as its chairman. The CVCP and SCOP have agreed to be represented on the working party. An announcement on membership will be made shortly.

Finally, the statement takes forward the process of building a real British commitment to the development of elite sport, and sets out proposals for a network of institutions to provide the facilities and services to enable those with talent to compete at national and international level.

The Government therefore want to see established a British academy of sport for top athletes. The Government envisage that a British academy of sport would offer residential accommodation, scholarships and bursaries, the highest level of training, coaching, sports facilities, sport science and sports medicine. To take this proposal forward, the Government have asked the Sports Council, and its successor bodies, to work up proposals for the academy and then, following consultation, to invite bids.

The sports councils across the UK will invite bids for national lottery funding including, if appropriate, for revenue or endowment funding.

The Government also envisage the setting up of regional centres of excellence. These would also be eligible for lottery funding.

Academies of individual sports, to be set up and run by the governing bodies of those sports, would also be eligible for funding from the lottery.

Together, the Government's radical proposals for putting sport back at the heart of school life, for encouraging a far closer link between schools and sports clubs, for setting up a national academy of sport, with the highest possible standards, and for putting more money into sport than we have ever done before combine to make this the most important day for sport in a generation.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many contracts and for what total sum were let out by her Department and agencies for which it is responsible to (a) Coopers and Lybrand and its subsidiaries, (b) Peat Marwick and its subsidiaries, (c) Ernst and Young and its subsidiaries, (d) Arthur Andersen and its subsidiaries, (e) Price Waterhouse and its subsidiaries, (f) Grant Thornton and its subsidiaries, (g) Stoy Hayward and its subsidiaries, (h) Robson Rhodes and its subsidiaries and (i) Pannell Kerr Forster and its subsidiaries for privatisation, market testing, management advice, accounting, audit, consultancy and other services in 1993–94 and 1994–95. [33913]

Mr. Sproat: Neither my Department nor its agencies have let contracts with Coopers and Lybrand, Arthur Anderson, Grant Thornton, Robson Rhodes or Pannell Kerr Forster in the years 1993–94 and 1994–95. However, contracts with the following companies were let by my Department and its agencies during that period:

Company	Number of Contracts	Total cost £
1993–94
KPMG Peat Marwick	2	104,200
Ernst and Young	1	4,500
Stoy Hayward	1	9,500
1994–95
KPMG Peat Marwick	3	98,012
Price Waterhouse	1	19,000

Consultants

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will estimate the cost of employing consultants in connection with privatisation programmes in which her Department has been engaged since 1980. [33467]

Mr. Sproat: My Department commissioned a consultant to examine future options, one of which was privatisation, for the future of the BBC transmission service. The cost of this consultancy was £172,000.

Neither of my two agencies has commissioned any consultancy of this nature.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if she will indicate which five consultancy firms have received most contracts from her Department (a) by number of contracts and (b) monetary value in the last five years of which figures are available. [33448]

Mr. Sproat: My Department was established in April 1992 and took on responsibility for funding its own consultancies in August 1992. All contracts are awarded on the basis of value for money. To date the five consultancy firms which have received the most contracts from my Department, by number of contracts and monetary value, are as follows:

Number of contracts

Consultancy firm	Number of contracts
KPMG Peat Marwick	6
Watts and Partners	5
Search Training International	4
Hill Samuel Bank Limited	3
Moon Communications	3

(b) Monetary value

Consultancy firm	Value of contracts awarded (exclusive VAT) £
KPMG Peat Marwick	332,000
Hill Samuel Bank Limited	327,000
Touche Ross	192,000
Watts and Partners	154,000
Simmons Surveys	150,000

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many contracts her Department has had with consultants; and what has been the total cost in each of the last five years. [33566]

Mr. Sproat: My Department was established in April 1992 and took on responsibility for funding its own consultancies in August 1992. Since that time my Department and its two agencies have awarded 166 contracts to consultancy firms. The total cost in each of the years for which figures are available is as follows:

Year	Expenditure £
1992–93	2,078,513
1993–94	2,466,753
1994–95	1,622,022

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage which firms of consultants employed by her Department over the last year have been paid more than £1,000 per day. [33876]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 12 July 1995]: During the last year my Department has awarded contracts to several consultancy firms. Only in two instances have we paid more than £1,000 per day for the services of an individual consultant. These particular contracts were with KPMG and Hill Samuel Bank Ltd.

Mr. Alan Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage which firms have won computer consultancy contracts from her Department and its agencies over the last five years; and what is the number of contracts per firm. [33888]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 12 July 1995]: My Department was established in April 1992 and took on responsibility for funding its own consultancies in August 1992. The following computer consultants have been engaged by my Department and its agencies since that time.

Name of consultant	Number of contracts awarded
Sema	1
SISL	1
CCTA	[1]1
Internet Solutions	1
Profile Consultants	1
Mr. Page	1
KPMG	1
SouthBank Systems PLC	1
Simmons Survey Partnership	1

[1] Call-off arrangement.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how much her Department and its agencies have spent on computer consultancy in each of the last five years; and what is the expected expenditure over the next five years. [33858]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 12 July 1995]: The Department of National Heritage was established on 13 April 1992. Since that date my Department's expenditure on computer consultancy support has been as follows:

1992–93: £201,456

1993–94: £38,000

1994–95: £231,850

1995–96: £219,000

Expenditure on computer consultancy support in the next five years will reflect business requirements and is likely to be broadly similar to that for 1995–96.

Departmental Staff (Shareholdings)

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many staff in her Department or its agencies have (a) declared any company shareholdings they hold or (b) been advised to dispose of shareholdings in the last five years, indicating the companies concerned. [33411]

Mr. Sproat: The Department of National Heritage was created in April 1992. It has two agencies—the Royal Parks Agency, created in April 1993, and the Historic Royal Palaces Agency, created in October 1989. Within those timeframes one member of staff—working in the central Department—has to date declared a shareholding. This is in the Lappa Valley Railway Company, Cornwall. The member of staff has not been advised to dispose of the shares held.

TRANSPORT

Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many unfair dismissal cases were brought against his Department during the last 12 months; how many were successful; and what were the total costs including legal fees and compensation. [34620]

Mr. Norris: Staff who are dismissed and who have more than two years' service can appeal to the Civil Service Appeal Board or to the industrial tribunal or to both.

Three cases were referred to the Civil Service Appeal Board; one was dismissed, one was withdrawn and the third is still in progress.

A further four cases were referred to the industrial tribunal; two were out of time and one is still in progress. In the fourth, the Department and appellant agreed a settlement of £900 and the case did not proceed.

Further details of costs are not readily available and I will write to the hon. Member.

Cut-and-shut Vehicles

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what review is being considered by his Department on controls to stop the selling of damaged cars with particular reference to cut-and-shut cars; and if he will make a statement. [34341]

Mr. Norris: The Road Traffic Act 1988 already makes it an offence to sell an unroadworthy vehicle, unroadworthiness being defined in terms of defects which carry potentially serious road safety implications. I am currently considering the specific issue of cut-and-shut vehicles in the context of whether any change in legislation would be justified.

Crime (London Underground)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the number of (a) assaults and (b) robberies on each of the London Underground stations on the Northern line in each of the last six months; and if he will make a statement [34501]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for London Underground.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the percentage change in (a) robbery, (b) pickpocketing, (c) indecent assault, (d) assault on passengers and staff and (e) total crime on London Underground between 1993 and 1994 and between 1994 and 1995 on an annualised basis. [34308]

Mr. Norris: The figures for 1993–94 and 1994–95, supplied by London Underground Ltd., are set out in the table.

Offence	1993–94	1994–95	Percentage increase/decrease
Total crime	13,928	14,999	+ 7.7
Assaults on passengers	490	359	–26.7
Assaults on staff	120	94	–21.7
Robbery	517	614	+18.8
Indecent assault	253	246	–2.8
Pickpocketing	7,286	8,352	+14.6

Traffic Calming Measures

Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department has done on the impact of traffic calming measures on children's outdoor play in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [34452]

Mr. Norris: The effects of traffic calming on the way in which pedestrians, including children, use local roads is being investigated as part of our current research programme. Past research has not examined any specific effects that there might be on children's street play.

Midland Main Line

Mrs. Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is the estimate (a) of the increase in traffic on the M1 of a 20 per cent. reduction of the midland main line passenger service and (b) of the equivalent reduction of M1 traffic of a 20 per cent. improvement in that service. [34522]

Mr. Watts: The Department of Transport has employed consultants to study the potential for transferring road traffic on to the midland main line. The consultant's report was published last year. On the basis of these findings, a 20 per cent. increase or decrease in service frequency on the midland main line would, on average, alter the number of cars on the M1 by around one third of 1 per cent.

EUCARIS Scheme

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he is making to seek to extend the EUCARIS scheme to the rest of the European Community; and what representations his Department is making to Interpol to extend the scheme further. [34027]

Mr. Norris: The meeting of the EUCARIS Participants Board held at the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency on 13 and 14 June drew up a plan for informing other countries and organisations about the scheme. The agency is playing a full part in taking this plan forward in conjunction with other participating registration authorities.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many tenderers for the CTRL put forward variant bids; [34277]

(2) how many tenderers for the CTRL produced additional bids which identify essential changes in the reference design as set out in the competition overview. [34273]

Mr. Watts: All details of all the bids are commercially confidential.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in what year the Government commitment as set out in the draft development agreement for the channel tunnel rail link not to upgrade existing railway lines between London and the channel tunnel to the extent they could be used as high-speed lines lapses. [34275]

Mr. Watts: I refer the hon. Member to section 8.6.1 of the "Competition Overview". The second indented paragraph states:

"any subsidy or financial assistance provided by the Government in relation to the existing routes between London and the Channel Tunnel would be limited to their repair and refurbishment, and would not encompass any improvement to allow them to be used as high speed lines".

No termination date has been set for that commitment, which will be enshrined in the development agreement.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport to what extent the initial bid for the channel tunnel rail link put forward by Eurorail failed to conform with the requirements of the tender document. [34539]

Mr. Watts: All details of all the bids are commercially confidential.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his latest estimate of the range of public subsidy likely to be required for the construction of the channel tunnel rail link. [34540]

Mr. Watts: I have nothing to add to my earlier reply to the hon. Member on this point on 6 June 1995, Official Report column 41.

Signal Failures (Merseyrail)

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what reports he has received regarding failures to the (a) the signalling system and (b) passenger information system on the northern line of Merseyrail; and if he will make a statement. [35022]

Mr. Watts: Railtrack has informed me that it has worked steadily to overcome the problems which it has experienced following the installation of the Sandhills system which controls the signalling on the Merseyrail lines. Up to three weeks ago it was achieving 95 per cent. performance targets. Since then performance has been badly affected by a combination of adverse weather and vandalism. Railtrack informs me that it and Merseyrail have kept local news media informed about the causes of the disruption to services.

Problems relating to the implementation of new software have delayed the commissioning of the new passenger information system on the northern and Wirral lines. Measures have been put in place to improve the standard of information available to passengers in the absence of passenger information displays and automatic public address systems. Railtrack expects to commission the customer information displays at the end of October and the phased renewal and commissioning of the automatic passenger announcing system by mid-December.

WALES

Ministerial Visits

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list (a) details of all overseas trips made by him or ministerial colleagues in his Department, paid for wholly or partly from public funds and (b) the purpose, destination and duration of such overseas trips, which officials accompanied him and the total cost in each case, including that of officials to public funds for each year since 1992. [32277]

Mr. Hague: The following visits were undertaken by Ministers and officials:

Year	Destination	Minister/Party	Duration /Dates
1992	United States, Japan, Korea, Hong Kong	Mr. David Hunt and 4 officials	18 days
1993	Taiwan, Singapore	Sir Wyn Roberts, 2 officials, 1 WDA representative	6 days
1993	Japan, United States	Mr. John Redwood, 2 officials and 1 WDA representative	9 days
1994	Japan	Mr. John Redwood, 2 officials and 1 WDA representative	7 days

The 1992 visit also included Regional Links engagements with the Prefecture of Oita.

These visits were undertaken to promote inward investment into Wales.

Year	Destination	Minister[1]	Duration/ Dates
1992	Italy (Milan)	Sir Wyn Roberts	2 days 16–17 November
1993	Switzerland (Zurich)	Sir Wyn Roberts	2 days 9–10 June

1993	USA and Canada	Sir Wyn Roberts	12 days 12–24 September
1993	Dubai/Abu Dhabi/Bahrain	Gwilym Jones MP	6 days 1–6 October
1994	Belgium (Brussels)	Gwilym Jones MP	2 days 16–17 February
1994	Spain (Barcelona)	Sir Wyn Roberts	2 days 14–15 March
1994	Sweden (Stockholm)	Sir Wyn Roberts	2 days 3–4 May
1994	Australia/ New Zealand	Gwilym Jones MP	8 days 31 May –7 June
1995	Saudi Arabia (Riyadh)	Rod Richards MP	3 days 8–10 November
1994	Argentina	Rod Richards MP	4 days 14–17 May

[1] On each occasion, the Minister concerned was accompanied by an official.

These visits were undertaken to promote trade with Wales. In each case, the relevant Minister headed the Welsh Office trade mission.

Year	Destination	Minister[1]	Duration dates	Purpose
1992	Paris	Sir Wyn Roberts and 1 official	1 day	One day visit to Salon International De L'Alimentation.
1992	Barcelona	Mr. Bennett and 3 officials	3 days 18–20 Feb	To participate in the Four Nations Conference on disability.

1994	Paris	Mr. Gwilym Jones and 1 official	2 days	To promote trade into Wales.
1995	Luxembourg	Mr. John Redwood and 2 officials	1 day	Transport Council Luxembourg Memberstate Representation.

[1] On each occasion, the Minister was accompanied by an official.

Information on costs is not available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Welsh Development Agency

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 15 June, Official Report, column 661, if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's reply to the letter from the European Commission concerning the participation of the Welsh Development Agency in European development programmes. [34657]

Mr. Hague: A full reply to the points raised in the commission's letter will be made in due course, and will be placed in the Library of the House. I have, however, already placed a copy of the Department's interim response in the Library of the House.

Sickness Absence

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many days were lost in sickness in the last 12 months by employees in his Department (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of the number of days worked; and what was the cost of this absence. [34624]

Mr. Hague: The latest available information is for the 1994 calendar year. 21,543 days were lost; 4.06 per cent. of the total days worked. The figures are adjusted for weekends and public holidays. Information is not available on the cost of this absence and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Computer Equipment Suppliers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to his Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating the total value of the contracts received. [34565]

Mr. Hague: The top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to my Department over the last five years were as follows: Ampersand Systems; BISS; Canon; Computercenter; Corporate Software; IBM; ICL; JBA; McDonnell Douglas Information Systems and Siemens Plessey.

The total value of the contracts over the period was £7,126,615.

Departmental Redundancies

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many redundancies occurred in his Department over the last 12 months; how many were voluntary; and what was the total sum spent on redundancy payments. [34625]

Mr. Hague: Ninety, all of them voluntary. The total cost was £2.568 million.

Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many unfair dismissal cases were brought against his Department during the last 12 months; how many were successful; and what were the total costs including legal fees and compensation. [34623]

Mr. Hague: None.

ENVIRONMENT

Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many unfair dismissal cases were brought against his Department during the last 12 months; how many were successful; and what were the total costs including legal fees and compensation. [34590]

Sir Paul Beresford: During the past 12 months four cases of unfair dismissal were heard by the Civil Service Appeal Board. The board found for the Department in every case. No compensation was paid and no legal fees were incurred.

The Health and Safety Executive became part of the Department on 4 July. No unfair dismissal cases have been brought against it in the past 12 months.

Sickness Absence

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many days were lost in sickness in the last 12 months by employees in his Department (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of the number of days worked; and what was the cost of this absence. [34591]

Sir Paul Beresford: The following provisional information for the calendar year 1994 covers non-industrial staff in my Department, excluding Health and Safety Executive, Ordnance Survey and PSA services. All calculations have been adjusted for weekends and public holidays.

(a) 43,210 days were lost in sickness

(b) 3.04 per cent.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Departmental Redundancies

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Attorney-General how many redundancies occurred in his Department over the last 12 months; how many were voluntary; and what was the total sum spent on redundancy payments. [34607]

The Attorney-General: In the 12 months to the end of June 1995, one redundancy occurred in the Crown Prosecution Service, which was compulsory and involved a payment of £6,997.40

There have been no redundancies in the Serious Fraud Office, the Treasury Solicitor's Department, the Legal Secretariat to the Law Officers or Government Property Lawyers.

Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Attorney-General how many unfair dismissal cases were brought against his Department during the last 12 months; how many were successful; and what were the total costs including legal fees and compensation. [34605]

The Attorney-General: During the 12 months to the end of June 1995, three claims of unfair dismissal have been brought against the Crown Prosecution Service. The Department successfully defended one case on which costs of £2,951.25 were incurred in legal fees. A settlement of £5,500 was agreed in another case on which legal fees have yet to be determined. The remaining case is still pending.

No unfair dismissal claims have been brought against the Serious Fraud Office, the Treasury Solicitor's Department, the Legal Secretariat to the Law Officers or Government Property Lawyer.

Sickness Absence

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Attorney-General how many days were lost in sickness in the last 12 months by employees in his Department (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of the number of days worked; and what was the cost of this absence. [34606]

The Attorney-General: Information for the 12 months to 30 June 1995 is as follows:

Department	Days absence through sickness	Proportion of days worked Percentage
Treasury Solicitor's Department	2,256.5	2.6
Legal Secretariat to the Law Officers	17.0	0.3
Crown Prosecution Service	65,391.0	4.72
Serious Fraud Office	1,597.0	4.47
Government Property Lawyers	858.5	2.89

No records are available which give figures for the cost of this absence.

Computer Suppliers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Attorney-General if he will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to his Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating the total value of the contracts received. [34556]

The Attorney-General: The main suppliers of computer equipment to each of the Departments for which I am responsible are shown in the table. The figures represent total expenditure during the periods shown.

SCOTLAND

Auditors' Remuneration

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much have (a) health authorities and (b) trusts spent on auditors' remuneration in each year since 1992, by region. [34164]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Up to and including the 1994–95 financial year, the cost of auditors' remuneration and expenses for health boards and NHS trusts were met centrally. The majority of audits were undertaken by the Scottish Office audit unit whose running costs are contained within the Scottish Office's central services budget and not assigned to individual health authorities. A number of audits were contracted out to the private sector. A summary of the payments in respect of these external audit services is provided in the tables.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 13 July 1995]: The information requested is given in the table:

HOME DEPARTMENT

Departmental Redundancies

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many redundancies occurred in his Department over the last 12 months; how many were voluntary; and what was the total sum spent on redundancy payments. [34604]

Mr. Howard: The total number of redundancies in the Home Office, including its agencies, for the period July 1994 to June 1995 was 16. Of those, four were voluntary redundancies. The total cost of redundancy payments during the same period was £1,190,553. This includes payments made in respect of redundancies which occurred before July 1994.

Identity Cards

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Her Majesty's Government agreed to admit EC nationals to the United Kingdom by means of identity cards; what was the legislative basis for such a decision; and if he will make a statement. [34425]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: On the accession of the United Kingdom to the European Economic Community in 1972, the United Kingdom Government were required to comply with existing Community law allowing nationals of the Community to enter the territory of other member states simply on production of a valid national identity card or passport. Previous arrangements for admission on production of identity cards were governed by agreements with the countries concerned.

Since 1 January 1994 the same right has been extended to non-European Union nationals of the European economic area—currently, Norway, Ireland, and Liechtenstein—in accordance with the provisions of the European Economic Area agreement which was ratified by the United Kingdom in November 1993 following enactment of the European Economic Area Act 1993.

The right of European economic area nationals to enter the United Kingdom on this basis was implemented administratively prior to formal incorporation in United Kingdom law by the Immigration (European Economic Area) Order 1994.

Visas

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Her Majesty's Government advised the Economic Union that it would agree to the mutual recognition of visas issued by European Union states; what was the legislative basis for such a commitment; and if he will make a statement. [34426]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: A form of mutual recognition of short-stay visas issued by other member states is provided in the draft external frontiers convention, which was agreed in substance in June 1991 but has remained unsigned owing to objections by Spain to its application in Gibraltar. The draft convention was drawn up under the ad-hoc arrangements for co-operation on immigration matters which preceded the treaty on European Union, TEU.

Following the entry into force of the treaty, a revised text of the draft convention was published by the Commission in December 1993, the legal basis for which is article K3.2(c) TEU. Discussions on this text are continuing. My right hon. and learned Friend the Home Secretary has undertaken that the final text of the convention will be brought back before Parliament before it is signed and that the Government will not ratify the convention before the necessary legislation has been enacted by Parliament in accordance with the normal procedures.

Frontier Controls

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will seek the opinion of the European Court of Justice on the legislative standing of the declaration attached to the Single European Act on British border controls; and if it is the policy of Her Majesty's Government to seek to have the declaration transformed into a treaty clause at the 1996 inter-governmental conference. [34424]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No, but as we have consistently made clear, we will take whatever steps are necessary to maintain our frontier controls.

Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many unfair dismissal cases were brought against his Department during the last 12 months; how many were successful; and what were the total costs including legal fees and compensation. [34602]

Mr. Howard: In the non-prisons Home Office there were 12 appeals to the Civil Service Appeal Board and industrial tribunals. Of these, three were successful and five decisions are pending. In the Prison Service, there were 25 appeals to the Civil Service Appeal Board, of which four were successful. The total cost of legal fees and compensation in completed cases was £40,909.

Information about industrial tribunal cases involving the Prison Service is not readily available. The Director General of the Prison Service will provide these details shortly.

Computer Suppliers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to his Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating the total value of the contracts received. [34555]

Mr. Howard: My Department has awarded contracts for computer equipment to the value of £95,438,000 in the last five years. The following table shows the top 10 suppliers:

	£ thousand
TRW Inc.	25,000
ICL	18,834
Bull	13,330
Dell	13,063
Siemens Nixdorf	10,738
Apricot	3,308

Sickness Absence

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many days were lost in sickness in the last 12 months by employees in his Department (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of the number of days worked; and what was the cost of this absence. [34603]

Mr. Howard: Data for the number of days lost through sickness over the last 12 months is not readily available. The total number of working days lost through sickness in 1994 in the Home Office, including its agencies, was 499,242. This was approximately 4.5 per cent. of the total number of days worked. information on the cost of this absence is not available.

Scott Inquiry

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many civil servants are currently employed in dealing with matters related to the Scott inquiry; and what has been the total cost to date. [34641]

Mr. Howard: Work on matters related to the Scott inquiry is undertaken by staff in my Department as part of their normal duties. It is not, therefore, possible to estimate the overall cost.

Prison Operating Costs

Mr. Trend: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the operating costs of (a) privately managed prisons and (b) prisons directly managed by the Prison Service. [35207]

Miss Widdecombe: Comparison of the costs per prisoner place at privately managed prisons with similar publicly managed ones indicates that costs of the privately managed prisons were 15 to 25 per cent. lower in 1993–94 than their nearest public sector counterparts. This indicates annual savings to the taxpayer of £5 million to £10 million a year for the four privately managed prisons currently operating. Further analyses will be conducted on the basis of more extended private sector experience.

Prisoners (Police Cells)

Mr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Prison Service prisoners are currently held in police cells. [35180]

Miss Widdecombe: I am pleased to announce that since 16 June there have been no Prison Service prisoners in police cells.

The necessary use of police cells in the north of England, mainly in the Manchester area, was brought about by population pressures in that area and the lack of appropriate accommodation, The opening of Buckley Hall and the refurbishment of accommodation at Manchester have helped us to cease the use of police cells. Their use in the future cannot be ruled out but every effort will be made to avoid this.

Trial Arrangements

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposals he has for changes to mode of trial arrangements in respect of offences triable either way. [35181]

Mr. Howard: I have today published a consultation document, copies of which have been placed in the Library. The closing date for comments is 2 October 1995.

Remand Prisoners (Teenagers)

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the average and the minimum and maximum length of time which teenagers were held in prison awaiting trial in each of the last five years (a) in London and (b) nationally. [33806]

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 12 July 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mrs. Barbara Roche, dated 14 July 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question asking what was the average and the minimum and maximum length of time for which teenagers were held in prisons awaiting trial in each of the last five years (a) in London and (b) nationally.

Information is not available in the form requested, but information is available on the period spent on remand in a Prison Service establishment in England and Wales. Table 1 shows the number of 15-19 year olds on remand in Prison Service establishments in England and Wales by length of time since first reception on 31 December 1994. Table 2 shows the average completed time spent in custody. The historical information and separate information for London could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Corresponding information for all remand prisoners is published annually in "Prison Statistics, England and Wales" (Tables 2.3 and 2.4 of the 1993 edition, Cm2893) a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

HEALTH

Title of "Doctor"

Mr. Stern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to provide statutory protection for the title "doctor" as used in the fields of medicine and the professions allied to medicine in order to distinguish between those medical practitioners who are legally entitled to use the term, and those for whom it is an honorific. [33476]

Mr. Malone: No. I am satisfied that the matter is adequately covered under section 49 of the Medical Act 1983.

Single Sex Wards

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information he has on the number of patients who have asked to be treated in single sex wards in accordance with the January 1995 revised patients charter; and what effect that has had on their waiting time for treatment. [33345]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

Waiting Times

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish at six monthly intervals total waiting times from general practitioner referral to hospital admission, including and identifying the waiting time from GP referral to first out-patient appointment; and if he will make a statement. [33631]

Mr. Malone: No. We already publish information on waiting times for in-patient treatment on a summary basis each quarter and for individual trusts every six months. Information on waiting times between general practitioner written referral and first out-patient appointment is published in summary form each quarter and will be published for individual trusts for the fist time shortly and at regular intervals thereafter.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will ensure that any patient on a waiting list for any elective surgery who is forced by circumstance to change general practitioners or move to a new district health authority should not have to rejoin the waiting list as a new referral; and if he will make a statement. [33671]

Mr. Malone: Patients who move house or general practitioner while waiting for hospital admission may choose to stay on their original waiting list. If they choose to be treated at a different hospital the new consultant would need to assess them on an out-patient basis before deciding whether to admit, and if so, placing them on a waiting list. We would expect GPs and health authorities to try to arrange the shortest possible waiting time for such patients taking account both of clinical need and the time they have already waited.

General Medical Services, Manchester

Mr. Trend: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he intends to take in response to the decision of the High Court of the result of the case brought by Manchester local medical committee. [35320]

Mr. Malone: A recent decision by the High Court ruled that departmental guidance in relation to cash-limited general medical services allocations to health authorities constituted a binding direction. Such sums could therefore be set only on the reimbursement of certain general practitioner expenses. Manchester family health services authority had misapplied some cash limited GMS allocations by using them to support wider primary care developments. The Department is satisfied that Manchester FHSA acted in good faith in an attempt to improve services to patients and the court found no evidence to dispute this. Her Majesty's Treasury has given approval for any such payments to be made on an extra statutory basis and to be noted as such in FHSA accounts. Guidance will soon be issued to all FHSAs following the court's ruling and a copy will be placed in the Library.

Edgware General Hospital

Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will re-examine the decision by his predecessor announced on 5 April to confirm and accept the regional health authority's endorsement of Barnet district health authority's recommendation to close the accident and emergency department of Edgware general hospital by April 1997; [34086]

(2) if he will make a statement on the Government's response to the local public petition against the closure of the Edgware general hospital accident and emergency department, delivered to his Department and No. 10 Downing street on Wednesday 5 July. [34085]

Mr. Malone: No. Consultation was thorough and the changes will improve services for patients.

Patients Charter

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will ensure that the service volumes and quality standards defined by contracts with health care providers and the standards and rights defined by the patients charter are binding on the providers and commissioners of health services; and if he will make a statement. [33675]

Mr. Malone: Health authorities and fundholding general practitioners are required to deliver patients charter standards and guarantees through their contracts with providers. National health service contracts should provide for arbitration in cases of non-compliance and this applies equally to service levels and quality standards agreed locally. The NHS and Community Care Act 1990 provides a formal mechanism for disputed cases to be referred to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State.

Operations

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) hip replacements, (b) pacemaker operations and (c) cataract operations were carried out in Great Britain and Northern Ireland respectively in the last year; and what was the average waiting time for each operation in both Great Britain and Northern Ireland. [33823]

Mr. Bowis: The information for 1993–94 is shown in the table:

Finished Consultant Episodes

	Great Britain		Northern Ireland
	Number of operations	Average waiting time (days)[1]	Number of operations	Average waiting time (days)[1]
(a) Hip replacement and other arthroplasty of the hip[2]	67,571	192	1,660	184
(b) Pacemaker sytem operations[2]	18,939	27	418	—[3]
(c) Cataract and other eye lens operations[2]	152,355	193	3,766	292

Disabled People (Direct Payments)

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the progress he has made towards implementing his pledge to introduce direct payments to disabled people to arrange, in appropriate circumstances, their own care. [34303]

Mr. Bowis: We announced in November 1994 our intention to introduce the necessary legislation to allow direct payments as soon as practicable. This remains our intention. There are a number of complex issues to be resolved before legislation can be introduced and my Department has set up a technical advisory group to consider these.

Car Park Charges

Mr. Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the hospital trusts which levy a charge for car parking at trust units; and if he will list them. [34573]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Testicular Cancer

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many men died from testicular cancer in each year for the last 10 years, by region. [34633]

Mr. Bowis: The information is in the table.

Unfair Dismissal

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many unfair dismissal cases were brought against his Department during the last 12 months; how many were successful; and what were the total costs including legal fees and compensation. [34599]

Mr. Bowis: In the period 1 July 1994 to 30 June 1995, six cases of unfair dismissal were lodged with the industrial tribunal against the Department of Health. Of these, one case was successful, resulting in compensation of £9,032.88. Of the remaining five cases, one was successfully defended, one application was ruled out of time and three cases are still to be heard by the tribunal.

Details of legal fees incurred for unfair dismissal cases are not recorded separately.

Sickness Absence

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many days were lost in sickness in the last 12 months by employees in his Department (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of the number of days worked; and what was the cost of this absence. [34600]

Mr. Bowis: The estimated number of days lost through sickness in the Department of Health and its agencies during the 1994–95 financial year was 69,363. This represents 6.23 per cent. of the total working days in that financial year.

The figures have not been adjusted to exclude bank holidays, nor has any allowance been made to account for the working patterns of part-time staff. The sickness absence data is not analysed by cost.

Tendering

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 10 July at column 440, on tendering, (1) if he will estimate the total value of contracts under (a) market testing and (b) compulsory competitive tendering; [34382]

(2) how many contracts have been notified under (a) market testing and (b) compulsory competitive tendering; and what has been their value. [34380]

Mr. Bowis: The total value of the 3,927 NHS service contracts currently logged on the NHS executive market testing database is £964 million. Of these 1,404 contracts were for catering, laundry and domestic services, with a contract value of £694 million.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 10 July at column 440, on tendering if he will place in the Library a copy of all contracts notified to the NHS executive. [34381]

Mr. Bowis: No. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost, some is commercially sensitive and some could be released only with the permission of the parties concerned.

Chronic Disease Management Programmes

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make an assessment of the effectiveness for asthma sufferers of the chronic disease management programme; and if he will make a statement. [34379]

Mr. Bowis: Over 90 per cent. of general practitioners are running organised programmes of high-quality care for patients with asthma.

Departmental Redundancies

Mr. Ian McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many redundancies occurred in his Department over the last 12 months; how many were voluntary; and what was the total sum spent on redundancy payments. [34601]

Mr. Bowis: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State gave the hon. Member for Barking (Ms Hodge) on 25 May at column 759.

Computer Suppliers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to his Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating the total value of the contracts received. [34554]

Mr. Bowis: For the period from April 1991, the earliest date for which figures are available, to April 1995, the main suppliers of computer equipment to the Department and its agencies were:

Siemens Nixdorf	13,771,522
P and P Corporate Systems Ltd.	13,589,832
Bull Information Systems	304,193

These amounts include not only computer equipment but computer software and some implementation costs. It is not possible to separate out these amounts except at disproportionate cost. There were a number of smaller contracts with other companies, none of which exceeded £100,000 in the period.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Departmental Officials

Mr. Riddick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many officials worked within (a) her Department and (b) the Department of Employment on 5 July; and how many she estimates will be working within the new Department once the merger has been completed.

Mr. Forth: At 5 July 1995 the Department for Education employed 2,170 civil servants, of whom 432 were based in the Teachers Pensions Agency. The Employment Department group employed some 54,450 staff. The merger entails some 6,200 staff joining other Government Departments, while some 48,250 join the new Department for Education and Employment, giving the new Department a total staff figure of some 50,420.

Computer Suppliers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will list the top 10 suppliers of computer equipment to her Department and its agencies in the last five years, indicating to total value of the contracts received. [34551]

Mr. Robin Squire: The information requested could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Special Educational Needs Co-ordinators

Ms Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what additional funding will be provided for the training of special educational needs co-ordinators to ensure they fulfil their widely extended role in identifying and assessing special educational needs. [34506]

Mr. Forth: The grants for education, support and training programme in 1995–96 includes support for £10.5 million to help schools develop their policies on special educational needs, SEN. Eligible expenditure under this programme includes the cost of providing training or professional advice to SEN co-ordinators in schools.

Education Standard Spending Assessment

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will list, by order of the sum involved, the figure per child represented by the 1995–96 education standard spending assessment (a) primary and (b) secondary school children in each local education authority in England and Wales. [34484]

Mr. Robin Squire: The allocations per pupil for the 1995–96 education standard spending for each English local education authority are set out in the table. Figures for Welsh authorities are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Office for Standards in Education

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what was for each school term since September 1994 (a) the number of primary schools informed by Ofsted they were to be inspected and (b) the number where inspections were actually carried out.

Mr. Robin Squire: These are matters for Her Majesty's chief inspector of schools, who heads the Office for Standards in Education. I have asked Mr. Chris Woodhead to write to the hon. Member.

Education (School Premises) Regulations

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if she will announce the conclusions of the review of the Education (School Premises) Regulations 1981. [35179]

Mr. Robin Squire: My right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Education and Employment and for Wales have concluded that the regulatory burden placed on school by the Education (School Premises) Regulations should be significantly reduced.

We therefore propose to consult on a revised set of school premises regulations which will dispense with the statutory area standards for teaching accommodation and recreation area. The change will give local education authorities and school governors more flexibility to manage school land and buildings in the interests of pupils and in the light of the facilities available.

To take account of public concern that playing fields should be preserved, however, we propose to retain minimum area standards for school playing fields. We have taken the view that these restrictions should be maintained because there may be a temptation to dispose of playing fields that schools need. That temptation does not arise in the same way in the case of teaching accommodation or recreation area.

We also intend to retain the central core of requirements in the existing regulations which are aimed at safeguarding the health, safety and welfare of pupils. In particular, we propose to retain the general health and safety requirements of the 1981 regulations and the specific requirements relating to washrooms, medical accommodation, boarding accommodation, fire safety, acoustics, lighting, heating, ventilation, water quality and drainage.

The Department will be consulting soon on a revised set of draft regulations with those in schools and local authorities who will be responsible for implementing them. Subject to the outcome of that consultation and to the approval of Parliament, we intend that a revised set of regulations reflecting the changes I have set out will enter into force from the beginning of January 1996.

To assist local education authorities and schools in interpreting and applying the regulations, my Department will continue to provide advice and guidance on the design and use of school premises.

Black Economy

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what steps he is taking to reduce the size of the black economy. [32094]

Mr. Forth: I have been asked to reply.

Employment in the black economy is minimised by reducing regulatory and administrative burdens on employers; keeping down tax and other non-wage labour costs; and by effective action against fraud. The regulatory burden on employers in the UK is lower than in the other EU countries, and non-wage cost as a proportion of total hourly labour costs are among the lowest in the OECD. The Employment Service aims to protect taxpayers' money from abuse by conducting fraud drives in areas of the economy where experience has shown fraud to be prevalent.

Advertising

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how much has been spent on outside advertising agencies for each year since 1979; and if he will list the specific advertising campaigns undertaken by his Department, their purpose and their cost. [32477]

Mr. Robin Squire: I have been asked to reply.

The Employment Department does not spend money directly with advertising agencies, but channels its expenditure through the central office of information, which manages advertising on behalf of central Government.

Total advertising expenditure by the Department since 1979 is:

1979–80	[1,3] 175,296
1980–81	[1] 6,867,309
1981–82	[1] 4,395,776
1982–83	[1] 6,186,195
1983–84	[1] 4,754,522
1984–85	[1] 3,254,828
1985–86	[1] 20,621,583
1986–87	[1] 53,241,911
1987–88	[1] 40,706,040
1988–89	[1] 30,229,606
1989–90	[1] 21,797,896
1990–91	[1] 12,293,720
1991–92	14,039,415
1992–93	[1] 5,584,560
1993–94	[1] 8,441,609
1994–95	To be advised

Notes:

[1] At constant 1994 prices.

[2] The 1979–80 total does not include expenditure by the former Manpower Services Commission as the figure is not available.

[3] The 1979–80, 1980–81, 1981–82, 1982–83, 1983–84 and 1984–85 totals do not include expenditure by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) as figures are not available.

From 1979–90 a list of subject matter and specific costs is available only at disproportionate cost.

Major campaigns each year from 1990–95 are shown in the following table:

1990–91
TEC National Launch	4,214,000
National Training Awards	942,386

Career Development Loans	1,264,951
Disability Symbol	936,000
Just the Job	850,502
National Training Awards	303,355

The above campaigns have all been undertaken with a view to increasing awareness and encouraging participation in the Department's initiatives.

Social Chapter

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what calculations she has made on the impact for public expenditure of the United Kingdom signing the European Union social chapter; and if he will make a statement. [32871]

Mr. Forth: I have been asked to reply.

It is not possible to put an exact figure on the costs of the draft social chapter proposed at Maastricht because it is a mechanism for legislating rather than a body of legislation. However, there can be no doubt that accepting the social chapter would lead to legislation being imposed on the UK which would adversely affect public finances. Most important, the costs of public sector employers would be increased and the flexibility and competitiveness of British business reduced so that jobs would be lost and tax revenue reduced.

Training and Enterprise Councils

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what action she proposes to create greaterstability amongst training providers contracted to TECs. [31786]

Mrs. Gillian Shephard: I am sure that the combination of responsibilities within my new Department will offer many opportunities to strengthen our policies for training. Training and enterprise councils will continue to have a central role to play and I look forward to a very positive relationship with them. But let us be clear that TECs are independent companies and the contractual arrangements they make with their providers are a matter for them.

Career Development Loans

Mr. Bryan Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the total public expenditure on career development loans in each year for which figures are available in (a) actual and (b) current prices. [33148]

Mr. Paice [holding answer 10 July 1995]: I have been asked to reply.

The programme costs for career development loans for each year since 1988 together with the equivalent cost at 1995–96 prices are shown in the table:

£ million

Year	Actual cost	Cost at 1995–96 prices
1988–89	0.650	0.901
1989–90	1.404	1.819
1990–91	3.750	4.498
1991–92	5.389	6.082
1992–93	6.884	7.472
1993–94	7.975	8.399
1994–95	9.392	9.697

Mr. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many applications for career development loans there were in each year for which figures are available; and what percentage of these applications were successful. [33150]

Mr. Paice [holding answer 10 July 1995]: I have been asked to reply.

The number of approved career development loans for each year since 1988 together with the number of rejections, as provided to the Employment Department by the participating banks, and the consequent percentage of successful applications is shown in the table:

Year	Loans approved	Loans rejected	Percentage of successful applications
1988–89	2,762	735	79
1989–90	5,805	1,733	77
1990–91	8,054	1,767	82
1991–92	10,432	4,260	71
1992–93	10,230	3,978	72
1993–94	12,159	4,966	71
1994–95	15,169	4,790	76

Mr. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what percentage of those taking out career development loans were (a) unemployed, (b) employed and (c) continuing students in each year for which figures are available. [33149]

Mr. Paice [holding answer 10 July 1995]: I have been asked to reply.

The following table lists, in percentage terms, the employment status of approved career development loan applicants for each year since 1991:

Percentage

Year	Unemployed	Employed	Student	Other
1991–92[1]	31	51	17	1
1992–93	35	45	18	2

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Sexism

Ms Corston: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when the Government intend to give effect to recommendation No. R(09)4 adopted by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe on 21 February 1990, on the elimination of sexism from language, by bringing the terminology used in legal drafting and public administration into line with the principle of sex equality. [33034]

Mr. Freeman: The Government are fully committed to the principle of sex equality. As regards parliamentary drafting, the Government have no plans to alter present practice, which is to use language that is best suited to conveying meaning clearly and simply. Within Government communications, non-gender specific language is already widely used by Departments, who follow the principles of the "Plain English" campaign to communicate with clients and staff.

World Wide Web Server

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the work his Department has carried out in the last 12 months in making information about his Department available to the public via the Government world wide web server known as "www.open.gov.uk" and his plans and policies to make additional and new information available electronically on the server in the next 12 months. [34674]

Mr. Freeman: My Department has been responsible for the development of the CCTA Government information service on the world wide web. Since its launch in November 1994, over 80 public sector organisations have made information available, including 15 major Departments of State and 50 agencies, business units and non-departmental public bodies.

The Office of Public Service has made available a wide range of information, including all the citizen's charters; the code of practice on access to Government information; a directory of Ministers and Whips; details of publications, services and events from CCTA—the Government Centre for Information Systems; information on HMSO'S publications, business systems and electrical trading services; and courses and services available from the Civil Service college.

My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Public Service is today setting out the progress made to date and our vision for further developments in a speech at the CCTA's information superhighways conference. Further information on our achievements and plans can be found in the CCTA's report on information superhighways, which was placed in the Library of the House last month.

Civil Service Pension Scheme

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants contribute to the civil service pension scheme; how many people are currently in receipt of pensions; and how many people, having ceased to be employed in the civil service, will receive delayed civil service pensions. [33299]

Mr. Horam: As at 1 April 1995, some 514,000 civil servants were members of the principal civil service pension scheme. In addition, there are some 12,000 staff of other bodies who are covered by the scheme.

The number of PCSPS pensions in payment, at the end of June 1995, was 528,251. This figure includes widows and dependants in receipt of pensions. There are some 225,000 awards preserved for payment at pension age.

"List of Ministerial Responsibilities"

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to publish a revised edition of "List of Ministerial Responsibilities", taking into account the recent changes in responsibilities announced in the recent Government reshuffle. [34574]

Mr. Freeman: A revised edition of the "List of Ministerial Responsibilities including Agencies" is currently being prepared and I shall publish it shortly. Copies of the new edition will be made available to Members free of charge from the Vote Office.

TREASURY

Public Sector Debt

Sir Peter Lloyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the cost in 1994–95 of servicing (a) the total public sector debt and (b) that part of the debt accumulated in that year. [34298]

Mr. Waldegrave: Excluding flows within the public sector, gross public sector debt interest payments in 1994–95 amounted to £22.5 billion. Central Government debt interest payments were £21.9 billion, of which it is estimated some £700 million represented gross interest on gilts issued during 1994–95. It is not possible to provide reliable estimates of debt service costs arising from other forms of debt issued in the year.

Corporation Tax (Shipping Companies)

Sir David Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the rates of corporation tax applicable to shipping companies in each country of the European Union; and if he will make it his policy to bring United Kingdom rates into line with those elsewhere in the European Union. [33344]

Mr. Jack: The UK continues to provide one of the lowest rates of corporation tax in the European Union. Current confined main national rates of corporation tax applicable to shipping companies in each European Union country are:

Table: Main national rates of corporation tax applicable to shipping companies in the European Union

Country	Rate (percentage)	Notes
Austria	34	—
Belgium	39	Plus 3 per cent. surcharge, making an effective rate of 40.17 per cent.
Denmark	34	—
Finland	25	—
France	33.33	—
Germany	45	On undistributed profits (30 per cent. on distributed) plus 7.5 per cent. surcharge and local trade taxes (average 20 per cent., giving an average total effective rate of 58 per cent. on undistributed profits (46.25 per cent. on distributed).
Greece	Nil	Profits from shipping are not subject to corporation tax. Instead a special tax, based on gross tonnage and age, is charged on usage of a vessel.
Ireland	38	—
Italy	37	Plus 16.2 per cent. local tax, making an effective rate of 53.2 per cent.
Luxembourg	33	Plus 4 per cent. surcharge and local trade taxes (in range 8 per cent–12 per cent.), making an effective rate of 40.9 per cent.
Netherlands	35	—
Portugal	36	—
Spain	35	Plus 1 per cent. surcharge, making an effective rate of 35.35 per cent. A special regime exists in the Canary Islands which broadly grants shipping companies a 35 per cent. reduction in corporation tax, giving an effective rate of 22.75 per cent.
Sweden	28	—
United Kingdom	33	—

Public Expenditure

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide the latest estimates of the outturn of public expenditure by department on the same basis as table 6A.3 of the "Financial Statement and Budget Report" 1995–96. [34494]

Mr. Waldegrave: The latest available figures for provisional outturn for 1994–95 are published in table 1 of the public expenditure outturn White Paper for 1994–95, Cm 2903. The latest figures for earlier years are published in the statistical supplement to the FSBR 1995–96, Cm 2821. Following usual practice, figures for estimated outturn for 1995–96 will be published for the first time in the "Financial Statement and Budget Report" 1996–97 in November.

Central Statistical Office

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the Central Statistical Office performed against its key targets in 1994–95. [35206]
